BRADFORD, Ala., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Quick work by a mine superintendent and a commissary cashier today prevented summary execution of a negro arrested as a suspect in an attack on the wife of a miner here early this morning.

The negro, C. C. Sanderson, answered the general description of a negro Mrs. Dora Cosby, 33, told officers had attacked her and a group of 200 armed miners immediately surrounded him.

W. C. Chase, mine superintendent, and C. E. Patterson, commissary cashier, interceded for the negro and persuaded the crowd to surrender him to officers. Sanderson then was taken to jail in Birmingham to protect him. Later three other negroes were quietly taken into custody and removed to Birmingham for their protection.

Mrs. Cosby told officers a negro gained entrance to her bedroom shortly after her husband had left for work, and after slashing her wrists with a razor, smothered her outcries with a pillow and attacked her.

Mrs. Cosby said the negro gained entrance through a window and fled the same way. The razor, Mrs. Cosby said the negro used, was found in an adjoining room wrapped in a cloth. It was identified as the property of her husband.

A 10-year-old daughter, who was in another part of the house, said she saw no one enter or leave.

Two Men Avert Negro Lynching

Attack Suspect Taken To Birmingham After Mob Hands Him To Officers

Advertiser

1-29-35

BRADFORD, ALA., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Quick work by a mine superintendent and a commissary cashier today prevented summary execution of a negro arrested as a suspect in an attack on the wife of a miner here early this morning.

The negro, C. C. Sanderson, answered the general description of a negro Mrs. Dora Cosby, 33, told officers had attacked her and a group of 200 armed miners immediately surrounded him.

W. C. Chase, mine superintendent, and C. E. Patterson, commissary cashier, interceded for the negro and persuaded the crowd to surrender him to officers. Sanders then was taken to jail in Birmingham to protect him. Later three other negroes were quietly taken into custody and removed to Birmingham for their protection.

Mrs. Cosby told officers a negro gained entrance to her bedroom shortly after her husband had left for work, and after slashing her wrists with a razor, smothered her outcries with a pillow and attacked her.

Screams of Mrs. Cosby brought neighbors to her assistance and officers were notified. Feeling became intense in this mining community, and posses were hastily organized.

The search spread through the wooded slopes of this section, with citizens joining deputies sheriff in taking up the trail behind track dogs obtained from Murray, Ala.

By noon excitement had subsided, and officers continued their search, extending it to other mining camps in this vicinity.

Mrs. Cosby said the negro gained entrance through a window and fled the same way. The razor, Mrs. Cosby said the negro used, was found in an adjoining room wrapped in a cloth. It was identified as the property of her husband.

A 10-year-old daughter who was in another part of the house, said she saw no one enter or leave. Fingerprints on the razor were being checked.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
January 30, 1935

Lynching Can Be Stopped

In Alabama the other day a frenzied mob clamored for the lives of three men, believed to be guilty of a robbery and murder at a filling station in the little Florida town of Laurel Hill. Members of the mob were convinced that they had sufficient evidence against the men to make no mistake in requiring their lives in return for those they were supposed to have taken. The law was too slow for these aroused citizens. They wanted to take justice and vengeance in their own hands.

By a combination of good luck and the integrity of certain peace officers the men were spirited away from the place where the mob milled about, crying for blood. Once safe in Montgomery the suspects were able to establish their absolute innocence and lack of connection with the Laurel Hill crime. Two ex-convicts, out on parole, confessed soon after the robbery and murder, and the case was cleared up. The men and women of the Alabama community had barely missed putting three innocent human beings to death in the most hideous and degrading fashion.

Such outbursts of lynch fever can be curbed if the responsible authorities want to curb them. Senator Costigan of Colorado recently pointed out that the threat of a punitive Federal law on lynching during the last session of Congress had a marked effect on the lynch record of the Nation. "For the five and one-half months in which the Congress was in session," he declares, "lynchings virtually ceased in this country. Then promptly following the adjournment of Congress, which did not enact the considered legislation, the stream of lawlessness again began to flow at the rate of approximately one lynching a week, until the whole country was saturated with its revolting recitals."

So much for the argument of the "inevitability" of lynching in some American communities. And so much, in the case of the men sought by the frantic Alabama mob, for the argument that lynching of suspects is ever justified.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
ADVERTISER
JAN 29 1935

Two Men Avert Negro Lynching

Attack Suspect Taken To Birmingham After Mob Hands Him To Officers

BRADFORD, ALA., Jan. 28.—(AP)—Quick work by a mine superintendent and a commissary cashier today prevented summary execution of a negro arrested as a suspect in an attack on the wife of a miner here early this morning.

The negro, C. C. Sanderson, answered the general description of a negro Mrs. Dora Cosby, 33, told officers had attacked her and a group of 200 armed miners immediately surrounded him.

W. C. Chase, mine superintendent, and C. E. Patterson, commissary cashier, interceded for the negro and persuaded the crowd to surrender him to officers. Sanders then was taken to jail in Birmingham to protect him. Later three other negroes were quietly taken into custody and removed to Birmingham for their protection.

Mrs. Cosby told officers a negro gained entrance to her bedroom shortly after her husband had left for work, and after slashing her wrists with a razor, smothered her outcries with a pillow and attacked her.

Screams of Mrs. Cosby brought neighbors to her assistance and officers were notified. Feeling became intense in this mining community, and posses were hastily organized.

The search spread through the wooded slopes of this section, with citizens joining deputies sheriff in taking up the trail behind track dogs obtained from Murray, Ala.

By noon excitement had subsided, and officers continued their search, extending it to other mining camps in this vicinity.

Mrs. Cosby said the negro gained entrance through a window and fled the same way. The razor, Mrs. Cosby said the negro used, was found in an adjoining room wrapped in a cloth. It was identified as the property of her husband.

A 10-year-old daughter who was in another part of the house, said she saw no one enter or leave. Fingerprints on the razor were being checked.

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL
JAN 29 1935

A LYNCHING AVERTED

Quick action on the part of two determined citizens saved a negro from lynching at Bradford Alabama, and the state thus escaped the odium of another outbreak of mob violence. The only proof that the negro was the wanted man for an atrocious assault was the fact he answered to the "general description". Afterwards three others were taken into custody as suspects. The mob is known to be a poor substitute for the courts in apprehending and punishing the guilty. This is the worst indictment that can be lodged against mob violence. It not only murders the innocent, but saves the guilty from justice at the hands of the law, for when summary vengeance is wrecked, all effort to apprehend the real perpetrator ceases.

Had it not been for determined officers who were willing to risk life in upholding the law, America would have been shamed by eighty-nine lynchings in 1934 instead of a fifteen. And he the officers who permitted prisoners to be taken from their custody and murdered been as courag- eous as those who refused to surrender their pris- oners, there would have been seven lynchings in- stead of fifteen, for eight of those who were done to death by mobs were forcibly taken from the custody of nerveless officers. Thus the problem of terminating lynching is made up in very large part of compelling those charged with the duty of law enforcement to enforce the law. Whenever the American people determine to remove this ugly blot from their civilization, lynchings will large-

Lynchings-1935

Arkansas.

5118

Prevented

VANDERBILT ALUMNUS DENIES LYNCH THREAT

TERA Instructor Jailed After Share Croppers Talk

1-17-35

JONESBORO, Ark., Jan. 16.—Charges that he offered to lead a mob to lynch every land owner in Poinsett County in an address before 800 sharecroppers at Marked Tree yesterday were denied today by Ward Rodgers, 24-year-old FERA instructor and Vanderbilt University graduate, who was brought here for safe keeping.

He was arrested by Poinsett County officers after his address on charges of inciting a mob, anarchy and conspiracy agaisst the state of Arkansas.

Rodgers, a member of the Socialist party, stated that his words were: "I will lead a mob." He admitted urging sharecroppers to demand their rights from plantation owners.

Rodgers will likely be given preliminary hearing this week.

NEGROES ARE SAVED BY OFFICERS' RUSE

Pair Rushed From Osceola to Avoid Mob Violence

1-16-35

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 15.—Following an unsuccessful attempt by about 40 Missouri men to seize Jim X. Caruthers and Clear Clayton, negroes said to have confessed a series of parked car robberies, mistreatment of several women and a shooting last Saturday night, resulting in the injury of Sheriff Clarence Wilson, Mississippi County officers have removed the men to a jail in another county.

The men had been placed in the jail at Osceola following their capture late Sunday. When the men in cars bearing Missouri licenses arrived at the Osceola jail late last night, officers employed a ruse to get the negroes safely out of jail and then outraced cars that followed them when they left Osceola.

Several called at the jail, stating that they wished to identify the negroes in a certain robbery, while the others waited outside. Told the negroes were not in jail, they remained nearby. Later the negroes were driven away.

Seek Venue Change For Race Man

4-20-35

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., April 19.—(By the Continental Press)—Heavily armed officers under sheriff Clarence H. Wilson were stationed at points of vantage in the court house here to prevent possible mob violence when Jim X. Caruthers and "Bubbie" Clayton went to trial for an alleged assault upon a white woman who is separated from her husband.

Judge Neill Killough denied a motion for a change of venue by Arthur Adams, Jonesboro attorney appointed to defend the two members of the Race. Adams said he desired a change of venue because of "adverse sentiment" prevailing in the community where the trial is held.

The two prisoners stoutly maintain their innocence of any connection whatever with the alleged assault. They were arrested following a series of alleged holdups of white women while in parked cars with companions, the white women being allegedly molested, while their companions allegedly were not.

In denying the motion for a change of venue, the court held that insufficient evidence of presence and prevalence of "adverse sentiment" had been presented and cited by the defense attorney. Denver Dudley, prosecuting attorney, and his assistant, W. Leon Smith, have asked the death penalty. The defense attorney was sustained in his contention that the jury was being prejudiced by remarks made to the jury by the prosecuting attorney, and the court asked the jury to disregard the remarks complained of by the defense in their deliberation and decision in reaching a verdict as to the guilt or innocence of the two defendants.

Negroes Heavily Guarded To Avert Mob Violence

4-19-35

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. (C P) — Heavily armed officers under Sheriff Clarence H. Wilson were stationed at points of vantage in the court house here to prevent possible mob violence when Jim X. Caruthers and "Bubbie" Clayton went to trial for an alleged assault upon a white woman who is separated from her husband. Judge Neill Killough denied a motion for a change of venue by Arthur Adams, Jonesboro attorney appointed to defend the two Negroes. Adams said he desired a change of venue because of "adverse sentiment" prevailing in the community where the trial is held.

The two Negroes stoutly maintain their innocence of any connection whatever with the alleged assault. They were arrested following a series of alleged holdups of white women while in parked cars with companions, the white women being allegedly molested, while their companions allegedly were not.

In denying the motion for a change of venue, the court held that insufficient evidence of presence and prevalence of "adverse sentiment" had been presented and cited by the defense attorney. Denver Dudley, prosecuting attorney, and his assistant, W. Leon Smith, have asked the death penalty. The defense attorney was sustained in his contention that the jury was being prejudiced by remarks made to the jury by the prosecuting attorney, and the court asked the jury to disregard the remarks complained of by the defense in their deliberation and decision in reaching a verdict as to the guilt or innocence of the two defendants.

California

Lynchings-1935

Prevented.

5119

OFFICER WOUNDED IN DEFENDING NEGRO

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—(AP)—For his part in saving Aloysius Goodwin, 32, a negro, from a possible lynching, Police Officer L. E. McDonald, 30, may pay with his life.

McDonald went to the rescue of Goodwin late last night when an infuriated mob gathered after the negro's car collided with that of a white woman, and the negro was alleged to have become abusive.

As McDonald ordered the crowd to disperse, displaying his badge, Goodwin was alleged by the officers to have stabbed him in the chest with a pocket knife.

Officers found McDonald on the ground, bleeding profusely—but still endeavoring to protect the negro with his drawn pistol against the mob.

The negro was booked for suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Lynchings-1935

Prevented.

California.

5120

NEW YORK JOURNAL

NOV 30 1935

COAST FEARS NEW LYNCHING

FRESNO, Cal., Nov. 30.—Fear that the brutal killing of 14-year-old Mary Stammer may produce another California lynching spread from Fresno to the State capital as secret questioning of four suspects here indicated an imminent "break" in the mystery.

National Guard troops in the vicinity of Sacramento, it was learned from authoritative sources, have been ordered to "stand by in case of emergency."

This drastic anti-lynching measure was revealed shortly after Governor Merriam, frankly fearful that arrest of the Fresno killer will bring mob violence, appealed to all State and local police to "protect the name of California."

Lynchings-1935

Colorado

5121

Prevented

MAN SAVED FROM MOB AFTER ATTACK ON SON

Constitution
Atlanta, Ga.

Coloradan Moved to State Pen After Confessing Attempt To Kill Child, 11.

7-27-35

CANON CITY, Col., July 26.—(UP)—A 31-year-old FERA worker, frightened into incoherency, tonight found safety in the state penitentiary from a mob which sought to lynch him for a murderous attack on his 11-year-old son.

"I wanted to kill him because he liked to dress as a girl," John Hull babbled to police before he learned of the mob. "He acted like a girl."

Police, however, ascribed a terrible beating which Hull inflicted on the child to his efforts to collect a $1,000 insurance policy on the boy's life.

Hull was arrested at the bedside of his son, Corwin, in a Colorado Springs hospital, where the boy has lain near death since Wednesday night.

The report of the confession spread through Colorado Springs and enraged citizens gathered near the jail.

Police hurried Hull to the penitentiary for safe keeping.

A motorist Wednesday night found both father and son unconscious on the sidewalk, the father with one wound on his head, the boy beaten to a bloody heap, 19 separate wounds on his head, both ears crushed, his skull fractured in several places.

The father told of having been held up by two men, who slugged him and beat up the boy because the lad cried out for help.

Police Chief Hugh D. Parker didn't believe the story. Under severe grilling, the father confessed that he planned to murder his son last Saturday night and that the boy had escaped him at that time, spending the night with neighbors.

He told how he seized a plank as the two walked along the dark street last Wednesday night, struck the boy on the head with it, and then had beat his unconscious form. He then swung the plank against his own head, knocking himself unconscious.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Florida

5122

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.
JOURNAL

MAY 4 1935

MOB THREATENS NEGRO SUSPECT

Prisoner Is Safe in Jail at Orlando

WINTER PARK, May 4—(AP)—A negro robbery suspect was safe in jail in Orlando, near here today, after a harrowing experience at the hands of a mob of some 200 Winter Park residents late last night, who with guns blazing and shouts of "Lynch him! Lynch him!" cornered him in a murky swamp near the city limits.

Chief of Police L. W. Morris, who succeeded in bringing the negro to jail here and later turned him over to Sheriff Harry Hand of Orlando, for safe-keeping, reconstructed the scene of the near-lynching.

"Someone raised the cry of thief and a mob gathered as if by magic," Chief Morris said, after a negro had been seen loitering near the Kummber Lumber company, which was robbed several nights ago.

The negro was said to have been armed with a long rifle, and the mob chased him into a swamp but decided not to go into the muck in the dark after him, according to the story told by Deputy Sheriff A. H. Morrong.

The mob raked the undergrowth with heavy fire. Bullets, Deputy Morrong declared, "flew thick and fast around the swamp." Then, with the aid of lights from cars, they went in and dragged forth the negro, who was huddled in the undergrowth, quaking with fear and almost naked. The reported long rifle was not found.

The city police took charge of him and went to the city jail. Soon, however, the hue and cry "Lynch him! Lynch him!" was heard and Chief Morris telephoned Sheriff Hand, who with deputies whisked the negro to the Orange county jail, where all was reported quiet shortly afterward.

A hearing was set for the negro, whose identity was undisclosed, before Justice of the Peace Guy Colado at Winter Park today.

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.
DEMOCRAT

MAR 24 1935

Negro Escapes; Mob Disperses

BRONSON, March 23—(AP)—Threats of a lynching in this county faded tonight as a negro sought for slaying Mrs. Sam Peterson at Lebanon apparently had escaped a mob that combed swamps and fields in search of him.

Sheriff H. B. Whiddon telephoned the governor's office at Tallahassee he believed the negro had escaped. At the same time, the sheriff assured the governor there would be no mob violence should the negro be arrested.

Mrs. Peterson was found dead at her home Thursday morning. Since that time a crowd and officers had sought a negro suspected of slaying her.

Governor Dave Sholtz ordered county officials to take every necessary precaution to prevent mob violence in the two cases.

Florida White Jury Acquits Man Of Slaying; Ministers' Aid Is Praised

Sheffield Roberts Is Spirited Away to Prevent Violence Following Acquittal—Ministers' Alliance Raised Funds For Defense.

INVERNESS, Fla., Dec. 24—(ANP)—Following his acquittal on a charge of murdering William Coleman, a white man, here Tuesday afternoon, Sheffield Roberts was spirited away to Tampa to prevent mob violence. The jury, composed of white men, returned the verdict of "not guilty," at 2 p. m., but the decision was not announced here until the next morning, after the defendant had reached Tampa.

The killing of the white man occurred last summer when Coleman in an intoxicated condition, attacked Mrs. Roberts, beating her severely. When Roberts saw the attack from his window he secured his gun and shot and killed Coleman. He was indicted for murder in the first degree despite the efforts on the part of his counsel to show that he shot in self-defense.

To prevent him from being lynched he was sent to Tampa after being indicted where he remained until the trial, Monday. Feeling was intense at the trial but apparently it was the general opinion that he would be found guilty and the death penalty inflicted.

Roberts' acquittal has been hailed as a victory for the Ministers Alliance of which Dr. R. L. Pope is president. When Roberts was indicted and the alliance, through M. D. Potter, learned of the action of the Grand Jury, a campaign was started to raise funds to secure proper counsel and to build up sentiment in his favor among the better class of whites. He was turned over to the Alliance following his acquittal and according to reports, will be sent to another State for safety.

Lynchings - 1935
Prevented

General.

5123

Greenville, Miss., Democrat Times
June 21, 1935

PREVENTED LYNCHINGS

For some years Tuskegee Institute has kept an accurate record of lynchings in the United States. Knowledge of the facts surrounding lynching is considered an important part of any intelligent effort to check this lawless American custom.

The record for 1934 has one particularly encouraging feature, in addition to the fact that there were only 15 lynchings as compared with 28 in 1933. The cheering fact is that so many lynchings were prevented. On 74 different occasions angry mobs gathered for the purpose of lynching somebody. And each time force of strategy on the part of public officials dispersed or held the mob in check until the danger was past. It has been the lack of determined stand on the part of officers and the law and slow court procedure which permitted lynching to become so common.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Georgia.

5110

Sheriff Changes Jail of Negroes

Lumpkin Tense Over Murder of Webster Merchant

LUMPKIN, Ga., Jan. 16.—Four Negroes were taken from the county jail here today by Sheriff T. W. Worthington and carried to an unknown destination because of a tense feeling in the town over the murder of J. J. King, 68, Webster county merchant, in his store on Jan. 3.

Two of the Negroes confessed recently to the murder giving robbery as their motive although the other two denied participation in the crime.

The Negroes who allegedly made the confession are E. W. Brown and Kid Wilburn. Their companions were listed as Sam Grimes and Peter Powell. All four are young Negroes.

Sheriff Worthington said that he feared no outright violence from the town people but that he thought it best to remove the Negroes to another jail.

Mr. King was found dead in his store early one morning with his skull crushed from the blow of what one of the Negroes said was a hickory stick.

Sheriff Changes Jail of Negroes

Telegraph

Lumpkin Tense Over Murder of Webster Merchant

1-18-35

LUMPKIN, Ga., Jan. 17.—Four Negroes were taken from the county jail here yesterday by Sheriff T. W. Worthington and carried to an unknown destination because of a tense feeling in the town over the murder of J. J. King, 68, Webster county merchant, in his store on Jan. 3.

Two of the Negroes confessed recently to the murder giving robbery as their motive although the other two denied participation in the crime.

The Negroes who allegedly made the confession are E. W. Brown and Kid Wilburn. Their companions were listed as Sam Grimes and Peter Powell. All four are young Negroes.

Sheriff Worthington said that he feared no outright violence from the town people but that he thought it best to remove the Negroes to another jail.

Mr. King was found dead in his store early one morning with his skull crushed from the blow of what one of the Negroes said was a hickory stick.

Savannah, Ga. Press
April 24. 1935

PUT IN JAIL HERE ESCAPE LYNCHING

NEGRO CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED ASSAULT NEAR BLACKSHEAR

Lonie Dickey, 25-year-old negro, who is a native of Savannah, but who more recently lived near Blackshear, was committed to the Chatham county jail during last night for safekeeping. Informal papers filed in conjunction with his commitment allege an attempted assault at Blackshear, with notations that he was at Savannah for safekeeping, "mob was threatening to lynch," that papers will be lodged by Sheriff Carter at Blackshear, and last notation gave the name of T. F. Chapman, sheriff of Long county, ostensibly as the latest committing authority. While local records call the prisoner Lonie Dickey a dispatch from Blackshear refers to him as Lonnie Pickett.

Dickey denies the charge and says it follows in the wake of a threat to "get him" which he said was made by a woodsman to whom shortly previous to arrest he had complained that walking nine miles to and from work in turpentine operations was too much for him, that he could not hold up under it. He said he has not even as much as spoken to any woman to generate such a charge.

He also claims that identification procedure while he and two other suspects were in jail down the country was very irregular and by its natural course no one was identified. He the said he, his 66-year-old father, and another man were arrested and taken to jail where there was a fourth prisoner in custody on some other charge. He said they were lined up and a woman came in. He said she pointed out no one and was about to leave when an official said to her she had "better look 'em over good." After this, Dickey said, she pointed out his 66-year-old father as the man. Later, he continued, the four were put in cells, two in each cell. The woman came to his cell, got her to turn his head from side to side and look her full in the face and then claimed he was the one, he declared.

Dickey said he was a married man. He said he was in his home helping his wife when a man walked in with a pistol and arrested him.

"What is I done?" he said he asked when arrested.

"Come along. Matters a damn what you done," he said the man replied. He said he was taken away and that two more arrests were made, the trio being taken to Blackshear. He said he lived about twelve miles from Blackshear but that a burned bridge requires that travel to that town be made via Waycross.

In reference to difficulties with the woodsman Dickey said: "He said, all right, I'll get you.' He didn't say how or anything and I figure that is how it is. Anyone can see it is a frame-up."

He said he was transferred to the Ludowici jail Sunday night and last night the sheriff from there and a deputy sheriff brought him to the Savannah jail. He said the sheriff told him on two occasions they had to duck the mob.

A dispatch from Blackshear, giving the details of the alleged attempted assault, stated the prisoner's name was Lonnie Pickett. The dispatch follows:

BLACKSHEAR, Ga., April 24.—Lonnie Pickett, 24-year-old negro of Brantley county who was arrested in Pierce county on April 16 following an alleged attempted assault on a prominent young woman of this county is being held for safe keeping in the Chatham county jail at Savannah. Pickett is alleged to have attacked the daughter of a well-known farmer of this county at 11 o'clock on the morning of April 16. He was arrested several hours later by Deputy Sheriff Wiley Peacock. The alleged vitcim and a young girl identified Pickett as the attacker, according to Sheriff H. M. Carter of Pierce county. Fearing for the safety of the negro Sheriff Carter on Sunday removed the prisoner to the Long county jail at Ludowici and last night Pickett was moved from the Long county jail to Savannah. The negro, a turpentine hand, is alleged to have attempted to attack the young woman while she was en route to her home from a neighbor's where she had been visiting. The negro became frightened and ran when the victim's screams attracted the attention of several men who were working in a nearby field. According to the sheriff's office here the young woman had been roughly handled by her attacker and her throat bore bruises where he had grabbed her in an attempt to stifle her cries for help. Sheriff Carter said he removed the negro from Pierce county jail because feeling was running high in the community in which the young woman lives and he was afraid that an effort would be made to remove the prisoner from the Pierce jail. The scene of the alleged attack by Pickett was near the Brantley-Pierce county line and within about six miles of Blackshear.

TROOPS TO GUARD JEFFERSON TRIAL

Telegraph

J. B. Allen, Negro, Accused of Attack on White Woman, Will Face Court Today

6-24-35

JEFFERSON, Ga., June 23 (AP)—Georgia's swift moving "flying squadron" of national guardsmen, organized during last year's textile strike, tonight was ordered to protect a Negro going on trial here tomorrow for an alleged attack on a white woman.

The Negro is booked as J. B. Allen, alias J. B. Reece. He was arrested following an attack on a Nicholson, Ga., white woman about two weeks ago. He has been taken to a jail out of the county for safekeeping.

Governor Talmadge was asked to send troops by Sheriff R. M. Culberson and Judge W. W. Starke of the Jackson county superior court. The sheriff and judge expressed fear of violence.

The alleged attack became known publicly outside the county when the request for troops was made.

Sheriff Culberson said bands of men have searched without success for the Negro since the day of the reported attack. He has been transferred to several jails to avoid them.

Troops Well Armed

"About 50 white men came to the Jackson county jail immediately after the reported attack and demanded the Negro," the sheriff said today. "I told them the Negro was not in the jail and I guess they got tired of hunting for him."

Adjutant General Lindley Camp at Atlanta said the squadron of guardsmen, equipped with machine guns, rifles, tear gas and other modern weapons, would escort the Negro from the jail where he now is being confined to Jefferson for the trial.

The troops will be under command of Colonel T. L. Alexander, Captain W. J. Black and Lieutenant McPherson of the 122nd infantry, stationed in Atlanta.

NEGRO CONVICTED IN ATTACK CASE

Telegraph

Bayonets of Gaurdsmen Protect Escaped Felon as He Receives Death Sentence

6-25-35

JEFFERSON, Ga., June 24 (AP)—Behind bayonets of national guardsmen an escaped Negro convict was convicted of attacking a white woman and sentenced here today to die in the electric chair July 19.

The Negro, booked as J. B. Allen, alias J. B. Reece, was indicted, convicted and sentenced in less than three hours. Trial of his case was in progress an hour and 40 minutes and the death sentence was passed 26 minutes after the jury received the case.

In command of Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, the national guardsmen were brought out to preserve order at the request of Judge W. W. Starke of the Piedmont circuit superior court and Sheriff R. M. Culberson of Jackson county.

Troops Transport Men

The 60 troopers composing the "flying squadron," traveling in a fleet of swift military trucks, picked up the Negro at Gainesville, where he had been held for safekeeping, and brought him here for trial.

A guard was thrown around the courthouse, and all persons entering were searched for weapons. Two men, who Colonel T. L. Alexander said apparently were intoxicated, were taken into custody but later released.

Following sentence, the Negro was brought to Atlanta by the guardsmen for safekeeping pending his removal to the state penitentiary at Milledgeville.

On the stand the defendant pleaded not guilty to the charge of attacking a farmer's wife near Nicholson, Ga., on June 5. The woman and her son identified the defendant from the witness stand.

Before going on trial, the Negro said he escaped from the Morgan county chain gang camp on May 10 where he was serving two 12 months sentences.

Negro Is Carried To Fulton Prison

Two White Women Beaten by Man in Serious Condition

ATLANTA, June 27 (AP)—A Negro suspected of invading the Madison county home of two invalid white women and severely beating them in a frustrated robbery attempt was brought here today for safekeeping.

The prisoner, booked as Simmie Gains, was placed in Fulton Tower by Barrow county officers who held him overnight in jail at Winder following threats of mob violence.

A posse led by Clarke, Oglethorpe and Madison county authorities cornered the Negro near Lexington yesterday and he was transferred immediately to Winder.

Fulton county officers said the Negro denied knowledge of the crime.

Mrs. C. G. Goolsby, 79, who is blind and, her daughter, Nettie, 49, were in an Athens hospital in a serious condition from injuries inflicted by the intruder who entered their home late Tuesday night.

After a visit to the Goolsby home officers said they were convinced the women were beaten by someone bent on robbing the place.

GEORGIA GUARD CALLED AS NEGRO FACES TRIAL

'Flying Squadron' Moves To Jefferson as Attack Case Comes Up.

JEFFERSON, Ga., June 23.—(AP) Georgia's swift-moving "flying squadron" of national guardsmen, organized during last year's textile strike, tonight was ordered to protect a negro going on trial here tomorrow for an alleged attack on a white woman.

The negro is booked as J. B. Allen, alias J. B. Reece. He was arrested following an attack on a Nicholson, Ga., white woman about two weeks ago. He has been taken to a jail out of the county for safe keeping.

Governor Talmadge was asked to send troops by Sheriff R. M. Culberson and Judge W. W. Starke, of the Jackson county superior court. The sheriff and judge expressed fear of violence.

The alleged attack became known publicly outside the county when the request for troops was made.

Sheriff Culberson said bands of men have searched without success for the negro since the day of the reported attack. He has been transferred to several jails to avoid them.

"About 50 white men came to the Jackson county jail immediately after the reported attack and demanded the negro," the sheriff said today. "I told them the negro was not in the jail and I guess they got tired of hunting for him."

Adjutant General Lindley Camp at Atlanta said the squadron of guardsmen, about 60 strong, equipped with machine guns, rifles, tear gas and other modern weapons, would escort the negro from the jail where he now is being confined to Jefferson for the trial.

The troops will be in command of Colonel T. L. Alexander, Captain W. J. Black and Lieutenant McPherson, of the 122nd infantry, stationed in Atlanta.

NEGRO DOOMED TO DIE AS TROOPS STAND BY

Guilty Verdict Is Returned by Jefferson Jury in Attack Case.

JEFFERSON, Ga., June 24.—(AP)—Behind bayonets of national guardsmen, an escaped negro convict was convicted of attacking a white woman and sentenced here today to die in the electric chair July 19.

The negro, booked as J. B. Allen, alias J. B. Reece, was indicted, convicted and sentenced in less than three hours. The trial of his case was in progress an hour and 40 minutes and the death sentence was passed 26 minutes after the jury received the case.

In command of Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, the national guardsmen were brought out to preserve order at the request of Judge W. W. Starke, of the Piedmont circuit, and Sheriff R. M. Culberson, of Jackson county.

The 60 troopers composing the "flying squadron," traveling in a fleet of swift military trucks, picked up the negro at Gainesville, where he had been held for safekeeping, and brought him here for trial.

A guard was thrown around the courthouse, and all persons entering were searched for weapons. Two men, who Colonel T. L. Alexander said apparently were intoxicated, were taken into custody but later released.

Following sentence, the negro was brought to Atlanta by the guardsmen for safekeeping pending his removal to the state penitentiary at Milledgeville.

On the stand the defendant pleaded not guilty to the charge of attacking a farmer's wife near Nicholson on June 5. The woman and her son identified the defendant from the witness stand.

Before going on trial, the negro said he escaped from the Morgan county chain gang camp on May 10, where he was serving two 12-month sentences.

Georgia Negro To Die For Attacking Woman

JEFFERSON, GA., June 24.—(AP)—Behind bayonets of national guardsmen an escaped negro convict was convicted of attacking a white woman and sentenced here today to die in the electric chair July 19.

The negro, booked as J. B. Allen, alias J. B. Reece, was indicted, convicted and sentenced in less than three hours.

CONFESSION CLAIMED TO MARIETTA KILLINGS

Negro Taken to Unknown Jail Following Admission of Brutal Murders.

After reportedly confessing two brutal murders in Marietta, Will White, a negro believed to have escaped the Lowndes county chain gang, was whisked out of Atlanta yesterday to some unannounced destination by Marietta officers.

The confession was reported to have named another negro in one of the killings. The document was typed and notaried by Captain W. B. Seabrook, head of the Atlanta Police Bureau of Identification, and was signed with the negro's mark.

White was arrested by Officers F. L. Jolly and H. P. Griggs in Marietta and brought to Atlanta for questioning. He admitted, they announced, that he killed W. P. Smith, Marietta chair factory watchman, the night of September 27 and fatally slugged Orel C. Swanson, filling station operator, last Saturday.

He was found in the home of a negro woman not far from the filling station holdup, the officers said. Horace Parker, a negro whom White is said to have implicated in the factory slaying, was also found there.

Smith was killed with a heavy timber in a robbery attempt. Swanson was struck with an ax which, the officers said, came from the negro woman's home and has been identified by her.

Police expressed doubt Parker or the woman had anything to do with the two killings.

SOLDIERS SOUGHT TO GUARD NEGRO

Attorney for John Henry Sloan Fears Mob Violence at Trial in Moultrie

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 11. (AP)—W. A. Covington, attorney appointed to defend John Henry Sloan, Negro charged with slaying a white man, has asked Gov. Eugene Talmadge to send national guardsmen here Thursday when Sloan is to be tried.

If the request is granted, troops are expected to accompany local officers when they bring Sloan here from a jail in an unannounced city where he has been held for safekeeping since his arrest recently in Florida.

Sloan is charged with the death of Otis Gay of Moultrie, who was shot to death as he sat on an embankment near here. In the search for Sloan a posse of citizens killed another Negro, who came to his death, a coroner's jury found, at the hands of parties unknown.

Governor Away

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 11. (AP)—Gov. Eugene Talmadge, requested by Moultrie authorities to send national guard troops ot prevent trouble at the murder trial of John Henry Sloan, was in Alabama to deliver an Armistice day address today and could not be reached for a statement.

Adjt. Gen. Lindley Camp said the decision must come from the governor.

NEGRO PRISONER TO BE PROTECTED

Two National Guard Companies Ordered to Moultrie for Trial of John H. Sloan

ATLANTA, Nov. 13 (AP)—Two national guard companies were ordered to Moultrie tonight to attend the trial of John Henry Sloan, Negro, for slaying a white man in a case which already has cost the life of another Negro.

In an appeal to Gov. Eugene Talmadge, Judge W. E. Thomas of Southern circuit superior court said the threat of mob violence is "serious and alarming."

One Negro was killed by a posse of citizens in a search for Sloan who was captured recently at Havana, Fla.

Under command of Adjutant General Lindley Camp, the guardsmen will assemble from Calhoun and Dublin at a jail "somewhere in Georgia" where Sloan is being held, Camp said.

Flying Squadron

The guard will be composed of the flying squadron of the 122nd infantry, commanded by Capt. Bernard W. Franklin of Calhoun, Ga., and the picket detachment of the 121st infantry commanded by Capt. Flanery Pope of Dublin, Ga., Camp said.

Otis Gay, Moultrie young white man, was shot to death on the night of Oct. 15 as he and a young woman sat on an embankment near Moultrie. The woman received slight injury from a stray shotgun charge. Hhe said the Negro approached and fired on Gay without a word.

Gay fell dead.

A search for Sloan was begun after a farmer told officers he lent the Negro a shotgun. Before the Negro's arrest in Florida a Negro farmer was shot to death by a citizens' posse near Moultrie.

A coroner's jury held the Negro died at the hands of parties unknown.

Sloan was placed in a jail "somewhere in Georgia" to await trial.

As the trial date neared, Judge Thomas wrote Governor Talmadge asking guard protection.

"So many people are warning me of the impending acts of mob violence at the trial in Moultrie of John Henry Sloan on Nov. 14 . . ." he write, "and I regard the situation as serious and alarming and am compelled to refer the matter to your responsibility."

"Sheriff T. B. Beard, of Moultrie, is holding the defendant in some unknown jail awaiting trial and it will be necessary to carry him in safety to the court for trial and after trial to safe quarters. The sheriff advises that he is helpless in the event of an attack."

W. A. Covington, Moultrie attorney representing Sloan, wrote a similar request to Governor Talmadge.

General Camp said his unit of guardsmen will accompany Colquitt county officers with Sloan from the jail where he is being held to the Colquitt county court house.

Lynchings—1935
Prevented.

Georgia.
6

5111

Negro Is Arrested In Beating Case

Telegraph

Mrs. C. G. Goolsby, Daughter, Nettie, in Athens Hospital

6-27-35

LEXINGTON, Ga., June 26 (AP)—Sheriff T. E. Watkins of Oglethorpe county tonight reported the capture of a young Negro suspected of severely beating Mrs. C. G. Goolsby, 74-year-old blind invalid, and her daughter at their home in Madison county early today.

A posse including officers of Clarke, Madison and Oglethorpe counties caught the Negro, named by Sheriff Watkins as Vennie Gains, while a large crowd gathered north of here and for a time threatened violence.

Sheriff Watkins said the Negro was taken away to an unannounced jail and the crowd then dispersed.

Mrs. Goolsby and her daughter, Nettie, 49, were in a critical condition tonight with skull fractures in a hospital at Athens.

Sheriff Watkins said their assailant's motive apparently was robbery, although officers who investigated found nothing of value missing from the house.

The two women had lived alone for many years, the daughter also being an invalid.

Bronx, N.Y. Home News

AUG 3 1935

Sheriff Prevents Mob From Lynching Man

J. M. Culberson, sheriff of Jackson County, Ga., early yesterday faced a milling mob of approximately 100 white men intent on lynching a colored man who is alleged to have entered a white girl's bedroom and warned them that they would take the prisoner only over his body. The mob dispersed.

Tifton, Ga., Gazette
August 20, 1935

NO LYNCHING IN TIFT

It has been repeatedly rumored for several days that John Bivins, a negro, was lynched in Tift county last Friday.

This statement is emphatically denied by Sheriff J. M. Walker, who states that Bivins is in jail, where he has been held since Friday for safe-keeping.

DEATH VERDICT GIVEN IN MOULTRIE SLAYING

Constitution

Georgia National Guardsmen Battle Crowd Following Trial of Negro.

11-15-35

By GEORGE D. W. BURT,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 14.—(AP)—National guardsmen, here to prevent mob violence to John Henry Sloan, negro accused of slaying a white man, took the prisoner to the Milledgeville penitentiary shortly after he had been convicted and sentenced to die December 10.

Atlanta

Fists, tear gas and rifle butts were used by the guardsmen to break through a crowd which surged about the courthouse yard as the swift, one-day trial came to an end.

One shot was fired in the air as the troopers escorted Sloan from the courthouse. Apparently the shot came from the crowd.

Three men, their names not learned, were felled by blows from the butts of arm rifles. They reportedly tried to break through the line of guardsmen.

Tear gas guns were fired by the guardsmen to disperse the crowd.

Slain October 15.

Sloan, charged with the shotgun slaying here the night of October 15 of Otis Gay, young white man of Moultrie, was brought here in a convoy of national guardsmen this morning from Albany. He had been held since his arrest recently in Havana, Fla., in a jail "somewhere in south Georgia."

The defendant entered the courthouse through lanes of national guardsmen. There was a crowd present but it was quiet.

As the trial advanced, signs of restlessness developed and Adjutant General Lindley Camp, of Georgia said the situation was "the most tense the national guardsmen have ever been in."

Gay's young woman companion on the night of the slaying, Miss Mary Smith, of Jacksonville, Fla., collapsed on the witness stand as she told of the shooting.

The defense questioned Dr. T. H. Chestnutt, Colquitt county health officer, in an attempt to prove Sloan temporarily insane.

Sloan remained expressionless, and almost motionless, throughout the trial. He displayed no emotion when the verdict was read, and sentence pronounced.

A jury was selected in less than two hours, testimony was concluded, and arguments of state and defense counsel were completed shortly after 1 p. m. Shortly after 3 p. m., the jury returned its verdict.

W. A. Covington, court-appointed attorney for Sloan, appealed for a life sentence.

SLOAN IS PLACED IN JAIL AT MACON

MACON, Ga., Nov. 14.—(AP)—John Henry Sloan, the negro convicted today at Moultrie on the charge of slaying a young man near there and sentenced to be electrocuted, was placed in Bibb county jail here tonight by Adjutant General Lindley Camp and a detachment of guardsmen.

General Camp, who with his men ate supper here, after the prisoner was placed in jail, said the trip from Moultrie to Macon was without incident.

The request for the troops was made by the sheriff and the attorneys for the negro.

Moultrie tonight is quiet but a large crowd is expected to be on hand for the trial tomorrow as Gay was widely known throughout this section.

"FLYING SQUADRON" SENT TO MOULTRIE

Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp announced last night that he had dispatched the "flying squadron" of the 122d infantry and a picked detachment of men from the 121st infantry to Moultrie to keep order at the trial of John Henry Sloan, a negro, there today. General Camp said he was acting on orders from Governor Talmadge.

The troops left Atlanta immediately after dark and were to be in Moultrie before midnight, General Camp said. The troops are under command of Captain B. W. Franklin, of Calhoun, Georgia.

"Order will be preserved in Moultrie," General Camp said. "There has been some ugly rumors down there but we do not believe the people will do anything but let the law take its course. However, in the event that anything out of the ordinary happens we have enough men there to handle the situation."

GUARDSMEN ON DUTY AT TRIAL IN MOULTRIE

Constitution

Negro Charged With Slaying White Man Faces Court Today.

11-14-35

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 13.—John Henry Sloan, a Moultrie negro, charged with the slaying of Otis Gay, a white man, will go on trial here tomorrow with two companies of the Georgia national guard on duty to prevent violence.

The guardsmen, under command of Captain B. W. Franklin, of Calhoun arrived late last night and immediately set up machine guns and other arms around the courthouse.

Captain Franklin is in charge of the "flying squadron" of the 122d infantry, a picked detail which did roving duty during the recent textile strike. The members of his detachment belong to various companies of the 122d. In addition there is present another company of militia from Dublin.

Gay was shot and killed on the evening of October 13 as he and a young woman companion sat on an embankment near here. The young woman said the negro approached the couple and killed Gay with a shotgun without saying a word. Sloan was arrested at Havana, Fla., two weeks after the slaying on the statement of a farmer who said he loaned the negro a shotgun.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

NOV 15 1935

TROOPS FIGHT OFF GEORGIA LYNCH MOB

Moultrie, Ga., Nov. 14 (AP).—National Guardsmen fought off a courthouse mob with pistol butts, rifle barrels and finally tear gas this afternoon to save a condemned colored murderer from lynching. The crowd stormed the guardsmen as they left the courthouse to carry the killer, John Henry Sloan, to an unannounced jail for safekeeping. Sloan had just been doomed to die next month for the slaying of Otis Gay, young white man of Moultrie. His trial lasted 30 minutes.

New York American

NOV 15 1935

Mob Fights Troops Guarding Slayer

Soldiers Battle Way Out of Town Against Lynching Crowd

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 14 (AP)—National Guardsmen dispatched here to prevent mob violence to John Henry Sloan, Negro accused of slaying Otis Gay, a white man, fought their way out of town with the prisoner today after he had been convicted and sentenced to die Dec. 10.

Hand-to-hand fighting, in which fists, tear gas and rifle butts were used, occurred between the troopers and a mob.

One shot fired in the air apparently came from the crowd. Three men were felled by the troopers.

Shortly afterward, a convoy of motor cars streaked toward Milledgeville, where are the State Penitentiary and the electric chair.

Before his arrest, a posse of citizens seeking him killed another Negro, not connected with the slaying of Gay. A coroner's jury found the second Negro came to his death at the hands of parties unknown.

New York Evening Post

NOV 15 1935

NEGRO IS RESCUED FROM LYNCH MOB

Georgia Troopers Fight Crowd, Rush Condemned Slayer to State Prison

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 15 (AP).—John Henry Sloan, Negro slayer of a white youth, was taken to the State penitentiary at Milledgeville, Ga., today, under protection of State troopers, who frustrated an attempt by an angry crowd to lynch him.

Several members of the crowd were felled by rifle butts as they rushed the guardsmen when they escorted the Negro from the court room yesterday. Sloan had just been condemned to death for slaying Otis Gay October 15.

The troopers succeeded in breaking through the townsmen after bringing tear gas into play and attempt to intercept him.

rushed the Negro from the city by A Negro farmer was killed in the hunt for the slayer.

Sloan testified he shot Gay when "frightened" by two other men who were chasing him. He said he thought Gay, who was seated on an embankment with his fiancee, would

TROOPS HALT MOB, BRING DOOMED NEGRO HERE

SLAYER GETS DEATH BALLOT IN MOULTRIE

John Henry Sloan Sentenced to Die for Slaying Otis Gray in Colquitt

WOMAN WITNESS FAINTS

Soldiers Use Fists, Tear Gas and Rifle Butts to Protect Prisoner

Telegraph

John Henry Sloan, Negro convicted by a Colquitt county jury yesterday afternoon and sentenced to death for the slaying of a Moultrie young white man, was brought to the Bibb county jail last night for safekeeping after national guardsmen had battled off a huge Colquitt county crowd who sought to take the prisoner.

11-15-35

Rumors that a mob would attempt to capture the Negro, who was given a speedy trial and sentenced to death Dec. 10 for the recent murder of Otis Gay, were received all during the day, Adjt. Gen. Lindley Camp said here last night as he and his 105 officers and men stopped for supper and to deliver their prisoner.

Macon, Ga.

As soon as sentence was passed Sloan was delivered to custody of the guardsmen who formed two lines along the walk from the courthouse doors to an army truck parked on the street 100 feet away.

Mob Surges Forward

Adjutant General Camp had escorted his prisoner to within 25 feet of the truck when the mob, which was estimated at about 3,000 persons, surged forward.

With rifle butts and fists the guardsmen beat them back while others threw tear gas bombs to disperse them. It was a full quarter of an hour before the crowd was broken up and driven from the courthouse lawn, General Camp said.

He reported there probably were 15 or 20 casualties among the mob, none of them believed seriously hurt, while his own men came through uninjured.

Bayonets Are Drawn

Cries of "get him" as the prisoner left the building set off the spark, General Camp said. Clubs and bayonets were used to ward off the crowd. Only one shot was fired, the national guard head said, and that was by one of his own men who shot into the ground ahead of a group who approached too closely. The discharge stopped them as he leveled his rifle.

Many of the mob were believed to be armed, according to General Camp, but there was no attempt on their part to bring their weapons into play.

"I am especially gratified at the coolness displayed by every guardsman," he said at the New Yorker where he ate supper wtih officers before the soldiers filed in to eat.

Every Guardsman Armed

"Every one of them was armed but they withheld their fire and no one was seriously hurt. I have never seen men keep their equilibrium like they did when the crisis came.

"If my crowd had gotten as excited as that crowd did, there would have been hell to pay in Georgia," he said.

Most of the guardsmen on duty at the Moultrie trial had been through a similar experience in textile disturbances at LaGrange, he explained, and were equally successful in preventing undue bloodshed.

The guardsmen, traveling in nine army trucks and an ambulance, stopped at the outskirts of Moultrie for about half an hour for a check-up on the companies, but no one followed the party into the city, General Camp said.

Telegraph

With the guardsmen in Moultrie were Col. L. C. Pope of Dublin and Colonel Skelton among other officers including Captains B. W. Franklin and Flannery Pope. One company each of the 122nd infantry, Calhoun, and 121st infantry, Dublin, saw duty.

11-15-35

By GEORGE D. W. BURT
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 14 (AP)—National guardsmen, dispatched here to prevent mob violence to John Henry Sloan, Negro accused of slaying a white man, fought their way out of town with the prisoner late today shortly after he had been convicted and sentenced to die December 10.

Macon, Ga.

Hand-to-hand fighting, in which fists, tear gas and rifle butts were used, broke out between the troopers and a crowd which charged about the courthouse yard as the swift, one-day trial came to an end.

"Get him," shouted the crowd, and the melee was on. One shot was fired in the air as the troopers escorted Sloan from the courthouse. Apparently the shot came from the crowd.

Three men, their names not learned, were felled by blows from the butts of army rifles. They reportedly tried to break through the line of guardsmen.

Battle Guardsmen

Tear gas guns were fired by the guardsmen to disperse the crowd.

There was shoving, kicking and fighting as the guardsmen fought their way along to a waiting convoy of motor trucks, motor cars and an ambulance.

Shortly afterward, the convoy was streaking up the highway toward Macon, which is not far from Milledgeville, where the state penitentiary—and the electric chair—are located.

Sloan, charged with the shotgun slaying of Otis Gay, young white man of Moultrie, Oct. 15, was brought here in a convoy of national guardsmen this morning from Albany. He had been held since his arrest recently in Havana, Fla., in a jail "somewhere in south Georgia."

Negro Is Slain

Before his arrest, a posse of citizens seeking him killed another Negro, not connected with the slaying of Gay, a coroner's jury found the second Negro came to his death at the hands of parties unknown.

The defendant entered the courthouse through lanes of national guardsmen. There was a crowd present, but it was quiet.

As the trial advanced, however signs of restlessness developed and Adjutant General Lindley Camp, of Georgia, said the situation was "the most tense the national guardsmen Smith, of Jacksonville, Fla., collapsed on the witness stand as she told of the shooting.

She said she and Gay were seated beside the road, "discussing plans for our wedding next Sunday.

"We looked up and saw a darky right in front of us, with a gun across his shoulder.

"Otis threw up his hand in front of his face and said, 'Don't do that.'

"The darky said, 'Yes I will, too.'"

At this juncture, Miss Smith broke down.

Shortly afterward, she resumed the story, saying the Negro then fired, killing Gay. She was wounded slightly by stray pellets from the shotgun charge.

Sloan Borrowed Gun

The state presented other witnesses who said Sloan had borrowed a shotgun shortly before the shooting, and returned it later, after the shooting.

None of the witnesses definitely identified Sloan as the slayer. One had ever been in. We hope to get out without any trouble."

Woman Collapsed

Gay's young woman companion on the night of the slaying, Miss Mary the witness stand, however, he said he fired a shot but did not aim to hit anyone.

Gay and Miss Smith were in a party of three young couples, which included Gay's 20-year-old brother, Wallace, on a motor car ride the night of the shooting.

The brother was a witness at the trial today, but said he did not witness the actual shooting.

A jury was selected in less than two hours, testimony was concluded, and arguments of state and defense counsel were completed shortly after 1 p.m., Central Standard time. At 2:05 p.m., the court's charge had been completed, and the case went to the jury. Shortly after 3 p.m., the jury returned its verdict.

In Georgia, a murder trial jury verdict of guilty without recommendation for mercy, carries the death sentence. The jury did not recommend mercy.

Life Sentence Asked

W. A. Covington, court-appointed attorney for Sloan, appealed for a life sentence.

National guard protection had been requested of Governor Eugene Talmadge by Judge W. E. Thomas of the southern superior court circuit, who presided at today's trial.

One company of the 122nd infantry, Calhoun, Ga., and A company of the 121st infantry, Dublin, Ga., were sent here.

Under a Georgia law permitting a defendant to make a statement to the jury and not subject himself to cross-examination, Sloan took the stand for a few minutes.

The 22-year-old Negro, who stuttered, said:

"I didn't aim to kill anybody."

He said he feared he would be harmed, and that some white men in an automobile had chased him on the same road the day of the shooting of Gay.

Sanity Questioned

He added he was frightened when he saw two persons sitting on the embankment beside the road. He said he heard them say, "there goes a Negro."

The defense questioned Dr. T. H. Chestnutt, Colquitt county health officer, in an attempt to prove Sloan temporarily insane.

Sloan remained expressionless and almost motionless throughout the trial. He displayed no emotion when the verdict was read and sentence pronounced.

Miss Smith testified the Negro who shot Gay told them:

"'I'm gonna shoot you both.'

"I took hold of Otis' arm and threw my head on his shoulder. Then the darky shot."

She said one of the other girls in the party called to her and the Negro fled.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
December 3, 1935

Preventing A Lynching

National guardsmen of Georgia fight off a mob and thus prevent the lynching of a Negro who has been convicted of killing a white man and will be put to death anyway on Dec. 10. The guardsmen thus save the South from another stain.

In contrast to that, prominent leaders in Texas are defending a recent lynching of two boys, 15 and 16, accused of the murder of a white girl. They talk about the lynching as "the will of the people." A woman's club leader says that only by mob murder can you deal with such "brutes."

The court dealt with the Georgia case and if the mob had had its way that would have meant only that the Negro's life was taken a little before the time set. It would have been vengeance working instead of the law. As for the Texas case, where it is said the youth of the boys prevented any sentence except commitment to the industrial school, if the law is wrong it can be changed. The white people make the laws down there; they ought to be willing to live up to them.

More national guard determination and less sentimentality about the "will of the people" would help solve this problem in the South.—The Milwaukee Journal.

Lynchings – 1935
Prevented

Georgia

5112

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
August 2, 1935

Jackson Sheriff Refuses to Deliver Prisoner to Crowd

JEFFERSON, Ga., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Refusal of Sheriff J. M. Culberson, of Jackson County, to deliver into the hands of a crowd of men a negro accused of breaking into the bedroom of a white girl was reported here Friday.

Mrs. Culberson, the wife of the sheriff, said she was alone at the jail when the crowd of "about seventy-five or 100" men arrived at the jail late Thursday and "told me they wanted the negro.

"It nearly scared me to death, but I told them I didn't have the key," she related.

"Then they asked me to get in touch with the sheriff, which I did. The sheriff talked them out of it. He told them he was under oath to uphold the law and would see that the law took its course. He said if they took the prisoner they would do so over his dead body."

The crowd left the jail, Mrs. Culberson said.

She said the negro was "in a jail," but declined to say where.

A young woman living on a farm with her parents aroused other members of the family with her screams Wednesday night. Members of the family said the girl was being pulled through a window when her screams, and cries of her sisters in the room with her, aroused their father, who with his son, gave chase. A suspect, caught on a neighboring farm, escaped them, but was shot through the leg by a neighbor who had joined the chase, and was recaptured.

Dixie Lynch Mob Routed By Soldiers

Chattanooga Times

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 21 (ANP).—With two companies of National Guardsmen holding a mob, estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000, at bay on the outside of the courthouse, John Sloan was found guilty of murdering Otis Gay, white, here Friday and sentenced to death in the electric chair on December 10.

Sloan was brought here Thursday night, under heavy guard, from an unknown city where he has been kept since his arrest. A jury was quickly selected and the trial got under way, with witness after witness testifying, including the woman companion of the slain man, who collapsed on the stand as she told of the "wanton killing."

Two witnesses declared that they knew Sloan borrowed a shotgun on the night of the killing but neither witness would positively identify him. The case went to the jury and a few minutes later the verdict of guilty was returned and the death sentence was imposed.

Battle Starts

While the jury was deliberating it became evident that trouble was brewing. Murmurs of "lynch him" were heard outside the courthouse and these murmurs grew to shouts when it was reported that the white woman had collapsed on the witness stand and the feeling grew more tense when the appointed counsel for the defendant, after the defendant had pleaded not guilty, asked for a life sentence.

Remembering that when the murder was committed an innocent man was lynched by a mob of Colquit county whites, the commander of the National Guardsmen decided to take no chances. As the prisoner was led from the courthouse the soldiers formed two aisles, with bayonets drawn.

Manacled, the prisoner emerged from the courthouse and a shout went up "Get him," and the mob surged forth only to be met with the butt ends of the rifles and in some cases the bayonets. Tear gas bombs were thrown into the midst of the mobs and one shot was fired. The 2,000 cowards backed away while the prisoner was led to the truck which carried him to Macon for safekeeping.

Twenty Casualties.

Adjutant General Camp, who commanded the guardsmen, declared later that he believed that there were some fifteen or twenty casualties several of which were serious, but not one of the soldiers was injured. He praised his men for their coolness, declaring that had the mob attempted to use armed force instead of rushing tactics, "there would have been hell to pay in Georgia. All of my men have had experience in handling mobs in the textile strike and I was certain that they would measure up."

Macon, Ga., News
November 15, 1935

MOB IS STOPPED; NEGRO SAFE HERE

John Henry Sloan, Condemned in Moultrie, Escorted by Troops to Bibb Jail

Saved from an angry mob in Moultrie by stern action of national guardsmen, John Henry Sloan, 22, Colquitt county Negro, was held in Bibb county's lynch-proof jail here today, awaiting electrocution December 10.

Sloan was convicted in Moultrie yesterday afternoon of slaying Otis Gay there a month ago and wounding the latter's fiancee, Miss Mary Smith of Jacksonville, as they sat on a roadside embankment discussing their wedding plans.

The Negro was promptly sentenced by Judge W. E. Thomas to die in the electric chair at the state prison farm Dec. 10, but the irate crowd gathered about the courthouse to seize the prisoner as he was led from the building.

At the request of Judge Thomas, Gov. Eugene Talmadge had sent two picked companies of guardsmen to the trial, under personal command of Adjutant General Lindley Camp. With tear gas, rifle butts and fists they held back the mob without firing a shot, and without any serious casualty.

Escorted by the troops, the Negro was brought to Macon by Deputy J. H. Phillips of Colquitt county, and delivered to the Bibb jail about 8 p. m.

In the Moultrie fighting several civilians were reported slightly hurt by the fists and rifle butts of the guardsmen, and several are believed to have suffered light doses of tear gas, but names were not available.

Reporter Gassed

General Camp reported one guardsman, name unknown, was treated for light inhalation of the gas, and the only other known casualty was George D. W. Burt, former Macon newspaper man now with the Associated Press. Burt's eyes and nose were slightly inflamed, but he had virtually recovered when he reached Macon last night.

During the trial the principal witness for the state was Miss Smith, who positively identified the Negro and said he declared as he approached them with a shotgun: "I'm gonna shoot you both."

The Negro, in an unsworn statement, said: "I didn't aim to kill anybody." He asserted some white motorists had just chased him on the road, and that he was frightened when he saw the couple beside the road and heard one say: "There goes a Negro."

After the killing, Oct. 15, posses made wide search for the slayer, and during the manhunt a Negro farmer was slain when he resisted search of his premises. Later, Sloan was arrested in Havana, Fla., and held in an unknown jail until his trial.

OFFICER'S SLAYER IS HELD IN BIBB

Telegraph

Negro Confesses Fatal Shooting of Motorcycle Policeman in Sparta

11-19-35
Macon, Ga.

Winton Boyer, 25, Hancock county Negro and confessed slayer of M. L. Stafford, 25, Sparta motorcycle police officer, is held in Bibb county jail for safe keeping.

Mr. Stafford was shot to death in Sparta Sunday and Boyer was arrested last Sunday night. He was delivered here at 3 a.m. yesterday by heavily armed sheriff's deputies who said the Negro had confessed the shooting.

As posses of officers and citizens of Hancock county searched for the Negro Sunday night a group of officers found him in the chimney of a Negro house near Beulah, about eight miles north of Sparta. He was brought directly to the local jail.

Claims Self Defense

Boyer was quoted by officers as saying that he fired at the officer in self defense, after the officers had made threatening moves.

Officer Stafford stopped a group of six Negroes in a car in Sparta Sunday afternoon, suspicious that the car contained liquor. He searched five of the Negroes, all under arrest, and was about to search Boyer when the Negro resisted.

"Here's one you won't search," the Negro is reported to have said as he drew a pistol. He allegedly fired three times and the officer died almost instantly.

Five In Hancock Jail

The Negroes fled, one in the car and the others on foot. Five of them were arrested in a few minutes and are still held in Hancock county jail. Each of the Negroes held there aided in efforts to find Boyer and each named him as the gunman, it was said.

The posse that found Boyer was composed of J. M. Jackson, a deputy and formerly the sheriff; R. D. Smith, county policeman; Charles Wright, county warden, and P. L. Dickens, Sparta attorney.

Although armed with a pistol at the time he was found, Boyer surrendered without resistance, the officers said.

Authorities do not fear mob action against the five Negroes held in Hancock county, but they did fear violence if Boyer were held there. He is booked in the local jail on a charge of murder.

Meanwhile, Judge James B. Park went from Greensboro to Sparta yesterday to draw jurors for a special term of the Hancock superior court which will open Monday morning to try the six men.

Attorneys Are Named

Judge Park appointed Carlisle Giles and Marion Ennis, both of Milledgeville, as special attorneys to defend Boyer, facing a murder charge, while M. E. Moate and G. L. Dickens, Sparta lawyers, were named to assist in defense of the five other Negroes, being held on open charges, pending action of the grand jury.

The five are listed as Willie Spikes, John Henry Spikes, William Choice, Jim Wiggins and Linton Fluellen.

Funeral services for the officer were held in the Baptist church in Sparta yesterday, conducted by three ministers, Rev. E. D. Rudisill, Rev. Fred Stroud and Rev. J. W. Clark. Interment was in the city cemetery.

City officials served as pallbearers and county officers formed an honorary escort.

Surviving Mr. Stafford are his mother, Mrs. Edna Parks, and a sister, Mrs. Greta Stafford, both of Jacksonville, Fla.

Moultrie, Ga., Observer
November 15, 1935

PEACE AND QUIET RESUMED IN CITY AFTER THE TRIAL

Sloan Safely in Penitentiary Ill-Feeling Has Dwindled Away

Peace and quiet, shattered temporarily Thursday in Moultrie by the trial of John Henry Sloan, confessed slayer of Otis Gay on Oct. 15, and the brief altercation between a huge throng and National Guardsmen as they left the courthouse with the Negro reigned again Friday in the Colquitt county seat.

Sloan, whisked away from the threatening gestures of the crowd and lodged in the Bibb county jail at Macon overnight for safe keeping, was safe in the state penitentiary at Milledgeville Friday afternoon while awaiting death in the electric chair December 10, and the national guardsmen had completed their mission.

No disorder of any nature was noted throughout the day until a Superior Court jury, after deliberating 15 minutes, brought in a verdict of guilty without recommendation, Judge W. E. Thomas pronounced the death sentence, and Sloan was withdrawn from the courthouse and hurried to a waiting convoy manned by state troops.

"I've never seen men keep their equilibrium like those guardsmen did when the crisis came," said Adjutant General Lindley Camp, in charge.

Exactly one month ago the crime was reported to Sheriff T. V. Beard and a search for the slayer inaugurated.

One shot, apparently from the crowd, signalled the start of the fight yesterday as picked infantrymen escorted Sloan from the court where he was condemned to die for shooting Otis Gay Oct. 15.

Tear gas, fists and rifle butts were brought into play.

Men thronged against khaki-clad lines with the cry: "Get him."

Three were felled by blows of the guard, but none hurt seriously.

Breaking through, the troops rushed Sloan by motor convoy toward the Milledgeville penitentiary. He was held overnight at Macon.

Gay was shot to death as he sat on an embankment with his fiancee, Miss Mary Smith of Jacksonville, Fla.

Wounded slightly by the shotgun charge, Miss Smith testified the Negro fired after the hasty declaration: "I'm gonna shoot you both."

Sloan, 22, said from the witness stand, "I didn't aim to kill anybody." He asserted some white motorists had chased him on the road. He was frightened, he said, when he saw the two on the embankment and heard one say "There goes a Negro."

A Negro farmer was killed in the hunt for the slayer. There was no prosecution. Sloan was arrested recently in Havana, Fla.

Governor Eugene Talmadge assigned two companies of guardsmen for the trial at the request of Judge W. E. Thomas and defending Attorney W. A. Covington.

NEW YORK TIMES
NOV 15 1935

TROOPS SAVE NEGRO FROM GEORGIA MOB

Guardsmen Fight Way Out of Moultrie With Prisoner Convicted as Killer.

CROWD AT COURT GASSED

Meanwhile, Five Men Go on Trial in Tennessee on Murder Charge Over Lynching.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 14 (AP).—National Guardsmen, sent here to prevent mob violence to John Henry Sloan, Negro, accused of slaying a white man, fought their way out of town with the prisoner late today soon after he had been convicted and sentenced to die Dec. 10.

Hand-to-hand fighting, in which fists, tear gas and rifle butts were used, occurred between the troopers and a crowd which surged about the court house yard as the one-day trial came to an end.

"Get him," yelled the crowd, and the mêlée was on.

One shot was fired in the air as the troopers escorted Sloan from the court house. Apparently, the shot came from the crowd.

Three men, their names not learned, were felled by blows from the butts of army rifles, and tear gas guns were fired by the guardsmen to disperse the crowd.

There was shoving, kicking and fighting as the guardsmen struggled to a waiting convoy of motor trucks, motor cars and an ambulance.

Soon afterward the convoy was streaking up the highway toward Macon, which is not far from Milledgeville, the scene of the State penitentiary and the electric chair.

Sloan, charged with the shotgun slaying here of Otis Gay, young white man, on Oct. 15, was brought here by National Guardsmen this morning from Albany. He had been held since his arrest recently in Havana, Fla., in a jail "somewhere in South Georgia."

The defendant entered the court house today through lanes of National Guardsmen. There was a crowd present, but it was quiet. As the trial advanced, however, signs of restlessness developed.

Gay's young woman companion on the night of the slaying, Miss Mary Smith of Jacksonville, Fla., collapsed on the witness stand as she told of the shooting.

She said she and Gay were seated beside the road "discussing plans for our wedding next Sunday" when a Negro with a gun on his shoulder appeared in front of them.

Warned by Gay, "Don't do that," the Negro nevertheless fired, she said, killing her companion.

New York Herald-Tribune
NOV 15 1935

Georgia Troops Beat Back Mob To Save Negro

Use Bayonets and Rifle Butts to Protect Slayer as He Leaves Courtroom

3 of Rioters Are Injured

Man Sought by Would-Be Lynchers to Die in Chair

By The United Press

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 14.—Two companies of Georgia National Guardsmen used tear gas and rifle butts today to disperse a howling mob seeking to take a condemned Negro from Sheriff's deputies.

Under protection of National Guard bayonets, the Negro, John Henry Sloan, twenty-one years old, was rushed to the state penitentiary at Milledgeville, where he must die in the electric chair on December 10.

Two persons were beaten by gun butts and a third cut by a bayonet as the Guardsmen repulsed a rush of a mob of more than 2,000 enraged South Georgians.

Killed Man, Wounded Girl

Sloan was sentenced to die in the electric chair for the murder of Otis Gay, young white man, and the wounding of his young woman companion, Mary Lou Smith. Sentence was passed in a courtroom tense with indignation under the armed protection of the two National Guard companies.

After passing sentence, Judge W. E. Thomas commanded Sheriff T. V. Beard to hold the spectators in the courtroom while Sloan was withdrawn.

Led by Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, commander of the Georgia National Guard, troops formed a bayonet-fringed ring about Sloan. As they reached the courtyard, however, the mob surged forward.

Three in Mob Injured

Guardsmen exploded gas bombs and beat the mob with their rifle butts. Two of the crowd were said to have suffered bruises from the flying gun butts, and a third was cut by a bayonet as the troops rushed Sloan to the safety of the state prison.

The slaying occurred as Gay and the girl were sitting on the banks of a canal here. Sloan was alleged to have emerged suddenly from underbrush and opened fire with a shotgun.

The Negro today admitted firing the shot. He explained that he narrowly had escaped being run down by an automobile bearing several white couples and believed that Gay and Miss Smith had been one of the couples in the car. The jury was out only forty-five minutes in bringing back the death verdict.

Sloan escaped into Florida after the slaying despite a forty-eight-hour man hunt by bloodhounds and a posse. During the man hunt, another Negro received injuries which resulted in his death. Sloan later was captured near Havana, Fla.

Then the governor might order out the national guard, the mob having refused to surrender their captive and disperse. Perhaps it would be too late to send a company of soldiers with machine guns to stop the murder of the accused man and the governor would send a military plane with bombs. The plane arriving, seeing from 1,000 feet in air that the negro would be swinging from a limb in two minutes, would drop a bomb. Half a dozen members of the mob, would-be murderers of a foul but defenseless criminal, would be killed or wounded, they would lie on the ground writhing, while the rest of the 2,000 would scatter like rats. That would be the vindication of law, civilization. It would establish Olin D. Johnson as an oath-keeper unafraid of a mob, though composed of half the voters of a county.

What would happen to Johnston in the next primary? What would be the opinion of thousands of good men and women who highly approve the use of soldiers with machine guns to put down the "insurrection" and "rebellion" of fourteen or fifteen persons who claim to hold office by law, whose titles are disputed, and who only ask that their titles be tried by the courts?

CHARLESTON, S. C.
NEWS AND COURIER
NOV 18 1935

Suppressing Insurrection

At Moultrie, Georgia, a negro stole from the bushes and with no provocation shot to death with a shotgun a young man who was sitting by the bank of a canal with a young woman. The young woman was wounded.

The negro was tried, promptly convicted and sentenced to death, but 2,000 enraged citizens, a mob, wished to kill him then and there. Troops had been ordered out. Under order of the presiding judge and sheriff the negro was protected from the inflamed white savages, who with tear gas and with bayonets were repulsed. Two or three of the crazy fools were hurt.

Still, there is law in Georgia. The negro will be hanged, as he should be, and 2,000 people have been, against their will, saved from committing a cowardly murder.

Were word to come to Columbia this morning from the sheriff of Union that 2,000 men had captured a negro and expected to lynch him at 3 o'clock it would be Governor Johnston's sworn duty to prevent the lynching if he could. When a mob assembles to do murder it is "insurrection," "rebellion."

Lynchings-1935
Prevented.

Georgia

5113

Georgians Fight Slayer's Guards

But Troops Escape With Prisoner After Dispersing Crowd With Guns, Gas

MOULTRIE, GA., Nov. 14.—(AP)—National guardsmen, dispatched here to prevent mob violence to John Henry Sloan, negro accused of slaying a white man, fought their way out of town with the prisoner late today shortly after he had been convicted and sentenced to die Dec. 10.

Hand-to-hand fighting, in which fists, tear gas and rifle butts were used, broke out between the troopers and a crowd which surged about the courthouse yard as the swift, one-day trial came to an end.

"Get him," yelled the crowd, and the melee was on.

One shot was fired in the air as the troopers escorted Sloan from the courthouse. Apparently the shot came from the crowd.

Three men, their names not learned, were felled by blows from the butts of army rifles. They reportedly tried to break through the line of guardsmen.

Tear gas guns were fired by the guardsmen to disperse the crowd.

There was shoving, kicking and fighting as the guardsmen fought their way along to a waiting convoy of motor trucks, motor cars, and an ambulance.

Shortly afterward, the convoy was streaking up the highway toward Macon, which is not far from Milledgeville, where the State penitentiary—and the electric chair—are located.

Sloan, charged with the shotgun slaying here the night of Oct. 15 of Otis Gay, young white man of Moultrie, was brought here in a convoy of national guardsmen this morning from Albany. He had been held since his arrest recently in Havana, Fla., in a jail "somewhere in south Georgia."

Before his arrest, a posse of citizens seeking him killed another negro, not connected with the slaying of Gay. A coroner's jury found the second negro came to his death at the hands of parties unknown.

The defendant entered the courthouse through lanes of national guardsmen. There was a crowd present but it was quiet.

As the trial advanced, however, signs of restlessness developed and Adjutant General Lindley Camp of Georgia, said the situation was the most tense the national guardsmen have ever been in. We hope to get out without any trouble."

Gay's young woman companion on the night of the slaying, Miss Mary Smith, of Jacksonville, Fla., collapsed on the witness stand as she told of the shooting.

She said she and Gay were seated beside the road, "discussing plans for our wedding next Sunday."

"We looked up and saw a darky right in front of us, with a gun across his shoulder.

"Otis threw up his hand in front of his face and said, 'don't do that.'

"The darky said, 'yes I will, too.'"

At this juncture, Miss Smith broke down.

Shortly afterward, she resumed the story, saying the negro then fired, killing Gay. She was wounded slightly by stray pellets from the shotgun charge.

The State presented other witnesses who said Sloan had borrowed a shotgun shortly before the shooting, and returned it later, after the shooting.

None of the witnesses definitely identified Sloan as the slayer. On the witness stand, however, he said he fired a shot but did not aim to hit any one.

Under a Georgia law permitting a defendant to make a statement to the jury and not subject himself to cross-examination, Sloan took the stand for a few minutes.

The 22-year-old negro, who stuttered said:

"I didn't aim to kill anybody."

He said he feared he would be harmed, and that some white men in an automobile had chased him on the same road on the day of the shooting of Gay.

He added he was frightened when he saw two persons sitting on the embankment beside the road. He said he heard them say "there goes a negro."

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Georgia.

5114

New York Evening Post

NOV 16 1935

WRESTED FROM HANDS OF GEORGIA LYNCH MOB

Associated Press Photo

John Henry Sloan, Negro (at right, immediately following guard captain), was closely guarded following his trial and sentence to the electric chair at Moultrie, Ga., for the fatal shooting of Otis Gay, white man, while Gay sat by the side of a road with a girl companion. A crowd tha tried to tear the prisoner away from the guards was overcome with tear gas after hand-to-hand fighting.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
November 18, 1935

John Henry Doesn't Know He Is to Die for Slaying

That Mob in Moultrie Was Just another Group of Tormentors to Him

By FRANK HAWKINS

John Henry Sloan, a husky 20-year-old Negro plowman who has been running from tormentors since he can "remember," is happy to be where he can run no further.

Fifteen days before Christmas—unless fate should intervene—he will be strapped in the electric chair in Milledgeville and society will be paid for the fatal shooting of Otis Gay, Moultrie young white man who was killed by the Negro on the night of Oct. 15.

As he sits in solitary confinement in the Bibb county jail, approximately 135 miles from the courthouse from which an angry mob attempted to seize him from national guardsmen Thursday, John Henry knows that his running days are over and that he will not become another victim of lynch law.

But there is one thing that John Henry does not know, or if he knows he will not admit it. And that is that he must take a trip to the electric chair.

"You know what you are in here for don't you John Henry?" the Negro was asked last night as he stood in the dimly lighted corridor just outside his narrow grey cell.

Told No Different

"Yessir, boss," said John Henry who can neither read nor write, "I thinks I'm in here for a life sentence." And no one told him differently.

It is possible that the young native of Havana, Fla., did not hear accurately as the court pronounced his doom. It is more probable that John Henry was too frightened to comprehend.

For he hasn't stopped shaking yet. Even his broad shoulders and deep chest tremble incessantly as he haltingly relates the experience that took him from the humble farm-hand's existence to the moment when the state's troops were needed to hold back a fighting mob that demanded its own conception of justice.

There is little likelihood that John Henry's 150 pounds of bone and muscle will cease to quiver so long as he can clearly recall sounds of the mob that cried "there he is, get him."

And how did John Henry feel when he heard that?

"Well, I tell you the truth," he said, "I felt every way but the right way. I didn't want these men to get me."

Guards Were First Rate

Guardsmen treated him "first rate," the Negro recalled, and "I was glad they were there. Yessir, they were first rate."

Through trembling lips the doomed Negro inhaled deeply from a cigarette and swore that never before had he had any experience with the law. He doesn't even know if he had a lawyer at the trial in Moultrie. The lawyer, incidentally, pleaded for a life sentence.

John Henry hasn't had any schooling, not even "the A, B, C's," he said last night, but he is a Baptist and a good one.

"Every night I say my prayers," said the Negro who doesn't fully realize how badly he needs them. There is no one to help him pray because what family there is he left behind in Havana when he moved to Moultrie in 1929. He is not married, but he has a girl.

John Henry fondly recalled last night that it was this girl who cooked the rabbits and birds which he had shot on the afternoon before he shot Mr. Gay.

"We ate those rabbits and birds," the Negro reported, "and then I started on up the road to return the gun," a single barreled .12-gauge gun which he had borrowed from a white friend.

"Some white men took in behind me and they chased me for about a mile. Folks has always chased me and when I saw this man on the bank near the road I thought he was going to chase me so I shot. I didn't aim to hit him and I didn't see no lady with him. After I shot ran and took the gun home." The young woman was not injured.

"This is the first trouble I ever was in. They caught me down in Florida somewhere and took me to Albany. Then they slipped me into the jail at Moultrie late at night. They made me lie down in the car so I knew something was wrong."

John Henry learned what was wrong the next day when the mob gathered outside the courthouse. One look at this boy is assurance he won't forget what he learned.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
November 20, 1935

HANCOCK NEGROES REMOVED TO CITY

Five Others, Besides Slayer of Policeman, Jailed Here for Safekeeping

Six Hancock county Negroes, one of them the confessed slayer of M. L. Stafford, Hancock county policeman, were in Bibb county jail yesterday for safekeeping.

Winton Boyer, who confessed shooting Mr. Stafford to death in Sparta Sunday afternoon, has been held here since early Monday morning. The others, brought here late Monday night are Willie Spikes, John Henry Spikes, William Choice, Jim Wiggins and Linten Luellen.

Officer Stafford was shot down after he had arrested the Negroes and was searching them for whisky. They fled but were captured by hastily organized posses.

Trial Probably Monday

The Hancock county grand jury is expecting to meet in Sparta today and a special term of superior court will be called there Monday. Judge James B. Park has drawn jurors and appointed defense attorneys for the six Negroes.

Addition of the five Negroes to the Bibb jail Monday night brought the total number held here for safe keeping to seven. John Henry Sloan, sentenced to die for the slaying of Otis Gay in Moultrie more than a month ago, has been in the local mob-proof jail for nearly a week.

Intended Lynch Victim Escapes Hands Of A Mob

CORDELE, Ga., Nov. 15— One crew of Georgia head-hunters were repelled this week—not by the stern voice of police authorities but by five pugnacious Race men with five steady shotguns. Mobs are marked by cowardice, and in this case the cowardly qualities of a mob forgot the victim as they looked eagerly into the barrels of shotguns.

Frank Horn, 18-year-old youth, was the intended lynch victim. He cut a white man during an altercation because the latter attacked him for being "sassy." With the protection of white supremacy as their motive, mixed with a hatred for black men, leading citizens of the town gathered their forces and went after the youth who had dared to lay hands on a white man. But they forgot their mission when death faced them through the barrels of five steady shotguns held in the firm hands of the youth's protectors who escorted him to Atlanta, where he boarded a train for New York City.

Bronx, N.Y. Home News

NOV 18 1935

Two Suspects Hidden From Mob After Killing Georgia Policeman

A mob was reported gathering in Sparta, Ga., last night, as word spread of the manner in which Motorcycle Policeman M. L. Stafford had met his death on a country road near there. According to Mayor Vinion of Sparta, the policeman halted a car in which there were four colored men on suspicion that they were drinking. While he questioned them, one shot him in the head. He died instantly. Two of the colored men were captured, but neither was believed to be the actual slayer. They were spirited to a secret hiding place. Fear was expressed today that the two men may be lynched.

SAVANNAH, GA.
PRESS

NOV 15 1935

SOLDIERS' GOOD WORK.

Georgia national guardsmen seem to have performed very fine and efficient service at Moultrie yesterday afternoon in protecting the life of a negro prisoner who had been tried, convicted and sentenced to death at a sitting of the Superior Court of Colquitt county.

The negro was charged with the slaying of a popular and prominent citizen. He was defended by a well-known Georgia attorney, W. A. Covington, under an appointment by the court. Judge Covington knows his Georgians and his juries and he requested the court to have the Governor detail a detachment of military for the trial to protect his client. The developments of the day show the lawyer and judge acted with wisdom in making the request for troops and the military authorities showed equally good sense in having the soldiers assigned to this service.

The militia in its treatment of the situation showed fine courage and excellent acumen. It succeeded in saving the life of the convicted defendant who made his way through the excited assemblage without the firing of a shot on the part of the guard.

There was a limited use of rifles as clubs and a more liberal use of tear gas. This combination permitted the passage of the convicted man in safety from the court room to the waiting automobile to bear him out of the county and to a place of detention to await the date of his execution.

The military thus under arms came from Calhoun and Dublin, we are told. They are units of the 121st and 122nd Infantry of the Georgia National Guard. They are to be most highly commended for the good job they have done. One irresponsible move—one ill-considered action—would have brought very serious results.

Adjt. Gen. Lindley Camp and his troops have met a serious situation with credit to themselves and have prevented through mob law in Colquitt county.

Thomasville, Ga., Times-Enterprise
November 15, 1935

NATIONAL GUARD PROTECTION FOR PRISONERS

Over in Moultrie two companies of national guardsmen were called out to protect a negro prisoner. They did the job very successfully and a lynching was probably prevented. The negro shot a white man on a county road without warning and wounded his girl companion. There was no fuss or provocation, just a shotgun and a death. One negro was killed in connection with the event and Judge Thomas decided that in order to get a trial it would be necessary to have the protection of troops. They were called for and came.

There is always danger of some action of that kind when the crime is so boldly horrible as this was. There is more than ever a source of trouble if women are molested. Some southern men have not relinquished the privilege of meting punishment to rapists in some sections and probably never will. However, they are often led into excesses and abuses of justice and law that are not nice to contemplate and should properly be prevented.

In Texas two small negro boys were hung by a big mob because of the fact that they had killed and abused a white girl. The law provided that they could only be held until they were twenty-one years of age in a detention home and then freed. The mob quickly disposed of them. There is a tendency to facilitate such killings in some parts of the country and it is a sure sign of reckless and abandoned passion. To curb it is a difficult task and sometimes judges and officers of the court call the militia to see that the criminal gets a trial. How far the country will go in waiting for the meting of justice under our present code is problematical. If they could be punished at once it would mitigate half of the trouble or prevent it entirely. As it stands the people do not trust the law to the extent of believing that it cannot be made into a pretext of one kind or another sufficient to deter punishment. Every community has faced that trouble and still does.

COLUMBIA, S. C
RECORD

NOV 19 1935

TIMES AND OCCASIONS.

At Moultrie, Ga., on October 15 Otis Gay, a young white man, was killed and search was begun for John Henry Sloan, a negro, charged with the slaying.

Arrested in Florida, Sloan was returned to Georgia and last week after being safely kept since his arrest in a jail "somewhere in South Georgia" was escorted by national guardsmen to Moultrie for trial. There he was convicted of murder and in accord with law was sentenced to die December 10.

There was no delay to complain of and the law, in such cases made and provided, was satisfied. On December 10 Sloan was to be expected to meet his end in the electric chair.

But some 2,000 Georgians, moved by the insanity of mobs, were not satisfied. As the national guardsmen and their prisoner moved out of the court house they ran into a crowd that milled about the court house yard hankering for the opportunity to commit murder by lynching the convicted negro.

"Get him," someone yelled and the hand to hand fighting was on as the national guardsmen resisted the assault with tear gas and rifle butts. Three men, members of the crowd, were felled by blows from the army rifles as the soldiers made their way to the waiting convoy of motor trucks, cars and ambulance. One shot was fired, from the mob, but it did not deter the guardsmen from the successful attainment of their objective. Sloan was taken to the state penitentiary at Milledgeville to await his execution.

And those who cannot indorse Governor Eugene Talmadge's use of the militia in taking over the Georgia state highway department, who condemn his overzealous use of the militia in labor disputes may applaud his use of the guardsmen at Moultrie. There are times and occasions when the militia ought to be used to uphold and enforce the laws of the state against insurrection and rebellion and to preserve the public peace, to prevent murder, to save Georgians from the disgrace of a cowardly and useless crime.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Indiana

5126

SAVED FROM MOB, MAN TO ACCEPT SENTENCE

FRANKFORT, Ind., Aug. 8.—(AP) Sheriff Fred Rodgers, who spirited Frank Nace to Indianapolis yesterday to escape a mob angered at an assault on a 9-year-old girl, said the prisoner has agreed to plead guilty and accept sentence.

Arraignment will wait, however, until Circuit Judge Paul E. Laymon returns from a vacation. The sheriff said Nace then will be brought back here secretly.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented.

Kentucky

5127

MOB RUMORS DELAY KENTUCKIAN'S TRIAL

WHITESBURG, Ky., March 21 (AP)—Rumors of mob violence today caused the examining trial of Denver Tolliver, 25, mountaineer, accused of slaying Clyde Quillen, 19, Boy Scout, to be postponed until next week.

County Judge Sandy Adams, remarking "it didn't look good to me," said the safety of Tolliver was threatened when rumors the prisoner might be taken from officers if he were brought here from Harlan.

WOMEN COMMEND 3 WHO BALKED LYNCHING

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 13 (AP)—Action of Town Marshal Burt Hodges, Munfordsville, in persuading a mob not to lynch a negro accused of an attempted attack was commended today by the Kentucky Council of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching.

Dr. Maher Speecack and Ernest O. Douta, who aided Hodges in quieting the irate 30 men bent on lynching Raymond Curry, 19, also were commended. The negro is accused of attempting to assault Mrs. Esther Jolly, 18.

TOWN MARSHAL SAVES PRISONER FROM MOB

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., June 12. (AP)—Saved from lynching after a band of 30 irate men had him perched on a shaky bedstead with a noose ready, Raymond Curry, 19-year-old negro, was in jail at Elizabethtown today awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to assault Mrs. Esther Jolly, 18, a bride of two months.

Town Marshal Burt Hodges and Dr. Maher Speevack of Munfordville, rescued the negro from the barn of Henry Jolly, the victim's father-in-law, where the men had made ready for an impromptu hanging.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

JUN 13 1935

COLORED BOY SAVED FROM LYNCH CROWD

Munfordville, Ky., June 12 (AP). — Saved from lynching after a band of thirty irate men had him perched on a shaky bedstead with a noose ready, Raymond Curry, 19, colored, was in jail at Elizabethtown today awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to assault Mrs. Esther Jolly, 18, a bride of two months.

Town Marshal Burt Hodges and Dr. Maher Speevack of Munfordville rescued Curry from the barn of Henry Jolly, the victim's father-in-law, where the men had made ready for an impromptu hanging.

Raymond Curry

Hodges and Speevack argued that the group was not positive they had the right man, because Mrs. Jolly had not made an identition, and that the law be permitted to take its course.

Ernest O. Doutaz, a railroad detective, helped get the prisoner out of the barn and to the Munfordville jail.

(Associated Press Wirephoto)

Mrs. Esther Jolly

Victim of attempted assault.

A crowd of about 150, apparently more curious than aroused to violence, gathered there. Officers had the prisoner change clothes and took him for safekeeping to Elizabethtown.

Spartanburg, S. C. Journal
June 13, 1935

OFFICERS THWART LYNCHING PLANS

Munfordville, Ky., June 13 (AP). Saved from lynching after a band of 30 irate men had him perched on a shaky bedstead with a noose ready, Raymond Curry, 19-year-old negro was in jail at Elizabethtown today awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to assault a white woman.

Town Marshal Burt Hodges and Dr. Maher Speevach of Munfordville rescued the negro from the barn of the victim's father-in-law, where the men had made ready for an impromptu hanging.

New York Evening Post

JUN 12 1935

2 Outtalk Mob Ready to Lynch Negro in Attack

Youth Perched on Bedstead by 30 Irate Men With Noose Ready

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., June 12 (AP).—Saved from lynching after thirty irate men had him perched on a shaky bedstead with a noose ready, Raymond Curry, Negro, nineteen, today awaited trial on a charge of attempting to assault Mrs. Esther Jolly, eighteen, a bride.

Town Marshall Burt Hodges and Dr. Maher Speevack rescued him from the barn of Henry Jolly, the victim's father-in-law.

They argued that the group was not positive they had the right man. Mrs. Jolly had not made an identification. They suggested a wrench with which the attacker struck her be taken for fingerprint identification.

NEW YORK AMERICAN

JUN 13 1935

LYNCHING AVERTED

NEGRO ACCUSED OF ATTACK

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., June 12 (AP).—Saved from lynching after a band of 30 irate men had him in a barn perched on a shaky bedstead with a noose ready, Raymond Curry, 19, Negro, was in jail at Elizabethtown today awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to assault Mrs. Esther Jolly, 18, a bride of two months.

Town Marshal Burt Hodges and Dr. Maher Speevack of Munfordville rescued the Negro. They argued that the group was not positive they had the right man, because Mrs. Jolly had not made an identification. They suggested that the law be permitted to take its course. Ernest O. Doutaz, railroad detective, who helped get the Negro out of the barn and to the Munfordville jail.

Jailer Mack Boyd had the Negro change clothes, and took him for safekeeping to Elizabethtown.

JOURNAL
FRANKFORT, KY.

JUN 30 1935

ONE MOB THWARTED

(From the Ohio State Journal)

The authorities of Champaign and Miami counties acted wisely, splendidly and patriotically in preventing the lynching of a man accused, but acquitted, of the slaying of another, and of the accused man's wife.

There is credit, too, for that minister of the gospel who stood off the mob and tried to reason with its members. Of course the mob, being a mob, stoned the home of the accused pair, having, as mob members always do, lost all sense of individual responsibility.

Ohio has not been able, of course, to cast the first stone against those states in which lynching has principally occurred. For this state has had its mob victims, and the lynchings that have occurred here have not been due, in the main, to the race clashes that form the excuse, though not the justification for violence in the southern states. In fact, some of the Ohio victims, as that in Newark in 1911, have been white persons not even accused of crimes to which some of the southern trouble often is attributable.

To its everlasting disgrace Urbana some 40 years ago, permitted the lynching of a colored man who later was found to have been entirely innocent of the offense that worked the mob to fury. Except for cooler heads and more deliberative minds there would have been the mob execution of Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins at the village of Christiansburg, and thus a terrible stain would have been put on the two counties in which the village is located.

Mobs do their work quickly and then disband, afraid of the penalty of outraged law, ashamed of the thing they have done, and not at all proud of their participation in it. They are never excusable, no matter what the real or fancied grievance, and this is especially true in such a state as Ohio. The individuals composing a lynching mob are just as culpable before the law and in the eyes of religion and morality, as any other unauthorized slayers.

Lynchings - 1935

Kentucky

5128

Prevented

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
August 18, 1935

LYNCHING PREVENTED

LEXINGTON, Aug. 17 (AP)—Deputy Sheriff John Paul has been commended by the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching and by the Women's Missionary Society of the North Georgia Methodist conference for "having saved the state from disgrace of a lynching." Deputy Paul prevented a possible lynching of Simmie Gaines, charged with the slaying of two women.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Mexico.

5129

Mexican Planes Thwart Lynching

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.— (AP) —Dispatches to the newspaper Excelsior said today a man had been saved from lynching near Las Carboneras, in the State of Jalisco, when Federal airplanes dropped bombs near the would-be lynchers, described as rebels.

The reports stated Manuel Topete, elder brother of the governor of Jalisco, Everardo Topete, had reached the town of Etzatlan, describing his escape from death as "miraculous."

He said a rope had been placed around his neck and he had been lifted off the ground several times when the Federal planes suddenly appeared. The aviators let loose a number of bombs, and the mob fled, leaving Topete unconscious on the ground.

Dispatches to the newspaper La Prensa said a band of insurgents had been mutilating their victims in Jalisco by cutting off their ears.

The band, whose leader was alleged to be Jesus Gonzalez, entered the town of Camajapa, captured and shot the president of an agrarian cooperative, and cut the ears off six other townsmen, said this report.

Lynchings-1935 Prevented

Mississippi.

5115

600 Soldiers To Guard Mississippi Courthouse At Negro Ghoul's Trial

By J. B. CROSSLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CLEVELAND, MISS., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Bolivar County courthouse here presented the appearance of an armed fortress tonight with barbed wire entanglements strewn about it and machine gun nests set in strategic positions for the murder trial of a giant negro ghoul, James H. Coyner, scheduled to begin tomorrow at a special term of court.

A special detail of 600 national guardsmen ordered out by Gov. Sennett Conner at the request of local authorities and hand-picked by Adjt. Gen. Thomas J. Grayson, began arriving by bus and train late today and by night several hundred of them were billeted in the vicinity of the courthouse for their task of preserving law and order at the negro's trial.

Some time tonight a special trainload of 175 guardsmen will leave Jackson by a secret schedule into this north Mississippi delta, probably with Coyner aboard. The method of the prisoner's transfer from the mob-proof Hinds County jail at Jackson where he has been held for safekeeping since his arrest at Cleveland a month ago, was known only to Gen. Grayson and ranking members of his staff. Reports had it an attempt might be made to fly the prisoner to his destination.

The slaying of Aurelius B. Turner and his wife at their home near Cleveland Dec. 8 aroused an intense mob spirit in the delta. Elaborate precautions will be taken.

Signals For Train

A signal arrangement for the routing of the train has been set up with an observer riding in the engine who by telephone will communicate the signals he received from sentries along the line. A white light would mean "come ahead" and a red light would signal "take another route," it was said.

A general mobilization order was issued for 3 p.m. today which would start a movement of the troops from all sections of the State in time to have them on the scene for the opening of the trial.

Gen. Grayson, who has had his headquarters at Indianola for the past several days making arrangements for the troop movement, left for Cleveland late today.

Before leaving Indianola, he said he did not expect any trouble, but was prepared to handle any situation. Gov. Conner at Jackson last night before his departure for Washington said no semblance of mob violence would be tolerated.

Several troop units left Jackson and neighboring towns today by bus for Cleveland. They wore steel helmets, and carried complete field equipment.

Maj. T. B. Birdsong, of Clarksdale, was in command here pending the arrival of Adjt. Gen. Grayson. Maj. Birdsong expressed the view that the presence of the guardsmen would forestall any trouble.

First Unit To Arrive

Company F, 155th Infantry, Clarksdale, composed of 40 men and three officers under the command of Maj. Birdsong was the first unit to arrive at the courthouse and began erecting barbed wire entanglements and mounting machine guns behind sandbags.

A few minutes later Company B, 106th Engineers, arrived from West Point in charge of Capt. A. O. Hamlin. In this unit were 33 men and three officers.

Company E. 155th Infantry, Cleveland, under the command of Capt. Ben Mitchell, was called out at 3:15 p.m. to start work on a camp for the forces. Company E, 106th Engineers, Vicksburg, arrived shortly before nightfall.

Other contingents were expected later tonight to swell the total number of guardsmen to about 600 by the time the Grand Jury convenes at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Hundreds of persons milled around the courthouse during the afternoon watching the troopers string the wire entanglements and set up their machine guns."

Negro Confessed

Coyner allegedly confessed he slew the Turners shortly after he was taken to Jackson because, he said, he had an impulse to kill someone. He said he cut up their bodies, first intending to burn them, but later deciding to take home some of the severed parts of the woman's body. A piece of "salted and cured human flesh," officers said was found in his pocket at the time of his arrest in the Cleveland postoffice. They also said they found Turner's watch on the negro. He was arrested in a trap laid by postal inspectors who had traced the writing of obscene letters to prominent society women in the Middle West to Coyner.

Coyner served a term in an Indiana penitentiary for robbing a grave of a young woman's body. He confessed at Jackson that he robbed several graves in Michigan because he "wanted the bones."

The parents of the slain couple, Mrs. S. B. Turner, and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sherill, tonight issued an appeal here to "let the law take its course." The three jointly signed a statement urging citizens to let the trial proceed without interruption.

Barricades Erected At Ghoul Trial Scene

CLEVELAND, Miss., Feb. 3.—(AP) The Bolivar county courthouse here presented the appearance of an armed fortress tonight with barbed wire entanglements strewn around it and machine gun nests set in strategic positions for the murder trial of a giant negro ghoul, James H. Coyner, scheduled to begin tomorrow at a special term of court.

A special detail of 600 national guardsmen ordered out by Governor Sennett Conner at the request of local authorities and hand-picked by Adjutant General Thomas J. Grayson, began to arriving by bus and train late today and by night several hundred of them were billeted in the vicinity of the courthouse for their task of preserving law and order at the negro's trial.

NEGRO IS UNDER GUARD

Confessed to Attempted Attack, District Attorney Says

GULFPORT, Miss., March 11.—(AP)—Will Nelson, 30, Wiggins, negro, was under heavy guard in the Harrison County jail here today following announcement by District Attorney R. C. Cowen that he had confessed to an attempted attack on Mrs. C. L. Ford, 30 of Wiggins.

Cowen said that the confession was made to him at the end of 60 hours after the negro was arrested near Wiggins.

Cowen also quoted the negro as admitting that he fired several shots at Mrs. Ford as she rushed from the rear of her grocery store.

Tupelo, Miss. News
March 13, 1935

STONE COUNTY OFFICERS PREVENT ANOTHER LYNCHING
(Jackson Clarion Ledger)

Quick and intelligent action by Stone county officers probably prevented another Mississippi lynching this week.

They caught an alleged negro assailant of a white woman at Wiggins, who had been named by the victim and who was being hunted by a mob of 50 or more, and wisely and successfully rushed him to jail at Gulfport for safe-keeping.

District Attorney Cowan later reported that the negro had confessed in full to the attempted crime. Swift and certain legal punishment is assured him, which should satisfy all the citizens, and we have an idea that in this case, as in most similar ones, most of those who were thinking about a lynching will be glad later that it was prevented.

Meantime, congratulations to the Stone county officers on their sound sense.

It is always much pleasanter to note a lynching prevented than one accomplished.

MOB SEIZE SSHERIFF, FAIL TO GET NEGRO

Masked Band Balked in Effort to Storm Jail

ABERDEEN, Miss., April 12.—Seeking a negro, who Sheriff Joe T. Morgan insisted was not in jail here, a mob of masked men at 12:30 o'clock this morning attempted to storm the Monroe County jail, after firing shots in the air and relieving an officer of his pistol.

The negro is accused of attacking a woman. 4-13-35

After removing licenses from their cars the men parked the autos near the courthouse. Failing to gain entrance to the jail, they went to the home of Sheriff Morgan and he accompanied them to the jail. The sheriff refused to give orders to the jailer to let the men in and warned them against any violence. Two men then seized the sheriff and shots were fired over his head. The sheriff remained cool and advised the mob to disperse. They left at 3 o'clock this morning.

City Night Policeman Rial was forced to hand over his gun to the men and accompany them to the sheriff's home.

SAYING OF FARMER ADMITTED BY NEGRO

Officers Avert Mob Action—Removed to Jackson

JACKSON, Miss., May 24.—District Attorney Fred M. Belk, Holly Springs, and County Attorney Bramlett Roberts of Oxford tonight obtained from Elwood Higginbotham, Oxford negro, a confession to the slaying of Glenn Roberts, Lafayette County farmer.

The negro was removed to Hinds County jail for safe-keeping early today by Sheriff S. T. Lyles and deputies after saving him from a mob of 300 men.

Belk and Roberts said that the death penalty would be asked.

They said that Higginbotham stated in his confession to them that he was angered at Roberts because of an altercation two weeks before and that he fully inteded killing him. They quoted the negro as saying that he invited Roberts to come int othe house and then hid behind a door and shot him as he entered.

The negro said that in the hunt that lasted for three days and nights that at times the searchers were within two feet of him and that the bloodhounds were within 20 feet of him. He said that he was armed with pistol and shotgun and intended to kill any one that tried to capture him.

He was captured in Pontotoc County lying in a shallow pond of water with only his face above the water.

Mississippi Negro Saved From Mob

TUPELO, Miss., May 24. — (AP) — Caesar Higginbotham, negro charged with the slaying Tuesday night of Glenn D. Roberts, white farmer, of Oxford, Miss., was [illegible] unannounced jail tonight [illegible] from the hands of a mob of angry white men [illegible] unsuccessfully sought the negro last night.

Sheriff D. B. Anderson [illegible] group of Pontotoc County officers were credited with saving the negro from the mob, which gathered quickly after news of his capture spread.

Higginbotham was captured while hiding in a water-filled five-foot ditch following a chase during which several shots were exchanged. The negro was disarmed when pulled from his hiding place and was rushed to the Lee County jail here.

Late last night as word that a mob was gathering reached authorities, Lafayette County officers quietly removed the negro to another jail.

Roanoke, Va., Times
April 14, 1935

DAWN OF A BETTER DAY

"Mob Defeated In Efforts to Take Negro From Mississippi Jail"—headline. Such is the cheering evidence of a return to sanity and courage in a part of the South which has gained an unenviable reputation for supine surrender to mob psychology. When a mob fails to get into a Mississippi jail and lynch a negro charged with a crime against a white woman, that's news. Slowly it appears to be dawning upon officers in the backward belt that their sworn duty to the Commonwealth necessitates protection of prisoners committed to their care, even at the risk of their own lives. A brave and determined stand by officers is usually sufficient to ward off and nullify an attempt to gain possession of their prisoners. For the average mob is as cowardly as it is bestial.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
NEWS

MAY 29 1935

Without Benefit of U. S. A.

(Greensboro Record.)

In Mississippi last week a Negro farm worker killed a white planter and took to the swamps and tall timber. After a long hunt and chase the killer was captured while hiding in the water in a deep ditch. He exchanged shots with pursuing officers and posseemen; but was finally disarmed, pulled from his hiding place and rushed to a county jail.

That night word reached the authorities that a mob was gathering. A mob of angry and determined white men, thirsty for "nigger" blood, did form. But, in the meantime, the county officers quietly removed the prisoner to an unannounced jail in another county. They saved his neck, and they saved Mississippi from the ignominy of another mob crime.

When a Negro kills a white man in Mississippi and a mob is cheated of its victim, it is news.

The Mississippi officers who prevented a lynching in this case are to be commended most highly. They proved that lynchings, even in communities where lynchings are the rule rather than the exception in certain circumstances can be prevented in almost every instance if the officers who are sworn to protect their prisoners go about their duties promptly and courageously.

Mississippi has been the scene of many lynchings. So it is all the more gratifying to note that a mob crime has been prevented there. May this be a sign that Mississippi sees the light!

Mob rule is anarchy at its worst.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
RECORD

MAY 27 1935

A Lynching Prevented.

In Mississippi last week a negro farm worker killed a white planter and took to the swamps and tall timber. After a long hunt and chase the killer was captured while hiding in the water in a deep ditch. He exchanged shots with pursuing officers and posseemen; but was finally disarmed, pulled from his hiding place and rushed to a county jail.

That night word reached the authorities that a mob was gathering. A mob of angry and determined white men, thirsty for "nigger" blood, did form. But, in the meantime, the county officers quietly removed the prisoner to an unannounced jail in another county. They saved his neck, and they saved Mississippi from the ignominy of another mob crime.

When a negro kills a white man in Mississippi and a mob is cheated of its victim it is news.

The Mississippi officers who prevented a lynching in this case are to be commended most highly. They proved that lynchings, even in communities where lynchings are the rule rather than the exception in certain circumstances, can be prevented in almost every instance if the officers who are sworn to protect their prisoners go about their duties promptly and courageously.

Mississippi has been the scene of many lynchings. So it is all the more gratifying to note that a mob crime has been prevented there. May this be a sign that Mississippi sees the light!

Mob rule is anarchy at its worst.

Cafe Worker Is Held In Attack On Gulfport Girl

GULFPORT, MISS., Sept. 7.—(AP)—After being questioned here last night in connection with a brutal attack on an 11-year-old girl, a Gulfport cafe worker booked by police as Louis Boudreaux, alias George Burke, 25, was spirited away to the Hinds County jail at Jackson where B. F. Cruthirds, Gulfport chief of police, said he confessed to the attack.

Boudreaux or Burke, was arrested by Gulfport officers after his movements had been watched since the attack early Friday morning. Because of high feeling on the coast he was questioned in the woods here and then carried away secretly to Jackson in a police car. There Burke was formally charged with assault.

The victim of the attack, Lillian Stiglets, was in a critical condition today suffering from head wounds inflicted upon her by an attacker who lured her from her home after midnight and left her in an apparent dying condition behind a billboard on a vacant lot near her home.

Hattiesburg, Miss. American
October 19. 1935

TWO NEGROES HURRIED TO SECRET JAIL

(By Associated Press)

GRETNA, La., Oct. 19.—Two negroes arrested for robbing two white men and criminally attacking their women companions during the past week were reported secretly transferred to an unannounced jail last night or early today.

The negroes, Henry "Buddy" Freeman, 24, and Dave Hart, alias Fred Lindsey, 22, arrested in New Orleans Wednesday, had been brought to the Jefferson parish jail here.

The Gretna jailor said they have been taken back to New Orleans, just across the Mississippi river from here, but New Orleans parish prison officers said they had not been received.

Police said the negroes confessed robbing Oscar Cire, 42, and attacking his young woman companion on the New Orleans lake front and to a similar offense against Vick Caimi, 24, of Algiers, and a young woman in Jefferson parish a week ago.

NEGRO TAKEN TO JACKSON

Charged With Murder of Delta Plantation Manager

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 13.—Milton Germany, 35, negro, charged with the slaying of H. E. Woodruff, Drew plantation manager, was placed in the Hinds County mob-proof jail today for safekeeping. 12-14-35

The negro was brought here by Sheriff Marlow of Sunflower County. Memphis Press.

Woodruff was slain, it was reported, when he went to question the negro about reports that he planned to move from the plantation without making proper settlement for provisions furnished by the owner.

RUSHES MAN TO MOB-PROOF JAIL AFTER SHOOTING

Threat To Flee Plantation Leads To Slaying

12-21-35

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 20—Fearing the mob spirit which followed the slaying of H. E. Woodruff, a white plantation manager, who was allegedly slain by Milton Germany, tenant farmer, Sheriff Marlow of Sunflower county, rushed Germany to Jackson Friday and placed him in the mob-proof Hinds County jail here for safekeeping.

Various reports are current regarding the facts in the slaying of Woodruff. One report states: Woodruff was slain by Germany when he (Woodruff) went to question Germany about the reports that had come to him (Woodruff) concerning Germany's purported plan to move off the plantation without making what was called "proper settlement."

The Southern plantation system where there are thousands of sharecroppers and tenants has a policy of giving out to the tenants what is commonly called "rations," meaning the most common of food commodities, inexpensive clothing—and it is almost invariably mandatory that these "rations" and provisions be bought from the plantation commissary, a general merchandise store where the tenants and their families are charged exorbitant prices for such provisions as they get, these being always of the most common kind, such as white side meat, corn meal, molasses, flour, soap, cheap shoes, cheap stockings, gingham cloth and such other cheap wearing material as is worn by the tenants on the Southern plantations.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Mississippi.

1

5116

New York Evening Post

JAN 14 1935

MISSISSIPPI ACTS TO HALT LYNCHING

Negro Suspected of Slaying Two Rushed to Jackson for Safekeeping

CLEVELAND, Miss., Jan. 14. (AP).—Special precautions to prevent mob action were taken today by officials guarding James Coyner, thirty-nine, a Negro, accused of slaying Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Turner in their home here December 9.

The Negro, who was arrested Saturday after dismembered parts of bodies were found in his possession, was rushed to Jackson for safekeeping and lodged in the top floor of the Jackson jail, which is accessible only by elevator.

Arresting officers said he denied any connection with the killings, but admitted having served a term in the Indiana State Penitentiary for stealing a body from a grave.

Linked to Michigan Mystery

PONTIAC, Mich., Jan. 14 (AP).—The arrest of James H. Coyner, a Negro, in Cleveland, Miss., in connection with the deaths of Aurelius B. Turner and his wife, recalled to Oakland County authorities today the sensational discovery near Ferndale, Mich., eight years ago of the heads of four white women, wrapped in newspapers and hidden beneath an army uniform in a trunk.

Police questioned a Negro named James H. Coyner then imprisoned in the Indiana State Penitentiary for grave robbery, but the case was allowed to lapse while Coyner was serving his term. Police said Coyner had admitted ownership of the trunk.

Jackson, Miss. Ledger
January 15, 1935

Give Him Full Protection, And Give Him A Quick Trial

Another negro accused of an unspeakable crime in Mississippi is brought to the Hinds county jail for safe-keeping.

He will be safe from mob violence here, if he can be safe anywhere in Mississippi. The Hinds county jail, located as it is on the top floor of the courthouse with all entrances easy to guard effectively, is as near mob-proof as any jail in the country, and also as near escape-proof as possible.

The jail's location in the center of Jackson, a city not given to mobbery, also enhances its safety from mobs.

Even so, however, when a prisoner is brought here, accused of a crime that has inflamed public passion in other towns, the local authorities take added precautions for the protection of the negro. They are wise in doing so.

This puts them to a good deal of trouble, and sometimes puts Hinds county to a little extra expense, the "board" paid for the prisoner by the county sending him here not covering these extra expenses.

Hinds countians, however, do not complain of this. They are glad that their modern jail is thus being used to reduce and prevent mobbery in Mississippi.

In connection with this particular case, we are glad to note that the Bolivar county supervisors announce their willingness to pay the cost of a special term of court to bring this accused fiend to early trial. The strength of the evidence revealed against him justifies it. He is more than a "suspect." Considering the unspeakable nature of the crime, the sooner he is tried the better for Mississippi.

Assurance of an immediate trial would do more than anything else to discourage and prevent mob violence in Cleveland. It has been repeatedly demonstrated that quick and fair legal trial, followed by early execution of sentence, is the most effective of all methods of eradicating mobbery.

Troops to Guard Mississippi Trial Of Accused Ghoul

JAMES H. COYNER

CLEVELAND, Miss., Jan. 30 (AP)—Sheriff E. R. McLean announced today that due to fears of mob violence Governor Sennett Conner had decided to mobilize 500 Mississippi national guardsmen to protect James H. Coyner, giant Negro ghoul, when he goes to trial here Monday on a charge of murdering Mr. and Mrs. Aurelius B. Turner.

Coyner was arrested in the federal building here about two weeks ago while postal inspectors were seeking to trace the sender of obscene letters through the mails and was spirited away, heavily guarded, to the strong Hinds county jail at Jackson for safe keeping.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner were shot or beaten to death in their home Dec. 8, and the body of Mrs. Turner was mutiliated. After Coyner's arrest officers announced that they found portions of human flesh in his possession.

They quoted him as confessing the double slaying, but assigning no motive. Coyner also admitted serving a term in the Indiana penitentiary and to robbing graves in that state of the heads of women eight years ago.

Guardsmen Are Mobilized To Protect Negro Ghoul During Trial for Murder

CLEVELAND, Miss., Feb. 3. (AP)—The Bolivar county courthouse here presented the appearance of an armed fortress tonight with barbed wire entanglements strewn around it and machine gun nests set up in strategic position for the murder trial of a giant Negro ghoul, James H. Coyner, scheduled to begin tomorrow at a special term of court.

A special detail of 600 National guardsmen ordered out by Governor Sennett Conner at the request of local authorities and hand-picked by Adjutant General Thomas J. Grayson, began arriving by bus and train late today and by night several hundred of them were billeted in the vicinity of the courthouse for their task of preserving law and order at the Negro's trial.

Sometime tonight a special train-load of 175 guardsmen will leave Jackson by a secret schedule into this north Mississippi delta, probably with Coyner aboard. The method of the prisoner's transfer from the mob-proof Hinds county jail at Jackson where he has been held for safekeeping since his arrest at Cleveland a month ago, was known only to General Grayson and ranking members of his staff. Reports had it an attempt might be made to fly the prisoner to his destination.

Elaborate Precautions

If the Negro whose confession to the slaying and mutilation of Aurelius B. Turner and his wife at their home near Cleveland, Dec. 8, aroused an intense mob spirit in the delta, is carried by train, elaborate precautions will be taken.

A signal arrangement for the routing of the train has been set up with an observer riding in the engine who by telephone will communicate the signals he receives from sentries along the line. A white light would mean "come ahead" and a red light would signal "take another route." It was said.

A general mobilization order was issued for 3 p.m. today which would start a movement of the troops from all sections of the state in time to have them on the scene for the opening of the trial.

General Grayson, who has had his headquarters at Indianola for the past several days making arrangements for the troop movement, left for Cleveland late today.

Before leaving Indianola, he said he did not expect any trouble, but was prepared to handle any situation. Governor Conner at Jackson last night before his departure for Washington said no semblence of mob violence would be tolerated.

Human Flesh Found

Several troops units left Jackson and neighboring towns today by bus for Cleveland. They wore steel helmets, and carried complete field equipment.

Coyer confessed, shortly after he was taken to Jackson, that he slew the Turners because, he said, he had an impulse to kill someone. He said he cut up their bodies, first intending to burn them, but later deciding to take home some of the severed parts of the woman's body. A piece of "salted and cured human flesh," officers sail was found in his pocket at the time of his arrest in the Cleveland post office. They also said they found Turner's watch on the Negro. He was arrested in a trap laid by postal inspectors who had traced the writing of obscene letters to prominent society women in the middle west to Coyner.

Coyner served a term in an Indiana penitentiary for robbing a grave of a young woman's body. He confessed at Jackson that he robbed several graves in Michigan because he "wanted the bones."

Negro Ghoul To Go On Trial Tomorrow

CLARKSDALE, MISS., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Maj. T. B. Birdsong, Jr., commanding officer of the Second Battalion, 15th Infantry of the Mississippi National Guard, returned here today from a trip to Cleveland and announced that arrangements had been completed for transferring James Coyner, negro ghoul, charged with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Turner, to Cleveland Monday from Jackson to stand trial.

Maj. Birdsong said 600 national guardsmen would entrain at Jackson to escort Coyner to the scene of the Turner murders, where a special term of Bolivar County Circuit Court has been convened for Monday morning.

The national guard officer said he found no evidences of mob spirit at Cleveland, and did not believe that any attempt would be made to lynch Coyner, who officers say has confessed to the Turner slayings.

The State will ask indictments against the negro at the special session of the grand jury Monday morning. The negro will probably be carried to Cleveland Monday afternoon aboard a troop train for arraignment.

Local authorities asked for troops after reports of mob violence had been spread in the delta.

SOLDIERS ORDERED FOR GHOUL'S TRIAL

Mississippi Governor Calls Out 500 Guards To Protect Giant Negro

CLEVELAND, MISS., Jan. 30—(AP)—Sheriff E. R. McClean of Bolivar County, announced late today that due to fears of mob violence, Gov. Sennett Conner had decided to mobilize 500 members of the Mississippi National Guard as protection for James H. Coyner, giant negro ghoul, when he goes to trial here Monday on a charge of murdering Mr. and Mrs. Aurelius B. Turner.

Coyner was arrested in the Federal building here about two weeks ago while postal inspectors were seeking to trace the sender of obscene letters through the mails and was spirited away heavily guarded, to the strong Hinds County Jail at Jackson for safe keeping.

He has been confined at Jackson ever since his arrest and it was expected that he would be brought to Cleveland on a national guard troop train to stand trial and be returned there in the same manner.

Sheriff McLean reported that a group of local officials conferred last night with Gov. Conner in Jackson on the question of calling out troops, although he said he believed an orderly trial could be held in Bolivar County without their assistance.

The sheriff said the Governor was advised to use troops by Judge W. A. Alcorn, Jr., of Clarksdale, who will preside over the trial, because of the prevalence of rumors of violence against the negro.

Officials who conferred with the Governor in Jackson were Sheriff McLean, Chancellor R. E. Jackson, County Attorney Ed H. Green and H. H. McGown, president of the Board of County Supervisors.

Yesterday students of Delta State Teachers College here appealed by resolutions to the citizens to use their influence to prevent any semblance of mob action and urged that adequate protection for a fair trial be given the defendant by the State of Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner were shot or beaten to death in their home Dec. 8, and the body of Mrs. Turner was mutiliated. After Coyner's arrest officers announced that they found portions of human flesh in his possession.

They quoted him as confessing to the double slaying, but assigning no motive. Coyner also admitted serving a term in the Indiana penitentiary and to robbing graves in that State of the heads of women eight years ago.

Negro Ghoul To Die On Gallows

Mississippi Soldiers Guard Slayer Of Farm Couple During And After Trial

CLEVELAND, MISS., Feb. 4.—(AP)—As 600 national guardsmen protected him, James Coyner, giant negro ghoul, was indicted, arraigned, tried, convicted, and sentenced to be hanged here today for the murder of Mrs. Aurelius B. Turner.

The troops brought the negro here this morning from Jackson and tonight, an hour after his conviction, boarded a train with him for the return trip to the jail there.

Judge W. W. Alcorn fixed March 5 as the date for the negro's execution.

The court proceedings, winding up the case in one day, was one of the speediest on record in Mississippi.

The State used only seven witnesses, replying principally on the confession of Coyner, also known as Alonzo Robinson, that he had killed Mrs. Turner and her husband on Dec. 8, and cut pieces of flesh from Mrs. Turner's body. The defense introduced no witnesses.

The jury took only five minutes to bring in a verdict of guilty after Dist. Atty. Greek P. Rice made a dramatic plea for the death penalty, displaying three pieces of flesh in front of the jury which Coyner allegedly cut from the body of the murdered farm woman.

As he pleaded with the jury for the death penalty, Dist. Atty. Rice picked up a box from beneath the counsel's table, and lifted a burlap bag from it. He tossed what he said were three pieces of flesh cut from the body of Mrs. Turner on top of the sack and directed the jury's attention to them.

"I am asking for the life of the man who committed this terrible crime," the District Attorney said. "He beat out this woman's brains and hit an old man with a hatchet because he had the impulse to kill."

Judge Alcorn, sustaining an objection of the negro's counsel, Hugh Causey, ruled the exhibit out, holding that it was obtained from the premises of Robinson's aged mother, near here, without a search warrant.

The State's first witness, Walter Turner, brother of the slain man, described in detail the shambles he discovered when he entered his brother's home the morning of Dec. 9. He told how his brother had been hit with a hatchet in the back of the head and then shot through the head and how Mrs. Turner's body had been cut up and portions of it were missing. He identified a gold watch handed him by Dist. Atty. Rice as the property of his dead brother.

TROOPS GUARD NEGRO EN ROUTE TO TRIAL

More Than 600 Ordered Into Cleveland

ROUTE IS KEPT SECRET

No Apprehension Felt As Hour Draws Near for Hearing of Coyner, Accused of Killing Couple

BY J. B. CROSSLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

CLEVELAND, Miss., Feb. 3.—The Bolivar County courthouse here presented the appearance of an armed fortress tonight for the trial of James H. Coyner, negro, scheduled to begin tomorrow at a special term of court on a charge of murdering Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Turner here last Dec. 8.

A special detail of 600 National Guardsmen ordered out by Governor Conner at the request of local authorities and hand-picked by Adjutant General Thomas J. Grayson, began arriving by bus and train late today.

Leaves By Train

Tonight a special trainload of 175 guardsmen left Jackson with Coyner aboard. The route of the prisoner's transfer from the mob-proof Hinds County jail at Jackson where he has been held for safekeeping since his arrest at Cleveland a month ago, was known only to General Grayson and ranking members of his staff. Other soldiers left Jackson at noon by bus.

A general mobilization order was issued for 3 p.m. today to start a movement of the troops from all sections of the state in time to have them on the scene for the opening of the trial.

General Grayson, who has had his headquarters at Indianola for the past several days making arrangements for the troop movement, left for Cleveland late today.

No Trouble Expected

Before leaving Indianola, he said he did not expect any trouble, but was prepared to handle any situation. Governor Conner at Jackson last night before his departure for Washington said no semblance of violence would be tolerated.

Several troop units left Jackson and neighboring towns today by bus for Cleveland. They wore steel helmets, and carried complete field equipment.

Maj. T. B. Birdsong of Clarksdale, was in command here pending the arrival of General Grayson and Col. George Hogaboom. Major Birdsong expressed the view that the presence of the guardsmen would forestall any trouble.

NEW YORK TIMES
FEB 4 1935

'LYNCH-PROOF' TRAIN TAKES NEGRO TO TRIAL

Soldiers Surround Confessed Slayer on Way From Jackson to Cleveland, Miss.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 3 (AP).—Surrounded by 200 steel helmeted Mississippi militiamen with fixed bayonets, James H. Coyner, confessed slayer of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Turner last Dec. 8, was put aboard a "lynch-proof" train here tonight at 11 o'clock, bound for Cleveland to face trial tomorrow.

The Negro, securely manacled, was hoisted in a steel-plated baggage car which was between four passenger coaches filled with selected National Guardsmen.

Removal of the Delta Negro from the Hinds County jail to the waiting train just two blocks away required more than an hour. The troops, including infantrymen and machine gunners and experts of chemical warfare, marched from the armory down dark streets about 9:30 P. M.

CLEVELAND, Miss., Feb. 3 (AP).—The court house here presented the appearance of an armed fortress tonight, with barbed wire entanglements strewn around it and machine gun nests set up in strategic positions for the murder trial of a Negro, James H. Coyner, to begin tomorrow.

A special detail of 600 National Guardsmen, ordered out by Governor Conner at the request of local authorities and hand-picked by Adjutant General Thomas J. Grayson, began arriving today by bus and train. By night hundreds of the men were billeted in the vicinity of the court house.

Coyner served a term in an Indiana penitentiary for robbing a grave of a body. He confessed at Jackson that he robbed several graves in Michigan because he "wanted the bones."

Troops To Guard Negro On Day Of Execution

JACKSON, MISS., March 2.—(AP)—Gov. Sennett Conner today ordered the Mississippi National Guard to escort Alonzo Robinson alias James H. Coyner, confessed negro ghoul and "butcher" slayer, to Cleveland for his execution Tuesday for the murder of Mrs. Aurelius B. Turner, who with her husband, was slain and mutilated in their home near Cleveland early in December.

Robinson will be hanged in the Bolivar County jail at Cleveland. The exact hour is left to the discretion of the sheriff.

NASHVILLE, TENN.
MORNING TENNESSEAN
MAR 8 1935

Law In Mississippi.

It is not necessary to dwell further on the double murder for which a negro was hanged in Mississippi Tuesday. Sufficient to say that he had confessed his guilt and that he fully merited the death penalty.

The quick trial of this criminal was made possible by Governor Connor's calling out of the state guard, and these soldiers were also on hand to see that violence did not break out as the execution took place.

There is little question that but for this preventive action, a lynching might have been expected, and the entire state of Mississippi has reason to be grateful that such defiance of the law was prevented. The people themselves have been protected from an outbreak of passions that would have done them no credit, and the power of the law has been immensely strengthened.

Governor Connor has adhered to his oath of office, and to have done less would have marked him as unworthy of public trust.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented 6

Mississippi.

5117

Crystal Springs, Miss., Meteor
October 25, 1935

J. C. CRISLER HELD IN JACKSON JAIL FOR SAFEKEEPING

Charged with rape, a negro listed as J. C. Crisler of Crystal Springs, is being held in the Hinds county jail Jackson for Copiah county authorities.

A native farmer of Crystal Springs Crisler, about 45 years of age, was arrested Friday by Sheriff W. E. Hester and immediately carried to the mob-proof Hinds jail that night.

Sheriff Hester at his home in Hazlehurst refused to go into detail on criminal assault charge against the negro and declined to reveal the nature of the alleged crime "until a further investigation."

When the negro was carried to Jackson Sheriff Hester left with specific instructions "not to let him talk with anyone," Hinds county officers said.

Clarksdale, Miss. Register
December 14, 1935

Sunflower Negro Taken to Hinds' Jail for Safety

Alleged Slayer of H. E. Woodruff is Removed from Indianola Jail

Because of continued threats of mob violence, Milton Germany, plant negro tenant farmer who shot and killed H. E. Woodruff, plantation manager near Drew Tuesday morning, was committed to the mob-proof Hinds county jail at Jackson yesterday afternoon.

Orders for removal of Germany from the Sunflower county jail, where he was held since his capture Tuesday night, was issued by Circuit Judge S. F. Davis.

Sheriff W. D. Marlow carried the negro from the Indianola jail to Jackson yesterday.

Marlow revealed that the negro narrowly escaped lynching late Tuesday night as he was being carried from the Parchman State prison farm to Indianola. After his capture at Mound Bayou, in Bolivar county, Germany was placed in the hospital at Parchman for treatment of two gunshot wounds.

Marlow related that a crowd surrounded his car as he passed through Drew enroute to Indianola, and demanded the negro prisoner.

"I managed to out talk them with the promise that he would be held in county jail or stand an early trial," Sheriff Marlow said.

To preclude any possible trouble Judge Davis had Germany removed to Jackson, where he will remain until the Sunflower circuit court convenes next March.

Formal charges of murder have been placed against the negro. The grand jury will consider his case next March.

Woodruff was killed by Germany on the W. T. Brown plantation, seven miles from Drew and near Parchman and Mound Bayou. After escaping, Germany eluded large posses all day, finally giving himself up through the negro marshal at Mound Bayou.

District Attorney Greek P. Rice headed the party which captured him.

The slaying resulted from an argument over payment for supplies, Sheriff Marlow related. Germany planned to move from the Brown plantation without first making arrangement to pay for supplies.

Clarksdale, Miss. Register
December 12, 1935

Negro Kept Last Night at Prison for Safe-Keeping

No Indication of Mob Violence Prevails in Connection With Case.

HEARING DATE NOT YET DETERMINED

Quiet Prevails in Sunflower County After Search for Assailant.

Suffering from two bullet wounds, Milton Jarman, 37, negro tenant farmer, is in the Sunflower county jail at Indianola today, facing murder charges in connection with the fatal shooting of H. E. Woodruff, plantation manager, near Drew yesterday.

Jarman, who is alleged to have shot Woodruff in the back with a shotgun, was captured late yesterday afternoon at Mound Bayou, negro town, in Bolivar county, by a party headed by District Attorney Greek P. Rice of Clarksdale.

Through two Mound Bayou negroes, the town marshal and an undertaker, the negro arranged to give himself up to officers.

He was taken into custody and hurried to the hospital at Parchman prison farm for treatment and safe keeping.

A posse, numbering nearly 100, trailed the negro from 9 o'clock yesterday morning to 5:45 o'clock. Mob violence was feared once the posse captured Jarman.

It was arranged by District Attorney Rice and other members of the capturing party to have the negro delivered at Mound Bayou. Jarman was then carried through the posse to safety.

W. D. Marlow, sheriff of Sunflower county, told The Daily Register this morning that the negro was transferred from the prison hospital to jail early this morning.

"Jarman said he shot Woodruff" Sheriff Marlow said.

The negro has not been fully questioned about the shooting Sheriff Marlow said. No date has been set for a preliminary hearing.

With District Attorney Rice in the capturing party were Ed Green, county attorney of Bolivar county; Sargeants Mayfield and McDonald, of the prison farm at Parchman; two white trusty guards; the Mound Bayou negro marshal, whose name could not be learned; and the negro undertaker, named Powell.

Sheriff Marlow said investigation revealed the negro moved into the W. T. Brown plantation, managed by Woodruff, about three weeks ago.

He and Woodruff became engaged in an argument at the negro's house yesterday, with the fatal shooting resulting. Woodruff shot the negro twice with a pistol before falling, one bullet entering his right leg and the other his hip.

Sheriff Marlow said Jarman's injuries are not serious.

Following the shooting Jarman made his escape. Posses were formed and trailed him all day in the brakes and sloughs of Sunflower river bottoms, near Drew.

District Attorney Rice was in Bolivar attending court when Sheriff McLean, of Bolivar count was notified to watch for Jarman.

Sheriff Marlow expressed opinion this morning that only by careful maneuvering did Mr. Rice and other members of the party avert a lynching.

Feeling had subsided in the county this morning, Sheriff Marlow reported No trouble is anticipated, he said.

Officials at Drew yesterday afternoon told the Daily Register lyuching was feared once Jarman was captured. He was armed with a pistol and shotgun, and possemen were given orders to shoot on sight.

After giving himself up, Jarman was hurried to Parchman and the possemen were unaware he had been captured until officials made an announcement.

Lynchings - 1935
Prevented

Missouri

5124

FOUR ARE SPIRITED AWAY

Mississippi County Sheriff Feared Mob Violence

CHARLESTON, Mo., July 11.—Sheriff J. O. King of Mississippi County last night spirited C. V. Williams, Bud Greese, Albert Vowels and Big Son Brightman, the latter a negro, out of Mississippi County jail because he feared mob violence. He refused to divulge their whereabouts.

The men are being held for conspiracy in the murder of Lige McCutcheon, 45, who was found July 4 shot in the back of the head. He carried $2,500 life insurance which the state charges was the motive for the killing. The preliminary hearing is set for July 16.

FOUR SUSPECTS 'HID' IN MISSOURIAN'S DEATH

CHARLESTON, Mo., July 12—(AP) Four men held in the alleged insurance murder of E. P. McCutcheon, 45, were spirited out of Charleston because of threats of mob violence, Sheriff J. O. King said.

King said the prisoners, Bud Greese, C. V. Williams, Charleston insurance man; Albert Vowels, merchant of Wyatt, and John Brightman, negro, had been taken to three different jails.

McCutcheon, who had been insured for $2,500, was shot and killed last Wednesday night as he was returning home from his work on a levee construction project.

Lynchings - 1935
Prevented

Nebraska

5125

Bronx, N.Y. Home News

JUN 6 1935

Woman's Attacker Secreted From Lynchers

Harry Schlie, of Kimball, S. D., was taken secretly and under heavy guard to an unknown place yesterday when infuriated western Nebraska ranchers threatened to lynch him after he allegedly confessed to Sheriff William Moody at Chadron, Neb., that he attacked Mrs. Neal Johnson. She was beaten and attacked by an assailant who entered her home through a bedroom window. The sheriff left with the suspect when a group of ranchers openly voiced a lynch threat.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented 6

New Jersey

5130

New York Mirror

FEB 17 1935

N. J. Mob Tries To Lynch Negro

HAMMONTON, N. J., Feb. 16.—Threats of mob violence this evening caused State police of the Hammonton Barracks to rush Frank Feeney, 51, Negro, to the county jail at Mays Landing. He had been held without bail for action of the Grand Jury on a charge of criminally attacking Angelina Campatore, 15, last August while she was picking berries in a field. The girl did not reveal the incident until several days ago.

As the Negro was being arraigned an angry crowd of more than 1,000 persons began milling around the court and troopers spirited Feeney out a rear door.

TRENTON, N. J.
TIMES

JUL 3 1935

Lynching Threat Tightens Guard On Tipsy Driver

Pair Taken From Ewing Building To County Jail

DEATH, INJURY CAP WILD RIDE

Intense feeling among Ewing Township residents following the death of a young woman in an automobile accident, caused the police to take precautions today in removing two Negroes to the County Jail. A lynching attempt was feared.

During arraignment of the men in the Township Municipal Building on the Pennington Road, at Green Curve, a large crowd milled about and mutterings of violence were audible.

This morning, several Pennsylvania-licensed automobiles were seen cruising up and down the Pennington Road. Police believed an effort was afoot to capture the Negroes from the police as they left for the jail.

The men involved are Clarence Phillips, 46, of 44 Bellevue Avenue, and James Everett, 42, of 213 Church Street.

Help Is Provided

Because of the lack of policemen available, Prosecutor Marshall detained County Detective Edward A. Leadem to assist Patrolman Harry W. Prince in taking the pair to jail.

They are charged with manslaughter, growing out of the death of Miss Hannafy, 22, of 5906 Augusta Street, Philadelphia.

Miss Hannafy was one of four Philadelphia girls whose car was struck by one driven by Phillips and alleged to have been stolen yesterday afternoon.

The accident occurred on Shabakunk Road, between Shabakunk Creek and Eggert's Crossing Road, and brought to a tragic end the vacation of the four young women. Miss Hannafy died at McKinley Hospital two hours later.

Her companions, Miss Julia McElroy, 22, of 23 North Pennock Avenue, Highland Park, Pa.; Miss Emma Redick, 22, of 2904 North Stillman Street, Philadelphia, and Miss Marjorie Perry, 22, of 1322 Chestnut Street, Darby, Pa., have returned to their homes after being treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises.

Phillips is charged with manslaughter, drunken driving, leaving the scene of an accident and "borrowing" an auto. His companion on the wild ride that ended in death, Everett, failed to furnish $1,000 bail on a charge of stealing a car. He will be transferred to the Workhouse later to serve a 30-day term for drunken driving.

The young women, employes of Wanamaker's store, Philadelphia, were en route, police said, to the Poconos, where they planned to camp for the next two weeks. Miss McElroy was driving the roadster, owned by Miss Perry's father.

Recontsructing the events leading up to the tragedy, Captain Clarence Morris and Patrolman Prince, of Ewing Township police, said today that Phillips first "borrowed" an auto from a parking yard he conducts on Quarry Street, in the rear of State Police headquarters. The vehicle is owned by Miss Ina Mae Lee, of Mount Holly, a State House attache.

While driving out Shabakunk Road, near the Fisher-Andrew estate, Phillips is alleged to have first struck a Standard Oil Company truck. Next the stolen machine crashed into an auto driven by William Christie, of 351 Berwyn Avenue, and owned by the Public Service.

It was while fleeing from this mishap, police charge, that Phillips drove the car into the rear of the roadster. The terrific crash and screams of the injured girls brought a number of persons to the scene.

Police charge Everett left immediately, and that Phillips, instead of assisting the injured, started to leave. However, angered bystanders induced him to stay until the arrival of Patrolman Prince. After taking Phillips into custody, Prince drove up the road and overtook Everett.

In the meanwhile, passing motorists hurried the injured girls to the hospital. Miss Hannafy died while doctors made futile efforts to save her life. Coroner Carl Whitney issued a burial permit following her death. Her parents are deceased, but several brothers and sisters survive.

Arraigned last night before Recorder John Boscarell, Phillips was held without bail on the manslaughter charge; was fined $500 and sentenced to serve three months in the Workhouse for drunken driving; was fined $100 and costs for leaving the scene of an accident, and was held in $1,000 bail on a charge of stealing Miss Lee's car.

Dr. M. L. Poyas, township police and fire surgeon, examined both Phillips and Everett immediately after their arrests and pronounced both intoxicated. Police declare they had evidence that both men had driven the car and consequently the drunken driving charges resulted.

Troops Called To Foil New Jersey Lynching

BRIDGETON, N. J., Aug. 29—(AP)—State police were summoned to guard the Cumberland County jail tonight after a mob of about 200 men gathered near the prison and authorities feared an attempt might be made to take Romain Johnson, 32-year-old Negro accused of slaying Mrs. Minnie Horuvitz.

A jail guard said he received a telephone "tip" that a gang was going to the prison. He notified Sheriff William Brown and the latter summoned State police.

Negro Spirited To New Jersey Prison

BRIDGETON, N. J., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Taking no chances on a possible attempt at mob violence, authorities spirited Romain Johnson, negro suspect in the slaying of a white farm wife, from the Bridgeton jail to the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton today.

Anticipating a repetition of last night's action, when a crowd of between 200 and 500 men milled noisily about the jail for several hours, six State troopers and Sheriff William L. Brown, all heavily armed, secretly took the negro from his cell, bundled him into an automobile and sped for the State capital.

He was to be confined in State Prison as a parole violator, to be kept there until his trial is called. He was released from the State institution on parole several months ago after serving a time for a criminal assault.

Johnson has confessed, County Detective Albert Murray said, to beating Mrs. Minnine Horuvitz to death in a robbery attempt at her farm home last Tuesday.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

New Jersey

5131

Lynch Mobs Storm Jail; Negro Moved

Daily Worker
9-3-35
New York, N.Y.

Jersey Worker Grilled By Police to Extort Murder Confession

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 2—Romain Johnson, Negro farmhand, whose life was threatened by a Cumberland County lynch gang, has been brought here from Cumberland County jail for "safe-keeping" and is now lodged in the State Prison.

Johnson, arrested on a technical charge of violating his parole, was later charged with the axe murder of Mrs. Minnie Horuvitz, a white farm owner. He had been released April 12 last after serving the minimum time on a 3-to-5 year term.

At the County jail he was subjected to the brutal police third degree to extort a "confession" from him. Police announcement that he had "confessed" to the murder of Mrs. Horuvitz, incited lynch sentiment among employing farmers ever fearful of revolt on the part of their poorly-paid Negro farmhands, and last Friday night a lynch mob traveling in automobiles, attempted to storm the county jail.

The State is planning to ask a murder indictment against him when the grand jury convenes Sept. 24.

TRENTON, N. J.
GAZETTE
AUG 31 1935

PROTECTION OF PRISON IS GIVEN NEGRO SUSPECT

Police Rush Johnson Here, Fearing Mob Violence Attempt

ACCUSED OF MURDER

Will Be Detained As Parole Violator Until Wanted for Trial

To protect him from possible mob violence at Bridgeton, Romain Johnson, Negro-suspect in the slaying of a white woman near there, was rushed to the State Prison here late yesterday afternoon by six State troopers.

Having been released from the institution in April after serving the minimum time on a three-to-five-year sentence for a statutory offense, according to Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, the principal keeper, Johnson was re-admitted as a parole violator and is to be held until wanted for trial at Bridgeton.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Aug. 30 (AP).—taking no chances on a possible attempt at mob violence, authorities spirited Romain Johnson, Negro-suspect in the slaying of a white farm-wife, from the Bridgeton Jail to the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton late today.

Anticipating a repetition of last night's action, when a crowd of between 200 and 500 men milled noisily about the jail for several hours, six State troopers and Sheriff William L. Brown, all heavily armed, secretly took the Negro from his cell, bundled him into an automobile and sped for the State capital.

"We're taking him there for safe keeping," announced Under Sheriff John H. Cline after Johnson was safely beyond the city limits. Before that no outsider knew the prisoner was out of the institution, and Sheriff Brown, himself, had said Johnson was still inside the place.

He was to be confined in State Prison as a parole violator, to be kept there until his trial is called. He was released from the State institution on parole several months ago after serving a time for a criminal assault.

Crowd Disperses at Dawn

A drenching rain and a sturdy band of police forced last night's crowd to disperse at dawn today.

A telephone "tip" to authorities that the crowd planned to storm the jail and remove Johnson enabled officials to prepare for any assault. Sheriff Brown called out State, county and local police, and 50 officers, brandishing riot sticks and carrying arms, responded to the summons.

They arrived not a moment too soon, for just as they pulled up to the prison, automobiles carrying the mob also reached the place. Leaders of the crowd expressed surprise at finding such a heavy guard, and, authorities said, counselled against any attempt at violence.

Sheriff Brown disclosed then that Johnson had been moved from a second-floor cell to one on the third floor.

Taking no further chances, State Police heads today ordered 11 troopers to remain on guard, setting up living quarters in the jail. They apparently thought better of this order, however, and decided on Johnson's removal.

Johnson has confessed, County Detective Albert Murray said, to beating Mrs. Minnie Horuvitz to death in a robbery attempt at her farm home last Tuesday. He was arrested outside a bus terminal less than four hours after Mrs. Horuvitz's body was found in her bedroom.

Prosecutor Thomas J. Tuso announced the case will go to the grand jury on September 24.

"I will demand the extreme penalty," he asserted. "I am convinced Johnson murdered Mrs. Horuvitz."

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

New York.

5132

Police Save Negro Slayer From Mob

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Pursued by an angry crowd of 300 men, women and children, Julius Lewis, 60, negro, raced five blocks to a police station today after a bullet he fired at another man struck and killed a 13-year-old girl playing in crowded Seward Park on the East Side.

Rushing into the police station, Lewis cried:

"Save me! save me! I just shot somebody."

Lewis told police he quarreled with another negro, Frank Snorton, jerked out a .45 calibre automatic and fired at him. The shot went wild, striking Virginia Spaulins.

The crowd pursuing him shouted:

"Lynch him! lynch him!"

Police held Lewis and dispersed the crowd.

KINGSTON, N. Y.
LEADER
JUL 2 1935

NEGRO SAVED FROM LYNCHING

Orange County Man Accused of Attack on Infant

Newburgh, July 1—Saved from lynching only by the quick work of Highland Falls police, who spirited him away from an angry mob of 250 Negroes that stormed the village lockup, Clyde Larkin, 41-year-old Negro, is safely lodged in the county jail in Newburgh today awaiting hearing on charges of criminally attacking a 19-months-old girl of his own race.

Larkin, a married man and the father of nine children, was arrested in Roe Park in Highland Falls at about 1:30 p. m. Saturday by village police, who allegedly caught him red-handed in the commission of one of the most atrocious crimes in Orange County history.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented 6

North Carolina.

5133

Siler City, N. C. News
August 13, 1935

Governor Provides Against Repetition Of Lynching

Raleigh, August 12.—To insure no repetition of the lyuching in Franklin county a few weeks ago, State Highway Patrolmen were ordered out last week to form escorts for two offenders against the dignity of the State while they were being brought to State's prison for safe keeping.

George Francs, alias Jake Johnson, negro, was brought from Charlestown, W. Va., Thursday to answer a charge of criminally assaulting and robbing a 65-year-old white woman near Leaksville last winter. A cordon of patrolmen met Sheriff Sheffield at the Virginia line and accompanied him to Raleigh. Feeling was running high in Rockingham county, and the patrol was ordered to accompany the prisoner by Governor Ehringhaus.

Ross Cline, escaped convict, was also accompanied by patrolmen to Raleigh after he had escaped from the Alexander county prison camp and attacked two white women near the Alexander-Iredell county line, one a 14-year-old girl. A mob had been seeking Cline all the morning in Alexander county. When he was captured, Sheriff Len Maye rushed him to Raleigh, accompanied by patrolmen.

Lynchings – 1935
Prevented.

North Carolina.

5134

Rush Man To Prison To Avoid Lynching

Greensboro, Aug. 29 (By ANP)—To escape the frenzy of a rapidly forming mob, Willie Smith was rushed here from Caswell jail at Yanceville and placed in the state prison early Wednesday morning.

Smith was arrested, charged with having slapped Mrs. Kelly Wilson, the wife of a white mill worker at Yanceville on August 9. When the news of his arrest reached the mill where the woman's husband was employed, cries of "lynch him" rent the air and the mob began to form to carry out the threat. Officers, sensing the danger of mob violence, loaded the prisoner in an automobile and rushed him here for safekeeping.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
STAR

SEP 4 1935

LYNCHING FEARED NEAR CREEDMOOR

Posse Seeking Negro for Assault; Officers Sent by Governor

RALEIGH, Sept. 4.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus dispatched a company of state highway patrolmen to the Creedmoor district shortly before 2 a. m. today after receiving reports that citizens were intent on lynching John Kingham, elderly negro charged with assaulting a 12-year-old white girl.

The governor, who said state aid was asked by an influential resident of the section whose name was withheld, said he was informed a posse was searching Granville county swamps with bloodhounds for Kingham and that there was a strong possibility of a lynching unless officers should be present when the capture was made.

The negro was alleged to have attacked the daughter of Bryant Creed, farmer who lives about seven 23miles south of Creedmoor. The attack occurred about nightfall, the governor said he was informed.

Governor's Act Prevents Lynching Of Elderly Man

Chief N. C. Executive Rushes Detachment of State Highway Patrolmen to Scene—Lynching Averted.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 19—(ANP)—Governor Ehringhaus lauded the efficient work of the State Highway Patrol contingent, under the command of Captain Chas. D. Farmer, in connection with the capture and arrest of John Kingham, age 70, charged with raping a 12-year-old white girl near Creedmor Thursday morning.

When word of the alleged attack reached the governor, he immediately dispatched Captain Farmer and his contingent to the scene, with orders to do everything possible to prevent mob violence. Other contingents were ordered to join Farmer's command and to rush to Creedmor where the manhunt was in progress.

Arriving at the place of the alaged attack, Capt. Farmer found hordes of whites searching for the elderly man. His men took charge of the situation and within a few hours, Kingham was found hiding in a swamp on the outskirts of Creedmor and was placed under arrest. Without delay, the prisoner was rushed here for safekeeping.

Upon his arrival here, Kingham protested his innocence and added his thanks to that of the governor for the protection accorded him by the State Highway patrolmen.

Lynchings–1935.
Prevented

North Carolina

5135

Seek to Protect Negro From Mob

(Special to The Journal)

Greensboro, Aug. 20.—Brought here last night to escape the possible attack of a Burlington mob on the Caswell jail at Yanceyville, A Negro named Willie Smith was today removed to state's prison for the same reason, prevention of a mob visit to the Guilford bastile.

The man, 32 years old, is charged with striking Mrs. Kelly Wilson in the face in Burlington on the night of August 9 after he had forced an entry into her car as she was waiting for her husband outside the May hosiery mill.

On an early and false arrest, a mob raided Yanceyville. Mrs. Wilson has identified Smith as the guilty man.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented.

North Carolina Bar Association Study of Prevention of Lynchings. 5136

Greensboro, N. C., News
December 9, 1935

Bar Association President Picks Committees For Year

Several Local Men Selected For Service By President J. M. Broughton, of Raleigh—Numerous Special Committees Will Make Recommendations.

Daily News Bureau and Telegraph Office
411 Wachovia Bank Bldg., Fayetteville St.

Raleigh, Dec. 8.—President J. M. Broughton, of the North Carolina Bar association, has announced the completion of committee appointments for the ensuing year. Among the committees appointed there are included certain special groups authorized at the last convention of the bar association.

Among these special committees particular emphasis was placed at the convention upon the committee to study the whole subject of prevention of lynching, and to make recommendations concerning this subject at the next convention. Former Judge Roy L. Deal, of Winston-Salem, was named chairman of this committee, the other members being Jas. H. Chadbourn, Jr., Chapel Hill; J. K. Wilson, Elizabeth City; George C. Green, Weldon; Robert M. Gantt, Durham, and Walter H. Woodson, Salisbury. The secretary of the committee, Prof. Jas. H. Chadbourn, Jr., of the University of North Carolina, has made a particular study of this subject and done extensive writing along this line in leading magazines.

Of particular interest to lawyers is the new special committee appointed in pursuance of a resolution adopted at the convention to study and make recommendations concerning summary judgment law. Such legislation will be designed to shorten civil litigation and to avoid the frequent delays that result from frivolous or dilatory pleading. C. R. Wharton, of Greensboro, is named chairman of this committee. A companion special committee is a committee on criminal law and its enforcement, of which Albert Coates, of Chapel Hill, is named chairman. Another special committee of particular interest to the profession and to business interests generally, provided for at the last convention, is the committee on revision of the corporation law of North Carolina. This committee is composed of the following: Professor M. S. Breckenridge, chairman, Chapel Hill; John H. Anderson, Jr., Raleigh; Omer L. Henry, Lumberton; Kemp D. Battle, Rocky Mount, and Charles A. Hines, Greensboro.

Junior Bar Represented.

The last convention of the bar association gave emphasis to the work of the junior bar, and for the first time the bar association has a special committee on the junior bar. William B. McGuire, of Charlotte, is chairman of this committee, and the other members are as follows: Edward L. Cannon, Druham; M. A. James, Asheville; W. J. Hooke, Kenly; E. D. Kuykendall, Jr., Greensboro; W. J. Adams, Jr., Rocky Mount, and R. S. Averitt, Winston-Salem. Junior bar associations have already been organized in a number of the cities of the state, including Durham, Winston-Salem, Asheville, Charlotte, Smithfield and Raleigh.

The association will continue to stress its program on American citizenship, and a special committee on this subject has been named, composed of: Oscar Leach, chairman, Raleigh; T. L. Johnson, Asheville; Charles P. Green, Louisburg; Judge Marshall T. Spears, Durham; John W. Aiken, Raleigh; R. S. Pruette, Wadesboro, and D. C. Barnes, Murfreesboro.

The increasing strictness with respect to admissions to the bar, as well as professional standards of those already admitted, has been a subject of much discussion and consideration. The lawyers generally have expressed the feeling that while this improvement of standards is highly important and is welcome, there should be a corresponding insistence that individuals who have not been licensed to practice law, and corporations who cannot be licensed to practice, should be prevented by appropriate and adequate legislation from engaging in the practice of law. The association has a committee on unauthorized practice of law, whose duty it is to study legislation along this line and to be alert to point out and if necessary to prosecute any viloations of the existing law on this subject. The committee is: J. Y. Jordan, Jr., chairman, Asheville; Joseph L. Carlton, Raleigh; Fred P. Parker, Jr., Goldsboro; Roy L. Deal, Winston-Salem, and C. W. Weathers, Raleigh.

Special Committees.

Chairmen of other special committees named by President Broughton are: Committee on justices of the peace, James G. W. MacClamroch, Greensboro; committee on legal aid, J. S. Bradway, Durham; committee to co-operate with the American law institute, R. C. Horack, Durham; committee on selection of judges, Judge R. H. Sykes, Durham; committee on co-operation between attorneys and banks, Edward L. Cannon, Durham.

The chairmen of general or standing committees for the year as announced by President Broughton are Committee on admission to membership, W. F. Taylor, Goldsboro; committee on judiciary, L. R. Varser, Lumberton; committee on legislation and law reform, Willis Smith, Raleigh; committee on uniform state laws, Justin Miller, Durham; committee on legal education and admission to the bar, Ben W. Parham, Oxford; committee on courts and court procedure, Judge Michael Schenck, Raleigh; committee on memorials, Andrew Joyner, Jr., Greensboro; committee on grievances, J. B. Cheshire, Jr., Raleigh; and committee on legal ethics and conduct, G. H. Hastings, chairman, Winston-Salem.

The executive committee of the bar association is composed of E. Earle Rives, chairman, Greensboro; Fred I. Sutton, Kinston; B. M. Covington, Wadesboro; Nat S. Crews, Winston-Salem; F. E. Winslow, Rocky Mount, and Allston Stubbs, Durham; J. M. Broughton, president, and Henry M. London, secretary.

Greensboro, N. C. News
December 8, 1935

Lynching Study Group Named By State Bar

It Will Study Methods of Preventing Lynching During Year

RALEIGH, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Roy L. Deal of Winston-Salem, a former superior court judge, will head a special committee of the North Carolina Bar association to study the subject of prevention of lynching during the next year and offer recommendation to the next bar convention.

The lynching study committee was named today by J. M. Broughton of Raleigh, president of the bar association, along with other regular and special committees, completing the set-up of the organization.

Prof. James H. Chadbourn, Jr., of Chapel Hill, who has made a particular study of lynchings and who has done extensive magazine writing on the subject, will serve as secretary of this committee. Other members will be: J. Wilson of Elizabeth City, George C. Green of Weldon, Robert M. Gantt of Durham and Walter H. Woodson of Salisbury.

C. R. Wharton, of Greensboro was named by Broughton as chairman of a special committee to study and make recommendations concerning summary judgment law with a view of proposing legislation to shorten civil litigation and avoid frequent delays that result from frivolous or dilatory pleading. A resolution calling for the study was passed at the last association convention.

Albert Coates of Chapel Hill will head a committee on criminal law and its enforcement, a comparison group to that headed by Wharton.

The committee on revision of the corporation law of North Carolina will be composed of Prof. M. S. Breckenridge of Chapel Hill, chairman; John H. Anderson, Jr., of Raleigh; Ozmer L. Henry of Lumberton, Kempt B. Battle of Rockyden Mount, and Charles A. Hines of Greensboro.

William B. McGuire of Charlotte will head the special committee on the junior bar, the first in the history of the association. Other members will be: Edward L. Cannon of Durham, M. A. James of Asheville, W. J. Hooks of Kenly, E. D. Kuykendall, Jr., of Greensboro, W. J. Adams, Jr., of Rocky Mount, and R. S. Averitt of Winston-Salem.

Junior Bar associations already have been organized in a number of cities of the state, including Durham, Winston-Salem, Asheville, Charlotte, Smithfield and Raleigh.

The special committee on American citizenship will be: Oscar Leach of Raleigh, chairman; T. L. Johnston, of Asheville, Charles P. Green of Louisburg, Judge Marshall T. Spears of Durham, John W. Aiken of Raleigh, R. S. Pruette of Wadesboro, and D. C. Barnes of Murfreesboro.

J. Y. Jordan, Jr., of Asheville will head the committee on unauthorized practice of law, which has the following other members: Joseph L. Carlton of Raleigh, Fred P. Parker, Jr., of Goldsboro, Roy L. Deal of Winston-Salem, and Carroll W. Weathers of Raleigh.

Jordan's committee will study the proposed passage of legislation designed to prevent individuals who have not been licensed and corporations who cannot be licensed from engaging in law practice.

Chairman of other special committees named by Broughton are: James G. W. MacLamroch of Greensboro, justices of the peace, J. S. Bradway of Durham, legal aid; H. C. Horack of Durham, cooperation with the American Law Institute; R. H. Sykes of Durham, selection of judgts; Edward L. Cannon of Durham, cooperation between attorneys and banks.

Chairmen of general or standing committees for the year will be: W. F. Taylor of Goldsboro, admission to membership; L. R. Verser of Lumberton, judiciary; Willis Smith of Raleigh, legislation and law reform; Justin Miller of Durham, uniform state laws; Ben W. Parham of Oxford, legal education and admission to the bar; Justice Michael Schenck of Raleigh, courts and court procedure; Andrew Joyner, Jr., of Greensboro, memorials; Joseph B. Cheshire, Jr., of Raleigh, grievances; G. H. Hastings of Winston-Salem, legal ethics and professional conduct.

The executive committee of the association is composed of President Broughton, Henry M. London, secretary of the association, ex officio; E. Earle Rives of Greensboro, chairman; Fred I. Sutton of Kinston, B. M. Covington of Wakesboro, Nat S. Crews of Winston-Salem, F. E. Winslow of Rocky Mount, and Allston Stubbs of Durham.

Lynchings-1935

Ohio

5137

Prevented

COLUMBUS, O.
DISPATCH

JUN 26 1935

Threatened Lynching

A SCENE, fortunately rare in Ohio, took place in Christiansburg, on the border of Miami and Champaign counties, the other day, which reflects little credit on the community. Following an altercation between two residents one died. The coroner released the other, reporting that death did not ensue from the squabble.

Almost immediately a mob, bent upon accomplishing what to them seemed justice, surrounded the home of the freed man with violence to person and the destruction of property as obvious objectives. Fortunately, the mob's intended victim escaped through the intervention of peace officers, although considerable damage was done to his home.

While there have been other manifestations of this nature in Ohio, lynchings have been rare in this state. One of the last, if not the most recent, was the lynching in Newark in 1910 of Carl Etherington, agent of the dry forces. In the case at Christiansburg, there was no broad social movement such as prohibition to afford platform for animosities of this nature. It would seem a plain case of mob hysteria inflamed by local prejudices brought into violent focus over the death of one of the residents of the community.

By now the participants in the demonstration must be thoroughly ashamed of their part in the affair. Usually, members of a mob, after the hysteria of the moment has passed, suffer shame and remorse. This must be the case among the ordinarily peaceful citizens of the rural community of Christiansburg.

Police Save Man From Lynch Mob

CINCINNATI, O.—Police on Monday saved Harry Logan, 34, from an infuriated mob which attempted to lynch him. Logan is accused of having attacked Esther Minton, a 16-year-old white girl.

Two police squads quelled the bloodthirsty crowd.

LOOKA HERE AT WHO'S CAUGHT THAT LYNCHING SPIRIT!!

Cleveland, Ohio (Special)—The lynching of a white man for an attempted attack on a 10-year-old colored girl was narrowly averted here Tuesday night of last week, when an infuriated group of men roughly manhandled John Sua at 80th and Cedar Avenue.

The arrival of police a short while before the defenders of the girl could get a chance to "string their victim up" is what prevented this city from having upon it the foul blot of a lynching. When they reached the scene they found John Sua, the white man, badly beaten up. He was carried to a precinct station where his condition was found to be so serious that he was rushed to a hospital for treatment. It was feared that he had suffered a fractured skull.

The little colored girl who figured in the near lynching of the white man stated that while walking along the street she was attracted into an alley between an ice house and the "Greasy Spoon" restaurant by seeing a quarter on the ground. The quarter, evidently had been "planted" at the point as a "bait" by the white man. "As I stopped to pick up the quarter," the girl said, "a man caught me by the arm and said that the quar- was his. I wanted to keep it because I had found it. The man who was with another white man, then told me he would give me five dollars if I would go with him to his apartment. I became frightened and tried to pull away, but he held on to me and tore my middy blouse. The other man tried to make him turn me loose by striking him and telling him to get a woman. I was scared nearly to death and when I saw Mr. Sonny Slaghter standing on Cedar Street I called him to help me. Mr. Sonny came running and the two white men ran but Mr. Sonny caught the one who had hold of me. In a little while people came from everywhere, it looked like. Someone put a rope around his neck and then the police came."

Lynchings–1935
Prevented.

Pennsylvania

5138

Bronx, N.Y. Home News

MAR 17 1935

Police Save Youth from Hands of Lynch Mob

State police rescued Theodore Caranelli, 23, in Newell, Pa., yesterday just as a lynching mob broke down the door of his barricaded home and was about to seize him. Rumors had spread that the youth had attacked two girls, and a mob of about 200 men and women tried in vain to force their way into his home. Caranelli insisted that he was innocent.

5138

Lynchings – 1935
Prevented

South Carolina

5139

Abbeville, S. C. Press and Banner
August 12, 1935

THE MOB SPIRIT

Saturday night a mild attempt was made to get eight negroes from the Abbeville County jail. The negroes were arrested several days ago and face charges in connection with an attack on a white man. The mob formed in Calhoun Falls, the scene of the attack and came to Abbeville in a half-hearted attempt to get the negroes to lynch or whip them.

When the mob arrived they found that Sheriff McLane had wisely taken precautions to protect his prisoners. The day is passed in these United States when the people can take the law into their own hands. Laws are more strict than they were when the country was young and public opinion is opposed to the law of General Lynch. The law is strong enough at the present time to cause the members of the mob serious trouble although no direct attempt was made to enter the jail. The leaders might be charged with "inciting to riot" a transgression of the law of Uncle Sam.

The national guard is not what it was at one time. Now the guard is a business-like organization with the finest equipment possible. When the command is given to fire—they fire. It would have been tragic if that command had become necessary on Saturday night.

And now let's analyze the mob and their desires. The negroes are in jail. They'll be tried within thirty days. They'll get a fair trial and justice under the direction of the court and a jury of men of Abbeville County. Abbeville County juries are still capable of judging the facts and the presiding judges are still capable of passing sentences. This mob has cost the state hundreds of dollars. In the event a negro had been lynched the law says that the family shall receive $2,000 from the county. We assume that the members of the mob are taxpayers. In the event of a lynching they would have paid for their "fun."

Abbeville has had her share of lynchings. The G-men of Uncle Sam have the gangsters on the run. The gangsters were organized mobs. They are removed because people were determined that they should go. Lynching is no longer popular because people are determined that the law shall prevail.

Sheriff McLane is to be praised for his foresight in protecting his prisoners. That's his business and sworn duty. His cool handling of the situation in this instance as he has in many instances in the past has saved many embarassing situations for the county. Much trouble in Abbeville is averted because the Sheriff of this County has the reputation of "getting his man." Of an even cool temper many people underestimate him but those who have had the misfortune to run afoul of the law have found themselves securely bound before they realized that anything was happening. That's the reason Abbeville stands high in the counties of the state as county of law-abiding people. The small percentage of people who would like to disobey the law know that they must come in contact with a law officer who knows what his duty is and does it regardless of consequences.

Columbia, S. C. State
November 19, 1935

WANTS BOARD PAY OF 'SAFE KEEPERS'

Governor Says Must Have Warrants for Month.

County officials sending "safe keepers" to Columbia for incarceration in the state penitentiary must in future have arrangements made for payment of board for the prisoner for a month in advance, Governor Johnston announced yesterday.

The governor said he was issuing orders, under which county officers seeking to place "safe keepers" in the state prison, must present warrants or vouchers for sums sufficient to pay for the board and keeping of the prisoner. If at the end of the month, an additional voucher to cover expenses for the next month is not sent, the governor said the prisoner would be sent back to the county from whence he came. Expense of caring for a "safe keeper" at the state prison is about 75 cents per day, Col. A. M. Scarborough, superintendent, said, though it varies somewhat in different cases.

Not a great many "safe keepers" are placed in the state prison during a year. At times, when some sheriff has in his jail a prisoner who is regarded as particularly desperate and dangerous, he brings him to Columbia and places him in the state prison, first, however, getting an order from the governor to the officers in charge of the penitentiary, to admit the prisoner for "safe keeping." The prisoner is often kept in Columbia until the time for his trial. Then, too, when a lynching seems imminent, and there is danger that the jail will be stormed and the prisoner taken from the custody of the sheriff, or when officers apprehend a man, wanted on some serious charge, in the open, and a posse forms bent on taking the man away from the officers, they often bring their prisoner to the state penitentiary rather than attempt to get him to the county seat. Such a prisoner is sometimes held for weeks and the institution is at considerable expense to care for him.

It was said that some counties were in debt to the penitentiary for as much as $400, some of the obligations having accumulated over a number of years. Letters are sent to county officials, relative to the obligation, but the letters apparently get little consideration, according to penitentiary officials. It was to prevent accumulation of such obligations that the governor gave his orders for "safe keepers" to have arrangements made for their "keep" for a month in advance when placed in the state prison.

Lynchings-1935
Prevented 6

South Carolina

5140

FLORENCE, S. C.
NEWS REVIEW

MAR 31 1935

OUR STATE PATROL

The law-abiding citizens of Florence county are due a vote of thanks to the South Carolina State Highway patrol and to Sheriff W. R. Wall for averting mob violence at the county jail here in Florence last Monday.

They are also due a vote of condemnation of Governor Johnston who if his orders were carried out would have left our sheriff powerless to cope with the threatening situation.

You will recall that the Governor in his mean, spiteful attack upon the highway department ordered all county sheriff's by letter not to commission state patrolmen and that any who had, should immediately revoke them.

Captain George Young wanting to save the Sheriffs any embarrassment attempted to return eight of these commissions that had been given his men, but the sheriff in every case refused to accept their return, holding that they were responsible to the taxpayers of their counties for the proper enforcement of the law and not to the Governor. That they welcomed in no uncertain degree the valuable assistance being rendered them by this splendid body of officers selected by the state highway department.

Sheriff Wall of this county faced with the protection of a negro guilty though he thought he was, of one of the most heinous crimes in the annals of this or any other county, knew that under his oath he was sworn to protect the man and see that he had his day in court where twelve men should be allowed to decide his fate and not a mob fanned into a hysteria who perhaps would regret later having the blood on their hands of even so low a beast as they sought to destroy. He was also faced with an executive order from the Governor not to accept the assistance of the state patrol and not under any circumstances to commission them.

The Sheriff did commission however those operating out of the Florence division and appealing direct to the state highway department had fifteen patrolmen in all, armed with high-powered rifles stationed in the county pail before noon Monday. The presence of these officers of the law did much to control a tense situation, while local officers were out gathering the chain of evidence that would fasten the man suspected with the crime. The state patrolmen later on in the afternoon assisted the Sheriff in spiriting the man away to the state pen through a back door, while the angry crowd milled around the regular entrance to the jail.

It is now up to the good citizens of this county to back up our Sheriff in his open defiance of the Governor, when that Governor has proved his inability to govern. The Sheriff has a right to deputize any citizen in a crisis, so why shouldn't he have the power and right to commission armed trained officers who are conceded to be an exceptionally fine group of law-enforcement men in spite of the fact that they were selected by what Governor Johnston is wont to term that obnoxious highway department.

Sheriff Wall may rest assured that he is not alone in disobediance to our embryo Governor. The Senate is openly hostile . . . the House is growing more so each day as he continues to threaten them . . . the Federal Government has sat down on him good and hard in his efforts to upset their plan of federal relief for this state. Newspapers of the state who openly advocated his candidacy for the governorship are deserting him. The spectre of Ben Adams sitting at his right hand and mis-directing the affair of this state are more than they can tolerate. Many of his supporters express disappointment in his every action so far. There are still a few who yet contend, you have to admire him for the fact that he is a self-made man. To these few we would answer, perhaps he is, but he didn't get very far with the job. They say he has risen from the ranks but has he? We can only judge a man by his actions and his to date tend to prove that he is still a mill-hand.

Troops Withdraw As Mob Vanishes

ABBEVILLE, S. C., Aug. 12—(AP)—Troops sent here early Sunday to forestall threatened mob action against 10 negroes charged with beating a white man, were withdrawn today after Sheriff S. F. McLane announced all was quiet with the situation controllable by local officers.

The negroes were arrested after Jim Strickland, 40, had been beaten by a crowd in the Calhoun Falls section because, some of the suspects alleged, he had molested negro women who were emerging from church.

The sheriff received warning Saturday night that a mob was forming, asked Gov. Olin D. Johnston for aid, and when the truckloads of farmers arrived they were greetedby bayonets and machine guns. The crowd quickly dispersed and threats to "get more men and come back" failed to materialize.

South Carolina Mob Thwarted

Soldiers Guard Abbeville Negroes After Attempt At Lynching Is Foiled

ABBEVILLE, S. C., Aug. 11—(AP)—Alert National Guard troops with bayonets fixed tonight guarded from threatened violence 11 negroes imprisoned here on charges of assaulting and attempting to kill Jim Strickland, 40, a white man of nearby Calhoun Falls.

Strickland, badly beaten early in the week, was expected tonight to recover.

Learning of the approach of a crowd of men early today of "between 200 and 300" with the expressed determination of storming the jail, Sheriff F. B. McLane of Abbeville County called upon Gov. Olin D. Johnson at Columbia for a company of national guard troops which quickly was mustered from Abbeville under command of Capt. A. B. Godfrey.

About 1:30 a.m. McLane said, within an hour after the troops had thrown a cordon of steel around the jail, a group of "between 50 and 100 men" swiftly rolled up in three trucks to demand the negroes. Upon seeing the soldiers, however, he said the men, whom he could not recognize "because of the darkness," listened "to reasoning" and quietly departed with the threat they would return with augmented forces.

Despite this threat, however, the sheriff said he did not expect further trouble with the troops on duty, and he planned not to remove the negroes elsewhere for safekeeping. He reported all had been quiet since the "mob's" departure. The negroes are expected to be tried the first week of September with the convention of court.

They range in age from 20 to 45, and were jailed here last Friday, three days after Strickland had been found, badly beaten, near a highway not far from a negro church in the Calhoun Falls section of the county, about 18 miles from Abbeville.

Strickland, who was discovered by a passing motorist shortly after 4 a.m. last Tuesday, said many negroes had made an unprovoked attack on him Monday night on the church grounds, knocking him unconscious with sticks and stones, and leaving him "for dead."

McLane said several of the arrested negroes had confessed participation in the assault, saying it was caused by Strickland's alleged molestation of members of the congregation after the church service, which they said, he attended.

Troops Bare Steel To Save 11 From Mob

ABBEVILLE, S. C.—A company of State Militia, hastily ordered out by Governor Johnson in answer to a frequest for help from Sheriff F. B. McLane of Abbeville County, bared their bayonets to drive back a mob that sought to lynch 11 colored men here Sunday. The troops called for by the sheriff when he learned that a crowd was planning an assault on the jail, arrived barely an hour before the mob appeared in motor trucks.

The eleven prisoners were arrested after Jim Strickland, white, had been found badly beaten outside a colored church last week. Ranging in age from 20 to 45, they were arrested as his assailants three days later. Strickland is expected to recover.

Although the mob threatened to return in larger numbers, no further trouble is expected, and the prisoners will be kept here until their trial next month.

Lynchings-1935

Prevented

Tennessee

5141

FOR ABOUT TWELVE HOURS on December 19 there was civil war in Shelbyville, Tennessee, when a mob attempted to take a Negro prisoner, accused of the rape of a fourteen-year-old white girl, from the courthouse and was repulsed by the National Guard. Three of the mob were killed and a number seriously injured in the fracas; and when the militia had temporarily retreated after conveying the Negro to Nashville, the attacking party formed again and burned the courthouse to the ground. Out of this desperate and bloody story stand the important facts that the law was upheld, and that the Governor, Hill McAlister, when advised that violence was imminent and a lynching would be attempted, was courageous enough to order out the troops to protect the prisoner and the court. There are instances recorded of lynching mobs which were repulsed by a determined sheriff with a pistol; that the Shelbyville rioters could be conquered only by tear gas and machine-gun bullets is perhaps to be accounted for by the increasingly bitter economic competition between Southern whites and Negroes for the few jobs that exist. Race prejudice has been heightened by unemployment and starvation, as it undoubtedly was in the recent torture and lynching of Claude Neal in Florida. All possible credit is due to Governor McAlister for preventing a repetition of that nightmare; but both the Marianna and the Shelbyville episodes should result in enormous pressure on Congress for the enactment early in the coming session of a federal anti-lynching law.

Foiled Lynchers Burn A Courthouse

PROMPT action by the governor in sending a strong force of militia frustrated the murderous intentions of a mob bent on lynching a Negro at Shelbyville, Tennessee, but at the cost of two lives and the burning of the county courthouse. The offense charged was a serious sex crime. The suspect had been arrested and was held in custody in the courthouse which was stormed by a formidable mob of local citizens. The Negro was spirited out of the building, disguised in a uniform and a gas mask, and was taken to Nashville. Enraged by the escape of its quarry, the mob attempted to dynamite the building and was successful in completely destroying it by fire. A more stupid exhibition of blind passion it would be difficult to imagine. The incendiarists were, as has been stated, citizens of the county and town. The courthouse was their house. The insensate rage which moved them to destroy their own property as a protest against the escape of their victim was inconsistent with anything even remotely resembling intelligence, but singularly consonant with the general processes of the lyncher's mind and the general patterns of his behavior. Any attack by mob violence upon an accused or hated individual is an attack upon a possession of the attackers which is much more precious than their courthouse. It is an attack upon the law, the state and the social order—their own law, their own state, their own social order. Such infliction of injury upon oneself is a symptom of psychological abnormality. The individuals may be sane enough in the ordinary affairs of life, but the collective mind which they express in such moments of mob action is a proper subject for analysis by the psychiatrist. But, to return to the Shelbyville incident, lynchings can be prevented when determined officers are mindful of their oaths of office and use the resources which have been put in their hands.

SHELBYVILLE, Tennessee, was the scene last week of an attempted lynching that was met by treatment almost unheard-of in such cases. Governor Hill McAlister ordered out the National Guard, and when the lynchers attempted to storm the jail and get their victim—a Negro named E. K. Harris—they were met with bullets. Several of the mob are dead, others are wounded, and Harris has survived to experience due process of law. Those who died in Shelbyville did not know it, but by their deaths they probably helped the South move toward realization of an important principle—the principle that there should be justice before the law for both black and white. If the lesson is appreciated, they may have helped to save the lives of many innocent men in the future.

SHELBYVILLE RIOT NEWSREEL FEATURE

Tennessee Mob Scene Is Recorded By Camera

The furious riot at Shelbyville, Tenn., in which two persons lost their lives is pictured in The Birmingham Post-Universal newsreel which starts at the Strand tomorrow.

Birmingham

Angered because a Negro they sought to lynch had been removed from the jail, the rioters burned down the Courthouse and wrecked four Army trucks before National Guardsmen could restore order.

Other interesting events pictured in the reel include the opening of the new Santa Anita race track at Arcadia, Cal.; Amelia Earhart Putnam preparing for a Hawaii-to-California flight; a New York department store giving away 10,000 suits of clothing in a holiday gesture, and scenes of three train wrecks which brought death to 22 passengers.

TENNESSEE NEGRO GETS VENUE CHANGE

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 24. (AP)—E. K. Harris, negro whose trial December 19 resulted in mob violence which cost four lives and the burning of the courthouse today was granted a change of venue to Davidson county criminal court at Nashville.

Circuit Judge T. L. Coleman, of Lewisburg, in granting the appeal of Harris' attorneys, said he would ask for an early trial in Nashville, where Harris has been held in jail for safekeeping. Harris is accused of assaulting a white school girl.

MILITIA GUARDS NEGRO ATTACKER

Telegraph

Repetition of Shelbyville Riots Feared at Trial by Tennessee Governor

2-18-35

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 17 (AP). Governor McAlister today ordered out as many national guardsmen as necessary "to take every precaution" against possible trouble at the trial beginning tomorrow of E. K. Harris, Negro, whose trial at Shelbyville, Dec. 19, precipitated a riot in which four lives were lost.

When a mistrial resulted from the Shelbyville mob action, Harris was granted a change of venue to Davidson county (Nashville). He has been held in the county jail here. He is charged with having criminally attacked a young white girl in Bedford county, of which Shelbyville is the county seat.

Sheriff L. A. Bauman of Davidson county said tonight that "fully 400 men," including guardsmen, police and county officers, would be stationed about the courthouse and jail before the opening of the trial tomorrow.

Asked whether there were definite indications of trouble Sheriff Bauman said "I wouldn't say there were." However, he added that he believed "they have been mapping the geography of the jail," and that other plans which might foreshadow some mob action had been laid.

The sheriff did not say whom he ment by "they," but his words were interpreted as meaning the leaders of a mob of several hundred men who stormed the Bedford county courthouse at Shelbyville the day of Harris' trial there.

Two civilians met almost immediate death at the hands of guardsmen in Shelbyville. Two others were fatally wounded as the mob three times stormed the building before Harris was disguised as a guardsmen, taken to a waiting automobile and rushed here.

Cheated of its intended prey the mob turned upon the withdrawing guardsmen, booed them through the city streets, captured and burned four militia trucks and finally set fire to and destroyed the courthouse.

TROOPS ARE CALLED TO PROTECT NEGRO

Trial Of Alleged Attacker Begins In Nashville

By United Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Two hundred National Guardsmen and 100 police officers encircled Davidson County Courthouse today as the second trial opened for E. K. Harris, 22-year-old Negro charged with criminally attacking a white girl.

Six machine guns were manned at the entrance of the combined jail and courthouse. Traffic was stopped in a two-block area. Pedestrians were searched for firearms before being permitted to ness through guard lines.

Home Burned After Pastor Urged Action Against Mob

SHELBYVILLE, TENN., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Fire early today destroyed the home of a Methodist preacher who had urged the law to act against leaders of the mob that a month ago rioted here, burning the Bedford County Courthouse and bringing about the deaths of four men.

City Judge C. C. Smith said an appeal had been made to State fire authorities to investigate the fire in the belief that it had been of incendiary origin.

The Rev. W. O. Largen, the preacher and pastor of a Methodist Episcopal Church, South, circuit, said "it looks like somebody did" when asked whether he believed someone had set the blaze that destroyed the six-room frame house and $2,000 worth of personal property.

He believed the fire may have been an effort to intimidate witnesses in a forthcoming grand jury investigation of the mob.

The house was owned by the church. The Rev. Mr. Largen said his personal loss included his library and all his furniture and other belongings with the exception of a few pieces of clothing and bedding he snatched up and took with him through a window when he jumped from the flaming building about 3 a.m.

In discussing his theory of incendiarism, Mr. Largen revealed that he had received two letters warning him, he said, "to quit meddling in matters of protecting negroes against white people," and that these intimated the writers might resort to use of the torch if their demands went unheeded.

Mob violence swept Shelbyville shortly before Christmas when several hundred persons tried to get E. K. Harris, negro, from the courthouse where he was on trial on a charge of criminally attacking a young white girl. Guardsmen with bayonets and bullets rebuffed the mob's attacks, leaving two men dead and two fatally wounded.

Judge Smith said warning letters had also been received by two other clergymen. All pastors of the city recently preached on law enforcement.

"It is a fact that I received one letter directly and another was given to a man to give to me," Mr. Largen said. "My life has not been threatened. They only wanted me to quit meddling in matters of protecting negroes against white folks."

He said he had not preached directly on the subject of the mob but that "I did discuss it with officers interested in the trial" and that he had been active "just like any other good citizen and not as an extremist" in seeking law enforcement and talking "for law and order."

Belief that the fire was set as a means of intimidating persons who might be called before the grand jury next week in connection with an expected mob investigation was expressed by Mr. Largen.

The fire broke out about 3 a.m.

"I was awakened by it, I suppose," the clergyman related. "My family was away visiting and I was home alone. Rooms all about me and the hallway were burning and there was no way to escape but through the window.

"I had a gun I had kept here recently for emergency and I knocked out a window, grabbed up a few clothes and some bedding in a bag and jumped out." Unable to use his own phone because of the fire, he went to a neighbor's and called the fire department, but, by the time firemen arrived, the house was destroyed.

Bronx, N.Y. Home News

FEB 18 1935

400 Are on Guard Against Lynch Threats

More than 400 men, including National Guardsmen, police and county officers today surrounded the courthouse at Nashville, Tenn., to prevent the gathering of lynch mobs as the second trial of E. K. Harris, colored, began. The first trial of Harris, accused of attacking a white girl, ended at Shelbyville, Tenn., on Dec. 19 in a riot in which four persons were killed.

MOB MISSES 2 MEN WHO ATTACKED GIRL

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Aug. 24.—(UP)—Two men charged with the criminal assault of an 11-year-old girl, were spirited out of Johnson City and removed to an unknown jail early today to avoid violence.

The men, Howard Loftis, 29, and Smith Dugger, 39, were given a preliminary hearing on the charge immediately after their arrest today and bound to the grand jury under bonds of $5,000 each.

Word of the attack spread rapidly and a mob started forming. Sheriff's deputies removed the prisoners from the jail through a back door and raced them out of the county.

Deputy Sheriff Is Slain By Negro

MEMPHIS, TENN., Oct. 17.—(AP)—Frank Freemon, 65-year-old Lauderdale County negro, was held in the county jail here tonight for safekeeping after officers quoted him as saying he unintentionally shot to death an officer who went to his home to protect him.

Sheriff A. H. Craig announced at Ripley that Freemon would be held at the Memphis jail until the grand jury meets when he will seek his indictment on a charge of second degree murder.

Sheriff Craig quoted Freemon as saying that he shot Deputy Sheriff Will Evans, 57, at Henning, Tenn., last night thinking the officer was James Reed, a 37-year-old negro who Freemon, his wife and daughter had charged in warrants with threatening to kill them.

Evans was shot to death in front of the Freemon home where he had gone with a warrant for Reed, the Sheriff said. Believing Reed had slain the officer, the sheriff offered a $250 reward for his capture "dead or alive" and a posse of citizens and officers began searching for him.

While the search was under way for Reed, Sheriff Craig said Freemon admitted the shooting and was brought here for safekeeping.

"Freemon," the sheriff said from Ripley today, "said he saw a man approach his home last night, and thinking it was Reed demanded him to identify himself. He said the man, possibly thinking he was Reed, shot at him twice, and that he opened fire, killing the officer.

"We thought Reed had killed the officer and started a search for him all over West Tennessee." Freemon "got restless," the Sheriff said, and "broke down and told us the whole story."

Lynchings-1935
Prevented

Tennessee

5142

Tennessee Troops Called Out For Negro's Trial

NASHVILLE, TENN., Feb. 17—(AP)—Gov. McAlister today ordered out as many National guardsmen as necessary "to take every precaution" against possible trouble at the trial beginning here tomorrow of E. K. Harris, negro, whose trial at Shelbyville December 19, precipitated a riot in which four lives were lost.

When a mistrial resulted from the Shelbyville mob action, Harris was granted a change of venue to Davidson County (Nashville). He has been held in the county jail here. He is charged with having criminally attacked a young white girl in Bedford County, of which Shelbyville is the county seat.

Sheriff L. A. Bauman, of Davidson County said tonight that "fully 400 men" including guardsmen, police and county officers, would be stationed about the courthouse and jail before the opening of the trial tomorrow.

LYNCHINGS CAN BE STOPPED

The way to stop lynchings—is to stop them.

That is the moral of what happened Wednesday night at Shelbyville, Tennessee.

It is not pleasant to think of American citizens being mowed down by machine guns. The necessity for such drastic measures is almost as disgraceful as the institution of lynching itself.

But the fact remains that recent lynch mobs in Maryland, California, Louisiana and Florida have carried out their intention—because the forces of law and order did not act.

In Florida, only a few weeks ago, the forces of the law, taking their cue from Governor Dave Sholtz, openly tolerated one of the most revolting lynchings in history—a sure method of breeding mob violence in the future.

The Shelbyville mob was thwarted chiefly because of the attitude of Governor Hill McAlister, who apparently made up his mind to enforce the law at any cost.

If more Governors were willing to follow his example, it would not take long to stamp out these revolting crimes. It would not be necessary for troops to fire on American citizens. Governor McAlister can thank Governor Sholtz, in part, for the troubles of Tennessee.

Few office holders in the South have been noted for such courage in similar circumstances. The feeling has prevailed that a really firm stand against lynching would be political suicide. It is The Record's guess that this belief is mistaken. The majority of people in the South are just as opposed to lynching as those in the North.

Governor McAlister may find political rewards for the performance of his duty. Certainly he deserves them.

The handful of national guardsmen also deserve credit. They kept their heads and their determination to protect the prisoner. They tried reasoning with the mob. When that failed they tried tear gas. When that failed, they used bullets.

The mob withdrew. To avoid bloodshed, the guardsmen spirited the Negro prisoner away in a soldier's uniform, his face covered by a gas mask.

Then their work was done. They marched out of town in good order while mobsters pelted them with stones. The guardsmen made no effort to defend themselves or return the attack —a magnificent exhibition of self-control and courage.

* * *

After the guardsmen left, an event occurred which throws considerable light on the lynch spirit.

The mob deliberately burned the Courthouse.

They knew the Negro and the guardsmen were gone. There was no conceivable purpose in this act of sheer vandalism. Doesn't this strengthen the contention that a part of the lynch psychology is savage manifestation of the spirit of rowdyism?

Apologists for lynching are apt to over-rationalize it. They will tell about the great "dread" of the Negro which is supposed to exist in the South. They will discuss the inflammatory effects of dilatory trials and miscarriages of justice.

But how to rationalize the burning of the Courthouse along those lines?

The mob was not revenging itself on the Negro. It was not harming the lawyers or the guardsmen. It was destroying county property which the members of the mob will have to pay to replace.

Further, every building in the town was endangered by the fire. The would-be lynchers might easily have burned down their own homes as a result of firing the Courthouse.

The only explanation is that they were out to destroy. And when they were deprived of a human victim they built a big bonfire—the Courthouse—instead.

When this aspect of the lynch motive is more clearly understood perhaps officials will be less likely to excuse and condone and let mobs have their way.

600 TROOPS GUARD LYNCH RIOT CITY AS THIRD VICTIM DIES

Deputy Sheriff Blames Fatal Outbreak on 'Moonshine.'

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 20.—This county seat, cowed by the guns of 600 National Guardsmen, tonight counted the third death from yesterday's lynch mob riots.

Gilford Freeman died in a local hospital of wounds. R. O. Edwards, a house painter, and an unidentified man whose body was spirited away from the hospital, were the other fatalities. They were shot by National Guardsmen who repulsed three attacks by a mob attempting to lynch a Negro accused of attacking a white girl. Eighteen others were wounded.

Formation of a vigilante committee to aid in maintaining order was proposed during the day in a mass-meeting of business men. The meeting also considered means of housing county officers left without headquarters when the mob set fire to the $150,000 courthouse.

"Moonshine" Blamed.

Blaming "moonshine" corn liquor for the disorder, Deputy Sheriff John E. Gant said: "If there hadn't been any drinking, there wouldn't have been any trouble at all."

Funeral services were held today for Edwards. Relatives said he was a bystander and an innocent victim of gunfire from the hard-pressed militiamen. He is survived by his widow and three children.

A physician said he pronounced the other man dead when he was brought to the Shelbyville hospital. The doctor turned to treat other wounded and the body disappeared before it was identified. He believed it was taken by relatives.

Self-Defense Claimed.

Lieutenant Colonel John R. Stark, commanding officer of the troops said "every shot fired by guardsmen was fired in self-defense. When members of the mob entered the courthouse and began firing on the boys, I then gave orders to return the fire—with riot guns and low."

After the shooting, Circuit Judge T. L. Coleman declared a mistrial in Harris' case. A jury had been selected and attorneys were ready to begin presenting testimony. Court was adjourned until January 21.

Militiamen disguised the Negro prisoner in a soldier's uniform and spirited him to Nashville, then withdrew hurriedly in hope of averting further trouble.

Hampered Firemen.

The mob continued rioting and made a huge bonfire of four trucks left by the soldiers. Then they set the courthouse afire and hampered firemen until it was destroyed. A Negro hotel also was fired.

Scattered shots were heard during the night from roving groups of rioters. Some threatened to lynch Sheriff Gant, who left town and later was reported in Nashville. Negroes, afraid for their lives, hid during the night.

Mobsmen failed to carry out reported threats to dynamite the county jail and the city water works before dawn. Both points were guarded today by troop details.

Reinforcements Sent in.

The National Guardsmen, ordered back into town in greater numbers late last night by Governor Hill McAlister, began arriving shortly before 8 A. M. today. Business leaders asked the troops to remain for "a few days" as a precautionary measure.

Judge Coleman, at his home in Lewisburg, said he planned to confer later with authorities regarding possible prosecution of mob leaders. He said he believed a change of venue, when Harris is brought to trial again, will prevent future lynching attempts.

TROOPS KILL THREE TO SAVE PRISONER FROM LYNCH MOB

Tennessee National Guardsmen, pictured above, killed three and wounded 18 members of a mob that stormed the Shelbyville Courthouse in a vain attempt to lynch a Negro accused of attacking a young girl. The prisoner, E. K. Harris, 22, is shown with part of the escort that spirited him to safety. A few hours later the mob burned the Courthouse.

Lynchings – 1935
Prevented. 6

Texas.

5144

NEW YORK SUN

MAR 1 1935

A NEAR LYNCHING

Negro Saved From Texas Mob by Marshal.

LINDEN, Tex., March 1 (A. P.).—Blackie Jackson, twenty-one-year-old Negro, was held in an unnamed east Texas jail today after he had been accused of an attempted criminal attack on a nineteen-year-old Atlanta, Tex., high school girl.

Saved from the hands of a mob late yesterday, Jackson was brought here from Atlanta and then later transferred to another jail after Sheriff Quilla Hardagree was informed a mob had gathered at Atlanta.

The Negro was arrested by City Marshal Homer Carter shortly after the alleged attempt. Carter took the Negro to the girl's home for identification and there encountered a crowd of fifty men—friends and relatives of the girl—who demanded custody of the Negro.

Carter, keeping the windows of his automobile up and the doors locked, managed to elude the crowd and rushed his prisoner to Linden.

The girl told officers the Negro choked her and that her fifteen-year-old sister grabbed a rock and beat off her attacker.

A crowd of about 150 men gathered at an Atlanta drug store later in the night and threats of mob action were heard. The gathering finally dispersed.

NEGRO FARM HAND RESCUED FROM MOB

DALLAS, Texas, May 18.—(AP)—A negro farm hand was rescued from an angry mob of 40 white men on the public square at Richardson today and rushed to the Dallas county jail.

The negro, Allen Samuel, 32, was reported by Justice of the Peace V. S. Blewett to have engaged in a fist fight with Jack Holland and later to have attacked W. T. Jones. The negro was badly cut and battered when the justice of the peace rescued him. He was charged with assault to murder both Jones and Holland.

Negro Rescued From Texas Mob By Judge

DALLAS, TEXAS, May 18.—(AP)—A negro farm hand was rescued from an angry mob of 40 white men on the public square at Richardson today and rushed to the Dallas county jail.

The negro, Allen Samuel, 32, was reported by Justice of the Peace V. S. Blewett to have engaged in a fist fight with Jack Holland and later to have attacked W. T. Jones.

Justice Of The Peace Averts Texas Lynching

DALLAS, Tex.—A Negro farm hand was saved from a lynch-crazed mob [illegible] by angry whites on the Richardson public square, and rushed to the Dallas County jail, here Saturday.

Allen Samuel, 32, the prisoner, is alleged to have been in an altercation with Jack Holland, and later, to have engaged in a brawl with W. T. Jones, according to Justice of the Peace V. S. Blewett.

Blewett further stated that a part of the crowd took two knives from the Negro and started to bruise him, cutting him and inflicting multiple contusions, lacerations and minor bruises, before he was saved.

Negro Is Rescued From Texas Mob

DALLAS, TEXAS, May 2.—(AP)—Alex Bridgewater, negro ex-convict, was rescued from a mob near here today by officers, and rushed to Dallas.

The negro, who assertedly had attacked a white woman, was shot in the shoulder before Bob Atwell, a city marshal, could get him out of Wilmer, a Dallas County town, where a mob of white men gathered.

Atwell, a brother of U. S. Dist. Judge William H. Atwell, arrested the negro shortly after the alleged attack and sought to secrete him in an office at Wilmer.

The mob gathered quickly, however, and the negro was shot before the officer could move him to another location.

Atwell telephoned the Dallas sheriff's office for aid and all available deputies were dispatched to the scene.

Bridgewater was taken to a hospital here and placed under guard.

Texas Mob Attempts To Lynch Negro Prisoner

DALLAS, Tex.—Alex Bridgewater, who allegedly had attacked a white woman, was rescued from a mob near here Tuesday by City Marshal Bob Atwell and rushed out of town for safekeeping. Bridgewater received gunshot wounds of the shoulder before his rescue from the lynch-bent mob.

TEXAS NEGROS ADMIT KILLING WOMAN

COLUMBUS, Texas, Oct. 22.—(AP) Sheriff Frank Hoegmeyer said today two negroes confessed to him that they criminally attacked and killed Miss Geraldine Kollman, 19, whose body was found in a creek [illegible]day. At first it was [illegible]ed she had drowned.

Sheriff Hoegmeyer said the negroes, Bennie Mitchell, 19, and Ernest Collins, 18, made a full confession to the attack [illegible]ying Sunday night. They were rushed to the Harris county jail at Houston after being charged with criminal attack and murder.

Lynchings- 1935
Prevented

Virginia

5143

Charlottesville, Va. Progress
May 15, 1935

A Lynching is Averted

The humiliation which most Virginians undoubtedly felt when they read that an attempt had been made to lynch John Shell and Joe Jackson, the colored men convicted of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Coleman of Spotsylvania, will be considerably lessened by pride in the achievement of State police in saving their prisoners from the mob.

The crime for which Shell and Jackson were indicted was so revolting brutal that the attempt on their lives was not altogether surprising. The authorities, realizing the anger of the crowd might become uncontrollable, had wisely asked for additional police protection and Gov. Peery had promptly provided it. There is a lesson here for the authorities of many states. Generally lynchings can be prevented if the officers of the government act with common sense, foresight and devotion to their sworn duty.

Incidentally, Virginia's record in lynchings, while shameful enough, is far cleaner than that of any other Southern State, save North Carolina. Georgia and Mississippi have each had more than five times as many lynchings as Virginia. Alabama Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana and Texas have each had more than three times as many as the Old Dominion. Of the 3,600 persons lynched in the United States since 1885, 80 were put to death in this State.

We believe that the primitive and cruel practice is almost at an end in Virginia, if, indeed, we ever have another case of mob murder. Our State anti-lynching law is well drawn. Our judges see that protection for prisoners is always provided—as in the trial of the persons accused of killing the children at Roanoke. The whole weight of the State government is behind the effort to stamp out the evil.

Lynchings-1935

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Alabama.

5146

Militant Pastor Forces Apology From Newspaper

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 1—The reactionary Birmingham News was forced to apologize for a two-inch streamer headline reading, "Negroes Slug Man, Attack Girl," when a vigorous protest was sent the paper by Rev. Stewart Meacham, white pastor of the Dixon Memorial church here.

Meacham attacked the sensational handling of an incident which occurred hundreds of miles away. The charge of rape, he pointed out, was supported only by the testimony of a middle-aged man and a girl who were found alone in a secluded spot known for "petting parties." The two claimed to have been "in conversation" when "robbed and assaulted."

"It is on this type of evidence that you, by inference, slander a fine and noble race of people," Rev. Meacham wrote. "On this type of evidence you feel perfectly free to raise the cry of 'Negro rapist' in our own troubled community.

"The lynch mobs that you so piously decry in your editorials do not bear alone the guilt of mob murder. Every force and instrument that works toward the creation of the lynch mind must share in the guilt."

Commenting on Rev. Meacham's letter, the News was forced to admit the lynch-incitement of the handling of the article but put the blame for "the unfortunate occurrence" on "an error in judgment on the part of one of its news editors."

Scottsboro Case Back in Jackson

New Grand Jury Will Take Up Famous Affair Today

SCOTTSBORO, Ala., Nov. 12. (AP) From its starting point nearly five years ago, "the Scottsboro case" tonight had been moved back to Jackson county where a new grand jury tomorrow will again investigate the alleged mass attacks on two white women March 25, 1931.

The venier of 36 from which the 18-man grand jury will be selected contained the names of two Negroes, the first to be called in Jackson circuit for many years, but whether they will serve was not known.

Lt. Gov. Thomas E. Knight, Jr., special prosecutor retained by the state, said he would call as many witnesses as necessary, and would ask that true bills be returned against the nine Negro defendants charging them with attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates.

Negro to Be Tried On Assault Charge

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 11 (AP)—Lonnie Pickett, Negro prisoner, who was placed in the Chatham county jail for safe keeping about four months ago following a riot scare at Blackshear, is expected to go on trial in Blackshear today. Pickett is charged with assaulting a white woman.

James N. Rahal, Savannah attorney, is representing the Negro. Mr. Rahal said today that he would leave for Blackshear early in the morning. The local attorney plans to ask for a change of venue for his client.

Lynchings - 1935

Rape; Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Alabama.

5147

ATTACKER HUNTED

Southside Girl Breaks Away From Grasp Of Negro

Police Wednesday were searching for a Negro who was reported to have attempted to attack Mary Lou Craft, 17, 1625 Twelfth Avenue, South, on South Seventeenth Street between Fifth and Sixth Alleys, Tuesday night.

The girl, who was taken to Hillman Hospital by Officers Thompson and Collier, after she had broken away from the Negro and fled to Eighteenth Street, was treated for an abrasion of the knee. She told officers the Negro knocked her down.

The Negro, the girl said, came up behind her as she was on her way home and seized her. After a struggle, she said, she succeeded in breaking away and screamed. The assailant fled.

The Negro wore a gray hat, overcoat and suit.

ACCUSE PAIR OF ATTACKS

Two Held Without Bond on Complaints of Girls

FLORENCE, Ala., July 22.—Hale Whitten, 25, and Hargrove Mocre, 23, of Florence, were ordered held without bond today on charges of criminally assaulting two young Florence girls at a roadhouse cabin 10 miles north of the city Saturday night. The warrants were sworn out by R. L. Bryant, father of one of the girls.

Squires J. A. Dowdy and A. S. Goard conducted the preliminary hearing, during which Miss Bryant hurled epithets from the witness stand at the youths, who entered pleas of not guilty, although not represented by counsel.

TIMELY ARRIVAL OF OFFICERS SAVES NEGRO FROM CLUTCHES OF HUNGRY ALABAMA MOBBISTS

ALL NEGROES RESEMBLING ALLEGED ATTACKER ARE JAILED FOR SAFE-KEEPING

Accused Of Attacking Miner's Wife

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 7.—(ANP)—Only the timely arrival of deputies sheriff saved C. C. Sanderson from lynching at the hands of an angry mob which had gathered near the Bradford mines of the Alabama By-Products company for the purpose of avenging an alleged attack on Dora Cosby, 33-year-old white woman.

The Cosby woman claimed that her home had been invaded by a colored miner shortly after her husband had gone to work at six o'clock in the morning, and that the intruder had assaulted her while a confederate maintained a lookout at an outside window. After the attack, she charged, her assailant slashed her wrist with a razor.

She claimed that a "tall, mulatto Negro with a mustache," was the criminal.

The report of the attack spread quickly and, before all the "tall, mulatto Negroes with mustaches" knew that they were being sought, the mob was seizing all the "tall, mulatto Negroes with mustaches" it could lay hands on.

The mob consisted of young men, old men, a few women, and small children. It was armed with shotguns, pistols, clubs and brickbats.

One of the first men to be seized was Sanderson. He pleaded his innocence, but to no avail. He was beaten and kicked in an effort to make him tell who his alleged accomplice was.

Two officials of the company for whom he worked, addressed the mobbists and sought to show them that Sanderson could not be guilty of the crime. But the mob would not release him. While these officials talked, some deputies arrived and they were convinced of Sanderson's innocence.

They forced the mob to give him up because he was innocent.

After what had happened to Sanderson, the deputies realized the jeopardy of "tall, mulatto Negroes with mustaches," so they quickly rounded up all those they could find and placed them under technical arrest for safekeeping.

Among those brought to Birmingham to be out of harm's way were: Luke Edwards, Earl Adams, Henry Sheldon and Gus Boudon.

Colored residents of the Bradford mining area scouted the attack charge.

They said it looked to them like Cosby had given his wife another whipping before going to work and that she had attempted to commit suicide with the razor. The razor which she had said was used was found in the home and it belonged to her husband. No other fingerprints were found on it.

Negro Jailed At Geneva For Attempted Attack

GENEVA, Ala., April 9—(AP)—A negro booked as Richard Johnson, 24, today was held in the Geneva County jail on charges of attempting to attack a young white woman on a farm eight miles from Malvern late yesterday.

The young woman, Miss Gertrude Box, fled to the house, she told officers, when the negro attempted to grab her near the barn. Her screams brought other members of the family, and the negro fled.

The negro was taken into custody two hours later by deputies sheriff, without offering resistance.

Officers said the negro had been employed about the farm, and was working near the house, while others were in the fields.

Negro Tries To Attack Girl In Butler County

M'KENZIE, ALA., July 5.—(AP)—A negro who attempted to attack an 18-year-old McKenzie girl at a swimming party near here was sought today by officers of Butler and adjoining counties.

Officers said the case was the most brazen of its kind reported in South Alabama.

The negro, officers said, attacked the girl in the presence of her mother and other women in a party as they were leaving a swimming hole near her home. He dragged the girl into a nearby thicket, tore away part of her bathing suit, and fled only when the other women flew upon him, screaming, and fought him off.

Negro Unionist Is Railroaded; Faces 20 Years on Chain Gang

BESSEMER, Ala., June 21.—Flagrantly disregarding the constitutional rights of the accused, Bessemer County officials succeeded in rushing through the frame-up case against Walter Brown, Negro worker and union member, charged with "attempting to rape" a white woman.

Because C. B. Powell, the attorney hired by the International Labor Defense to defend Brown, was ill and unable to be in court on Monday morning, a rapid session was held, with the defendant given no counsel whatsoever. The lily white jury was out but t few minutes, after which they returned the verdict of guilty. Brown is scheduled to be sentenced today. He faces a twenty-year term on the chain gang.

Powell had both telephoned and sent a letter to the Bessemer officials, asking for a postponement of the case for two days.

Move to Set Aside Verdict

The I. L. D., through Attorney Powell, has announced that it will move to set aside the verdict of the jury on the ground that the requested adjournment should have been granted; that in any case other defense counsel should have been provided and failure to provide such counsel is a violation of the ruling in the first reversal of the Scottsboro case in the United States Supreme Court; and that the indictment under which Brown was convicted was invalid because it was returned by a Grand Jury in Jefferson County from which Negroes are systematically excluded.

Brown was indicted upon two counts: the "attack" charge against the woman, Lucile Bailey, and another charge of "attempt to murder" her escort. For the first charge he was held under $10,000 bond, for the second, $5,000.

Both the Bailey woman and her escort appeared in the court to testify against Brown. The woman said she "recognized him by his voice." Her escort, Gavin Howton, however, admitted that he could not be sure Brown "was the man."

Jailed Six Weeks Ago

Brown was arrested six weeks ago on a Sunday morning by Bessemer cops and company thugs, who invaded his house, saying they were looking for a "tall yellow man in a brown suit." Although Brown did not even answer to the description, they seized him without explanation, carried him to jail and tried to get him to "confess" to the "attack" charge.

Brown had witnesses to prove his whereabouts. He was at a neighbor's house until about 2 o'clock of the morning in question, and friends escorted him home. The stories told by the Bailey woman and Howton contained several discrepancies as to the time and place of the "attack."

The I. L. D. urges all workers to help smash this latest Scottsboro frame-up in Alabama. Protests should be rushed at once to Judge Gardner Goodwyn, Bessemer County Court House, Bessemer, Ala.

2 Barbour Negroes Held For Attack

EUFAULA, ALA., July 16.—(Special)—Two negroes of this city, Charlie Shorter and John Hall, are being held in Clayton jail in connection with the assault of a 50-year-old white woman on Dale Road early Sunday morning. The negroes were arrested on suspicion Sunday afternoon by Sheriff Pitt Williams.

According to the woman, who is in feeble health and who resides with her paralyzed brother, a barefooted negro came through the window of her bedroom early Sunday morning and when she awoke, dared her to scream. She fainted and when she recovered from the attack the negro was gone and she telephoned the police. The report stated the negro had gone into the hall, turned out the light and shut the door. The woman's brother lay sleeping across the hall.

She gave a partial description of the negro and the arrest of Charlie Shorter, a negro who resided in the southside community, and also John Hall, another negro, followed. Footprints and fingerprints of the assailant were found.

Shortly before the alleged crime was committed, police were called to the home of Allen Coats, white man residing also on Dale Road, where it was reported a negro had attempted to gain entrance. There a negro tore open the screen at the window and when he attempted to enter, a white woman, Mrs. Victoria Grace, of Bonifay, Fla., visiting there, scuffled with the negro, tearing his shirt and screaming. The negro ran.

The news of the attack did not spread here until after the negroes under suspicion had been rushed to the Clayton Jail.

Three Elmore Youths Charged With Attempted Assault On Girl Of 14

Thumbing a ride while walking toward their home on the Lower Wetumpka Road yesterday afternoon brought a frightful experience to a 14-year-old girl and her 10-year-old brother and resulted in the subsequent arrest of three Elmore County youths on charges of attempting criminal assault.

The three youths, seized in West Boylston by Sheriff's Deputies Hayden Sellers and G. A. Mosely, gave their names as Woodrow Picquette, 19, Kenneth Picquette, 23, and Louis Roy Jones, 19. No charge was placed against a fourth man found in their company, described by the officers as having "passed out" from drunkenness.

Early yesterday afternoon the girl and her brother, in response to their "thumbing" for a ride, were given transportation in an automobile occupied by four men. As the car traveled toward Boylston one or more of the men allegedly attempted to molest the girl while her brother was held helpless in the machine.

On a side road near Boylston, the car was driven into a corn field. There, according to the story, an attempt was made to assault the girl. It was reported to have failed, however, because of the girl's struggles and due to the arrival of a railroad worker who ordered them away.

A few minutes afterward, in fleeing from the spot, the car rounded a curve in the highway at too great a speed and overturned. The girl and her brother escaped injury but three of the four men were said to have been bruised, one of them severely.

The youth and his sister fled to their home and reported the occurrence. Deputies Sellers and Mosely went to the scene and later arrested the men at West Boylston.

Deputy Mosley said that a "couple of them admitted the attempted assault." The fourth, he added, was far too drunk to know what had happened.

Night Warden Ray Guice said last night that all four appeared to have been well under the influence of liquor.

Later, the deputies were told by residents of the Chisholm section that they had seen a girl struggling with a man as their car passed along the Lower Wetumpka Road.

Florence Negro Held For Attempted Attack

FLORENCE, ALA., Aug. 14.—(AP)—James Reynolds, negro employe of a barbershop here, was being held in city jail today pending an investigation of an alleged attempted attack on a 9-year-old girl.

The girl's father, Mr. Darby, fired four times at Reynolds after the incident, but all shots were wild. The negro told officers several girls had been creating a disturbance near the barber shop, and he attempted to frighten them away.

FORCE APOLOGY FROM ANTI-NEGRO "BIRMINGHAM NEWS"

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.-(CNA)- The reactionary Birmingham News was forced to apologize for a two-inch streamer headline reading "Negroes Slug Man, Attack Girl" when a vigorous protest was sent the paper by Rev. Stewart Meacham, white pastor of the Dixon Memorial Church here.

Meacham attacked the sensational handling of an incident which occurred hundreds of miles away. The charge of rape, he pointed out, was supported only by the testimony of a middle-aged man and a girl who were found alone in a secluded spot known for "petting parties." The two claimed to have been "in conversation" when "robbed and assaulted."

"It is on this type of evidence that you, by inference, slander a fine and noble race of people," Rev. Meacham wrote. "On this type of evidence you feel perfectly free to raise the cry of 'Negro rapist' in our own troubled community.

"The lynch mobs that you so piously decry in your editorials do not bear alone the guilt of mob murder. Every force and instrument that works toward the creation of the lynch mind must share in the guilt."

Commenting on Rev. Meacham's letter, the News was forced to admit the lynch-incitement of the handling of the article but put the blame for "the unfortunate occurrence" on "an error in judgment on the part of one of its news editors."

Lynchings—1935

Arkansas.

Rape; Alleged Attacks by Negroes—

5148

ATTACKERS ARE IDENTIFIED

Girl, Companion Point to Negro Pair at Blytheville

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., April 9.—A 19-year-old girl in circuit court today identified two defendants "Bubbles" Clayton and Jim X Cruthers, as the negroes who assaulted her in an automobile on the night of Dec. 21, near Blytheville.

She said that the negroes held a gun on her companion, Wiley Bryant, farm youth, while the assault took place. Bryant also identified the negroes.

The negroes were well guardod as the trial started today and Judge Killough warned that no demonstration would be tolerated.

Another Scottsboro Case Is Unearthed In Arkansas

The Savannah Tribune

Charge of Rape Is Trumped Up Against Two Negro Youths

1-26-35 Savannah, Ga.

WHO WERE THEN RAILROADED IN A QUICK TRIAL

No Lawyer in Town of the Alleged Crime Would Defend the Boys

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 23 ANP—Only an appeal to the Arkansas Supreme Court saved the railroading of two youths to death this week, when Attorneys John A. Hibbler and John R. Thompson, prominent lawyers here filed a supplemental brief with the court in the case of Jim Caruthers and Bubbles Clayton. Both had been convicted of the charge of rape in the circuit court at Blytheville, Ark.

Little or nothing was known of the charge outside of Blytheville until after the boys had been convicted. Although conviction was procured in the usual lynch atmosphere the Little Rock dailies, leading papers in the state, contrary to custom, carried only a small item inconspicuously placed on the inside of their sheets. White friends of the boys made the first efforts in their behalf and brought the matter to the attention of the Little Rock branch of the N. A. A. C. P. The local branch dispatched a representaative to the scene of the trial and alleged crime. His report indicated that Arkansas had another Scottsboro tragedy on its hands and the local branch launched an effort to appeal to the Supreme Court from the verdict of the lower court.

It appears that, over a period of several months, beginning last October many burglaries, holdups and less serious crimes were committed in Mississippi county with the law enforcement officers apparently impotent. The climax in the reign of felonies and misdemeanors was reached the night of January 12, when some miscreant shot from ambush and slightly wounded the sheriff who was on the lookkout for thieves who had been pilfering articles from autos parked near the Golf Links two miles from the city. Immediately the usual police dragnet was thrown out. Jim Caruthers and Bubbles Clayton, both 19 years of age, and previously charged with minor offenses, were arrested as suspects.

The accused were subjected to the application of the "third degree" in most brutal severity as the boys' clothing, now in possession of their parents, indicates. This inhuman treatment lasted for three or four days. When the officers, despaired of wringing a confession from the boys, one of their number informed the boys that a white woman would be brought in to identify them.

In the meantime the usual lynch propaganda was launched. Rumors were circulated that these two men who had intruded upon roadside illicit love episodes and forced their attention on the women involved. Realizing that a lynching was imminent the officers carried the suspects to Osceola 18 miles south of Blytheville.

However, the officers decided that the suspects were not safe from the vengeanee of the mob in that jail, therefore the boys were secreted in a corn field over night. The next night hotly pursued by the mob, they rushed to Memphis. From Memphis they were carried to the Tucker Prison Farm and incarcerated in the death house. Several days later the sheriff conducted to the prison a white woman and her escort who "identified" the boys as the two men who had assaulted her in the parked car. The usual indictment was quickly voted. All the local lawyers refused to defend the accused and openly declared that they would pay a fine of contempt of court rather than serve. The judge was forced to appoint a lawyer living in Jonesboro, sixty miles away. In spite of the situation the judge denied the motion for a change of venue made by the court-appointed defense attorney.

On the stand the prosecuting witness recited an improbable story. She testified that she and her male companion were seated in an auto parked by the roadside at 8 or 9 o'clock at night; that the two Negroes passed them, retraced their steps, covered thm with a revolver and forced them to get out of the car. She further stated that at the point of the pistol the man was forced to lie down in the ditch by the roadside and she was forced back into the car; that while one man held the gun on her companion, the other raped her; and that the men then changed places and she was raped a second time.

The most interesting part of the prosecuting witness' testimony was that in connection with the matter of her identification of the men, she testified that both wore handkerchief masks and yet she was able, after an interim of six weeks to identify them.

Negroes' Death Verdict Upheld In Arkansas 'Rape' Frame-up

Courier

Not One Shred of 'Evidence' Proved—Case Is Spearhead of Attack on Southern Tenant Farmers Union—Aid Is Needed in Defense

By REX PITKIN
(Special to the Daily Worker)

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 24.—Bubbles Clayton and Jim Caruthers, two young Negro cotton pickers, happened to incur the dislike of a white planter in the electric chair. The Supreme Court of Arkansas has ruled this week.

They stand convicted of rape because this is the one way that remains for the planters to terrorize the share-croppers, both black and white, who are banding together in the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union. This union is in the heart of Arkansas and the plantation owners have used every known tactic to smash the union before it failed. They are more than ever because a month ago the union led a strike which doubled the wages of the day laborers. A year ago there was little or no organization here; today ninety per cent of the croppers and workers are members of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union. A year ago not a single copy of the Daily Worker was sold in Blytheville; today workers and farmers buy a hundred copies a week.

Thus it is that Clayton and Caruthers are incarcerated in the Tucker Farm penitentiary waiting to drag their weary feet along the sheriff and for that crime will last mile to death.

Boys Were Tortured

Their story begins one night last January when someone shot and slightly wounded Sheriff Wilson. He could not be released—"the nigger's gotta be kept in his place." Besides, Wilson was angry at the boys.

"Rape" Frame-up

And so Clayton and Caruthers were thrown into a cell with third Negro. But a few days later the third prisoner was told to himself with a blanket so as to

Evidence Lacking

Mrs. Terry said the two Negroes accompanied another man and woman, both white, from the boys. They said Caruthers raped her on Dec. 21 near a cemetery in Blytheville . . . but the boys that night were at 100 Mathew Street playing cards with four other Negroes.

Lynch hysteria pervaded the town; the only witness found guilty. The white woman, Mrs. Vergie Terry, 19, who is separated from her husband and is known to be keeping company with other men. The white man who was with her that night did not see the crime. He said he was thrown in a ditch. Vergie Terry told the court that the two assailing Negroes wore masks and overalls. But masks were not produced in court that they ever have been worn by Clayton or Caruthers. Clayton has never been known to wear overalls and doesn't wear a cap.

Evidence Lacking

Mrs. Terry said the two Negroes told her to keep quiet for five minutes while they caught a freight out of town, yet the boys proved they were in Blytheville for three weeks after the alleged "crime."

No medical evidence that Mrs. Terry was attacked was introduced. Terry did not complain of the attack to Willie Bryant, the man who was with her all evening. The court received no evidence of emotional or mental disturbance, no evidence of physical lacerations or injury to her clothes, no evidence of stains on her dress or slip or on the upholstery of the car. Two cars passed while the alleged rape was being perpetrated, it was admitted by both Mrs. Terry and Bryant, yet they did not cry out for help.

Clayton and Caruthers were arrested for the crime of shooting Wilson but by some strange twist of Arkansas justice they were charged with rape, a wholly unconnected crime. This, in itself, is illegal. Moreover, there were no Negroes on the jury and the judge's prejudice permitted the prosecution to attempt to link them with a score of robberies none of which was proved against them.

Another important fact discovered after the original trial but before the Supreme Court reviewed the case is this: the U. S. Weather Bureau reports show that for three days previous to the alleged "rape" it rained in Blytheville in sufficient amount so that the ditch, in which the two assailants were supposed to have pushed Bryant, would have been full of water. But Bryant never claimed that his clothes were soiled.

There is not a bit of evidence against these two innocent cotton pickers. Yet they will soon die unless their defense is broadened and the case is brought to the attention of great numbers of workers. A united front of the International Labor Defense, members of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People and Negro churches is carrying on the defense. All funds should be rushed to Box 1142, Little Rock, Ark.

Lynchings-1935

Rape; Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Arizona.

5149

ARIZONA NEGRO HELD FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

PHOENIX, Ariz., 26—(AP)—Dan Reed, 34-year-old [illegible] Hugo, Okla., was [illegible] to the county jail here today for safekeeping after his capture near Roll, Ariz., for an alleged attack on an 11-year-old white girl.

Sheriff T. H. Newman, Yuma, hurried [illegible] with the prisoner when feeling began to run high and a crowd gathered at the jail.

Lynchings- 1935

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

D.C.

5150

THREE FREED OF ATTACK CHARGE ON WHITE WOMAN

Girl Peddling Razor Blades Claims Men Criminally Assaulted Her

2-16-35

The United States government will not prosecute charges of rape of a white woman placed against three men of the District.

The rape case against Norman Peoples and John Swan of 1680 Eleventh Street, Northwest, and Benjamin Clark, 1023 Ninth Street, Northwest, was nolle prossed at request of a United States attorney in Justice Oscar R. Luhring's court ,Monday.

Norman Peoples ,who was represented by white counsel, was allowed to plead guilty to simple assault upon Nellie Conway, white. Swan and Clark were represented by the law firm of Morris and Sanders.

Testimony was brought out that the Conway woman went to the house of Swan on Eleventh Street, accompanied with two men who escaped soon after the alleged rape took place on December 3.

The woman who told police that she was from South Carolina, is alleged to have been a distributor of razor blades and went into the house where she was allegedly criminally assaulted by two men. The woman was taken to Gallinger Hospital. Within an hour after the occurrence took place, police arrested Peoples and Swan. Clark was arrested some days later.

Greensboro, N. C., News

June 27, 1935

ANOTHER EXHIBIT.

While the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill, filibustered to death by a group of chivalrous southrons in the senate, accumulates dust in some Washington pigeon-hole, Mississippi comes forward with an exhibit, done in the leisurely sort of way which one would expect to characterize mid-summer amusements in Dixie, for inclusion in the records.

Friday night a negro who was charged with attacking a white girl, not criminally it was subsequently established, was seized by a mob, taken from his home around 11 o'clock. Subsequently brought before his alleged victim, he was identified, the press reports have it, by "his clothing," which, as the Daily News sees it, is about as unsatisfactory means, standing alone, of identification as any one could wish. Later he was reported to have confessed, although there must be the realization that a confession obtained under the duress which the mob applied would hardly stand up in any competent court of justice. But these details are merely incidental; it is the time element which holds the place of primacy.

The negro was kept all Friday night, carried from his home to the victim's home and then back to the woods in the meantime. The following morning he was transported to town, strung up and made a target for mobsters' bullets. During all this demonstration, the peregrinations about the countryside and the 10 hours or more for which the mob scene held forth, no officer knew anything about it and identity of the mobsters themselves remained the usual deep, dark secret. A coroner's jury met immediately after the negro's bullet riddled body was cut down and returned the wonted verdict that the lynchee met his death at the hands of unknown parties.

If that is an argument for the preservation of state sovereignty, somebody about the congressional premises has an outlook that is highly imaginative.

Lynchings-1935

Georgia

Rape; Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

5151

Negro Is Arrested On Assault Charge

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Jan. 7 (AP)—Wilbur Murry, 35-year-old Negro was held in the Chattooga county jail today charged with criminal assault upon a young white woman near her home at Berrytown yesterday afternoon. The young woman came to Summerville and swore out a warrant for the Negro. Deputy Sheriff J. W. Alexander went to Berryton and brought the man to the county jail here.

NEGRO HELD IN JAIL CHARGED WITH ATTACK

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP) Wilber Murry, 35-year-old negro, was held in the Chattooga county jail today charged with criminal assault upon a young white woman near her home at Berryton yesterday afternoon.

The young woman came to Summerville and swore out a warrant for the negro. Deputy Sheriff J. W. Alexander went to Berryton and brought the man to the county jail here.

WOMAN PREVENTS ATTACK BY NEGRO

Wife of Grady County Farmer Seizes Shot Gun and Holds Man for Sheriff

CAIRO, Ga., June 24.—An attempted criminal assault by a Negro upon the wife of a prominent Grady county farmer, residing near Cairo, and how the woman warded off the attempt and held her would-be assailant at bay until Sheriff E. O. Alligood arrived, was revealed late today by the officer who confirmed rumors that he was holding a 17-year-old Negro, giving the name of David Smith.

The alleged assault attempt was made late Sunday, but the news was suppressed by officers and members of the intended victim's family, who took precautions against possible mob violence. While there is no indication of any effort to do violence to the Negro, the sheriff declines to say whether his prisoner is in jail here or elsewhere. Alligood says the Negro has confessed fully to the assault attempt.

Employed on Farm

The Negro employed as a farm hand at the farm for about four months, had quarters in a small shack near the farm home. The woman told officers she was aroused from a late afternoon nap just in time to see the Negro enter her room unclothed. As he approached, she hurriedly seized a shotgun which was nearby and drove him out of the house. He then locked himself inside his shack.

Waiting for some opportunity to give an alarm, she kept close watch upon the shack, and threatened to shoot the Negro when he attempted to escape by way of a window.

A short time later, the woman says, she attracted passers-by on the road near the home and they promptly notified Sheriff Alligood, who experienced no difficulty in taking the Negro into custody.

Members of the woman's family returned later to find her little worse because of her fearful experience.

Sheriff Alligood says the Negro came here from Wetumpka, Ala., about four months ago. He will await the action of the grand jury at October superior court.

NEGRO HELD IN ATTACK PLACED IN FULTON JAIL

LEXINGTON, Ga., June 27.—(AP) A young negro suspected of severely beating Mrs. C. G. Goolsby, 74-year-old invalid, and her daughter, at their home in Madison county, was placed in the Fulton county jail today following threats of mob violence.

The mother and her daughter, Nettie, 49, were reported in serious condition at an Athens, hospital, with skull fractures, but physicians said neither had been attacked. Officers expressed the theory the case was inspired by a robbery motive.

A posse, including officers from Clarke, Madison and Oglethorpe counties, caught the negro while a large crowd gathered north of here yesterday and threatened violence for a time. Sheriff T. E. Watkins, of Oglethorpe county, named the suspect as Vennie Gains.

The two women had lived alone for years. The daughter also was an invalid.

Fulton county officers said the negro denied knowledge of the crime.

SECOND VICTIM OF ATTACK DIES

Mother and Daughter Succumb to Injuries Received in Home.

ATHENS, Ga., June 29.—(AP)—The second of two women who were severely beaten Wednesday morning by an intruder in their Madison county home was dead here today.

Miss Nettie Goolsby, 49, succumbed last night in a hospital to her injuries. Her mother, Mrs. C. G. Goolsby, a 74-year-old blind invalid, died earlier in the day. Both had fractured skulls.

A negro suspected of beating the women in what police said was a robbery attempt is in the Fulton county jail at Atlanta.

NEGRO CONVICTED IN ASSAULT CASE

Henry F. Barnes to Serve From One to Three Years for Attacking Negress

Harry F. Barnes, Negro, early last night was convicted of making a criminal assault on a young Negress by a superior court jury, which retired about mid-afternoon. The jury recommended mercy, and fixed his sentence at from one to three years. It would have been possible for the death sentence to have been imposed by the jury.

Barnes was represented by F. L. Clements, Grady Gillon and R. D. C. Campbell.

When the case was completed, trial of Elmer Balkcom, Negro, accused of assault with intent to murder, was begun, and evidence was being heard when court recessed for the day. Balkcom is represented by William M. West.

Wife Doesn't Prosecute

After the jury had been dismissed for the day, Judge W. A. McClellan received a plea of guilty in the case of Henry McCarthy, Negro, accused of assault with intent to murder his wife. Passing of sentence was delayed to give the Negro an opportunity to obtain $16.75 costs of forfeiting his bond when he failed to appear in court Monday morning.

Solicitor General Charles H. Garrett recommended that he be given a one-year term, and that the sentence be suspended. McCarthy's wife has declined to prosecute after making the original complaint, it developed.

Lynchings-1935

Illinois

5152

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

INNOCENT RAPIST GIVES THANKS HE WAS NOT IN DIXIE

White Woman Later Says Suspect Not Guilty

6-14-35

CHICAGO—(ANP)—"I'm sure glad I was not down south with all this mess happening," gloated 24-year-old Junius Weathers Thursday afternoon, being held in the county jail pending the clearing up of false charges against him which had caused him to be held to the grand jury under bonds of $20,000.

"My name would have been mud," continued Weathers, "if all this had happened down at my home in Alabama. I remember about eight years ago, me and a boy named Ollie Smith, were returning from a fishing trip near Brewton when a mob of whites seized Ollie and accused him of doing something to a white woman. He hadn't done a thing because we had 'been fishin' all the time the thing was supposed to have happened. But just the same, they took him, the white woman identified him, and we never heard of Ollie after that.

"They would-a got me, too, but I saw them coming and sort o'hung back and when I saw how they were talking to Ollie I sneaked out of the way. We lost all track of Ollie after we heard the white woman had identified him. I never expected that I would be in the same fix with Ollie, but I'm mighty happy that I got my bad break in Chicago rather than down home."

Weathers was arrested after Lear LaPorte, a young white woman, had complained that early on the morning of May 18, she and a white companion had been held up near the White Sox baseball park by a colored man. She and her companion asserted that this man had forced them into a small park where the white man was forced to lie on the ground, guarded by another colored man who showed up, while the first man raped the woman.

Armed with the description given by the LaPorte woman, the white police (who always get busy where a white woman is involved) began combing the district to find a man fitting the LaPorte description. Weathers was arrested. Taken before the LaPorte woman and her companion, Angelo Morris, Weathers was identified by both of them. Morris made his identification so emphatic that even the white police became suspicious, suspecting that the white man might be trying to cover up something.

Weathers, however, after a preliminary hearing, was bound over to the grand jury under the heavy bond.

Two days later, the white woman called upon Lt. John F. Scott, colored commander at the Stanton Avenue police station, to explain to him that she had been wrong, that Weathers was not the man and asking what she might do to get him out of the trouble he was in.

Lt. Scott advised her to go to the state's attorney, in whose custody Weathers is while awaiting action of the grand jury.

ATTACKER IS INDICTED IN SLAYING OF GIRL

PEORIA, Ill., June 25.—(AP)—Gerald Thompson, 25-year-old toolmaker, who police said confessed attacks on more than a score of Peoria women, was indicted late today by the county grand jury for the murder of Miss Mildred M. Hallmark, 19-year-old cafe hostess.

6-26-35

Thompson, who was moved from Peoria by authorities because of possible mob violence after his arrest, remained hidden in another city as the grand jurors were told of Miss Hallmark's death.

Atlanta Ga.

The indictment contained 19 counts charging Thompson with her murder, and with other acts of violence he allegedly committed before the girl's almost nude body was left in a cemetery

Lynchings - 1935

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Indiana

5153

CONFESSES TO BRUTAL ATTACK ON WHITE GIRL

Recorder

3-9-35

Indianapolis.

Indiana

BULLETIN

In one of the speediest trials in Marion county in many years, Benjamin Gray 45, who confessed to an atrocious attack upon Miss Lavinia Storey, 19-year-old white hospital secretary Wednesday night, was given sentences totalling forty-one years in the Indiana State prison on his plea of guilty and, under heavy guard, spirited away to Michigan City to serve his term.

Grey was sentenced on three charges by Frank P. Baker, judge of Criminal court.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Baker said:

"Among the most regrettable things in this case is the fact that we have in this city a wonderful colored citizenship. Your act, Grey, hangs a measure of disgrace on them. No one will approve your sentence more than this respectable colored representation of Indianapolis."

Miss Storey is still in a critical condition at the City hospital. In event of her death Grey will be returned to stand trial for murder, Judge Baker said.

The end of one of the most outrageous careers in atrocious crimes, involving rape, attacks and murder of women was precipitated Wednesday night with the arrest in Plainfield of Benjamin Grey alias Carson Noel, in for the rape and attempted murder of Miss Lavinia Storey, nineteen-year-old white girl.

As the young girl lay critically ill with ice-pick wounds in her face and head at the City hospital, detectives were busy securing calm, cold-face confessions from Grey, that he had attacked and murdered two colored women under circumstances similar to his latest crime. Authorities believe other hitherto unsolved murder mysteries will be cleared up during their far-flung investigations.

Assaulted, Stabbed

Miss Storey, office secretary at the Marion County Tuberculosis hospital where she lived, was attacked at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. W. Alford, 6325 Central avenue, early Wednesday night. After being assaulted by Grey, he stabbed her in the face and head several times with the ice pick. It broke off leaving the shaft in her jaw. Believing her dead, Grey carried her limp form to the basement of the Alford home, packed his grip and left to go to St. Louis.

Upon regaining consciousness some time later, the girl dragged herself to the home of a next door neighbor who rushed her to the hospital.

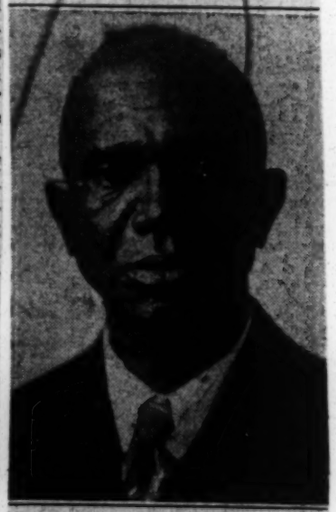
Though weakened from loss of blood and hardly able to speak because the ice pick had been jammed through her mouth, piercing the tongue and lower jaw, the girl revealed the identity of her attacker.

Taxi Driver Gives Clue

Every resource of the police department was used in the hunt for Grey, known here as Noel. The local officers learned from a taxi driver that he had driven a man answering Noel's description to Plainfield. Police there arrested him as he awaited a bus for St. Louis. He was immediately returned here under heavy guard.

Grey readily and calmly admitted the assault. In a signed statement to detectives he said he had formerly been employed at Aurora Ind., by James Story, father of Miss Story. He came here Feb. 16, he said, being employed as houseman at the Alford home.

At his request, he said, Miss Story came to the house, there being no one else at home. After a meal which he prepared, Grey said, he suddenly seized the girl and assaulted her. Fearing exposure, he used the ice pick ,he said, to kill her.



At police headquarters Grey said he served ten years of a life sentence for the murder of a colored woman, Daisy Williams, his common-law wife in Louisville, Ky., being paroled in 1930.

Murders Boy's Mother

Later he was identified by Thomas Irvin, 5837 North Pennsylvania street, as the man wanted in Graycy, Ky., for the murder of his mother, Mrs. Robnet Bowling, in January, 1932. Grey sai dhe killed her by hitting her over the head wit ha hammer.

He has one child, he said, his wife being dead. Police were amazed at the coolness with which Grey admitted his crimes. He changed his name after leaving Kentucky, he said. Mr. Alford said he was well satisfied with his services and he had impressed him as being highly intellectual and well educated. Detectives said he demonstrated at headquarters his ability to take shorthand with ease and rapidity.

Attacks Girl

BENJAMIN GREY
(Alias, Carson Noel)

Recorder

Above is shown Benjamin Grey, whose heinous attack upon a 19-year-old white girl jeopardized the safety of thousands of Indianapolis colored citizens, Wednesday.

Grey caught two hours after he had jabbed an ice pick four times into the face and head of the girl after she refused his advances, calmly admitted his crime and readily confessed to having murdered two colored women in Kentucky.

The rising tide of public indignation was prevented from reaching the point of violence by the action of authorities in bringing the maniac a speedy trial within seventeen hours and whisking him, under heavy guard, to Michigan City prison, 150 miles away, where he will serve a 41 year term.

Lynchings-1935.

Kentucky

5154

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Framed Negro Faces Death In Kentucky

Case Is Before Appeals Court—I. L. D. Urges Mass Pressure

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 24.—John "Pete" Montjoy will be hanged in Kenton County, Kentucky, another victim of Southern white ruling class justice, unless mass pressure is immediately exerted to force the Kentucky Court of Appeals to set aside the decision of Judge Johnst Northcutt of Kenton County Circuit Court, the International Labor Defense warned today.

Judge Nothcutt has refused to grant a new trial to the Covington Negro youth who was recently convicted by an all-white jury on a trumped-up charge of rape preferred by Mrs. Irene Cummings, a white woman. Mrs. Cummings' charge was unsubstantiated, and she was not even made to submit to a medical examination after the alleged act.

Despite the ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court in the Scottsboro Case that systematic exclusion of Negroes from southern juries is unconstitutional and illegal, Judge Northcutt asserted that no meritorious ground for a new trial existed.

"The Kentucky Court of Appeals should be immediately deluged with telegrams and letters protesting this attempted legal lynching," the I. L. D. urged. Protests should be addressed to Judge Rogers Clay, Court of Appeals, Frankfort, Kentucky.

GIRLS KIDNAPED, SISTER REPORTS

Child Tells Mother Three Negroes Carried Off Pair in 'Big Black Sedan'

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Charles North reported to police that three Negroes kidnaped two of her daughters, Catherine, 13, and Mildred, 10, tonight as they were coming home from a trip to a nearby grocery store.

Ann North, eight, who was accompanying her sisters, told her mother she got away when two of the Negroes got out of "a big black sedan" and seized the two older girls. She said the car headed from Southlawn subdivision, where the reported kidnaping took place, toward downtown Louisville.

The girls' father and mother are estranged, and North was not immediately located after the kidnaping report was received. He lives in the downtown section.

Ann told her mother the third Negro, driver of the car, waited at the wheel while his two companions seized Mildred and Catherine. She ran home at once, carrying a broom the youngsters had purchased at the store.

Department of justice agents were notified immediately and descriptions of the missing girls were radiocast to police in this vicinity.

Catherine was described as four feet tall, weighing 85 pounds, wearing a blue dress and having brown hair and blue eyes.

Mildred is three feet six inches tall, blue eyes, brown hair and was wearing a red-checked dress.

Two Girls Admit Story Is Untrue

Kidnaping Tale Used to Hide Misuse of Dollar

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 29. (AP)—Under police questioning, Catherine North, 13, and her sister Mildred, 10, admitted early today that their story of having been kidnaped by three Negroes was untrue.

Their sister, Adeline, 8, started a wide-spread police hunt last night when she tearfully reported to her mother that the two girls had been seized and carried away by Negroes in an automobile. The three sisters had been given a dollar and sent to a grocery to buy a broom.

Mildred and Catherine, after an hour and a half of coaxing by county patrolmen, said they had spent the money and gone to a park to spend the night. They came home when it got cold, while his two companions seized Mildred and Catherine. She ran home at once, carrying a broom the youngsters had purchased at the store.

Department of Justice agents were notified immediately and descriptions of the missing girls were radiocast to police in this vicinity.

Catherine was described as four feet tall, weighing 85 pounds, wearing a blue dress and having brown hair and blue eyes.

Mildred is three feet, six inches tall, blue eyes, brown hair, and was wearing a red checked dress.

'Kidnaped' Girls Back At Home, Admitting Hoax

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 29.—(AP)—Back at their mother's home, Catherine North, 13, and her sister, Mildred, 10, said today they were "sorry" they had precipitated a six-hour hunt for them last night by their kidnaping tale.

Ninety minutes of questioning at county police headquarters early today unfolded the story that the girls spent 25 cents of $1 given them by their mother, Mrs. Charles D. North, to buy a broom, and then persuaded a younger sister, Adeline, 8, to tell they had been kidnaped by three negroes in an automobile.

The girls related that after Adeline ran home they went to Iroquois Park where they stayed on a bench until they became chilled and decided to return home shortly before 1 a.m.

The story caused a countywide search by city and county police and Department of Justice agents.

The girls' mother does house work. The father is on relief.

Although rueful, Catherine still was inclined to talk romantically of the adventure.

"Where were you last night?" she was asked.

"Some old men got me and took me out in the woods," was the prompt reply.

"Now, Catherine, tell the truth," she was urged.

"Well, we just spent the money and then I went to the park with Mildred," she said, "but I'm not going to do it any more. I had a dream the other night that somebody got me, and I guess that's the reason I told the story."

3 Negroes Kidnap 2 Louisville Girls

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 28—(AP)—Mrs. Charles North reported to police that three negroes kidnaped two of her daughters, Catherine, 13, and Mildred, 10, tonight as they were coming home from a trip to a nearby grocery store.

Ann North, 8, who was accompanying her sisters, told her mother she got away when two of the negroes got out of "a big black sedan" and seized the two older girls. She said the car headed from Southlawn subdivision, where the reported kidnaping took place, toward downtown Louisville.

The girls' father and mother are estranged, and North was not immediately located after the kidnaping report was received. He lives in the downtown section.

Ann told her mother the third negro, driver of the car, waited at the wheel

Lynchings-1935

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Louisiana.

5155

EXTRA

Negro Held In Frame-up

(Special to the Daily Worker)

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 10.—Edward Sanford, Negro, arrested early on the morning of April 2 charged with attacking an "unnamed white woman," has been held incommunicado ever since.

The International Labor Defense has information that Sanford was beaten almost to death to obtain a confession which officials claim he made. No woman has been named in the case.

Sanford's wife has been refused permission to see him. His family is being terrorized. An attorney sent by the International Labor Defense with a woman from the family was also refused permission to see Sanford and told by prison officials to "get the hell away."

After more than a week Sanford is still denied arraignment or preliminary hearing, the authorities evidently having no evidence. The New Orleans District I.L.D. has issued leaflets calling for mass protest against the brutal treatment and danger of murder of Sanford. Protest telegrams should be sent to Sheriff Frank J. Clancy, Gretna, La.

WOMAN INVESTIGATOR GETS REAL "LOW DOWN" ON NEAR MURDER OF LOUISIANAN

News From Scene of Brutal Crime Patiently Doctored to Help Carry on Overworked "Attack" Propoganda

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two stories are here published with regard to the near-lynching of Adam Avie at Ville Platte, Louisiana on July 2. The first is by the Associated Press and is the usual "doctored on" account. The other is the "real low down" account of just about as brutal an attempt to take an innocent man's life as has ever come out of the deep South. The Associated Press story is the usual frail, and indifferently recorded account of an affair where a Negro's life is at stake, always accepted and published, though coming from biased news reporters. The other is the unvarnished truth so plain and plausable that it horrifies one to think of a great news gathering agency like the Associated Press sttempting to palm off on its public the story of this affair that was published in daily papers of July 5. Both stories are as follows:

THE FRAIL STORY

Ville Platte, La., July 4.—(AP)—Adam Avie, Negro, was free today of a charge of assault on a white townswoman after he had been severely thrashed by a mob which spirited him away from the local jail late Tuesday. He had first been reported lynched.

Sheriff Charles Picou lifted the cloud of mystery as to the Negro's whereabouts when he announced Avie was alive, present in Ville Platte and free of the assault charge.

The sheriff said the mob, reported to have numbered about 12 persons when it smashed the lock of the jail, beat Avie but that the Negro was not fatally hurt.

No participants of the mob have been arrested.

Feeling ran high in Ville Platte after the white woman reported she had been attacked, though citizens and officials were reticent over the affair until Sheriff Picou announced Avie's release today.

TRUE STORY

New Orleans, La.—The statement accredited to Sheriff Charles Picou of Evangeline Parish, scene of Louisiana's latest lynching, that Adam Joseph, mob victim, was alive, "safe, and sound and at liberty", was discovered to be anything but true by persons to whom Joseph appealed for aid and who made an investigation of the attempted murder.

Miss Ann Miller, secretary of the New Orleans branch of the International Labor Defense, with headquarter at 435 Carondelet St., went to Ville Platte Thursday, July 11, and interviewed numerous residents in an effort to check up on Joseph's recital of events leading up to the attack of the mob, and the attack itself.

Her investigation disclosed that Adam Joseph, or Avie, as he is commonly known, the last name being a Creole corruption of the name Joseph, was born and reared in Ville Platte, having played as a child with most of the men who later sought to kill him and who thought he was dead when his almost lifeless body was left in a dusty road on the night of July 2. He is 37 years old, and the father of six children, all but one of whom live with Joseph's brother in Opelousas. His wife, one child and Joseph were tenants on the plantation of Mrs. P. M. Reed, boarding house operator, where Joseph was employed over a period of twelve years, as general handy man.

When interviewed by Miss Miller, Mrs. Reed said that during the last days in June she had sent Joseph to the wood yard of Otley Deville, whose family have run a lumber yard in Ville Platte for many years, with instructions to buy a load of wood and to say that payment would be made the following Saturday. This was on Monday, and Deville agreed to allow her the week's credit. Much to her surprise Deville appeared at her home Tuesday saying that he wanted either his money or his wood, and she told him that the money would be paid him Saturday as per his agreement with Joseph the day before. Here, according to Miss Miller, Mrs. Reed paused to say that Deville was considered mentally abnormal by the entire community, and remembering this, she thought no more of his demand for money or wood. Later she looked out of a window and saw him loading the wood to haul it away.

In the process of loading the wood for removal from the Reed yard, Joseph stated that he advised Deville not to remove it, as Mrs. Reed had been a good customer for many years, and that she would not continue to trade with him if he followed the course he was then taking. Deville angrily told him to "shut up", saying further that it was not "for a nigger to tell me anything." Joseph nor Mrs. Reed had any thought that the incident was not ended, and the following days brought no indication that trouble was brewing.

Wife Enters Story

But there enters the "reason" for the mob attack. Otley Deville has a young wife who is left much alone because of the nature of her husband's business. The community, so Miss Miller was told, has long felt that a friendship between her and Loren Soileau, town n'er-do-well, was not platonic, knowing that he frequented her home generally when Deville was attending to the sale of wood. Joseph related that often when Mrs. Reed sent him to the Deville home he found Soileau there.

Following the removal of the wood from the Reed yard by Deville, he is said to have gone to his home, and finding Soileau there related the incident involving Mrs. Reed and began to curse Joseph for his part in the affair. Soileau is reported to have said, "a guy like that ought to be lynched". Upon Soileau's departure from the Deville home, rumors began to circulate that not only had Joseph insulted Deville, but had also insulted his wife.

Arrested

Some ten or twelve days later, Sunday, June 30, Deville went to the Chief of Police Chack Reed, and ordered the arrest of Joseph, making no charges. When Reed asked why the arrest was being made then instead of when the alleged insult had been offered, he was told by Deville, "I thought the story was true but I waited this long to be sure." Joseph was arrested and placed, not in the parish jail, but in a room adjoining the jail proper, access to which was gained by an ordinary key. Mrs. Reed, Joseph's employer, came to the jail and tried to effect his release. This failing, she called on the wife of Deville, questioning her as to when Joseph had insulted her. She told Miss Miller that the woman refused to answer any of her questions, but became very confused in manner and soon began crying, not ceasing as long as

Mrs. Reed was there.

Tuesday night, as Joseph lay in the room alone, a mob of 25 or 30 men broke in the flimsy door, confronted him and demanded that he admit insulting Deville's wife. Shirley Peete, another Negro, was the only prisoner in the jail, and as the jail itself was not entered, he was not molested. No officer was anywhere near the building, according to Joseph, although Chief Reed had said Joseph was being held for safe-keeping. Joseph said he told them he had not insulted her, but was told, "We will get the truth out of you." The ring-leaders seized him, bound his hands and feet, carried him out of the room and threw him into one of the two cars and a truck in which the mob was riding. Joseph said he recognized most of the men.

He said they drove about five or six miles out of town where the cavalcade stopped. He was thrown on the ground, face down, and someone shot him in the lower part of the back. A rope was in the hands of the men, and the recognized leader, Fredinan Deville, insisted that Joseph be strung up. (Deville's leadership was attested to by many persons who had been invited to participate in the lynching, but who had declined, according to Miss Miller who interviewed several). But one man said, "No, let's just beat him", and following much controversy it was decided that each man present would give Joseph ten lashes. Joseph does not know how long he was beaten, because as the lashing continued he lapsed into insensibility.

Left for Dead

Seeing that there was no movement of the bloody, torn body of Joseph, the mob left him in the road, still bound, and dispersed. The next morning as the Negro chauffeur of Dr. Attaway was driving along the road he saw the body, recognized Joseph, and took him into the car, hurrying at once to the residence of his employer. Other members of Dr. Attaway's clinic treated Joseph's wounds, and the chauffeur was given permission to keep the injured man on the premises.

In the meantime, friends of Joseph's heard that he was still alive, but in great pain. Under cover of night they went to him, gave him $3.50 for train fare and the address of the New Orleans branch of the International Labor Defense, and sent him to that organization, at whose office he arrived at 9:00 A. M. Friday, July 5.

—Louisiana Weekly.

Lynchings - 1935

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes

Mississippi.

5156

Confesses Attack

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A man booked as Charles Lee Trigg, 24, a negro, was in jail here today after officers said he confessed he attacked a 12-year-old negro girl and then strangled her to death.

Mississippi Negro Held For Attack On Woman

3-12-35

GULFPORT, MISS., March 12.—(AP)—Will Nelson, 30, a Wiggins, Miss., negro, was under heavy guard in the Harrison County jail here today following announcement by Dist. Atty. Rod Cowen that he had confessed to an attempted criminal attack on Mrs. C. L. Ford, also of Wiggins.

Tupelo Negro Identified As Woman's Assailant

TUPELO, MISS., April 9.—(AP)—Tupelo was quiet tonight and there was no fear of disturbance as Jessie Freeman, 25-year-old Lee County negro, charged with an alleged attempted attack on a young Tupelo white woman, sat imprisoned behind the bars in the local jail.

Charles B. Hutchins, county attorney for Lee County said today he would ask the Circuit Court to sentence Freeman to death by hanging when the court convenes here in May.

Officers said the woman, after failing to identify several negroes as her assailant, identified Freeman twice, once yesterday and again today, as the man who had attempted to attack her with a pick pick behind her barn yesterday.

Another Black Man Slated "For The Works" In Miss.

GULFPORT, Miss., Mar. 21.—(ANP)—Fresh from a lynching at Slayden last week, Mississippi turns its attention to this city and to Will Nelson, 30, accused of attempted criminal assault on Mrs. C. L. Ford, a white storekeeper of Wiggins, last Friday.

In Harrison county jail, Nelson is lodged behind the bars in "safety." A posse of more than fifty armed white men placed him there.

Nelson was supposed to have entered the woman's store and to have made an offer for a second-hand refrigerator she had for sale and then when they entered the kitchen where the article was, he seized her and attempted to assault her.

He was said to have shot at her three times after he had taken the pistol she had grabbed, away from her.

To this story, Nelson, according to authorities and members of the "posse" which hunted him down, is supposed to have confessed. He is being held without bond to the Stone county grand jury.

NEGRO HELD IN ATTACK

Kept In Unnamed Jail After Girl Is Molested

WINONA, Miss., Dec. 2.—(AP)—J. T. Wilson, city marshal, said an unnamed negro was held in an unannounced jail today in connection with the attack on a 16-year-old school girl Saturday night.

He said a negro held up the young woman's mule escort and then attacked her. The suspect was arrested Sunday morning.

A large crowd gathered at the city jail but dispersed when told the negro had been transferred to another jail.

Wilson said the negro in custody protested innocence but admitted he knew who attacked the girl.

Governor's 'Court Of Mercy' Finds Innocent Man In Prison

Mississippi Negro Serves 14 Years For Assault He Didn't Commit

PARCHMAN, MISS., March 26.—(AP)—Gov. Sennett Conner's unique "court of mercy" today heard the clemency plea of a negro convict who has been confined in the Mississippi Penitentiary here for 15 years although it has been known for the last 14 years that he was innocent.

The negro was John Randolph, 39, of Lowndes County, who was given a life sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of attacking an 11-year-old negro girl.

3-27-35

The negro said he made the plea on the advice of his lawyer, who was appointed by the court, when he was told he might be sentenced to death if he went to trial.

Justice of the Peace R. B. Smith, who lives eight miles south of the penitentiary, said the negro had been arraigned before him but that he was convinced of his innocence 14 years ago.

"Did you ever call that to the attention of the Governor?" the chief executive asked.

"No, sir," Justice Smith replied.

The justice of the peace said he became convinced of Randolph's innocence when he discovered that the negro woman had preferred charges against him also had preferred charges, at various times, against two other men for attacking the same girl.

"This is a horrible thing to think about," Gov. Conner remarked.

The Governor held his second "mercy court" today for convicts who have been confined in the penitentiary for more than 10 years. A secretary is taking notes of the men's pleas and the Governor will study them on his return to Jackson before making recommendations.

One convict today, John Smith, of Coahoma County, told the Governor he didn't want to go out into the "free world."

"If it is just the same with you, Governor, I do not want a pardon," he said.

A number of negroes, most of them serving life sentence for murder, made impassioned and often humorous direct appeals to the Governor.

Bill "Crackling" Jones, of Smith County, serving a long term for shooting and wounding, said he would rather be free and taking care of his mother-in-law than staying in prison.

Charlie Smith, sentenced in Leflore County in 1918, said he shot and killed a man "over a woman."

"I don't feel like I ought to be here," he said. "That's my idea. He started the racket. If it came up again, however, I'd run. I didn't have sense enough then."

The Governor indicated today that he would temporarily end the "court" after hearing the pleas of 75 convicts because of a press of business in the capital. He declared, however, that he would return later to hear other cases.

GOOSE CREEK, TEX.
SUN

Lynchings

JUN 22 1935

NEGRO IS LYNCHED AFTER CONFESSING ATTACK ON CHILD

200 Mississippi Men Avenge Young Farm Girl

WIGGINS, Miss., June 22.—(U.P.)—A mob of 200 white men lynched a negro here today after he allegedly confessed to an attack upon the 11-year-old daughter of a white farmer.

The victim was R. D. McGee.

The mob found the negro at his home here after an all-night search and carried him in an automobile into the country where he was hanged to a tree.

Sheriff J. A. Simpson arrived on the scene as the lynchers were leaving. He said he did not recognize any of them.

"There were about 200 men in automobiles", said the sheriff. "When I got there, the body was hanging from a tree and the lynchers were driving away".

"I don't believe there will be any investigation", the officer said.

McGee, he said, confessed the assault before he died.

Lynchings - 1935

Missouri

5157

Rape: Alleged attack by Negro

Negro To Be Hanged

KENNETT, Mo., Aug. 15.—(AP)—C. D. Ward, Negro, is scheduled to be hanged tomorrow morning for assaulting two women near Malden, Mo.

Ward, who denied the charges during his trial in 1933, and since then had asserted he was innocent, confessed the crime for which he is to be executed, Sheriff Tom Donaldson said last night.

Ward, the sheriff observed, seemed relieved by his confession and exclaimed after he finished he had "made his peace with God, and would be saved."

Lynchings-1935
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.
6

New York.

5158

PORT CHESTER, N. Y.
ITEM

NOV 13 1935

The Sane Viewpoint

A YOUNG student nurse, a white girl, was criminally attacked by a Negro youth on a lonely Port Chester highway the other evening.

The offender, if convicted, should be mercilessly punished. The crime is one of the most abhorrent of which any man is capable.

But the punishment should be no more severe because the man is a Negro than it would be if he were white.

Degenerate tendencies are not confined to men of any one race. Right here in Port Chester we have had just as revolting crimes committed by white men.

Nor should there be any disposition on anyone's part to penalize all Negroes because of this despicable act committed by one member of their race. Most Negro residents of Port Chester are God-fearing, law-abiding, respectable citizens. The proportion of malefactors to the whole number of Negro folks in Port Chester is no greater, in our opinion, than the proportion of the number of disreputable whites to the whole number of whites—when one considers that, even here in Port Chester, far north of the Mason-Dixon Line, there is an official disposition, at times, to pounce on and punish colored folks for law infractions which we are inclined to condone among the whites.

We have no race problem in Port Chester.

We will have none if we wait for the Negroes to create it.

We white folks should keep our own heads cool, guard our own tongues—and bear always in mind that America guarantees all men equal justice under the law.

That is why, if you wondered after having heard excited gossiping on street corners, you did not find a great sensational story on the first page of yesterday's Daily Item about the young nurse's unhappy experience.

Lynchings–1935
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

North Carolina

5159

5159

Carolina Court Orders Negro Put to Death

Defense Witnesses Not Called to Stand—Man Railroaded by Jury

WENTWORTH, N. C., Aug. 10.—An all-white jury yesterday returned a sentence of death against George France, 35-year old Negro farm hand, charged with attempted assault on a white woman.

France had no legal defense whatever as his state-appointed defense attorney refused to either call defense witnesses or to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses.

Sentence of death was immediately passed upon the Negro laborer by Judge J. A. Rousseau who, in his haste to rush the worker to his death, ignored the customary procedure of allowing passage of a few days between the return of a death verdict and passing of sentence. The judge also allowed less than three weeks for the possible organization of defense by friends or relatives of the worker. He ordered France put to death by lethal gas at the State's Prison, Raleigh, on Sept. 27.

HUNT ATTACKER OF SMALL GIRL

Negro Farm Hand Sought for Attempted Assault on Girl Near Lumberton.

LUMBERTON, Aug. 10.—Feeling was running high here today over an attempted criminal assault on a four-year-old girl whose parents live near Lumberton on the Fairmont road, by Jim Watson, negro farm hand about 35 years old. Details of the attempted assault two weeks ago were revealed by the child today to her father. Her brother, armed with two pistols, attempted to guard a tenant house in which the negro was staying until his father could come to Lumberton and get officers. Young Bruton shot at Watson five times, he reported, as the negro ran out through a corn field. Blood hounds were put on the trail, but the negroe's arrest had not been effected tonight. Shriff Mark Page and members of his force emphatically denied rumors that the negro had been taken and spirited out of the county.

SENTENCED TO DIE

WENTWORTH, N.C., Aug. 10.
George France, negro, was convicted of criminal assault upon an elderly Rockingham county white woman in superior court here today and was sentenced to die on September 27.

Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.
8-11-35

New York World Telegram

SEP 4 1935

HUNT NEGRO IN SWAMPS

Bloodhounds Take Trail After Alleged Attack on Girl.

By the Associated Press.

CREEDMOOR, N. C., Sept. 4.—Granville County officers and scores of citizens, aided by bloodhounds, searched swamplands today for John Kinghan, elderly Negro charged with attacking the 12-year-old daughter of Bryant Peed.

Officers scouted reports of a possible lynching which caused Governor Ehringhaus to order a company of State highway patrolmen to the scene.

CAROLINA NEGRO HELD IN ATTACK ON GIRL

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—John Kingham, negro, charged with attacking a 12-year-old white girl, was brought to Central prison this afternoon by state highway patrolmen.

Captain C. D. Farmer, of the highway patrol said Kingham was taken near Butner, a small town several miles north of Greedmoor. It had been thought he was surrounded in a swamp near where he is alleged to have attacked a daughter of Bryant Peed, of Creedmoor.

The negro denied he was guilty, Captain Farmer said.

Girl Identifies Man She Saw In Dark

Belvie Dispatch
10-5-35
Carolina Pen

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Sept. 31.—(ANP)—On the testimony of a 14-year-old white girl, Willie Taylor, 21-year-old youth was held here Thursday charged with burglary in the first degree and attempted criminal assault, both of which carry capital punishment, Tuesday morning when he was positively identified as the man who under darkness of night entered the room in which she was sleeping and attempted to attack her, only to be frightened off by her screams.

Taylor was arrested charged year-old white farm girl Monday and was also charged with attempting to assault Miss Edna Dodson, with the crime involving the 14-a 23-year-old white woman. Miss She only saw a shadow.

Audrey Farmer, 14-year-old las-Dodson declared that she could not identify him as the man who entered her room Sunday night because there was not sufficient light. sie, however, was positive in her identification and further told the officers that she kicked the assailant in the chest as he bent over her and drove him from the room with a chair. Taylor has denied knowing anything about either case and apparently his life hangs on the testimony of the Farmer girl.

Lynchings-1935
Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

Oklahoma

5160

RAPE CHARGE AGAINST MILLER DISMISSED BY MUSKOGEE JUDGE

N. A. A. C. P. VICTORIOUS IN DEFENSE OF BELL BOY HELD ON FRAME-UP CHARGES OF WHITE PROSTITUTE

Hotel Places Defendant Back On Pay Roll

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 9.—Charlie Miller, Muskogee hotel porter, who has been held in the county jail at Muskogee for six months following his arrest and trial on a charge of rape on a white girl, was unconditionally released on September 5 on motion of the assistant county attorney, J. F. Beavers, and by an order signed by the Honorable Enloe V. Vernor, district judge.

Miller's release marks the end of a persistent fight waged by the Muskogee N. A. A. C. P., headed by C. E. Robertson attorney for Miller, and J. J. Simmons, Jr.

Miller was tried on May 24 on a charge of rape. Counsel was employed by the Muskogee N. A. A. C. P. because of the belief that Miller was the victim of a frame-up.

His trial attracted wide attention because of a motion filed to quash the panel of jury on the ground that Negroes were excluded therefrom. His trial resulted in a hung jury of 8 to 4 for acquittal. Since that time C. E. Robertson and J. J. Simmons, Jr., have persistently pleaded with the assistant county attorney to dismiss the case against Miller, and finally Judge Beavers presented a motion and order to Judge Vernon who promptly signed the order for Miller's release.

Miller's white employer at the hotel where the alleged attack occurred immediately called Miller back to work and now he is making a livelihood for his wife and three children and is none the worse for his long confinement.

Lynchings - 1935

Virginia.

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

5161

Inter-Racial Social Condition Was Background of Famous Clifton Forge Killings.

By Josephus Simpson

(Written Exclusively for The Richmond Planet)

So much has been said and written about the celebrated 'Phillips Jones Case', which was tried in Fincastle recently, that it will be a rather hard matter for the gentle reader to get the record straight. Then, too, there is the ever-present string of facts underlying all cases of this nature. The "Jones Case" was no exception. This writer will, therefore, attempt to give to readers of this paper a fleeting glimpse behind the scenes of the Jones trial.

The writer's impressions, as set forth in this article, as well as the facts stated herein, have never been published in the daily press nor have they been given vent to in open court. The true story of this celebrated case may never be known, but I shall attempt in this article to give you, dear reader, the impressions gained by me as a result of my attendance upon the trial and my discussion of the case with court officials and with various residents of Clifton Forge, including the Scotch-Irish mayor of that little town.

First, let us shatter the theory that Jones, his wife, or any of the other principals in the case were ever in any danger of being lynched. A band of men had been organized by the mayor of Clifton Forge by early night, after the children's disappearance, to search for them. The word having leaked out all over town that the Hill children were missing after going to Jones' home in the afternoon and that a searching party had been formed to hunt for them, crowds of young men and boys followed the searching party. This was not a mob, per se, but a potential mob; which fact was recognized by those in charge of the search.

These people at the time were only what might be termed a curious throng of between 75 and 100 people scattered about on the road leading from Clifton Forge to the Scott Farm, where Jones lived. There was no danger of their harming anyone at the time, it is reported, but the mayor's action in ordering that the prisoners when arrested be not taken to the jail but to his home, after he had found blood in Jones' home, was based upon the potential damage such a crowd could do if the children were found harmed. As a result of the mayor's orders, all of the prisoners were carried to his own home, except Jones' wife, who was carried to the court house upon her arrest.

Another startling but unpublished fact, one unknown to all except a few people, is that it was known that the Hill children were dead before any of the prisoners were taken from Clifton Forge to Roanoke. It was only through a ruse that the milling crowd was kept in ignorance of this important fact. After the bodies were located, the searching party was sent in an opposite direction from that in which the bodies had been located, in order to give officials time to spirit the prisoners out of town before the crowd learned the truth of what had happened. Not more than three men knew of this. Police officers did not know that the bodies had been found when they started to Roanoke with their prisoners, nor did members of the searching party know that they were looking for children whom it was known were already dead and had already been found. Had it been known generally that this was the case, it is hardly probable that Jones or any of the other prisoners would have lived to stand trial. The man who was responsible for this ruse was a high official who is well known, but whose identity must forever remain a mystery for this sake of his own skin—at least until his death or until all danger has been passed. Were he known, if he did not lose his life physically he would certainly be a suicide politically.

When the bodies of the children were first located preparations were immediately made to spirit the prisoners, who had been captured, out of town and as soon as the last prisoner in any way remotely connected with the crime had been located and whisked away, the searching party was "accidentally" led to the scene where the bodies were found. Finding that the prisoners had been removed to a distant city, a group of young men and boys gave vent to their feelings by firing the Jones cabin. Incidentally, they would have in all probability fired Jones too if they could have gotten their hands on him. But Jones, thanks to the foresightedness of Clifton Forge's cooler-headed citizens, was at that time near the city of Roanoke and safety. The scene of the crime was known to a precious few long before 3 o'clock, but the bodies were not located by the searching party until 3:55.

Throughout the long drawn-out trial no motive has as yet been established for Jones' alleged act. It is inconceivable that Jones would have murdered these children, with whom he had always been friendly, without some reason, even though intoxicated. To the untrained mind it might seem on the surface reasonable enough to say that Jones committed the crime because he wanted to commit rape, but to those who have a knowledge of psychology it is patently evident that there is something lacking, in view of the obvious fact that, according to the testimony of witnesses, considered competent, there was no evidence of a struggle at the scene of the crime nor had either of the children been roughly handled, as if they had been dragged to the scene.

Whether it was intentional on his part or not the writer cannot say, but T. Warren Messick, counsel for Jones, established a perfectly logical motive for the crime in his cross-examination of commonwealth witnesses. Mr. Messick established the fact that Jones was not only friendly, even intimate, with the Hill children but with other white girls, some about the same age and some much older white girls. One white woman, 30 years old, admitted that she had gone to Jones' home on several occasions and that he had given her fruit as well as held a conversation with her. It was further brought out in cross-examination by defense counsel that Jones had not only been good to the girls, six or eight of whom were at his house on the day of the killing, but had kept in the good graces of the white boys also.

The logical conclusion of the whole matter, in this writer's opinion is that Jones had compromised himself. Incensed and driven to utter distraction by the situation in which he found himself, it was perfectly natural for Jones to attempt to stop up the source of evidence against him. He knew it meant death to let the child live, but by silencing her he might escape. Terrified at Jones' action the older girl, who was about Jones' height but rather slight of build, would have naturally told her father of Jones' act, probably giving voice to such intentions. Jones attempted to seal the book of evidence against him by putting them both out of the way, and in attempting to retrieve the "tell-tale" gun, bent and blood-spattered, from the bushes where he had thrown it in desperation, after having time to collect his thoughts, was shot in the right leg.

There may be some who doubt that Jones is guilty of the crime with which he was charged, but there is little doubt in the writer's mind that Jones actually committed the crime. He does not believe however that the true story has been or ever will be told in court. There is some doubt in the writer's mind that Jones voluntarily made the confession admitted to record by Judge Haden, but there are certain statements contained therein attributed to Jones that the writer believes were actually made by him, forced out by fear. For instance, Jones' story as to how he was shot sounded perfectly logical, and in fact, is about the only conclusion, one could possibly draw in the circumstances.

The Jones case should prove a valuable one to black men in this state, in view of the obvious guilt of the accused, in that, if it is possible the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, or some other interested body, is muffing its chances if it does not appeal the case of Jones on the issue of a faulty indictment or an improperly drawn petit jury. It is in such cases as these that such questions can be raised without jeopardizing the life of the accused. Jones has already been sentenced to death and an appeal in his case, on the jury issue, resulting in a new trial, would have a profound and lasting effect on Virginia jurisprudence.

Whether J. Byron Hopkins, observer for the N. A. A. C. P., was in error in refusing to testify to the fact that Jones and his wife told him of threats made against their lives to wring confessions from them is a matter of question, but the fact remains that the prosecution charged in its testimony that no mention of threats had been made by Jones or wife until shortly before the trial began. Mr. Hopkins' testimony would have refuted this contention of the prosecution. The story about the white man, Hyler, was too fantastic to even mention.

It might be interesting to my readers to know that conditions between white and black in Clifton Forge are somewhat different in many respects from those existing in other parts of the state. It is true that some conditions are similar, but on the whole conditions are radically different. The younger whites there are not afraid of being contaminated by their association with blacks nor are they filled with the rank prejudice found in many other sections of Virginia. It is only the die-hards of the Putnam type who keep alive the fires of race prejudice in that section.

This writer's investigations lead him to believe that Jones' home was a rendezvous of the younger element of Clifton Forge, especially the white group. The frequent visits made to the home by numerous white boys and girls gives added weight to the contention that Jones' home was no more than a trysting place for the lower element of whites and the black and tans. There are some whites in Clifton Forge who know these facts, but with whom "mum" is the word.

The only significant fact that would cast any doubt upon the contention that Jones himself was the perpetrator of the crime in question are certain pertinent facts brought out in the cross examination of state's witnesses by Attorney Messick. The fact that Jones' cabin only contained three rooms, two down and one up, and that this group of boys and girls remained at the house for a considerable time, talking with Jones, his wife and the [illegible] girl without once seeing the older girl, and on asking about her was told by the younger child that she was in the house, would naturally give rise to the question: Where was the older girl during all this time. Not being in the kitchen with Jones, his wife and the smaller child, it stands to reason that she was in the bedroom, either upstairs or down, two of the rooms in the house being bedrooms and the other a kitchen and would raise some question as to what she could have been engaged in that would have so completely occupied her attention as to keep her from greeting her friends, whom she was bound to have heard if she was in the house. This line of reasoning, in the writer's opinion, raises a hypothetical question that will probably never be answered.

Proof of the fact that race relations are different in Clifton Forge than in many other parts of the state, is found in the fact that Dr. S. G. Gibbs, a colored physician-surgeon, who first treated Jones for gunshot wounds, has a large practice in the town of Clifton Forge and its environs, two-thirds of which practice is among white citizens of the place. He is highly respected by both white and black citizens of the town, but admitted to this writer that the Jones Case had hurt his practice for a while, but that it was gradually coming back to him.

The group of young men may have had more than one reason for firing Jones' cabin. It could have been that they were motivated to burning the cabin by a hostile feeling against Jones and it might have been that they were motivated by fear of what the officers might find in the humble cabin. If by some twist of fate that cabin was gifted with the power of speech, from what the officers might find in the humble cabin. If by some twist of fate that cabin was gifted with the power of speech, from what this writer has learned, there would be many broken and aching hearts and probably a few suicides in Clifton Forge as a result of what it would tell. It appears that Jones furnished a trysting place for numerous youngsters in Clifton Forge, but lacked the knowledge to make any money out of the game.

As to Jones' plea of insanity, in spite of the fact that men more nearly sane than Jones have been sent to state institutions for lunatics and the further fact that men more nearly insane than Jones have been sent to the chair or given life terms, the writer believes Jones sane within the meaning of the law. It does not seem reasonable, in spite of testimony to the contrary, that Jones would have enjoyed the reputation he did in Clifton Forge among white people, who permitted their children to associate with him, if he had been subject to violent fits twice a month or had shown any violent signs of insanity. Jones impressed the writer as being illiterate, naturally dumb, but very cunningly clever. He has done so many cunning tricks for his friends, probably, that he had learned the art himself.

Both Jones and his wife named commonwealth's attorney M. J. Putnam, of Clifton Forge, as the ring-leader in the attempt to wring confessions from them. This the writer believes to be true, in view of the attorney's attitude generally, but we cannot agree with some who would indict the whole population of Clifton Forge of rank race prejudice because of the attitude of this one man. There are others like Mr. Putnam, it is true, but on the whole the whites in the town of Clifton Forge are exceedingly friendly with their black neighbors.

The celebrated "Phillip Jones" case is probably ended for all time, as far as the courts are concerned, but the question of how these children were killed, why they were killed, who was the rapist, if any, where Alice was and what she was doing when her friends called at the Jones home, what part the mystery man "Hy-lee" played in the tragedy, are unsolved questions that will remain for the gods of time to supply the answers.

Negro Did Not Attack Woman

Planet
12-7-33
Richmond, Va.

A Scottsboro tragedy in miniature seemed destined for Petersburg in the arrest of Sterling Mattox on the complaint of a white woman, that he attempted to criminally assault her, but her tale was so strange that Commonwealth's attorney Chas. H. Pollard, asked for a further investigation, and Police Justice Edwin F. Clemments readily concurred.

What the Woman Said

The woman, Mrs. P. T. Barrow, swore that Mattox came to her home Saturday night, Nov. 23rd and knocked at her door, saying that her husband had sent him to deliver some coal. When he was admitted he had no coal but forced entry into her bedroom and took a purse containing $17.50 from under her pillow and announced his intention of raping her 14-year-old daughter. She finally dissuaded him by telling him the age of the child. He then attempted to rape her. This she said, was done in the presence of her 14-year-old daughter and a 15-year-old son.

What the Man Said

Mattox denied the woman's accusations and said the woman whom he had been knowing for sometime, in whose neigbhorhood he lived, and to whose home he had frequently carried packages and messages for her husband, called him as he was passing and asked him to come into the house that she might speak to him. She was drunk, and talking very excitedly, asked him to go with her to get bail for her husband, who had just been arrested. She was sitting on the bedside and as he told her he positively would not go with her to the Police Station to bail her husband, she caught him by the sleeve and asked him to sit on the bed beside her that she might persuade him to go with her to get the bail. He then told her the reason he would not go was because she was so drunk that she would get locked up, too, and walked out of the house.

What the Police Said

The arresting officer said that Mattox was sober when arrested (the woman had said that he was drunk) and seemed to have registered genuine surprise. He swore that the woman was drunk as Mattox said. His testimony also showed that to enter the house from the front door, you would enter the bedroom, and there was no evidence of the terrific struggle which the woman said took place, nor was anyone found who had heard any outcries. He further said that the woman's husband had been arrested, and had sent to her for bail. There was no evidence that Mattox could know this unless informed by the woman as he had said.

What the Judge Wants to Know

Mattox was not represented by counsel, but Mrs. Barrow was cross-examined by the Judge who wanted to know: How did she get $17.50 when neither she nor her husband was working? How did Mattox know that the money was under the pillow, and could walk directly to it? Why should Mattox attempt such a crime in the presence of 2 children as large and as old as hers? Why did Mattox stay in the neighborhood after committing such 2 crimes. How did Mattox know that her husband was in jail if she did not tell him.

The case has been postponed pending the finding an answer to these questions.

Lynchings-1935

Virginia

Rape: Alleged Attacks by Negroes.

5162

VIRGINIA CASE ANOTHER INSTANCE OF NEGRO BEING CHARGED WITH OFFENSE COMMITTED BY MEMBER OF OTHER RACE

Chicago, Ill.—(ANP)—After a mob was repulsed at Shelbyville, Tenn., and guardsmen prevented the lynching of a Negro prisoner by killing four of the mob leaders and wounding a score of others, the Memphis Commercial Appeal complained against the killing of the mob leaders and insisted that the mob was only trying to see that the criminal was given the just punishment he deserved. There had been no trial.

Just how the public may be misled as to the guilt of any particular prisoner before trial is disclosed in the news stories within the last two months concerning a Negro accused of a crime at Clifton Forge, Virginia.

November 19 the International News Service released the following story from Clifton Forge, Virginia, to the newspapers of the country:

"Philip Jones, 25-year-old Negro, late today confessed he had clubbed to death with a rifle butt the two small daughters of A. N. Hill, local painter, while they were returning to their home through a wooded path on the outskirts of the city late yeasterday.

"The confession was wrung from Jones in the Roanoke jail, 35 miles from here, where he was taken with his wife and two other Negro suspects. Commonwealth Attorney M. J. Putnam and J. W. Huffman, local police chief, announced they had obtained the admission upon their return from Roanoke this afternoon.

"Putnam said Jones exonerated his wife, John Pryor and Arthur Smith, who had been held with him, from participating in the brutal slayings.

"Putnam explained that Jones confessed after his wife had admitted under grilling that he had attacked the girls. Jones had told a number of conflicting stories, but broke when confronted wth his wife's statements.

"Angry crowds which swarmed about the local police station all morning dispersed after it became known that the four suspects had been whisked to the Roanoke jail under heavy guard."

On the same day, the Associated Press released from Richmond, Va., this story:

"Efforts to prevent a quadruple lynching were taken by Gov. Peery tonight when police were ordered to bring to Richmond three Negro men and a Negro woman, after one of the men had confessed, police said, to the slaying of two white girls near Clifton Forge, Va.

"Governor Peery, however, ordered the prisoners brought to Richmond when feeling became intense at Roanoke. It was expected that state troops would be called out if a mob assembled outside the jail where the four were to be imprisoned here."

On November 20, the Associated Press released a new "confession" story in which Jones dramatically portrayed his part in the crime. This story, with a Richmond dateline, read:

"Sheriff T. Wilson Seay of Henrico county told today of a new statement made to him by Philip Jones, Negro, in which he said Jones had admitted ravishing 13-year-old Alice Hill as well as killing Alice and her 9-year-old sister, Ellen, near their Clifton Forge home.

"Today, Sheriff Seay said, Jones was urged to tell the whole truth since he could not make his case any worse than it was.

"'Yes, sir, I reckon you're right,' the sheriff quoted him as saying. 'I was not telling the truth when I said I did not ravish the little girl. I did. When I saw what I had done I killed her and the other one so they wouldn't tell.'

"Again Jones expressed sorrow for what he had done and asserted 'the devil must have been in me,' the sheriff said."

This latter story is very convincing.

But last Wednesday, January 2, the trial of Jones was begun at Fincastle, Va., and from that town, the Associated Press sent the story reproduced below:

"Asserting through his counsel that he did not murder two little Clifton Forge girls and did not criminally assault one of them as charged in indictments against him, Philip Jones a Negro, today told the Fincastle court that to the contrary, he had received an ugly leg wound while trying to defend them from a white man.

"T. Warren Messick, the defense attorney (a white man appointed by the court), in his opening statement said:

"We expect to prove that (and then he named a man) a white man residing in the city of Clifton Forge was the one who attacked these little girls and that Jones was shot in the leg in a scuffle after he had gotten his gun and ran to their assistance.

"Messick described the location of a house in which he said the man lived and asked that the state investigate his assertions with its law enforcement officers and bring this person 'before this jury if necessary.'

"He said Jones and this white man had a business arrangement whereby Jones would get apples and the other would sell them. He said when the Negro went into the orchard he found this white man awaiting him. The latter was quoted as saying to Jones:

"'I got two d— brats tied up over there.'

"The attorney said the Negro found Ellen and Alice Hill, the two Clifton Forge girls, who later were found slain, tied to a tree. He said Jones freed them.

"Messick, continuing his dramatic recital in a courtroom cleared of all persons save the defendant, court officials and newspapermen, quoted Jones as saying he then returned to his house.

"Later, the attorney said, Jones, after hearing screams, ran to the place from which the cries came. The defendant was pictured as running to the scene, engaging in a scuffle with the white man and receiving a bullet wound in his leg in consequence."

Lynchings-1935
Rape by Whites.

Alabama

5163

ATTACKER IS GIVEN LONG PRISON TERM

Adulterer

M. C. Weatherly Gets 35 Years In Kilby For Assaulting Florence Girl

4-14-35

FLORENCE, ALA., April 13.—(AP)—Convicted of attacking a prominent young woman here the night of March 26, Maurice C. Weatherly, 22, was sentenced today to 35 years in the State penitentiary. The jury was out three hours.

Weatherly said he had "nothing to say" before he was sentenced by Judge C. P. Almon. Henry D. Jones and Fred S. Parnell, his attorneys, filed immediate notice of appeal. They said, however, that Weatherly would start serving his sentence immediately pending the outcome of the next legal move.

The courtroom, cleared twice of spectators yesterday because of disturbances, was jammed for the verdict.

The alleged victim in the case and members of her family declined to comment on the decision. From the witness stand yesterday, she told of a trip to "get cigarets" with Weatherly on March 26, which culminated in the alleged attack.

She testified Weatherly bound and attacked her, after she repulsed his advances. Before she was called to the stand, two physicians, two nurses, and a health department employe testified concerning her condition after the incident.

Weatherly took the stand to admit intimate relations with the girl, but denied they were forced.

In rebuttal, the State called a score of witnesses to testify to the girl's good character.

The trial was interrupted when a man booked as A. I. Beale stood up in the balcony and shouted. As Judge Almon remonstrated with him, he interrupted the lecture and was fined $50 and sentenced to five days in jail for contempt of court.

Later, gases were released in the balcony and Judge Almon ordered the courtroom cleared of spectators for the remainder of the testimony.

YOUTH AT FLORENCE INDICTED IN ATTACK

Committed

Grand Jury Acts Following Charges by Girl

4-4-35

FLORENCE, Ala., April 8.—(AP)—A Lauderdale County grand jury in special session today returned an indictment against Maurice C. Weatherly, 22, member of a prominent family, on charges of attacking Miss Vivian E. Voss.

The indictment was returned after only six witnesses had appeared before the grand jury, and after arraigning young Weatherly, Judge Charles P. Almon ordered a special term of court to convene on Friday for the trial.

A special venire of 100 was drawn for the case.

Miss Voss last week swore out a warrant charging Weatherly with attacking her on the night of March 26. The warrant was sworn out before Justice of the Peace J. A. Dowdy.

YOUTH BEGINS TERM ON ASSAULT CHARGES

Sentenced Started

Weatherly Serves Sentence Pending Appeal

4-21-35

FLORENCE, Ala., April 20.—Maurice C. Weatherly, 22, of Florence, convicted at a special term of Lauderdale Circuit Court recently of assaulting Miss Vivian E. Voss Florence health worker, today began serving his term of 35 years imposed by Judge C. P. Almon.

Weatherly's attorneys appealed the case, but the youth elected to begin serving his term pending the outcome of the appeal. The crime committed on the night of March 26, resulted in the calling of a special grand jury and a special term of court.

The trial was the most spectacular in Florence in many years, motions for mistrials being overruled following release of gas and sentencing of a specator for contempt of court. The courtroom was cleared of all except newspaper men and attorneys during most of the testimony.

Attacker To Die.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 7.—(AP) A Montgomery circuit jury today returned a verdict of death against 55-year-old Dick Hull, a former Birmingham resident, found guilty of criminal assault upon a 9-year-old girl. The jury deliberated 15 hours.

JURY STILL OUT IN ATTACK CASE

Adulterer

Deliberations Continue As Jurors Refuse To Go To Bed At Midnight

6-7-35

The death penalty for a white man was demanded in Circuit Court yesterday by Solicitor W. T. Seibels who has been vigorously prosecuting capital cases since Tuesday morning. Dick Hull, the defendant, about 50 years old, was charged with criminal assault upon a nine-year-old girl, who was one of the State's principal witnesses. At midnight the jurors declined to be put to bed and at 1 a.m. today no verdict had been reached.

Montgomery

Trial of the Hull case was marked by more than the usual amount of wrangling on the part of counsel, the solicitor and Luther Patrick, of Birmingham, who came here to represent Hull, a former citizen of the Magic City. So heated did the argument between the two men become that on one occasion Judge Eugene W. Carter held up court long enough to remind "the gentleman the county has a nice, large jail across the street." This threat was made after Attorney Patrick had accused the solicitor of trying to run the court. "The court is running this court and will continue to do so," Judge Carter fired back at Patrick. "This foolishness has got to stop."

The case did not go to the jury until after 8:30 p.m., the evidence having been concluded shortly after 6 o'clock. Women were not permitted in the court room during the hearing of evidence.

Hull, arrested about two months ago on a statutory charge, denied on the stand that he confessed the crime to Deputy Sheriff Addie Moseley, who had testified the defendant made the confession while in jail. Hull also denied he attempted to commit suicide while in jail, although several deputies and wardens said he cut himself severely with a safety razor one night while alone in his cell.

In his opening argument to the jury, Solicitor Seibels said "this man ought to be killed for the good of society." The solicitor criticized Attorney Patrick on his manner of cross-examining the little girl and her mother.

The trial of Ben Cronier, local barber and former policeman, charged with murder, was carried over until today. Cronier killed Malcolm McDade after the latter had been arrested on Montgomery Street a little more than a year ago.

This week's capital docket is said to have been one of the largest in many years. Already there have been three life imprisonments and one death sentence returned by juries.

Two of the cases on yesterday's docket were transferred to the Juvenile Court when evidence disclosed the defendants were under 16 years of age. One was a negro girl and the other, a negro boy, both indicted for first degree murder. The trial of the girl, Annie Lee Meyers, was almost finished when she testified as to her age. Attorneys A. J. (Gus) Harris and Robert Parks, representing the girl, immediately made a motion to have the case transferred. The State's witnesses had testified and some of the defendant's had been called to the stand when the age question came up. Freddie Lee Scott, the boy, was represented by Thomas H. Watts, who has assisted as special judge during the last two weeks.

The only acquittal since the capital docket was begun came in eight minutes after the jury retired Wednesday night. James Williams, negro youth, was charged with killing Andy Williams. Gus Harris handled the case for James Williams and Thomas H. Watts was the special judge. The case was tried in the solicitor's office, as Judges Carter and Jones were using both court rooms. Judge Jones has been tied up for several days on a long and involved civil suit.

Goodwater Youth, 19, Is Accused In Attack

Adulterer

GOODWATER, ALA., Nov. 21.—(Special)—Preliminary hearing for Samuel Evans, 19, of Goodwater, charged with criminal attack on a 21-year-old white girl here early Monday morning, will be held Friday before Milt Graham and J. T. Fielding, justices of the peace. Young Evans is at liberty under bond of $1,050, officers said.

11-22-35

The alleged attack took place between 1 and 2 a.m. Monday, when the youth was taking the girl home after she had been sitting up with a sick relative, officers said. Physicians at Alexander City pronounced the girl's condition serious.

Florida.

Lynchings- 1935
Rape by Whites.

5164

Negro Girl Attack Victim Is Given No Aid

Daily Worker
6-12-35

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 11.—Negro and white workers here are protesting the chauvinist attitude of hospital and police authorities in connection with an attack by two white men on a 14-year old Negro girl.

The girl, Alberta Taylor, was thrown off the Lee Street viaduct late last Monday night by two white men, when she resisted their attempts to rape her. She was taken to Duval County Hospital, after a pedestrian heard her groaning on the tracks below and summoned an ambulance. At the hospital, although she was suffering from severe shock, a broken elbow and internal injuries, the doctors merely set her elbow, and dismissed her from the hospital within an hour of her arrival. Next day she was spitting blood and complaining of severe internal pains.

The police have made not the slightest effort to trace and arrest her assailants.

Lynchings-1935
Rape by Whites.

Georgia

5165

CLAYTON NEGRO FREED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

JONESBORO, Ga., Feb. 25.—A Clayton county jury tonight acquitted Charlie Palmer, negro, of a charge of assault upon a white woman December 31, near College Park.

The case was put on trial this morning in superior court, the verdict being returned early tonight, after a few minutes deliberation by the jury.

Jury Convicts Man Charged With Rape

CAMILLA, Ga., April 24.—Marion Jarrells, a white man of Mitchell county, was sentenced to a term of 14 to 18 years by Judge B. C. Gardner of the superior court of the Albany circuit, in Camilla yesterday after a jury had found Jarrells guilty or rape upon a Negro woman. The jury was out about one hour.

Macon, Ga., News
December 31, 1935

NEGRO ATTACKER BROUGHT TO BIBB

Track Dogs Used to Locate Former Convict After His Assault on Three Women

H. P. Baker, 36-year-old Negro, was brought to the Bibb county jail for safekeeping early this afternoon after he allegedly had criminally assaulted two white women and a Negress yesterday in Chattahoochee county.

Baker was brought here by Sheriff J. D. McGlaum of Chattahoochee, after the suspect had been tracked through swamps of that county and nearby Muscogee and had been apprehended early this morning.

Baker, interviewed in the county jail here, said he had been released from the Marion county chain gang Monday. Asked about the crimes of which he is accused, he replied:

Fills Up On Booze

"I was on my way home wher a man gave me some liquor. I drank that and I don't know what I did."

According to information received by the Associated Press from Columbus, Baker is charged with having attacked a white woman in a rural section of Chattahoochee county and of having fled after the victim's husband had been summoned from a nearby field. A Negro woman, a servant in the home, fired a shotgun at the attacker, but he wrested the weapon from her.

A short time later, another white woman, with an infant in her arms, was attacked in the yard of her home. The child was snatched from her arms, thrown to the ground and the moter was beaten and assaulted. A short distance away, the Negress also was attacked, according to reports to officers.

Three Crimes Charged

Baker is accused of having committed all three of the crimes.

Following his arrest, the Negro was carried to the Muscogee county jail in Columbus, but the suspect was removed to this county early this afternoon.

While Baker told a newspaper man he had been sentenced for assault with intent to murder, prison commission records show he was "sent up" for carrying a pistol without a license. The term was 12 months.

Lynchings-1935

Rape by Whites.

Louisiana.

5166

Truck Driver Sought In Attack On Young Girl

SHREVEPORT, La., May 25.—(AP)—A 19-year-old truck driver was sought by police here today after they received a complaint that he had criminally attacked a 15-year-old [illegible] picture show last night.

Dr. Harry W. Paul, Caddo Parish assistant coroner, examined the girl and told officers she had been severely treated. She furnished police with the truck driver's name and description.

Lynchings-1935
Rape by Whites.

Mississippi.

5167

CRIMINAL ASSAULT CHARGE IS BROUGHT

Held in Hinds Jail After Girl Is Attacked.

9-11-35

GULFPORT, Miss., Sept. 10.—A formal charge of criminal assault, which carries a possible death penalty, was filed in county court here yesterday by County Prosecutor Gaston Hewes against Louis Boudreau, 23, now held in the Hinds County jail at Jackson, following his arrest here last Friday night and his purported confession of having attacked Lillian Stiflets, 11-year-old Gulfport girl.

Taken to Jackson for safekeeping after threats of mob violence here, Boudreaux was said to have signed a written confession following his arrival at the Hinds County jail. Prosecutor Hewes today said he was awaiting receipt here of a copy of the confession.

Hewes said he had understood, however, that Boudreaux would waive preliminary hearing and remain in the Hinds County jail pending action of the Harrison County grand jury which is not scheduled to convene until next January.

Lynchings—1935
Rape by Whites

Mississippi.

5175

WHITE ATTACKER OF GIRL GETS NEW TRIAL IN DIXIE

Mississippi Supreme Court Reverses Decision—Prisoner Must Be Allowed to Tell His Story.

JACKSON, Miss., April 11.—(ANP)—The Mississippi Supreme court last week reversed and remanded for new trial the case of Troy Hester, white, convicted in Webster court of an alleged criminal assault on a 12-year-old colored girl because the trial court would not allow him to tell his version of the alleged assault.

The Supreme court contended, in reversing the case, that the Circuit court was in error in sustaining an objection of the district attorney to Hester's testifying to all the alleged facts surrounding the offense against Mississippi statutes.

In this case court records showed that Hester had been asked to tell the circumstances of the crime and that as he started in to relate incidents about the assault, the state objected to his admission of relations with the girl. In the absence of the jury, the district attorney's was sustained by the court.

Assault Charged.

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 11.—(AP)—Charged with committing a statutory offense against an eight-year-old white girl, was booked by officers as J. A. Allen, 59, a former school teacher, was bound over to the Lauderdale county grand jury here today. Allen denied the charges in a preliminary hearing before Judge A. M. Byrd in county court.

Allen said that he came to Meridian two years ago from Ellisville, where he had been farming. Before that time he said, he had been a school teacher in Tennessee.

RELIEF WORKER HELD AS CHILD'S ATTACKER

J. A. Allen Denies Charges at Meridian Hearing

5-12-35

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 11.—J. A. Allen, 59, relief worker and former school teacher, of Meridian, was held to the Lauderdale County grand jury today on a charge of committing a statutory offense against an eight-year-old girl.

Allen denied the charges in a preliminary hearing before Judge A. M. Byrd in county court.

Allen said that he came to Meridian two years ago from Ellisville, where he had been farming. Before that time he said, he had been a school teacher in Tennessee.

Lynchings - 1935
Rape by Whites.

Missouri.

5168

ATTACKERS SENTENCED

Ten, Five and Two-Year Terms Ordered

KENNETT, Mo., Feb. 13.—Chester Wilkins, 27, received a sentence of [illegible] circuit court on a charge of criminally attacking Mrs. Cleo Marshall at Cardwell on Sept. 24, 1934.

Dewey Hardin, 22, received five years, and Boh Davis, 32, two years.

The three, driving an automobile, accosted Mrs. Marshall on the street at Cardwell as she was returning from the grocery store. When she refused to ride with them they forced her to enter the car. They then drove to a spot outside of Cardwell where Wilkins dragged her from the car and attacked her.

Bronx, N.Y. Home News

OCT 3 1935

Missouri Lyncher Held for Similar Crime

Although he helped lynch Lloyd Warner, colored, who was accused of assaulting a woman, Carl Fisher was held in the St. Joseph, Mo., jail today in default of $2,000 bail on a charge of a similar crime. Fisher, who pleaded guilty to theft of a pistol during the lynch mob's raid on the sheriff's quarters, served three months in jail. He was the only one of a dozen indicted lynchers to be punished.

Lynchings-1935
Rape by Whites

New Jersey.

5169

Girl Says Otays Beat Companions And Raped Her

Pro-American

Son of Three Accused White Men Is Temple University Graduate.

4-6-35

MUSICIANS HELD UP ON WAY FROM HALL

Baltimore Afro,

Trio Held Without Bail; Fourth Man Hunted.

(Special to the AFRO)

HAMMONTON, N.J. — Thr white men, one said to be a Temple University graduate, were held without bail here, Sunday, accused of attacking Miss Mabel Brown, 22, of 248 Sixth Terrace, Egg Harbor.

The accused men, according to the accusation, dragged Miss Brown into a wooded section near here, early Saturday morning, after beating her companions, a group of musicians.

The white men gave their names as Anthony Scola, 35, South Egg Harbor Road; Anthony Curreri, 22, N. Third Street; and Albert Janski, South Egg Harbor Road. Another man is also being sought in connection with the crime.

Held Up Car

According to testimony given before Justice of the Peace William Harper, the occurrence took place between four and five o'clock, while the young woman, in company with John Knox, 28, and other companions, was returning from an orchestra engagement.

Knox declared that after playing until around four o'clock in a Hammonton tap hall, the white men came in and requested them to play longer. Having finished their night's playing, they did not remain.

Drum Broken Up

Gathering their instruments they started home when the white men, who had followed them, forced their machine off the road, and after beating up the musicians and breaking up a drum, took the young woman into the woods and cruelly mistreated her, Knox testified.

Miss Brown identified Curreri as one of the men who attacked her. Curreri, it is said, is a graduate of Temple University, and his father runs a feed store at Hammonton.

Scola runs a pool room near the hall where the musicians were employed. Knox is said to have once played in Cab Calloway's orchestra.

Girl Tells Story

Here is the story of her harrowing experience, as Miss Brown told it exclusively to the AFRO-AMERICAN:

"I left here Saturday night with Joseph Ford, Bill Williams, John Knox and another musician by the name of Walker, to go to the Cafe Parisi in Hammonton where the men had an engagement to play.

"The manager, Parisi, offered me a job as waitress, and after working until 4:30 Sunday morning, I changed from my uniform and, with the men, got into the car belonging to Knox.

"We were about to leave for home when the car containing the five white men drove up. The men requested the musicians to go back into the cafe and entertain them.

Afro-American

Past Closing Time

"The officer on duty at the place informed the white men that it was far past closing time, and ordered them away. We were all then requested to go to some other hot spot where, they said, the musicians would be liberally paid for their services.

4-6-35

Baltimore Afro

"We were told to trail them and after doing this for several miles, the occupants of our car became skeptical and decided to turn back. We had gone but a short distance toward Egg Harbor when the car bearing the white men overtook us and forced our car into a ditch.

Men Driven Away

"The white men pulled some of the men out of the car, threatening them with a revolver. They were beaten, their instruments and money taken and then driven into the surrounding woods.

"Coming back to the car, they began cursing and beating me, and in terror, I made an effort to escape from them when they surrounded and caught me. I exchanged blows with them until they subdued and pinned my arms behind my back.

Stripped Off Her Clothes

"My God! I hate to tell what happened then. Two of the men attacked me in succession. Then they threw me into their car and drove to a more secluded wooded section. There they stripped off my clothes and forced me to do the most repulsive and inhuman things I have ever known.

"I begged them for my life as they threatened to kill me. Gaining some strength, I begged them to allow me to go a short distance. I saw a lighted bungalow, and, gathering all the strength I could, I began running and screaming toward this house.

"They followed a short distance, but I made it to the house which proved to be the home of a white family. They gave me assistance and first aid and got in touch with the police. They also sent for a doctor, who treated me.

"My God! I hope I shall never have to live through it again."

Alexander Takes Case

Both Miss Brown and Knox were placed under bail as witnesses against the men. The incident has aroused the indignation of people in the Hammonton section and in Philadelphia.

Raymond Pace Alexander has been retained to look after the interests of the young women and the musicians.

Lynchings-1935
Rape by Whites.

North Carolina 5178 5170

Negro Reverses Stand In Rape Case; Heavy Guard

LUMBERTON, N. C.—(ANP)—Pleading guilty to assault with attempt to commit rape here last Thursday afternoon, Jim Watson was sentenced by Judge Paul Frizzelle to a term of 15 years in the state prison.

Watson was charged with having attempted to rape an eight year old white girl several weeks ago. He spectacularly eluded the combined efforts of three mobs all bent on lynching him. He sustained only a gun shot wound allegedly inflicted by J. R. Bruton, father of the girl whom he is charged with assaulting, J. R. Bruton, and for two weeks remained free finally surrendering to the sheriff and 11 deputies at the home of Avery Powell. He was rushed to Raleigh for safekeeping and was returned here under heavy guard for the trial on Wednesday night.

He, although having vigorously denied his guilt when arrested, without any preliminary words, readily admitted his guilt in court Thursday, declaring that he was drunk at the time and did not know what he was doing. Judge Frizzelle passed sentence and the prisoner was hurried back to Raleigh as the crowd in the courtroom was apparently dissatisfied with the sentence. However, the presence of the large number of heavily armed guards prevented any demonstration.

Lynchings - 1935 I
Rape by Whites.

Tennessee

5171

BROTHER - IN - LAW OF BESSIE JOHNSON WANTS DROP CASE

While the thoughtful leadership, not only of the Negro racial group, but prominent members of the white race, set about in a determined manner to bring about the punishment of Charles R. Calloway, white lawyer now under $2,000 bond for action of the grand jury on the charge of attempting to rape Miss Bessie Johnson, young colored woman as she returned to the place of her employment Sunday night, after attending church, the startling fact came to light that Frank Kyle, well known character about town, and a brother-in law of the young Negro woman, with the aid of his wife, is actively cooperating with Calloway and his friends to persuade the Johnson woman to withdraw the charges for a certain sum of money.

Kicked From Sheriff's Staff

Kyle is the same individual who, after numerous complaints of irregular conduct in office were registered against him, was kicked from Sheriff J. Wesley Brewer's staff of deputies. Many women of the Negro racial group told how Kyle, under his authority as a deputy-sheriff, beat and otherwise maltreated them and resorted to the most despicable sort of fee-grabbing as he operated about the city. The East Tennessee News took the lead in the request to Sheriff Brewer that Kyle be dismissed from his staff, and when the facts of Kyle's conduct were brought to the sheriff, he ordered the fellow to turn in his badge.

Kyle later had the temerity to offer for constable in the August election and got only a few votes. He then ran for justice-of-the-peace, city at large, and in that race got barely more than a dozen votes.

In recent weeks he again appeared in the limelight in view of a Chancery court suit he instituted against a local loan concern in an effort to enjoin the concern taking his household goods under a chattel mortgage.

Offers $400.00 To Quit.

The last issue of the ETN gave the Yeager Street address of the sister of Miss Johnson, but at the time the writer did not know that the sister was the wife of Frank Kyle. According to information furnished the ETN Calloway procured this address from the paper and immediately proceeded to the Kyle home.

Not finding any one at home, he is said to have left a note under the door asking that the Kyle woman come to his office. Later it developed that Kyle went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris, white employer's of the Johnson girl and talked at length to the young colored woman in an effort to get her to accept $400 as a compromise of the matter and agree to withdraw the charges against Calloway.

According to a reliable informant, Kyle is said to have warned the Johnson girl not to divulge his scheme to her attorney, W. L. Porter, and not to discuss the matter with any one other than him. He is said to have admitted tha he had been promised enough out of the deal to recover his furniture.

Suggests Another Lawyer

Another suggestion of Kyle to Miss Johnson was that she take the case out of the hands of Attorney Porter and turn it over to a lawyer that he might suggest. This plan was outlined, apparently, by Kyle, to enable the parties in whose behalf he was working to procure the services of some one who would "deal" with them.

The young woman positively refused to agree to any such arrangement, according to her statement.

To the proposition Miss Johnson is said to have positively turned a deaf ear and in talking of the matter she stated:

"Regardless as to the outcome of this case, I am determined to fight it to a bitter end. There can be no compromise in view of the brutal and uncalled for assault directed at me."

Sought Her Pastor's Aid.

Not only did Kyle approach the young woman on behalf of Calloway, but according to Rev. H. J. Bailey, pastor of the Main Avenue Baptist Church, where the young woman attended on the night she was attacked, Kyle's wife phoned his home and in a talk with Mrs. Bailey, told of her efforts to have her sister accept a sum of money to settle the mater and further solicited her aid in persuading the Johnson girl to drop the charges for a sum of money. Both Rev. and Mrs. Bailey stated they resented the suggestion and warned the Kyle woman of the law that provides prosecution for attempting to compound a felony.

Ministers Take Action.

At no other time in the history of Knox county has the Negro citizenship been so thoroughly aroused over a matter involving a member of their racial group. Not only the leadership of the race, but the mass group, almost to a man, as they read the account of the brutal treatment to which the young woman was subjected, were strong in their denunciation of the conduct as charged to the white lawyer and were equally as strong in expressing their desires that the law should deal with him exactly as is prescribed under our statutes.

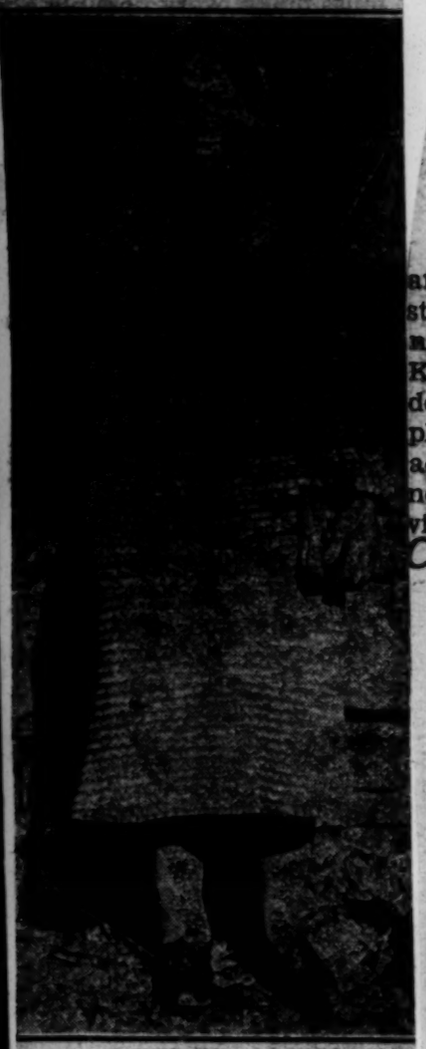
At the Thursday session of the conference of local A. M. E. Zion ministers, held at Clinton Chapel Church, resolutions condemning the charged act of the white lawyer and asking court officials to bring about the punishment of the guilty and thereby offer more protection for Negro womanhood, were adopted. Members of the organization pledged five dollars each to go toward a fund to be used in pushing the prosecution of the accused lawyer.

At the regular meeting of the Interdenominational Alliance on Monday morning, members of that important organization also took definite action concerning the shameful treatment accorded the young Negro woman and not only pledged their moral support, but immediately set about formulating plans for raising money to be added to the fund to be used in aiding the prosecution.

Grand Jury Now In Session

The March term of the Knox County grand jury convened on Monday and the warrant charging Calloway with attempting to criminally assault Bessie Johnson as sent down from the city court, will be presented to that body for their consideration by Attorney General J. Fred Bibb. The young woman, the two police officers who arrested Calloway, Officers Roach and Norton, and another witness whose name has not yet been divulged, will appear before the grand jury. Finding of a true bill by that body will place the matter in court for trial on a date to be selected on the date cases are to be docketed.

Many Whites Aid Fund.



Not only are many outstanding white persons strong in their denunciation of the terrible treatment to which the young Negro woman was subjected, but many have forwarded money to go toward a fund to be used in pushing the prosecution of the accused lawyer.

In additon, failure of either one of the white daily papers to publish a line concerning the matter, notwithstanding the fact the case came up for hearing in city court, has come in for a share of adverse criticism, both from white and Negro observers. It is pointed out that the East Tennessee News is the only local publication that enlightened the public as to what was happening.

Young Woman Without Funds

Expense is incurred in the employment of additional counsel to aid the state in the prosecution of this case and to make certain investigations to be placed in the hands of the attorney general. Miss Johnson, while employed, is without sufficient money to pay the cost of waging the prosecution and she has appealed to those interested in seeing justice administered in so grave a matter, to furnish money in her behalf. The money may be sent to Rev. S. H Marion, 310 East Clinch Avenue to be added to that already subscribed.

ATTACKED

MISS BESSIE JOHNSON

Young woman employed as a cook for a white family in the exclusive residential section of West Knoxville, who refuses to be "bought off" as she declares that Charles R. Calloway, white lawyer, forced her into his automobile under threats to kill her, as she walked along the dark road leading down Scenic Drive, after stepping off a Kingston Pike car, while returning from church on Sunday night, February 27.

Her screams, according to Miss Johnson, attracted the white residents, and they sent in a police call that brought a radio car with Officers Norton and Roach to a point far out in the wooded section where she declares Calloway had actually stripped her to the very skin and was about to proceed with his attack when the police car came up. The young woman states she had to request the officers to turn off their lights while she put on the clothes that had been torn from her body by the lawyer. She exhibited her heavy coat and articles of underwear which she states were torn as Calloway pulled them from her body.

The affair which has served to arouse the entire community, was staged after eleven o'clock at night. Scenic Drive is west of Knoxville three or four miles down Kingston Pike. The telephone directory gives Calloway's address as Chicamauga Avenue, near three miles north of Knoxville, in a direct opposite location.

CITY COURT REPORTER SAYS HE WROTE STORY

Surprise was expressed among citizens of both racial groups that neither of the local dailies published city court proceedings at least, concerning the case of Chas. R. Calloway, white lawyer on the charge of attempting to criminally assault Bessie Johnsen, young Negro woman. Reporters for both papers were present each time the case was called.

Ministers of the Interdenominational Alliance took notice of the fact at their session and the organization addressed a resolution to both papers asking that they exhibit fairness in handling reports in their columns.

Just before press time, a News-Sentinel reporter, the one who was in city court at the time the case came up, phoned Attorney Porter asking for more information concerning the case. He stated that he had written a story of the case on the day it came up but for some reason "they" failed to print it. And he concluded: "By the way, did you cal on Editor McNeill concerning the matter?" Mr. McNeill is editor of the News-Sentinel to whom the resolution was delivered by the ministers on Wednesday morning of this week.

TO KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT

(AN EDITORIAL.)

By WEBSTER L. PORTER

FOR NIGH UNTO TWENTY-NINE YEARS the editor of this publication has published the East Tennessee News and for near seven years he has practiced law. At no time since he engaged in the practice of law has he endeavored in the slightest degree to try any lawsuits with which he has been connected, through the columns of the paper. On the other hand, readers have been denied their rightful privilege of having first hand information concerning cases in our courts wherein the editor was employed, for fear there might be those who would misconstrue the motive as designed to create sympathy or mould sentiment for or against the opposition, according to the lawyer's personal wishes.

Too, many cases that should have been passed on to the readers of necessity were left out of this paper due to the inability of the publisher to find experienced reporters who could accurately and fairly cover the same. It has been physically impossible for the editor-lawyer to devote the necessary attention to his lawsuits and serve in the capacity of reporter.

At no time during the more than twenty-eight years of continuous service as publisher and editor has there been the slightest inclination to violate our obligation to our readers to publish FEARLESSLY and FAIRLY all accounts of happenings that our readers should know about. Such has been true both at times before we were engaged in the practice of law and since, and when a situation arises that will deny us the opportunity to perform that duty to the very letter, we will then be ready to fold up and turn the job over to the other fellow. The mere fact that we are engaged in the practice of law offers no just cause or excuse for the newspaper's failure to serve the interests of its clientele by publishing facts concerning happenings, regardless as to who might be involved.

The above thought arises following the comment of certain individuals in view of the expose of the alleged conduct of a white lawyer in which he is charged with the terrible mistreatment of a young Negro woman several days ago. The reporter covering that case was alert and progressive in that he gave the public a thorough account of the disgraceful affair. His failure to do so would have resulted in our turning over what money was due him for salary and getting him out of the back door of the office as quickly as was possible, regardless as to whether or not the owner of the East Tennessee News was lawyer for the outraged young Negro woman, or, whether the accused lawyer was a "brother lawyer," or not. In fact, if the accused had been a brother in blood, our position and contention would not be altered in the least, as we DEMAND a strict and rigid ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW, regardless as to who might be involved.

At no time in the history of the East Tennessee News' ... lawyer has their been the slightest tendency to arouse race ... hate or stir up strife. Those observers who are inclined to ... be fair in their criticism of the conduct of the paper will say ... and the case of this paper, there was no tendency to exhibit ... than a fair and impartial statement as was offered by ... the grossly mistreated young Negro woman. Comparisons ... are made and in view of each and every statement appear ... in both the news article and editorial, THE EAST TENNESSEE NEWS OFFERS NO APOLOGY TO A SINGLE LIVING SOUL.

Comparisons are oftimes odious, but in this connection, ... as charitable toward the accused white lawyer as we may, ... miles distant, in the opposite direction to where he was dis...

Lynchings-1935 II
Rape by Whites.

Tennessee.

5172

covered on that night. The situation leads one to believe that had that young Negro woman been slain that night, or, if some white woman of that section had fallen victim to such charged mistreatment as this young Negro woman, the finger of suspicion would have been pointed toward some innocent "NIGGER," and the first Negro man picked up would have stood in danger of mob violence, if a white woman had been involved.

The demand that EXACT JUSTICE be meted out in this case is not based on an argument of comparative handling of such matters. Our contention in this instance is the same as has been true when Negroes have been charged with crimes against white persons—LET JUSTICE PREVAIL! If, after a FAIR AND IMPARTIAL TRIAL ,the accused is adjudged guilty, inflict such punishment as the law prescribes.

If the powerful majority racial group is to successfully enforce their demand that there shall be no racial intermingling, they must exhibit the sincerity of their demand by putting a stop to the tendency of their own race members to "MINGLE." It will be far more easy to put a stop to any tendencies of Negroes to "MINGLE" with whites, when such examples are offered.

Finally, we reiterate, the East Tennessee News offers not a single apology for its stand in this matter. It is encouraging to have the emphatic expressions from thoughtful white men and women, indicating their thorough accord with our position. The earnest leadership of the Negro racial group is also awake to the threatening and deplorable situation, wherein the safety of every Negro woman and girl is at stake, if such terrible treatment as was inflicted on Bessie Johnson can go by unpunished.

Those who manifest an inclination to look upon the matter lightly or appear to minimize its gravity are considered flagrant condoners of the act, especially in view of the convincing facts that prevail and admissions of the accused following the deplorable affair.

If our law enforcement officials are in earnest as they contend for strict law enforcement, now is the time to show it. The courts are in their hands. Negroes are standing by WATCHING AND WAITING. They demand that exact JUSTICE PREVAIL. They want nothing more; they will accept nothing less.

THE JOHNSON - CALLOWAY CASE

East Tennessee News

Friends of the defendant white lawyer charged with the commission of a felony against a Negro woman and the condoners of such acts involving a woman of the Negro racial group may feel inclined to snicker up their sleeves at the outcome of the case, thus far, but the encouraging phase of the matter is, there are hundreds of white people as well as Negroes who are sufficiently FAIR and JUST as to frown upon the commission of such crimes, whether the woman is black and the man white, or whether the woman is of the white racial group and the man black.

There is another certain phase of the situation and that is the eventual boomerang effect over the failure of our law enforcement group to bring this matter into the courts to be passed upon by a jury of twelve men. 3-21-35

An effort may be employed to pass the responsibility for such failure to the ignorant and irresponsible young black woman who recently came into this section from Alabama, where such treatment which she claims she was subjected to is of common occurrence, and where it is generally known that when black women fall victims to any such treatment at the hands of white men, they dare not complain lest they suffer worse treatment. In fact, Negroes in and out of the city of Knoxville and white persons who advocate EQUAL JUSTICE were more concerned over the need of throwing the protection of our law enforcement machinery about Negro womanhood in general than they were about bringing the charged attacker of Bessie Johnson to the bar of justice.

It has been referred to time and time again, that crime like disease, is no respecter of persons. It might have been the richest and most highly respected white woman in the exclusive residential section of Westmoreland Heights, at the point of the alleged attack, who suffered the fate of the ignorant and gullible black woman. If the crime involving the latter type can be passed off the boards by the mere wave of the hand, IS WHITE WOMANHOOD SAFE?

Knoxville Tenn

As far as the responsibility of Bessie Johnson is concerned, such might easily be compared to an eight-year-old child. It is not known definitely what happened to her to cause her to let up in her determination to press the charges which she preferred against the white lawyer, but in view of the frantic efforts of the defendant and his frank admissions, the public has somewhat of an idea just what happened and judging from expressions coming from every angle, there will certainly be a reckoning day for somebody over this very same case.

"OH, SHE WAS JUST A 'NIGGER' GAL," may be the conclusion reached by certain forces in connection with the case, but every indication points toward the fact that a terrible crime remains unpunished within the jurisdiction of the Knox county courts. Can the citizenship of our section feel safe in view of such an alarming situation?

Another phase of the matter that has served to attract widespread comment is the attitude exhibited by the attorney general's office as concerns co-operating with the counsel employed to assist the state in prosecuting the charge. Patrolman Roach declares that some sort of paper signed by the ignorant young Negro woman was presented before the grand jury by Attorney General Bibb. The ethical attitude at least, would have justified the attorney general acquainting said counsel with such an alarming phase of the situation, or disclosing any effort to pass the matter over even with the approval or disapproval of the employed counsel. Or maybe it was just another instance of "JUST A 'NIGGER' LAWYER!"

That a crime WAS COMMITTED as charged is beyond question in the minds of those who have looked carefully into the matter.

THAT ANOTHER CRIME HAS BEEN COMMITTED in that the situation offers all appearances of having been settled for a price is the definite opinion of many.

Police officers functioned in bringing about the arrest of the accused. Judge Williams, of city court performed his duty in passing the case on the the Knox county grand jury.

There the scene ends in a most abrupt manner and the question in the minds of friends and foe is, WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT? The answer may be NOTHING! Present situations make it impossible to do anything, apparently, but rest assured the thoughtful citizenship of Knoxville and Knox county are not asleep to such an alarming state of affairs!

BAN OUTSIDE INTERFERENCE.

Suggestion of soliciting or accepting the aid of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, or the International Labor Defense to organize forces among the local Negro racial group to crystalize sentiment that will bring about the prosecution of the white lawyer charged with attacking the young Negro woman in our city several weeks ago has been turned down in an emphatic and prompt manner by the attorney employed by the young woman to represent her interests and in view of such dissatisfaction has arisen in the ranks of certain groups that tends to impede the efforts of those who desire to see justice administered in behalf of the young woman. 3-14-35

The attitude of the attorney in this connection is exactly the same as he has exhibited heretofore as concerns calling in outside interests and organizations to assist in bringing about the proper administration of justice in our local community, whether it is in defense of some member of the Negro racial group charged with crime, or the demand for the strict enforcement of the law as might be directed toward a member of the white race charged with unlawful treatment of a Negro. Knoxville, Tenn.

There are hundreds of law-abiding and influential Negroes in Knox county who pay taxes and exercise their franchise in an unrestrained manner. If their influence cannot be wielded in a manner sufficient to bring about the administration of justice in our courts or other administrative bodies, the situation is hopeless. Certainly we will not be among the number who will send to New York, Atlanta or any other out-of-town place and ask some group or organization to come into our home town to help in such matters.

In fact, it has never dawned upon us to the slightest degree that officials in charge of affairs in Knoxville and the county of Knox are so inclined toward an unjust attitude that it should become necessary to even suspect them of refusing to do their duty and of carrying on under their oaths of office in a manner that will bring about equal justice to all men, regardless as to race or class.

If there are those of the local citizenship who are of the opinion that their suggestion of handling the case in question will bring about more satisfactory results to all concerned they have but to make that clear to the forces now in charge and there will be a prompt stepping down and out in favor of their plan, but certainly as the situation now stands, outside interference will not be tolerated.

As far as organization is concerned, there is no inclination to infer that the law-abiding thoughtful Negro citizenship of Knoxville and Knox county should be without an effective organization whereby the interests of the racial group might be properly presented under all conditions and upon all occasions. Certainly there is nothing wrong with having such an organization, call it a Negro Civic League or whatever else appropriate. Our white neighbors have their Rotary Club, their Kiwanis Club, their Chamber of Commerce and many other effective organizations. The Negroes have their National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, with headquarters in New York. Such is a sad reflection on the local Negro citizenship.

The most evident need here is an organization that will stimulate the desire in the minds of Negro men and women to exercise their franchise in elections of city, county, state and nation, and when such an organization is perfected and proceeds to function properly, all of these other things will be added unto us.

Lynchings-1935
Rape by Whites.

Virginia.

5173

WHITE YOUTH CONVICTED ON RAPE CHARGE

Draws 5-Year Term; Identified By Colored Victim

3-2-35

HAMPTON—Although the five-year sentence imposed by a jury of 12 white men here Tuesday, February 26, on Bartlett Young, 20-year-old white youth charged with criminally assaulting an 18-year-old colored girl, was the minimum that could be given, his conviction is believed to have established a precedent in this state.

The case, which occupied all of Monday and half of Tuesday, was tried in the Circuit Court of Elizabeth City County, presided over by Judge C. Vernon Spratley. The jury deliberated an hour and three quarters. It could have imposed the death penalty.

Lee Ford and Frank A. Kearney, defense counsel, made a motion to set aside the verdict as being contrary to the law and the evidence and because the jury was misdirected and the remarks of the commonwealth attorney, Roland D Cock, to the jury, improper.

Judge Spratley will hear arguments on the motion Friday.

Boasted To Friends

Young emphatically denied that he attacked the girl on the night of January 8, but admitted having been in the vicinity of the place where the attack took place with two companions.

The two companions, Carter Shelby and Albert Bryant, however testified that Young, after being absent from them for about 10 or 15 minutes, returned and boasted to them that he had accomplished his purpose.

The "boasting" was admitted by the defendant, who qualified this by declaring that he had not meant it seriously and was only "joking."

The young woman was positive in her identification of Young as the man who attacked her. She picked him out of a police lineup in the Hampton jail several weeks after the attack. E. W. Covington, special Wythe officer, supplied most of the information on which the prosecutor's case was built.

NORFOLK, VA.
VIRGINIAN PILOT

MAR 7 1935

Her Fair Face Unmarred

In our neighboring town of Hampton last week, a 20-year-old man was found guilty by an all-white jury of criminally assaulting an 18-year-old girl and was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary. The girl was colored. The man was white.

Ordinarily such a discrepancy between punishment and crime would have caused trouble in a Southern community, but it is gratifying to note that in the present case there was no disorder of any kind. At no time either during the trial or after, was there any threat of mob violence, any motion for a change of venue, or any need for the National Guard or for more police protection than that afforded by the court bailiff. Justice emerged with her fair face unmarred.

Lynchings- 1935
Rape by Whites.

Virginia.
6

5174

PETERSBURG, VA.
PROGRESS INDEX

MAR 10 1935

Justice In Virginia

RECENTLY in the town of Hampton a 20-year-old man was found guilty by an all-white jury of criminal assault upon a colored 18-year-old girl and was sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary.

"At no time," observes the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, "either during the trial or after, was there any threat of mob "violence, any motion for a change of venue, or any need for "the National Guard or for more police protection than that "afforded by the court bailiff. Justice emerged with her fair "face unmarred."

The comment of the Norfolk paper is to the point. We suspect that certain northern papers which regularly insist that where Negroes are concerned justice in the South is miscarried will not find this item of news worthy of comment.

DECENT NEGRO WOMEN ENCOUNTER MUCH ANNOYACE FROM WHITE MEN ACCORDING TO PHILLY COPS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — White mashers who insult colored girls in the First Police District are going to get jail that's coming to them, if police have anything to say about it.

Two white men have received sentences for making improper advances to attractive colored girls, escorted and unescorted, on the highways.

Isabel Bradley, well known musician, 122 N. Redfield street, was the latest victim. She was standing on the corner of 16th and South streets talking to her brother, Elmer Bradley, who is well known in social circles here, when a white man persisted in walking past her and rubbing himself against her and hissing and beckoning to her.

Her brother was so outraged by the antics of the man that he was forced to speak to the man who made out that he knew Miss Bradley. A policeman was called and he molester, Marry Sehabel, 43, of Clover Hill Farm in Media, Delaware County was placed in custody for annoying the girl.

Magistrate Henry fined him $10 and costs or thirty days in jail when he offered as his alibi that he thought Miss Bradley was a girl he worked with.

Miss Ruth Norton, of the 100 block of Fitzwater street, was accosted in a like maner a little over a week ago. Her would-be masher was also sentenced and fined.

Captain Robert Black declared that it was getting so that it was hard for a decent colored woman to walk in the sreets of South Philadelphia and he was not going to allow the policemen in his district to continue to allow men to insult peaceful, law-abiding women just because they are without escorts.

Magistrate Henry, in pronouncing sentence stated, "We are going to break up this damnable practice. Some white men think every colored woman they see is of an immoral character. I intend to fine every man brought before me who affronts decent colored women on our streets."

Hold White Lawyer For Attack On A Young Negro Cook

Charles R. Calloway, well known young white lawyer was bound to the Knox county grand jury under $2,000 bond when he was arraigned in city court on a charge of attempting to commit criminal assault on Miss Bessie Johnson, young colored woman.

The charge against the lawyer grows out of his attack on the young woman on Sunday night as she was returning to her home after attending church.

The young woman, 35 years of age, is employed as a servant in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Morris, near Scenic Drive, just off Kingston Pike. She called at the office of Attorney W. L. Porter on Monday and employed him to prosecute the charge against Calloway, at which time she gave the following account of the affair:

"I attended church at the Main Street Baptist church, now being held in the Green School auditorium, on Sunday night. After the services were over I walked down Vine and up Gay street to the corner of Gay and Union where I boarded the Lyons View car to go to my home, at the place of my employer. I got off the car at Scenic Drive and when I was half way down the block a car drove up and by me, suddenly stopping. The car was backed down to overtake me as I walked along and I tucked my pocket book under my coat, believing that it was a hold-up. The driver, a young white man was alone and he opened the door and suggested that I get in stating that he would take me home. I promptly told him that I didn't want him to take me home as I lived only a half block away. He then jumped out and ordered me to get into his car, stating:

'you get in that car, G-- d--- you, or I'll kill you '

"I started to run and screamed as loud as I could. As I ran, the heel of my shoe turned over and that caused me to fall. The man, acting like a wild man, caught the back of my fur coat just as I fell and ripped a place down the back. He then ordered me to get up and return to his car, still threatening to kill me. As I got back to his car and was holding on to the side in an effort to prevent his pushing me into the seat, he deliberately pushed the door to on my fingers causing me to release my hold. I continued to scream as he speeded up his motor and drove off for a distance of what I consider two miles."

The young woman exhibited the bruised finger nails where the car door had been slammed shut on her hand.

Stripped Of Clothing

"When the man drove quite some distance away to a dark place near the river, he stopped and ordered me to pull off my coat. When I refused, he attacked me in wild man fashion and tore my coat off, as well as tearing off all of my clothes down to the very last piece. I continued to scream.

Police Officers Arrive.

....."The white people residing in homes at the point where I was first approached by the man evidently heard my screams and sent in a call to police headquarters, for just about the time my attacker tore off all of my clothes and was about to proceed with his attack, the police cruising car came up. The man ordered me to get down on the floor, threatening to kill me if I made further outcry. The officers came up and demanded that he open the car door and this he refused to do, whereupon one of the policemen extended his arm through the opening, pulled the key from the ignition switch and opened the door from the inside.

"The officers flashed their light into the car and when they saw me they asked Calloway,

" 'what are you doing with this colored woman in your car?'

to which he replied, 'that's alright.' "

"I immediately protested to the officers that it wasn't alright, either, and told them of his mistreatment of me. Another young white man had evidently heard my screams and he followed the officers' car, coming up to where my attacker held me just about the time the officers got there.

"The four white men stepped over and began talking, the man who mistreated me pleading not to be arrested and declaring to the officers that his reputation would be ruined if this affair got out.

Turned Out Lights So She Could Dress.

....."I asked the officers to turn out the bright lights of their cars so that I could put on the clothes that the man had torn from me, and they complied with this request, and after I had gotten the torn peices back on, they ordered the man to get into the car of the white man that drove up with the officers and then took me into the police car and drove to city jail."

Released On Drunk Bond

Calloway gave his name at city jail as "Jimmie Smith," and notwithstanding the fact the charge of "attempted criminal assault"

(Continued on page 2)

Hold White Lawyer For Attack On A Young Negro Cook

(Continued from page 1)

was registered against him, as is shown by the police blotter, when the case was called in city court on Monday afternoon, the startling fact was disclosed that Calloway was released on a bond signed by City Bondsman Seaton on a drunk charge, that carries only a fine of $7.50.

According to Miss Johnson, Officers Roach and Norton, who made the arrest, told her the correct name of the man and further told her to appear again as the case would be heard before Judge Bob Williams in city court on Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Captain Tom Moore, of the police department, was in charge of the detachment at the time the arrest of Calloway was made.

Early Monday morning, Miss Johnson engaged the services of Attorney Porter to prosecute the charges and he, in company with the young woman appeared in city court at the appointed time.

Upon looking into the matter Attorney Porter promptly had the young woman prefer the charge of attempted criminal assault against Calloway, it being necessary to have the warrant issued in the name of "Jimmy Smith, alias," as his correct name was not known at the time.

Submitted On Drunk Charge

"Officers Roach and Norton," Judge Williams called out, in his usual manner of disposing of the many cases on Monday's docket.

"Jimmy Smith charged with being drunk," the judge added, whereupon City Bondsman Seaton came forward in the absence of "Jimmy Smith," and announced "submit him, Judge."

Questions Release Of Calloway

"Yes, this is the same 'Jimmy Smith' that assaulted a young colored woman Sunday night under what we are informed is one of the most aggravated forms of attempted criminal assault that has ben staged in Knoxville," Attorney Porter declared to the court, and he handed the judge the warrant charging the defendant with attempted criminal asault on Bessie Johnson.

The attorney added in emphatic protest to the court, "Judge, we can't understand how this man was released by the city bondsman on a drunk charge when the police blotter shows opposite his assumed name the charge 'attempt to commit criminal assault.' "

The warrant charging a felony was immediately placed in the hands of Chief L. M. York and he handed it to Detective "Pat" Wells who notified Calloway to appear and make bond.

Seek To Effect Compromise.

The young colored woman reported to her lawyer that she had been called at the home of her employer a number of times on Monday afternoon, by a man who said he was Calloway, offering her money to withdraw the charges against him and declaring that he would be ruined if the matter got out on him.

Despite the fact that Attorney Porter was at home suffering from a cold, he was called time and time again to answer the phone as Calloway and his attorneys endeavored to get their offer of a price over for a withdrawal of the charges, to which proposition they were promptly told, "there's positively nothing doing and I don't even want to discuss the matter with you."

Case Called Tuesday Afternoon.

Hearing on the assault charge against Calloway was set for 1:30 p. m., and again his attorneys, Messrs. Cecil Meek and William Cooper approached Attorney Porter with offers to settle the matter as a civil action and requested an agreement to pass the case for another day. Their requests were as promptly turned down by the attorney for the young colored woman, and this time Attorney Porter queried of the lawyers:

"would you want to settle as serious a charge as this for a monetary consideration if the defendant was a Negro and the prosecutrix had been a white woman?"

When the case was called by Judge Williams before the crowded courtroom, Attorney Meek made a motion to pass the case to another day. In resisting the motion to pass, Attorney Porter stated:

"Your honor, please, we at all time desire to favor opposing counsel, but in this instance we most respectfully resist any effort to pass this case, in view of the serious charges here, and the fact that this defendant is yet allowing a fictitious name to remains on this warrant. We want him in court now, and desire to ask the court that this warrant be amended so as to insert the proper name of the defendant,—Charles R. Calloway."

Judge Williams allowed the amendment and then overruled the motion to pass the case to which action Attorney Meek anounced that he would then waive any preliminary hearing for his client and the judge ordered Calloway held under a bond of $2,000 for action of the Knox county grand jury.

The Knox county grand jury will convene next Monday, for its March session and as soon after the body is organized as Attorney General J. Fred Bibb sees fit, the young colored woman will be called before that body to tell of the brutal treatment which she was subjected to.

White Sentiment Indicates Sympathy For Woman.

Miss Robinson, a native of Selma, Ala., came to Knoxville early in April, 1934 to visit her sister Mrs. Della Mae Kyle, of 949 Yeager Street. After remaining here a few days she was offered a job as a servant in the home of a white family on West Church avenue, and her services were of such a satisfactory kind that Mr. and Mrs. Morris, for whom she is now cooking, heard of her and gave her an offer. She has been employed in the Morris home for several months. Mr. Morris came to Knoxville from Virginia and is in the employ of the TVA.

Expressions of hundreds of fair-minded white persons who watched the case indicated a desire to see the law takes its course in deal ing with Calloway on the charge of attacking the young colored woman.

Ministers Organize To Aid Prosecution.

Local members of the Ministers' Interdenominational Alliance got busy as soon as they received word of the case and a delegation from that body, under the leadership of Revs. Downer, the president, and S. H. Marion, anounced that they would launch a movement to raise funds to bring about vigorous prosecution in view of the terrible treatment accorded the young woman.

Even before a meeting of the body was held, individuals ministers approached the East Tennessee News with the request that a call for funds from the general public be announced through the columns of this paper and the following launched the movement with substantial subscriptions:

Rev. H. H. Hubbard,	$5.00
The East Tenn. News	$5.00
Rev. L. W. Veal,	$5.00
Rev. S. H. Marion,	$5.00
Rev. S. A. Downer	$5.00
	$25.00

Others who desire to subscribe to the fund should make their remittances to Rev. S. H. Marion, 310 East Clinch Avenue, Knoxville, Tenn., Phone No. 2-5649.

nder County A

Tornado Destroys Texas Shacks

Dying Man Takes Gun From Man

Admitted as Second Class Matter, October 15, 1906, at the Post Office at Knoxville, Tenn., under the act of March 23, 1879.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters and pictures sent to THE EAST TENNESSEE NEWS are sent at the owner's risk, and EAST TENNESSEE NEWS expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return. All communications must be sent in the name of and all checks and Money orders should be made payable to THE EAST TENNESSEE NEWS. No attention whatever, will be given unsigned matter. Stamps must accompany all requests and manuscripts.

Vol. XXVIII. Thursday, February 28, 1935. No. 20

LET JUSTICE PREVAIL

A CRIME was committed in Knoxville Sunday night with all the gravity and injuries that characterize some for which black men are now being confined in death row at the State Penitentiary at Nashville, awaiting the day when their lives will be exacted following their convictions on charges of forcing their lustful desires on white women.

The difference between the convicted felon from Shelby county, whose sentence of death was affirmed by our Supreme Court in session at Nashville last Saturday, and the charged felon whose depredations served to arouse the Negro racial group as nothing else in many months, as enacted last Sunday night, is color of principals involved. At Memphis, a black boy attempted to rape a white woman. In Knoxville, a white man of standing tried with all the brute force to rape a black woman, and but for the timely intervention of police officers, he would have accomplished his purpose.

Notwithstanding the gravity of the crime staged in our city toward NEGRO WOMANHOOD, there has been a total absence of LAWLESSNESS AND DISORDER, much to the credit of our local citizenship—believers in law and order, and altogether different to the conduct of certain citizens of Shelbyville, where an alleged crime of the exact type is said to have been committed.

In Knoxville, there was no blazing lines in newspapers referring to a woman having been brutally assaulted, (and by the way, although news reporters representing both daily papers have had thorough and definite knowledge of just what actually happened here, not a single line has appeared concerning the matter up to the time this editorial is being penned.)

There has been no call issued to the governor of our state for troops to patrol the streets of Knoxville to quell disorders arising from the fury of an outraged citizenship.

There has been no hustling off of the accused to an adjoining town or city to prevent mob violence.

There has been positively no maltreatment of harmless and innocent men, women and children by hoodlums acting under the guise of avenging a wrong perpetrated on a poor, defenseless woman who dared to protect her virtue even at the cost of her life.

On the other hand:—

When policemen, attracted to the dark, dismal wooded section where a young NEGRO church woman was being held captive under threat of death by a WHITE LAWYER, he has at no time seen inside of a jail cell with a view of holding him on so serious a charge.

(It must be said to the credit of Officers Norton and Roach—they refused to be persuaded to release the alleged would-be rapist, and properly entered the charge which appeared to them correct upon the police blotter.)

Taxpayers of Knoxville employ a city bondsman. Then what right did this bondsman have executing a $7.50 bond for a man charged with so serious a felony? What superior officer authorized him to do so?

When and at what time was a drunk charge preferred against the alleged would-be rapist, and under whose authority did the city bondsman attempt to submit him on a $7.50 drunk charge ,when a crime of so serious a nature had been preferred against him, as shown on the police record.

The action of the accused lawyer in this matter has been the subject of strong denunciation on the part of every fair-minded white person who has expressed themselves concern- the affair, and this includes many of our court authorities. The statement of the accused and his friends infers that he committed a "serious mistake." True enough, he has committed a serious mistake, but no less grievous than had the intended victim of his lustful desires had been the wife or daughter of one of the prominent white families residing in the section where the act was staged. Nor, was the act of this lawyer any less grave than that charged to a black embecile who might have been operating under the influence of bad liquor.

Here was a defenseless black woman, who gave her assailant sufficient warning that she had no inclination to entertain his attentions. She had been to church and was enroute to her home in a room on the place of her employer where she might sleep for a few hours and with all of the faithfulness as characterizes her kind, she planned to sleep a few hours and then arise to perform her duties about the household of her employers. However, it matters not what her reputation might have been or what her mision, as she walked the streets of our city, she is entitled to the same protection as the whitest woman who ever breathed, and fair-minded, justice-loving white citizens, as well as members of the racial group to which this pects our law enforcement officials to do their duty. They expect nothing more; they will accept nothing less.

Negroes are not concerned about editorials denouncing mob rule and injustices as might be directed toward their racial group on the part of newspapers who fail to give the public information of so grave a crime having been committed. The question resolves itself into one—CAN A NEGRO WOMAN BE MISTREATED? IS THERE A LAW FOR A BLACK WOMAN'S PROTECTION DIFFERENT FROM THAT PROVIDED FOR WHITE WOMEN?

A CRIME has been committed! Womanhood has been outraged! Proffer of money will not suffice and until the accused can give a satisfactory explanation of his terrible conduct that will satisfy the courts of our county that he is not guilty as charged, JUSTICE DEMANDS that he pay the penalty as the law prescribes!

ESPREAD FAVOR

the orphanage on Brandau Hill.

Among the ten agencies recommended to receive aid from the Chest fund were the Payne Avenue Day Nursery and the Phyllis Wheatley Branch Y. W. C. A.

The recommendations of Mr. Chavannes, especially as concerns the Colored Orphanage, has met with widespread approval from the ranks of the local Negro citizenship who are interested in having a much larger number of dependent children secure aid from the county funds provided for like institutions. As it is now, only a few children are cared for at the place on Brandau Avenue, and the activities of those in charge of the institution wherein they exhibt an altogether selfsh.aij air of owning the place, causes many who would do more for the youngsters to desist.

See Court Members

Persons interested in having the recommendation relative to the Colored Orphanage, adopted should get busy and see members of the county court, requesting them to support the change at the next session of their body in April.

Bishop Vernon Speaks To Kansas Rotary Group

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (By the Continental Press)—Bishop W. T. Vernon was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club in the Chamber of Commerce in Kansas City, Kansas on Tuesday afternoon, having been invited to speak on Lincoln. This was the first time in the history of the local Rotary Club that a Negro had been thus honored.

It was singularly significant that thirty years ago this same speaker was selected as the first and only Negro ever to be the orator on Kansas Day at the great celebration in Topeka.

He discussed the lessons one could get from the lives of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. He said in part, "This nation is safe so long as we are inspired by the spirits of such men as these. One was the aristocrat and patriot, the father of his country; the other, the commoner and patriot, the savior of his country; the two types constitute the anchor of our hope."

Superinendent Vernon was introduced by Dr. C. C. Nesselrode. The school's quintet, composed of Jack Johnson, Fred Wright, George Royston, Morris Wright and Robert Reid sang to the accompaniment of Miss Marie Lillard, head of the music department at the institution.

Police Silent On Cause Of Death

CHICAGO—For the second time in the past month alleged "pleasure" visits to the South central district have proved too much for white gentlemen.

The latest to die from "heart trouble," was Harry Robinson, 42 years old, well-known club man and prominent in civic affairs in his own neighborhood.

Robinson, according to police records, had a "heart attack" while visiting in the room of Mrs. Virginia Meredith, 5302 Calumet avenue, on Tuesday nght.

There was an immediate attempt to hush up the second fatality, but investigation into the affair revealed that Robinson allegedly suffered undue excitement which caused his premature death.

The body was removed from the apartment. Police ascribed his death to sudden failure of the heart and let it go at that.

In Knoxville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Mrs. Martha O'Neil, 29, of 720 Market Street, the wife and secretary of Bishop Socrates A. E. O'Neil, was sentenced to fifty-nine days in the county jail for alleged shoplifting the other day, the "Mirror" learned today.

Bishop O'Neil, husband of the convicted woman, is known throughout the United States as an agitator for legislation to prohibit interracial marrages in Eastern, Northern, and Western States. He recently completed a tour of 16 states in which he advocated the return of Negroes to the farm.

It is said that the Bishop founded a feligious and educational institution in North Carolina, and s well known n that state for his alleged advocation of "follow the good white folks."

The Bishop is at present in the city trying to raise funds to go to the State Capitol to see the Governor relaive to having an anti-lynching law passed while his wife languishes in jail because she couldn't pay a fifty dollar fine which was imposed for the offense.

When interviewed today by a "Mirror" reporter, she said she was guilty and pleaded guilty in court even though the white storekeeper did not appear against her. Asked why she pleaded guilty when there was no one to prosecute her, she said, "I didn't know what else to do; I was guilty."

It had been rumored around town that Mrs. O'Neil had an accomplice; this she denied vehemently. "I was by myself," she said. "There was another woman across the street from the store, but she had nothing to do with it and was gone when the police arrived."

Asked about her marriage to the Bishop and the place of her birth, she said they had been married nearly five years; that her home was in a small town in Alabama.

Mrs. O'Neil was interviewed in the kitchen of the Jailer where she is working as a trusty.

In reply to a queston by the reporter as to why her influential husband didn't use his influence to have her released, the little woman smiled: "I guess he's doing all he can. You see he's behind in everything. But I have faith in him."

Decrease In Poison Liquor Deaths, Say

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — There was a noticable decrease in sudden deaths this week.

Last week the total number of known sudden death cases were counted at 14. This week there was only one.

This week's victim was Henry Reese, 45, 1232 Cambride Street, who was found at his home dead in bed, by another tenant in the house.

The man was removed to the St. Luke and Children's Homeopathic Hospital, where he was officially pronounced dead by the hospital physicians. The body was sent to the morgue, where it is now awaiting identification by the man's relatives, who, police say, are in South Carolina.

Although it was not confirmed officially, many of the recent sudden deaths are alleged to have been as a result of poison liquor that has been distributed by "small time" bootleggers in various tenderloin districts of the hity. In many lases, it was reported, the victim prior to the time of his death had been a heavy drinker.

Show the boss that you want to get in step with him.

Lonliness is one form of torture om which none escapes.

WOMAN PROSECUTRIX LEAVES AS GRAND JURY ADJOURNS WITH NO REPORT ON ATTACK CHARGE

East Tennessean 3-21-35

"Just what has happened as concerns the case of Charles R. Calloway, white lawyer, on the charge of "attempting to commit criminal assault" on Bessie Johnson, Negro woman, is not a part of the available record, as far as I know," was the statement issued by Attorney Webster Porter, today, and he added, "such is true, notwithstanding the fact I was employed and paid to assist the state in the prosecution of the charges and this fact was definitely known to Attorney General J. Fred Bibb." Knoxville, Tenn.

It is known, however, that the grand jury, which has been in session since the first Monday in March, failed, as far as can be discerned, to issue a report on the case, and whether an indictment was drawn by the attorney general's office, or whether Bessie Johnson, the alleged victim of the attack, was ever summoned to appear before the grand jury could not be learned. Deputy-sheriff Ethel King, whose duty it is to serve subpoenas for the grand jury could not recall, when asked whether he had served a summons on the Negro woman, and just about the time he was endeavoring to answer the query, in walked Eugene Mynatt, whose duty it is to draw the indictments for the grand jury, as secretary to General Bibb, and he too, "knew nothing about the matter."

"In fact," Attorney Porter stated, "it seemed more difficult to secure information concerning the case, wherein I was employed to assist the state, than it was to secure information concerning previous cases wherein I appeared as attorney for defendants charged with serious crimes against white persons."

It is further known that no report appears that would indicate whether the grand jury took any action on the matter. It is further known that the grand jury has adjourned, and still further, it is known that Bessie Johnson, the ignorant Negro woman cook who complained in a most earnest manner that she was the victim of one of the most flagrant and brazen attacks that has come to the attention of the local populace, has left town without conferring with her attorney or letting it be known as to her whereabouts.

According to Patrolman Roach, who with Patrolman Norton, made the arrest of Calloway on the Sunday night in question, when they found the woman in the nude, "Mr. Norton and myself were the only ones to appear before the grand jury," and Officer Roach tells of having been confronted with some sort of a statement signed by the woman.

Reports have been rife, many of which were well founded, of efforts on the part of Calloway and his friends to have the charge dropped for a sum of money. Other reports have been circulated charging that a compromise has been effected in the matter. Read what the LAW OF TENNESSEE HAS TO SAY CONCERNING "COMPOUNDING FELONIES:"

"COMPOUNDING CRIMES. Article II. Section 6691. If any person having knowledge of the commission of any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a limited term of years, take any money or valuable consideration or gratuity, or any promise therefor, upon an agreement or understanding, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, to compound or conceal such offense, or not to prosecute the same, or not to give evidence therefor, he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, and by fine not exceeding five hundred dollars."

The brief facts in connection with the case are outlined as follows to give the readers another opportunity to determine in their own opinion as to whether a crime has been committed:

On Monday morning, February 25, a feminine voice called the law office of Attorney W. L. Porter and stated "this is Bessie Johnson. A white man attacked me while I was returning from church last night and the case against him comes up in city court at 1:30 this afternoon. I want to know what you will charge to represent me there.'

The woman was told to come to the office at twelve o'clock and the matter would be further gone into.

Rev. S. H. Marion, pastor of the Logan Temple A. M. E. Zion church just happened to stop by the office of Attorney Porter at the noon hour and it was while he and the lawyer were conversing that the woman walked in and

(Continued on page 2)

ALITY IN NORTH CARO

JOHNSON QUI

Wins First Honors

GONE!

BESSIE JOHNSON

When Bessie Johnson, young Negro woman, above, posed for this picture at the office of the East Tennessee News, several weeks ago, she told of efforts to "buy her off," as concerns pressing the charge against Charles Calloway in [illegible] On Tuesday Bessie phoned her lawyer that she was summoned to her Alabama home on account of a sick child, "but I'll be right by to see you before I go," she stated. Nothing has been seen or heard of her since.

SORDID STORIES OF TORTURE RELATED TO PROBERS OF PRISON CONDITIONS IN NOR. CAROLINA

RALEIGH, N.C. (by Continental Press)—Stories so sordid as to approximate the incredible, were related to an investigating committee looking into the purported abuses, tortures and deaths of Negro convicts, in Mecklenburg county prison camp No. 413, that Solicitor John G. Carpenter has communicated with Gov. Ehringhaus to arrange for a special term of the Criminal Court in Charlotte so as to bring to account the responsible party or parties in the series of sordid crimes of inhumane treatment.

Among the unbelievable stories related are these:

That Negro convicts have been tortured.

That Negro convicts have been starved.

That feet of Negro convicts have been frozen while chained in dark solitary cells.

That one Negro convict was lashed unmercifully weekly for four consecutive months.

That convicts have been forced to dig secret graves to bury the dead at night.

That half a dozen Negroes are buried secretly near Convict Camp between Blowing Rock and Boone.

"Can Hardly Believe It," avers Dr. Burrus, one of the Committee

"We can hardly believe it," says Dr. J. T. Burrus of High Point, a member of the committee.

"We cannot see how human beings could do the things we are forced to believe they have done. We had no idea things like these existed in North Carolina.

"There must be a change, and at once," says the High Point doctor after listening to the unparalleled recitations of brutality perpetrated allegedly by those in charge at the prison camps.

Disclosures startling in the extreme led the committee to believe that return to the old time last as a corrective measure was far better than the present "torture methods" in vogue in the Tar Heel state.

A former convict, whose name is being withheld, told how "half a dozen" or more Negro convicts lay buried secretly near a moun ain between Blowing Rock a Boone; and how other prisone were forced to dig graves a bury the dead under cover night after other friendless co victs had died while held in so tary confinement in dark cells.

The informant also related detail how two Negro convic Robert Barnes and Woodrow W son Shropshire, had lost both fe because they were frozen fro long exposure while chained dark solitary cells during Jan ary. It was the amputation of t feet of these two convicts whi finally prompted the investig tion.

Another story was related co cerning L. Bogan, whose dea occurred while in solitary co finement last summer. Althou Bogan complained of being guards are alleged to have tak him at night and threatened chain him back in an upright a standing position, "if he did n shut up."

It was also disclosed that t prison or camp physician, Dr. S. McLaughlin, had signed death certificate in which he sa Bogan's death was due "to acu [illegible] so represented in the prison r cords.

Another story cruel and sord in a very strict sense, was rel ed: A Negro convict, Carter name, died in the Mecklenbu County Home following a ser of cruel, unmerciful beatings a ministered each week over a p iod of four consecutive month

The sordid revelations ha shocked even hardened pris officials throughout the sta and various social agenci churches and other interests ha sent in appeals, insisting th state officials, from the govern on down, will exert every infl ence and agency at hand, th the ends of justice will be me A thorough sifting of the who matter has been promised a Gov. Ehringhaus wired Solicit Carpenter he could be depende upon to use his influence t bring about the special sessio so as to determine the facts i the case and mete out justice.

County Schools In Health Program And Art Exhibit

Great interest was manifested in the Blue Ribbon health program conducted by teachers and pupils of Knox county schools in the courthouse auditorium on Saturday morning.

The first prize for a showing of 100 per cent of pupils who have reached the required health standard, was awarded to the Mascot school of which Miss E. Parks is teacher. The second prize was awarded the Armstrong school, of which Miss M. Rathers is teacher, pupils of that school having registered 85 per cent. Mrs. Johnson, of Powell Station, presented the prizes of $7 and $3 respectively, the money having been subscribed by officials of the courthouse.

Mrs. Ford presided at the program on which appeard many interesting numbers by the pupils.

In a short talk delivered at the meeting, Attorney W. L. Porter praised the interest and efforts of Judge S. O. Houston and [illegible] Brickey, Misses Cates Leath an Jackson and the energetic grou because of their earnest interes in promoting such a worthwhi program designed to improve th health conditions of the Negroe of our county.

Prof. Dudley Tanner Speaks.

Following the program at th courthouse the pupils and the teachers attended a moving pi ture show at a Vine Street thea ter and at 1:30 Saturday after noon they joined hundreds of ci tizens of both races to witness th exhibit of needlework, quilts, han painting, weaving, cooking an basketry as was shown at th Lyons View school.

Miss Nellie Ford again presided at a program and after severa selections rendered by students o the different schools, addresses were delivered by Superintendent Brickey, of county schools, Attorney W. L. Porter and Prof. Dudley S. Tanner, of the state deparment of education, and Rev. H. J. Bailey.

One hundred and ninety children were presented certificates for reading by Prof. Brickey, and pins for spelling were presented seventy-five pupils by Prof. Tanner.

Mrs. J. T. Tanner, mother of

BESSIE JOHNSON QUITS TOWN

(Continued from Page 1)

announced: "I am Bessie Johnson—the one who called to employ you for the case in city court this afternoon."

Whereupon she was told to have a seat and proceed to tell of her matter in the presence of the pastor.

The young woman told of having attended church at the Main Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday night and while returning to her room at the home of her employers, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Morris, near Scenic Drive, just off Kingston Pike, at 11:15 at night she was attacked by a white man and outlined the details of the attack and arrest as have been narrated in these columns heretofore.

Attorney Porter accepted the case and in company with Rev. Marion, Rev. H. H. Hubbard, Rev. S. A. Downer and other local ministers, went to city court and there found that the charge of "ATTEMPTED CRIMINAL ASSAULT" as had been written along side of the name of "Jimmy Smith," on the police blotter, had dwindled to one of "drunkenness," and the "Jimmy Smith" had been released on a charge that carried only a $7.50 fine, by bond furnished by City Bondsman Seaton.

As soon as Attorney Porter stept into police headquarters with the young woman, several policemen and court attachees whispered into his ear "his name isn't 'Jimmy Smith,' but Calloway, and he is a young lawyer here."

When the city bondsman attempted to submit "Jimmy Smith" on a drunk charge, Attorney Porter intercepted the scheme by directing the attention of the court to the matter and then presented a warrant containing the charge as had been registered on the police blotter by the arresting officers, Patrolmen Norton and Roach—"ATTEMPTING TO COMMIT CRIMINAL ASSAULT."

Judge Williams then ordered "Jimmy Smith, alias," taken into custody and set the hearing for the following Tuesday afternoon.

In the meantime, it became of general knowledge that the accused attacker of Bessie Johnson was Charles R. Calloway, a white lawyer of the local bar. When he was taken into custody on the "assault" charge, late Monday afternoon, Attorney Porter had gone to his home where he was confined on account of a severe cold.

Calloway called him over the phone and stated:

"I have made a terrible mistake—one that will mean the loss of my job and oust me from my profession, and I want you to help me out. I want to come out to see you right now."

"I am sick and hoarse and I don't want to see anyone. I will be in my office at eight in the morning," Attorney Porter replied.

A short time after, Attorney Cecil Meek called Attorney Porter and told that he was looking after the case for Calloway and he wanted to come out to talk the matter over, to which he was also told that in view of Mr. Porter's illness he would not see any one.

On Tuesday morning as Attorney Porter entered his office, he answered the telephone to receive a call from Mr. Meek seeking a conference on the matter and he suggested a meeting at his office in the Empire building after having been told that Attorney Porter was then on his way to the courthouse.

Matter Called To Attention Of Attorney General.

While Attorney Porter was in the criminal court clerk's office at the courthouse, Attorney General J. Fred Bibb walked in and he was told of the case.

"Charles Calloway is accused of attempting to criminally assault a young Negro girl, general, and he is endeavoring to hush the matter up by paying off," Attorney Porter stated to the attorney general.

"I hadn't heard anything of it," General Bibb replied, and added, "give him hell!"

Upon returning to his office Attorney Porter was confronted by Attorney Cecil Meek and Mr. Sherrell, of the Sherrell Motor Co., former employer of Calloway and his bondsman on the charge that had been preferred in city court.

Attorney Meek employed every reasonable means to have Attorney Porter agree to get in touch with the attorney general's office with a view of settling the matter out of court and failing to do so he then requested that an agreement to pass the case for a later date be entered.

The case was called before Judge Williams and again attorneys for Calloway endeavored to have the case passed. When the judge denied their motion the preliminary hearing was waived o behalf of Calloway and he was bound to the Knox county grand jury under a bond of $2,000.

Even at that time attorney for Calloway was urging Attorney Porter to adjust the matter on a civil action basis which proposition was turned down.

Public Sentiment Aroused.

In the meantime, as news of the treatment accorded the young Negro woman gained circulation expressions from many white persons as well as Negroes, indicated a desire to see justice fairly administered in pressing the charges against Calloway.

Enter The Kyles.

Members of the Ministers' Interdenominational Alliance took immediate action in the matter to the extent of visiting the office of Attorney General Bibb for the purpose of letting him know that the Negro racial group wanted a fair and impartial investigation of the matter.

Various sums of money poured into a fund to pay counsel to assist in prosecuting the accused lawyer. Persons who believed the Johnson woman had been wronged and that she would stand to the last in demanding punishment for her attacker, sent money from out of town as well as in Knoxville. Then suddenly the woman told of the tactics of Frank Kyle and his wife, Della Kyle, wherein they approached her to consider a compromise of the case. The Kyle woman, a sister of Bessie Johnson, is reported to have even sought the assistance of Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Bailey, well known local minister and wife, in an effort to have their aid in persuading the woman to accept a sum of money as a compromise of the matter.

Denies That She Would Quit.

When approached by Attorney Porter with the query as to whether she would listen to the suggestions of Frank and Della Kyle for a compromise, the Johnson woman declared that she would not and expressed a determination to prosecute the matter to the

The Knox county grand jury began its deliberations on the first Monday in March and every report of that body was watched with keen interest in an effort to see whether any action had been taken on the Calloway case. The Johnson woman was notified by Attorney Porter to report to him as soon as she was called before the grand jury and she made a definite promise that she would

Called To Alabama.

On Tuesday morning of this week Bessie Johnson phoned Attorney Porter and informed him that she had a telegram summoning her to her home in Selma, Ala., on account of the illness of some relative.

This notice from the woman came at a time just a few hours before the grand jury adjourned its present session.

"I have got to go to Alabama," she stated, 'cause my child is sick, and I want to know whether you can have my trial put off."

The woman knew at that very time that she had signed some kind of a statement that ended the prosecution.

She stated further that she was about to leave the home of her employer and would come right to the office. The time of this call was near eleven o'clock. Again several ministers, Revs. L. W. Veal, H. H. Hubbard, Bram, D. A. Jackson and S. A. Downer happened to be in the office of Attorney Porter and they were advised of the woman's plans and requested to await her arrival and hear her story.

While it had been generally reported throughout the community that the matter had been ended for a price, this fact was not definately known to her attorney.

In commenting on the situation, Attorney Porter stated:

"I realized full well that all kind of pressure was being brought to bear on the woman to withdraw the charges, but she was so assuring in her talks to me, that she would press them to the very last, I was really surprised that she did employ such a course."

The group of ministers waited for the promised arrival of the woman for more than two hours and as the train on which she said she was to leave came into the station, the suggestion was made that the group go down to discern whether she was really leaving. She did not take the afternoon train and nothing more has been heard of her.

Policeman Roach Talks.

While in city court Wednesday afternoon, Policeman Roach, of the city force, who with Patrolman Norton pulled Calloway out of the car as he sat with the Johnson woman on the night she charges she was attacked, stated to Attorney Porter:

"Mr. Norton and myself were the only ones to go before the grand jury in that case. We couldn't get her to go and she signed a paper and 'they' had it before the grand jury when we were there."

Thus it is that a case that attracted nation-wide attention and proved one of as much interest to decent and lawabiding citizens as any that has ever developed in recent years, ended by leaving those who wish to see justice prevail as concerns all men, "with the bag to hold."

Methodists Urge Group To Face

SOUTHERN METHODIST WHITE WOMAN URGES COLLEAGUES TO FACE EVILS

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (by Continental Press)—A ringing challenge was issued here Thursday morning by Mrs. W. A. Newell, prominent white church leader and Superintendent of the Bureau of Christian Social Relations, in an address before over 200 white women from all sections of the south who were here attending the 25th annual session of the Women's Missionary Council of the Southern Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mrs. J. W. Perry, Chattanooga, Tennessee is president.

Speaking to the delegation assembled at the Centenary Methodist Episcopal church, 1601 Pine Street, Mrs. Newell urged the white women of Southern Methodism to face the future with hope, despite the fact their efforts in the past have not always been productive of the immedi-

SPECIAL
Bed
$5

Lynchings-1935
Reportson.

Crusader News Service

5185

NEWS BUREAU REPORTS SIX LYNCHINGS FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF THE YEAR.

Nashville Tenn.
7-8-35
Nashville, Tenn.

Only One of Victims Charged With "Attack," All Were Colored and All Were in Southern States.

New York—(Special)—From records kept by the Crusader News Service it is disclosed that there were six lynchings for the first six months of 1935, all of them Negroes, and all of them taking place in the South. In only one of the lynchings was the crime of "attack" charged against the victim of the lynching. In not a single one of the lynchings have officers of the law made any effort whatever to apprehend and punish the mob members.

It is believed that the toll of lynchings would have been much greater had not the United States Congress been in session throughout the time, with the threat of a Federal law against lynching ever present.

Not only have local officers in places where lynchings took place failed to do anything about these crimes, but the National Government headed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt has been silent as the tomb in the matter, although it has found more time to undertake the regulation of the affairs of business and the lives of the people of every part of the United States than any administration that has ever been in charge of the Government. Although a much publicized "humanitarian," Negroes of America have become wholly disillusioned over the President's zeal for putting an end to mob violence in this country, notwithstanding the fact that he has had the best opportunity to do something about the lynching evil of any man who has ever served as President.

The following is the lynching record of America for the first six months of 1935, together with the "reasons" for the lynchings:

January 11—Jerome Wilson, Franklinton, La.

Wilson had been convicted of the slaying of Delos Wood, a deputy sheriff, after officers had invaded his house. The lynching took place after the State Supreme Court had ordered a new trial. Wilson was shot to death in his cell; his body was taken from the jail and dumped on the road three miles north of town. Sheriff J. L. Brock said: "There wasn't any lynching. There were just six or eight business men going about their business."

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, -

World Almanac

5187

INDIANAPOLIS, IND
NEWS

JAN 22 1935

Lynchings in 1933

To the Editor of The News:

According to the 1935 World Almanac twenty-eight persons were lynched in the United States in 1933 the latest year for which figures are available. Of this number four were white and twenty-four colored. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Alabama, 3; California, 2; Georgia, 4; Louisiana, 4; Maryland, 1; Mississippi, 3; Missouri, 1; North Carolina, 1; South Carolina, 4; Tennessee, 3, and Texas, 2. It will be noted that all states are southern with the exception of one or perhaps two. Of all those lynched, only the eight murderers could possibly have deserved what they got. Yet society thought it worth while to take the law into its own hands and risk the name of being civilized! The proposed anti-lynching bill must pass congress to protect the United States, and the south in particular, from this great outrage to society. R. K. T.

Indianapolis

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on. Sent Press.

Jan. - June

5176

DES MOINES, IA.
REGISTER
JUL 14 1935

FOUR LYNCHINGS, AND IN THE SAME OLD AREA.

During the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings in the United States.

Those who recall the news stories will recognize that each instance was a disgraceful and indefensible affair. Yet perhaps the fact that there were six during the same period of 1934 and eight during the first half of 1933 should provide a small ray of hope.

All four victims were, of course, Negroes. And if the reader were reminded that the four butcheries occurred in but two states, he ought to require no more than one guess as to which states.

Naturally, Mississippi and Louisiana. These are two of the commonwealths so able to handle the matter that the southern senators filibustered the federal anti-lynching bill to death.

LYNCHBURG, VA.
ADVANCE
JUL 11 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

The lynching record for the first six months of 1935 is ample evidence to refute the necessity of enacting federal legislation designed to control mob action. As a matter of fact, the lynching curse has over a period of years shown a tremendous decline. While in more recent years, one 12-month period may show a small increase over the previous year, yet for decades there has not been anything comparable to the peak reached in 1892 when there were 231 lynchings, 69 of the victims being white persons.

For the first half of 1935 there were only 4 lynchings, according to the figures compiled by the Tuskegee Institute. These were confined to two states—Mississippi and Louisiana. No other commonwealth's name was besmirched by mob violence from January 1 to June 30. Even in Mississippi there was improvement for last year six of the 15 lynchings occurred in that state so that if the present record is maintained for the last six months of the year, Mississippi will have a 33 1-3 per cent improvement.

The adoption of a federal anti-lynching law would not improve matters. In the first place, such proposed legislation is mostly political. It was sponsored purely as a vote-catching device. In the second place it would tend to create intense sectional feelings and might retard rather than help in the solution of the lynching evil. Discussing the methods of combatting mob violence, the Roanoke World-News says:

"In its very nature, lynching is a reversion to barbarism, turning loose the blood lust of an inflamed mob against an unarmed prisoner, acquiesced in, if not actually aided, by pusillanimous public officers. Like many other abuses, it can be absolutely controlled by public opinion. For where public opinion has demanded that members of lynching mobs be prosecuted for the murderers they are, violence of this sort has come to a sudden stop."

Public opinion against lynching has grown rapidly in recent years. Particularly is this true in the South. Virginia for instance, has been almost free of mob murders for many years and there are few citizens who do not favor the courts being permitted to handle all cases which incite the populace to violence. If there is no interference by the federal government, public opinion will continue to manifest a greater desire to punish those who take the law into their own hands.

LOWELL, MASS.
COURIER CITIZEN
JUL 13 1935

FAIR LYNCHING RECORD.

Buried somewhere too deeply to have much chance of disinterment during this session of Congress is the perennial anti-lynching bill. It is probable that if brought to a vote—at any rate, if a roll-call should be ordered—it would be passed. The southern senators, however, uniformly use such parliamentary tactics as seem to be necessary for avoiding a showdown. It is hardly to be doubted that not a few northern members of both houses are more than willing that these tactics should prevail, not approving of the measure, but not caring to go on record as opposing it. Possibly it is a good thing that a bill to this effect comes up at every session, and it may also be well that it is not passed. Probably the fear of federal legislation and the annual agitation of the question put the individual states on their mettle to deal with the matter locally.

On the whole the situation seems to be improving. The Tuskegee Institute report, which is the standard for statistics on this subject, gives the number lynched during the first half of the year as only four, the smallest number since 1932. At this rate the record for that year, the minimum since the Civil war, would be tied. For some reason, however, the second half of the year is likely to be worse than the first, so that there can be no assurance that this exceptional record will be equalled.

Louisiana and Mississippi share equally in the disgrace of this year's lynchings. The sentiment of lawyers and other leading citizens of the former state has been aroused against this evil; but, since Mississippi is the only southern state in which the Negro population exceeds the white, the lower classes of the white population quite naturally, although by no means excusably, feel more the necessity of taking this method to avert any possibility of "Negro domination." Louisiana has not so much of a pretext for Negro lynchings, these being perhaps merely one of the manifestations of a lawlessness that has been prevalent in that state for a good many years.

Bad as any record of lynching is, the statisics, decade by decade, show that the South is advancing toward the solution of its problem. In view of the ineffectiveness of federal intervention in matters wholly within the states, in almost every department of such effort and always when federal laws run contra to public sentiment, one may doubt that a law of Congress would accomplish much that is not already being accomplished by the states.

DEMOCRAT
Logan, W. Va.
JUL 11 1935

Lynchings Fewer In Current Year

In a report from the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, at Tuskegee, Alabama, and which was founded by the late Booker T. Washington and has become one of the foremost schools in the country devoted to the training of colored young men and women, it is shown that during the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings in the country as compared with six for the first six months of 1934, and eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched this year were negroes, the report states, and the offenses charged included one for rape; one for wounding, and two for murder.

Two of the lynchings occurred in Louisiana and two in Mississippi.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.
TIMES
JUL 17 19[illegible]

LYNCHING DECREASES

(Charleston News and Courier)

For the first six months of the year the lynchings, as Tuskegee Institute reports, were only four. There were none in South Carolina. There will be lynchings in future, there will be killings by mob that will not be called lynchings, but they are steadily decreasing in the South.

The passage of the Costigan-Wagner law, which was written by a negro and aimed at the South though introduced by Democrats and not opposed by the White House, would have kindled "race prejudice" and caused more lynchings.

The truth is that the complete abandonment of lynching in the South would probably not promote the aims of the Northern organizations noisily supporting the Costigan-Wagner bill. Occasional outrages against negroes in the South are needed by these people in their propagandic business.

Their plans include much larger purposes than the suppressing of lynchings. What they are opposing is the general assertion of race domination in politics and race separation by the Southern whites. Were no negroes lynched they would have nothing to "dramatize," nothing with which to arouse the interest of the reforming class. Were never a negro lynched in the South the uplifters might forget the existence of the negroes.

Lynchers should suffer the penalties provided for murderers. If not for murdering, they should be punished for making fools of themselves and playing into the hands of the Northern reformers who care little or nothing about a lynching but are working indefatigably and with great skill to destroy all racial barriers and differences in the United States.

Lynching-1935
Reports on, Sen & Press.

Jan.- June

5177

Savannah, Ga., Press
July 3, 1935

LYNCHINGS DECREASE.

F. D. Patterson, the new president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, the colored school founded by Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee, Ala., is adhering to the plan of his predecessors in keeping a record of the lynchings of negroes in different sections of the United States.

He has just issued a statement which shows there were only four lynchings in the United States for the first six months of 1935. Two of these were in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. For the first six months of 1934 the record of President Patterson shows there were six lynchings in the United States. The comparative number has been reduced for that part of 1935 which has passed. This is very gratifying. It is hoped the last half of the year will record even fewer lynchings than did the initial six months.

Lynchings and their cause make an old story in the United States. The trouble about lynching is that when mobs take the law into their own hands they may make innocent parties pay the extreme penalty for crimes that under the statutes are not punishable by death. This was the case in one of the four lynchings reported for this year. A victim of the mob had only wounded another in an altercation.

For one crime, no matter where committed, there will always be a very strong tendency to lynch. Of course it's the wrong theory, but aroused communities do not stop to consider theories when the crime unspeakable is to be avenged.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser
July 5, 1935

GRADUAL, BUT CONSISTENT

Only Mississippi and Louisiana had black marks on their lynching records for the first six months of 1935. In each of these States two Negroes were lynched, according to the regular semi-annual report of Tuskegee Institute.

The four outrages compare with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933, and is in keeping with the gradual, but consistent decline for the last 50 years.

That the decline has continued supports the arguments of those who were opposed to the attempt to revive the Dyer anti-lynching bill made at this session of Congress. Lynching will some day cease altogether, but when it does it will not be the result of law. A practice which is so opposed to the entire theory of law cannot be eradicated by more law. Only a change in the standards of men can be effective.

Tifton, Ga., Gazette
July 3, 1935

4 LYNCHINGS IN SIX MONTHS

Tuskegee, Ala., July 3.—According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, in the department of records and research, in the first six months of 1935, there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number, six, for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number, eight, for the first first six months of 1933.

All the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Eufaula, Ala. Tribune
July 3, 1935

Four Lynchings In First Half Of 1935

According to records kept by Tuskegee Institute, four persons, all negroes, were lynched in the first six months of 1935. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two. Two of the lynchings were in Louisiana and the other two in Mississippi.

New York Herald-Tribune
JUL 4 1935

1935 Lynchings Show Drop

Four Negroes Mob Victims in First Six Months

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3 (AP).—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report, released today, showed that four Negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935, as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation. There were no reports of a white man having been lynched.

Augusta, Ga., Chronicle
July 4, 1935

FOUR LYNCHINGS ARE RECORDED THIS YEAR

Two lynchings in Louisiana and two in Mississipi are, according to information compiled by the Tuskegee Industrial and Normal Institute, the only ones occurring in the United States during the first six months of 1935, and are two less than for the first six months of 1934, and four less than for the same length of time in 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes, according to the report. Charges were: wounding man in altercation, one; assault, one; and murder, two.

Selma, Ala. Times
July 3, 1935

Decrease Reported For Lynching Toll In Southern States

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3.—(AP)—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released today showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man in an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the department of records and research at the negro institution here.

Mobile, Ala., Press
July 4, 1935

LYNCHINGS DECREASE IN SOUTHERN STATES

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 4.—(AP)—Tuskegee institute's semi-annual lynching report, issued yesterday, showed four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth, wounding a man in an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man having been lynched. Tabulation is kept by the department of records and research at the negro institution here.

Albany-Decatur, Ala. Daily
July 3, 1935

Lynching Total Less This Year

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3.—(AP)—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released today showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the department of records and research at the negro institution here.

Selma, Ala. Times
July 3, 1935

According to the Tuskegee records only four persons, all negroes, were lynched during the first half of 1935, two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. It is an excellent showing compared with past records.

Tuskegee Finds Only 6 Lynchings for First 6 Months of 1935.

To the Editor of the AFRO:

I find, according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935, there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934, and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2. The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Knoxville, Tenn., Journal
July 4, 1935

4 Negroes Victims Of Mobs This Year

Mob violence has taken a toll of four lives in the first six months of this year, according to the report of the Tuskegee institute, Tuskegee, Ala. This total is two less than in the first six months of last year, and four less than the total of eight for the same period in 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one, and murder, two. Two of the victims were slain in Louisiana and two in Mississippi.

Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser

4 Lynchings In South Reported By Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE, ALA., July 3.—(AP)—Tuskegee institute's semi-annual lynching report released today showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man's having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the department of records and research at the negro institution here.

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
July 3, 1935

Tuskegee Issues Lynching Report

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3.—(AP)—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released Wednesday showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the Department of Records and Research at the negro institution here.

Glenville, Ga., Sentinel
July 25, 1935

Only Four Lynchings In First Half of 1935

F. D. Patterson, the new presider of th Tuckegee Normal and Indus trial Institute, the colored schoo founded by Booker T. Washington a Tuckegee, Alabama, is adhering t the plan of his predceessors in keep ing a record of lynchings in differ ent sections of th United States.

He has just issued a statemen which shows there were only fou lynchings in the United States fo the first six months of 1935. Tw of these were in Louisiana and tw in Mississippi. For the first si months of 1934 the record of Presi dent Patterson shows there were six lynchings in the United States

All the persons lynched in 193 were negroes. The offenses charg ed were: rape 1, wounding man i altercation 1. murder 2.

Cherokean
Rusk, Tex.

JUL 12 1935

LYNCHING RECORD

The TuskegeeNormal and Industrial institute of Alabama, founded by Booker T. Washington, devoted to the training of colored men and women, point out that there were only four lynchings for the first six months if 1935.

This is two less than the number six for the first six during 1934 and four less than the eight for the first six months in 1933.

All persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two. Two of these were in Louisiana and two in Mississippi.

One crime that America must rid herself of is lynching. It is the biggest blot on our national record, unless it be the number of deaths in automobile accidents, which exceed the World War toll.

DUBLIN, GA.
NEWS TRIBUNE
JUL 15 1935

LYNCHINGS ON THE DECREASE

ONLY four lynchings occurred in the South during the first six months of the present year, according to an announcement from the Tuskegee Institute, two of these being in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. During the same period last year there were six lynchings.

Oddly enough, only one of the lynchings was for the crime for which many Southerners claim lynching is justifiable; three were for other offenses, showing that the nature of the crime is not always the governing motive.

The fact that lynchings are on the decrease is most gratifying, since they represent one of the most brutal forms of outlawry and one in which mistakes are easy to make, but the fact should not be forgotten that one of the prime incentives for this form of lawlessness lies in the laxity of law enforcement in many quarters.

To remove the lynch evil, and many other evils connected with defiance of law, there must be created a condition under which the general public will feel reasonably certain that criminals will be adequately punished by legal means.

To create confidence of this nature will require greater efficiency on the part of arresting officers, far better results in the prosecution of the lawless, and a greater degree of certainty that penalties will be carried out once the criminal has been convicted.

In the development of a condition of this nature, the people as a whole bear a large measure of responsibility. They must stand squarely behind a program of this character if it is to be made effective.

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C.
TELEGRAM
JUL 16 1935

MISSISSIPPI JUSTICE

It is difficult to see why people in a state like Mississippi, in which the penalty for criminal assault—a Negro upon a white woman—ultimately would end in death for the offender just as fast as the machinery of the courts could be set in action, continue to take the law into their own hands in the barbaric business of taking prisoners from the officers and hanging them to trees. We would not for a moment condone the black person who leaps from behind a rock or a tree and, in brutal manner, commits an assault; and we would not preach abolition of the severity of the laws governing this act, but we would enter a plea for humans, at least on one side of the question to act civilized and not carry the whole thing back into the stages of barbarism. If a person bent upon committing such a crime cannot be terrified enough by visions of a judge, jury, and the ultimate electric chair, then the thought of bloodhounds and men with the noose can hardly be expected to provoke any additional fear. The crime of assault is deplorable; the method of punishment is the same.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.
TIMES JOURNAL
JUL 6 1935

Still Room For Improvement

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offienses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

This record is a bit encouraging as it shows a decrease over preceding years, yet, there is still room for improvement.

MANKATO, MINN.
FREE PRESS
JUL 8 1935

Reassuring Sign

There are other reassuring signs besides those contained in business barometers.

Tuskegee Institute reports that for the first six months of 1935 there were but four lynchings. This compares with six during the same half-year period in 1934 and eight during this six-month in 1933. All of the persons lynched were Negroes—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. One was charged with wounding a man, one with rape, two with murder.

It is an encouraging sign when respect for law, balance and tolerance makes progress in a nation. What an achievement if we could go through the last six months of 1935 without a single lynching!

Robesonian
Lumberton, N.C.
JUL 8 1935

During the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings, according to records compiled at Tuskeegee institute. This compares favorably with the 6 lynchings for the first six months of 1934 and 8 for the same period in 1933. All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were wounding man in altercation, 1; rape 1, murder 2. Two of the lynchings were in Louisiana, two in Mississippi.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

JAN.-June

5178

5178

LYNCHINGS DECREASE

The Records and Research department of Tuskegee Institute, Ala., reports four lynchings during the first half of 1935—all of the victims Negroes, all occurring in the south. While this is less than in 1934 or 1933, the number is too many at any rate.

When the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill was before congress last spring, senators from the section where these lynchings occurred were loudest to be heard in the appeal that this was a matter of local government and could best be dealt with by the individual states.

They had made this appeal before and made it work. They argued that anti-lynching legislation was unconstitutional and made it work, but lynchings go on just the same.

Undoubtedly continued agitation has had much to do with cutting down the number of lynchings. The fight must and will go on.

EUFAULA, ALA.
TRIBUNE
JUL 3 1935

Four Lynchings In First Half Of 1935

According to records kept by Tuskegee Institute, four persons, all negroes, were lynched in the first six months of 1935. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two. Two of the lynchings were in Louisiana and the other two in Mississippi.

COLUMBUS, O.
OHIO STATE JOURNAL
JUL 8 1935

The Lynching Record

Editor Ohio State Journal:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934 and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON.
President, Tuskegee Normal Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

BRYAN, TEX.
EAGLE
JUL 4 1935

FOUR NEGROES LYNCHED FIRST HALF OF 1935

Four lynchings during the first six months of 1935 have been reported to Tuskegee Institute. This is two less than for a similar period in 1934 and four less than for the first half of 1933. All the lynched were negroes. Mississippi and Louisiana each reported two of the lynchings.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
JOURNAL COURIER
JUL 10 1935

LYNCHING RECORD.

To the Editor:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1924; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President,
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Grand Rapids, Mich.
HERALD
JUL 8 1935

Lynchings Show Decrease Under Last Year

Editor of he Herald: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute.

DENISON, TEX.
HERALD
JUL 6 1935

FOUR LYNCHED IN FIRST HALF 1935

Four lynchings occurred during the first six months of 1935, according to the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute at Tuskegee, Ala. Six lynchings occurred during the corresponding period of 1934 and eight during the same period of 1933.

All the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding a man in an altercation, 1; criminal assault, 1, and murder, 2. Two of the lynchings occurred in Louisiana and two in Mississippi.

COLUMBUS, O.
CITIZEN
JUL 6 1935

Tuskegee's Record Of 1935 Lynchings

Editor of Citizen:

I SEND you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find, according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number, six, for the first six months of 1934, and four less than the number, eight, for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation one; rape, one; murder, two.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, two; Mississippi, two.—F. D. Patterson, President, Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
STATES
JUL 15 1935

Lynchings Decrease

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE reports only four lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1935. If the second six months are as favorable as the first, the year's record would be one of the best of all time, only once before since 1885 the total being only the same.

One of the regrettable facts is that for the half year, two of the four were furnished by Mississippi and two by Louisiana. Louisiana has had occasions when there were none and in some years the number has been very small. But Mississippi generally has made a bad showing, possibly because its population is so largely rural.

In 1934, there were 15 cases of mob law; in 1933, 28. For each year since 1931, the total has ranged from 10 to 33, the large majority negroes. In 1932, the heaviest record was made, 231 lynchings, of which 69 of the victims were white. On the whole, therefore, we have been making progress.

This year marked the Southern filibuster that resulted in the defeat of the WAGNER-COSTIGAN bill, both authors Democrats. In most other cases antilynching bills have been introduced by Republicans and chiefly supported by the Republican party. This year a goodly number of Democrats declared themselves in favor of having the federal government take jurisdiction of lynchings.

There is reason to believe that the fight over the COSTIGAN bill may have had some influence in curbing the mob outbreaks during the first half of 1935. If it did, that wasn't a bad thing. The fewer number of lynchings the less frequently will effort be made to take from the South its right alone to try murderers in its different states.

HOUSTON, TEX.
POST
JUL 5 1935

Lynching Declines

LYNCHING in the United States is steadily on the decline, as shown by the semi-annual report compiled by the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute.

According to the report, the four lynchings that have taken place in the first six months of 1935 is well below the record of recent years, two less than in the corresponding period of 1934, and four less than in 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. Two were charged with murder, one with rape and one with wounding a man in an altercation. Louisiana and Mississippi were the scenes of the crimes, two negroes being lynched in each State.

The better showing is due in part, no doubt, to greater vigilance on the part of officers in foiling mobs. Officers are showing a greater sense of responsibility in protecting prisoners and greater determination in holding off mobs. Greater discretion is being used in the handling of prisoners by avoiding exposing them to mob violence.

Also, as a result of organized protests by various bodies, anti-lynching sentiment has been aroused. Threat of a Federal anti-lynching law which would penalize counties where lynching occurs is another discouragement to mob violence.

The four lynchings in the first six months of 1935 were comparatively few, but just four too many. Considering all the forces that are working to abolish the lynching evil, there is room to hope that this form of crime will soon be a thing of the past. Continued education against lynching and greater vigilance on the part of officers, however, are necessary for the realization of that hope.

DULUTH, MINN.
NEWS TRIBUNE
JUL 9 1935

Mob Murder

Gruesome records compiled at Tuskegee Institute show that there were four lynchings by insensate mobs during the first six months of this year. All the persons lynched were Negroes, two of whom were killed in Louisiana and two in Mississippi.

This is two less than the number six, for the first six months of 1934. Though the record is better this year, it does not necessarily mean that the crime of lynching is dying out. It may be more for the last half of the year, and even more next year.

The South succeeded in defeating the Costigan anti-lynching bill which would have made states and counties responsible for lynchings. Nothing has been done to prevent mob murder in the future.

The Costigan bill might not have ended lynching entirely, but it was a step in the right direction. Lynching is a blot on American civilization, and no good citizen will condone it.

WINTER HAVEN, FLA.
CHIEF
Lynchings
JUL 11 1935

BETTERING OUR LYNCHING RECORD.

We are extremely pleased to note that lynchings in America have reached their lowest record in years, possibly in the history of this shameful method of supposedly settling differences between the white and negro races. There were four lynchings in the country during the first six months of 1935, and only two states were disgraced by such occurrences, Louisiana and Mississippi having two each. This was a reduction by two in the number of lynchings as compared with the first half of 1934 and by four for a similar period in 1933. The consciousness of the Christian citizenship in the South—and throughout the entire nation, for that matter—has been aroused in recent years over the brutality and bestiality of these occurrences and as a result there has been a marked decrease when compared with the records of 10, 20 and 30 years ago. The heartening thing about it all is that the southern states are most vigorous in denouncing this evil and southern newspaper editors most vehement in fighting it, in which respect they have shown a more courageous spirit than any other section of the country. For lynching has not been confined to Dixie by any means, a number of the northern and western states having also been guilty of killing whites as well as blacks for various causes, none of which were even excusable in a land where courts are numerous and where justice is supposed to be meted out under due process of law. The churches of the country have taken the lead in fighting this sinister evil which strikes at the roots of our civilization and the battle is being won even in states where lack of education, extreme race prejudice and the general backwardness of rural people are most prevalent and dominant. We are hoping that the second half of 1935 will show a further reduction—it cannot be a perfect record, for one lynching has occurred in a southern state since July 1—and that by 1936 we shall have the satisfaction of reporting that America has finally become a "Lynchless Nation."

WORCESTER, MASS.
GAZETTE
JUL 6 1935

Encouraging Figures on Lynching

It is encouraging to learn that the lynching record, over a period of years, is growing less disgraceful. During the first six months of this year, the Tuskegee Institute reports, there were only four of these mob murders. That figure, it appears, is two less than the record for the same period last year, and is four less than during the first half-year in 1933.

True, the eight lynchings during the first six months of 1933 were increased to twenty-eight, before the year ended. But 1933 was a "bad" year, the worst for this crime since 1926. And during the last eleven years, the average number of lynchings shows a very appreciable decline.

This offense still is too common by far. But the awakened sentiment of the nation, and particularly of the more intelligent portions of the South, is clearly making its influence felt. If the crime can be reduced, by focusing public attention upon it, presumably it can be wiped out in time.

But the movement has not yet reached a point where those who are interested in making this a slightly more civilized nation can afford to relax their effort. Lynching may be only one aspect of the complicated problem of racial hostility. But the difficulty of getting a sane adjustment of the race question will be reduced materially, if the time ever comes when lynching will be as unknown in Mississippi as it is in Massachusetts.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.
VINDICATOR
JUL 8 1935

The Lynching Record for the First Six Months of 1935

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, July 3.
Editor of The Vindicator, Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, two, and Mississippi, two.

F. D. PATTERSON, President.

COLUMBUS, O.
DISPATCH
JUL 8 1935

Fewer Lynchings

AUTHORITIES of Tuskegee Institute, one of the foremost institutions of learning for the colored race in America, has for years devoted much effort toward curbing the evil of lynching.

The semi-annual report of happenings of this nature, just released by the institute, reveals that four Negroes met death by lynching during the first half of this year, as against six for the corresponding period last year.

Those reported were in the southern states where the majority of such crimes have always happened. The decrease in lynchings is encouraging. The constant drive on this form of atrocity is apparently bearing some fruit.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press

Jan.-June

5179

UTICA, N. Y.
PRESS
JUL 9 1935

MAY BECOME MORE ACUTE

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., keeps a record of lynchings in this country. In a recent report it says that there were two less lynchings in the first half of 1935 than during the same period of 1934. For the first six months of 1934 there were six lynchings and for the first six months of 1935 four. All the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two.

It is unfortunate that the crime of lynching obtains at all in this country, but it is a satisfaction to note that it is decreasing. It will be observed that all the lynchings reported were of Negroes, which proves that lynching has its inspiration in embittered race feeling. It is seldom that a white man, no matter how henious his crime, is lynched. The law should be allowed to take its course in connection with the black as well as the white man.

But a decline in the lynching record is a sign of better human relationships. The Negro is a tragic figure in American history. Brought here against his will, for generations he was subject to slavery. Emancipation did not greatly improve his lot, due to the prejudice of the whites against him. Given a chance he has shown excellent capacity and he has made considerable advancement in recent years. During the depression he has probably been harder hit than any other class. What to do with the Negro is one of the unsolved problems of the country. Should he be colonized and segregated, or absorbed?

In this connection it is not untimely to mention the conclusion arrived at by George Bernard Shaw, who can always be depended upon to suggest the most bizarre remedy for any condition. Shaw has just returned from a visit to South Africa, where he studied the race problem. He maintains that the white man is not suited to Africa and that if he wants to survive, there should be intermarriage between the blacks and whites. The latter would be better off, he says, if they had a little more color. But Shaw is so bizarre himself that no one can tell whether he is indulging in satire or expressing his own convictions.

The problem that derives from differences in color is one that is liable to become more acute as time advances. A phase of it is represented by the war which Italy threatens against Ethiopia.

[redacted]
SUN
JUL 6 1935

The Lynching Record.

The country's record on lynchings for the first six months of the year shows an improvement. The Tuskegee Institute's figures disclose that there were four lynchings in the period. All the victims were Negroes. One victim was accused of wounding a man in an altercation, one was accused of rape and two were accused of murder.

Only two states were involved in the record. There was an equal division of the lynchings between Mississippi and Louisiana.

The improvement comes in the fact that for six months of last year the lynchings numbered six, or one for every month. In the same period of 1933 the number was eight.

Probably having nothing to do with the record but interesting in connection with it, anti-lynching legislation was a subject of bitter debate in Congress in the first half of the year.

Charleston, S. C. News & Courier
July 7, 1935

Lynching Decreases

For the first six months of the year the lynchings, so Tuskegee Institute reports, were only four. There was none in South Carolina. There will be lynchings in future, there will be killings by mob that will not be called lynchings, but they are steadily decreasing in the South.

The passage of the Costigan-Wagner law, which was written by a negro and aimed at the South, though introduced by Democrats and not opposed by the White House, would have kindled "race prejudice" and caused more lynchings.

The truth is that the complete abandonment of lynching in the South would probably not promote the aims of the Northern organizations noisily supporting the Costigan-Wagner bill. Occasional outrages against negroes in the South are needed by these people in their propagandic business.

Their plans include much larger purposes than the suppressing of lynchings. What they are opposing is the general assertion of race domination in politics and race separation by the Southern whites. Were no negroes lynched they would have nothing to "dramatize," nothing with which to arouse the interest of the reforming class. Were never a negro lynched in the South the uplifters might forget the existence of the negroes.

Lynchers should suffer the penalties provided for murderers. If not for murdering, they should be punished for making fools of themselves and playing into the hands of the Northern reformers who care little or nothing about a lynching but are working indefatigably and with great skill to destroy all racial barriers and differences in the United States.

Roanoke, Ala., Leader
July 10, 1935

Lynching Record For First Half Of Year

The following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year is given out by the Tuskegee Institute's Department of Records and Research, showing that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings in this country. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Orangeburg, S. C., Democrat
July 6, 1935

Lynchings Fewer First Half Year

There were fewer lynchings recorded in this country during the first six months of the present year than in the same period last year and also the year prior to that.

The record as compiled at Tuskeegee Institute reveals there were only 4 lynchings during the first half of 1935. There were 6 during the same period last year and 8 during the first half of 1933..

All of the persons lynched were Negroes, and of the four only one was charged with criminal assault on a white woman.

All of the lynchings occurred in the southern states. Two took place in Louisiana and 2 in Mississippi.

Jasper, Fla., News
July 5, 1935

LYNCHINGS

For the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings in the South, 1 for an altercation, 1 for rape, and 2 for murder. Louisiana accounted for 2 and Mississippi 2. This is two less than for the same period last year.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
DEMOCRAT & CHRONICLE
JUL 9 1935

Tuskegee Head Gives Facts on Lynchings

Editor Democrat and Chronicle:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Oneida, Tenn. News
July 5, 1935

HALF YEAR LYNCHING RECORD IS REPORTED

All Lynchings Were Negroes in Two Southern States.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research for the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN

JUL 6 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

To the Editor of The Republican:—I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933. All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, two and Mississippi, two. F. D. PATTERSON.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., July 3, 1935.

Brooklyn, N. Y. Citizen

JUL 12 1935

Fewer Lynchings

To Editor of "Brooklyn Citizen":

Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, two, and Mississippi, two.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
DAILY SIFTINGS HERALD
JUL 17 1935

Good Lynching Record in U. S.

Only our Crimes of This Kind Past Six Months

During the six months period, from January to the end of June, there were only four lynchings in the United States, according to figures given out by the Tuskegee Norma land Industrial Institute, in Alabama. President F. D. Patterson says:

"I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 193g there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi 2.

EDITORIALS

Lynching Increases at a Rapid Rate

ON JUNE 30th Tuskegee Institute's department of Records and Research reported that four lynchings had taken place in the United States during the first six months of the year. The International Labor Defense, an organization that also keeps check upon mob murders, reported six.

Since June 30th six lynchings have occurred. Three in Mississippi, one in Florida, one in North Carolina and one in California. According to the more conservative check of the Tuskegee statisticians the total is now 10. The record according to states is:

Mississippi	5
Louisiana	2
Florida	1
North Carolina	1
California	1
Total	10

The fact that more lynchings have occurred during the past 40 days than were reported for the first six months of the year would lend weight to the suggestion that the incidence of a pending Federal anti-lynching law had a restraining effect. There may be no connection, but as soon as the COSTIGAN-WAGNER bill was filibustered to death mob killings made a fresh start toward a new high record for recent years.

It is coincident that one of the most recent lynchings took place in the State of Senator BAILEY, one of those most responsible for the filibuster.

We may never have a Federal law to prevent and punish lynchers, because of the tenacity with which Southern members of Congress hold to their opposition, but the record of the past 40 days is an impressive argument in behalf of such a measure.

So is the outcome of the investigation thus far of the North Carolina lynching. The recent episode in Franklin county is turning out very much like the Pender county [N. C.] lynching and investigation of 1933.

Neither the sheriff nor any of his deputies recognized anybody in either mob, according to their testimony, and the Franklin county affair took place in broad daylight with none of the mob members wearing disguises of any sort. According to the sworn testimony of the officers both the Pender and Franklin county mobs "must have come from another county."

That has been the testimony of officers concerning most mobs during recent years. They were "strangers" to the peace officers, who naturally could not identifiy any of the mob members.

That raises another question that should concern the higher authorities. Either peace officers have resorted to an unbeatable trick, or the higher authorities are up against an invisible government, an extra-judicial system, tightly organized and operating with better facility than the State militia.

When a mob from an adjoining county can be gotten on the scene of a crime as quickly as was true of the last North Carolina lynching—if the mob came from an adjoining county—and can intercept with such unerring precision officers speeding to a safe jail with their prisoner, the State authorities may as well begin to look for organized mobbery having a swift liaison and a working understanding with somebody connected with the law If that is not the situation, then the peace officers who have figured in recent investigations of lynchings are totally unacquainted with people in their jurisdictions, or, they become suddenly blind in the presence of a mob, if their testimony is to be believed.

Nothing but a law that puts the responsibility for a lynching squarely up to a county can cure a situation like that. If a county is liable to be penalized its peace officers are going to protect their prisoners from mobs, or lose their political standing.

It has been demonstrated that any sheriff that really wants to prevent a lynching can do so. More lynchings were prevented by peace officers in 1934 than occurred in that year. That is a record that speaks for itself. And not one of the sheriffs or other officers that prevented a lynching had to shoot this determination into the mob.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

JUL 6 1935

Only Four Lynchings In The First Half Of 1935

Slowly, so slowly, does man see civilization advance. But once in a while there is brought to his attention something that makes him take grip once more and renew his faith in mankind's ability to move forward.

From Tuskegee Institute comes a report that is most gratifying. During the first six months of 1935 there were only four lynchings in the United States as compared to six in 1934 and eight in 1933 for the same period. So far this year there have been two Negroes lynched in Mississippi and two in Louisiana.

Surely some day lynchings will cease altogether. But it will not be the result of law. For, says The Montgomery Advertiser, "a practice which is so opposed to the entire theory of law cannot be eradicated by more law. Only a change in the standards of men can be effective."

The decline in the number of lynchings has been constant during the past half century. And when that day comes when lynching is entirely a thing of the past man may well feel pride in having taken a long step forward.

WILLIAMSON, W. VA.
NEWS

JUL 18 1935

Fewer Lynchings

THE REGISTER is furnished with the usual semi-annual report concerning lynchings by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institution for colored people. There were four lynchings in the first six months of 1935 which is two less than for the like period of 1934 and four less than for the like period of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two. Two of the lynchings occurred in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. The improvement in the record is pleasing but it will not be satisfactory until lynchings are a thing completely of the past.

Lynchings—1935
Reports on. Sent Press.

Jan.- June

5180

Welumpka, Ala., Herald
July 4, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS 1935

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months in 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. Th offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT

JUL 6 1935

LYNCHING RECORD

Four Reported During First Six Months of This Year

To the Editor of the Courant:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933. All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala. July 2, 1935.

Bristol, Va.. News-Bulletin
July 3, 1935

LYNCHING DECREASES

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3. (AP)—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released today showed that four Negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 193[illegible] compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were accused of murder, one of criminal assault, and the fourth of wounding a man during an altercation.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
BULLETIN

JUL 8 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST HALF, 1935

To the Editor, Evening Bulletin:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offences charged were: wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, two, and Mississippi, two.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Evergreen, Ala., Courant
July 4, 1935

FOUR LYNCHINGS DURING FIRST HALF OF YEAR

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, Mississippi, 2.

Thomasville, Ga.. Times-Enterprise
July 4, 1935

DECREASED LYNCINGS

The first six months of the year 1935 show fewer lynchings than in many half year periods, according to reports from the Tuskegee Institute. The record gives four lynchings in 1935 ,two of which took place in Mississippi and two in Louisiana. Murder was charged to two of the victims, rape to one and wounding a man in an altercation was the fourth reason. There were six for the same period in 1934 and eight in 1933.

The Tuskegee Institute carefully surveys the country and prepares these statements with the idea of keeping the people of the country informed as to the volume of illegal executions that occur in all sections of the country. The greater number of lynchings are in the south, in fact practically all of them and in most cases they are negroes.

It is well to keep these figures in mind. In years past it mounted to unbelievable proportions but it is nothing compared with the slayings that occur in strike clashes, in gang killings and things of that type that are peculiarly characteristic of the eastern and middle west sections of the country. It is a southern custom apparently but it is waning for which we all feel grateful and thankful.

Valdosta, Ga., Times
July 6, 1935

LYNCHINGS DECREASE

From the office of the president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute comes the information that for the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings in the United States. For the same period of 1934 the number was six and for the first six months of 1933 the number was eight.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. Offenses with which they were charged were: Rape, one; murder, two, and wounding a man in an altercation, one.

The states in which the lynchings occurred were Louisiana and Mississippi. Each state had two.

These figures are significant. A few years ago the number put to death by lynching was several times as great.

The most common offense for which lynchings occur is rape. It is interesting to note that this charge was made in only one of the four recorded cases.

There are probably several explanations for this marked decrease in lynchings. One is that the offenses for which men have often beeen lynched in the past are not now so numerous. Another is the fact that more and more people are inclined to give the law an opportunity to punish the offender.

Regardless of what the cause for the decrease to one who wants to see law and order prevail in the place of mob violence the smaller number of such occurrences is encouraging.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
STAR

JUL 8 1935

LYNCHING DECREASES

(Charleston News & Courier)

For the first six months of the year the lynchings, so Tuskegee Institute reports, were only four. There was none in South Carolina. There will be lynchings in future, there will be killings by mob that will not be called lynchings, but they are steadily decreasing in the South.

The passage of the Costigan-Wagner law, which was written by a negro and aimed at the South, though introduced by democrats and not opposed by the White House, would have kindled "race prejudice" and caused more lynchings.

The truth is that the complete abandonment of lynching in the South would probably not promote the aims of the Northern organizations noisily supporting the Costigan-Wagner bill. Occasional outrages against negroes in the South are needed by these people in their propagandic busuiness.

Their plans include much larger purposes than the suppressing of lynchings. What they are opposing is the general assertion of race domination in politics and race separation by the Southern whites. Were no negroes lynched they would have nothing to "dramatize," nothing with which to arousue the interest of the reforming class. Were never a negro lynched in the South the uplifters might forget the existence of the negroes.

Lynchers should suffer the penalties provided for murderers. If not for murdering, they should be punished for making fools of themselves and playing into the hands of the Northern reformers who care little or nothing about a lynching but are working indefatigably and with great skill to destroy all racial harriers and differences in the United States.

CLEARWATER, FLA.
SUN

JUL 7 1935

To COLONEL CLEARWATER

I SEND you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, two, and Mississippi, two.

F. D. PATTERSON, President,
Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.
TIMES

JUL 9 1935

Contemporary Comment

LYNCHING'S MINIMUM

If anything of an encouraging nature can be derived from statistics of lynching, the record for the first half of the current year may be said to be encouraging in two respects. Only two of the 48 states were shamed by the perpetration of mob murder, and the total number of such killings was the lowest on record, we believe, for any half-year reported.

Mississippi and Louisiana are the only two states that proved unable to give accused citizens the orderly trial that is guaranteed by the constitution, and each of the derelict pair of commonwealths has two mob murders charged against it. We believe that no half-year since the Tuskegee Institute began the work of compiling lynching statistics has reported so few guilty states. For six months at least the lynching evil has been compressed into a narrow territory at the mouth of the Mississippi river.

The first six months of 1933 produced eight lynchings and the first six months of 1934 produced six. Thus in two years' time the total number of lynchings has been reduced by half. A similar decrease in number for the next two years would terminate this vicious evil entirely. While the hope for such an eventuality is a fairly faint one, there is at least the possibility that lynching may be ended presently throughout the United States.

From this abbreviated number of lynchings in the last six months comes a rather formidable support for the assertion that it was the presence of the anti-lynching law in congress that reduced the number of lynchings. It has been asserted freely that the fear that the punitive bill might become a law kept more than one mob from outraging statutory law. Whatever the reason the number of lynchings reached its minimum. Hence the supporters of the anti-lynching measure have warrant for feeling that if the mere possibility of the bill's passage can reduce the number of mass murders to within sight of the vanishing point, the actual passage of the bill would terminate lynching completely.

Even if congressional action is never taken, lynching is doomed in the United States. Enlightened public opinion and nation-wide detestation of this cowardly manifestation will ultimately bring it to an end. Determined public opinion will force constituted authority to protect every defendant and give him the orderly trial to which he is entitled.—Oklahoma City Oklahoman.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
ITEM

JUL 8 1935

We Show Badly

FOUR lynchings are scored against this Country for the first half of this year. This is two less than the first six months of 1934 showed, and four less than 1933. That is good so far as it goes as perhaps a sign of some progress in civilization.

Two of the four lynchings this year are charged against Lousiana and the other two against Mississippi. That is decidedly bad—for our territory. We deplore it and are properly ashamed of it. A monopoly on this form of surviving savagery is injurious advertising.

State, county, and parish, police authorities of Louisiana and Mississippi should take note of it. The prime reflection of it falls on them.

Oklahoma City, Okla.
OKLAHOMAN

JUL 8 1935

Lynching's Minimum

IF anything of an encouraging nature can be derived from statistics of lynching, the record for the first half of the current year may be said to be encouraging in two respects. Only two of the 48 states were shamed by the perpetration of mob murder, and the total number of such killings was the lowest on record, we believe, for any half-year reported.

Mississippi and Louisiana are the only two states that proved unable to give accused citizens the orderly trial that is guaranteed by the constitution, and each of the derelict pair of commonwealths has two mob murders charged against it. We believe that no half-year since the Tuskegee Institute began the work of compiling lynching statistics has reported so few guilty states. For six months at least the lynching evil has been compressed into a narrow territory at the mouth of the Mississippi river.

The first six months of 1933 produced eight lynchings and the first six months of 1934 produced six. Thus in two years' time the total number of lynchings has been reduced by half. A similar decrease in number for the next two years would terminate this vicious evil entirely. While the hope for such an eventuality is a fairly faint one, there is at least the possibility that lynching may be ended presently throughout the United States.

From this abbreviated number of lynchings in the last six months comes a rather formidable support for the assertion that it was the presence of the anti-lynching law in congress that reduced the number of lynchings. It has been asserted freely that the fear that the punitive bill might become a law kept more than one mob from outraging statutory law. Whatever the reason the number of lynchings reached its minimum. Hence the supporters of the anti-lynching measure have warrant for feeling that if the mere possibility of the bill's passage can reduce the number of mass murders to within sight of the vanishing point, the actual passage of the bill would terminate lynching completely.

Even if congressional action is never taken, lynching is doomed in the United States. Enlightened public opinion and nationwide detestation of this cowardly manifestation will ultimately bring it to an end. Determined public opinion will force constituted authority to protect every defendant and give him the orderly trial to which he is entitled.

Sparta, Ga., Ishmaelite
July 18, 1935

NUMBER LYNCHINGS SHOWN TO BE LESS

The lynching record for the first six months of 1935, made public by the research department of the Tuskeegee Industrial Institute, shows that there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number for the first six months of 1934, and 4 less than the number for the first six months of 1934. All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape 1, and murder 1. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana 2, Mississippi 2.

Fitzgerald, Ga., Herald
July 19, 1935

Only Four Lynchings In First Half of 1935

F. D. Patterson, the new president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industria Institute, the colored school founded by Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee, Ala. is adhering to the plan of his predecessors in keeping a record of lynchings in different sections of the United States.

He has just issued a statement which shows there were only four lynchings in the United States for the first six months of 1935. Two of these were in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. For the first six months of 1934 the record of President Patterson shows there were six lynchings in the United States

Lynchings – 1935
Reports on. Sent Press.

Jan. – June

5181

Waycross, Ga., Georgian
July 9, 1935

Four Lynchings 1st 6 Months 1935

129

F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Norman and Industrial Institute, announces that there were 4 lynchings during the first six mos. of 1935, which is two less than the number for the first six months of 1934, and 4 less than the number for the same perod of 1933.

All the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were wounding man in altercation,1; rape, 1; and murder, 2, according to the president of Tuskegee.

Abbeville, Ala., Herald
July 11, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS, 1935

I send you the folowing information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana,2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. Patterson,
President, Tuskegee Inetitute

Dawson, Ga., News
July 18, 1935

ONLY FOUR LYNCHINGS IN FIRST HALF OF 1935

MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA ONLY STATES IN WHICH VIOLENCE OCCURRED.

F. D. Patterson, the new president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, the colored school founded by Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee, Alabama, is adhering to the plan of his predecessors in keeping a record of lynchings in different sections of the United States.

He has just issued a statement which shows there were only four lynchings in the United States for the first six months of 1935. Two of these were in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. For the first six months of 1934 the record of President Patterson shows there were six lynchings in the United States.

All the persons lynched in 1935 were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation 1, rape 1, murder 2.

Jellico, Tenn., Advance-Sentinel
July 12, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS 1935

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskogee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

MOB LAW SHOWS DECLINE IN 1935

Washington Tribune

Mississippi and Louisiana Only States in Which Lynchings Occur

Washington D. C.

There were only four lynchings in the first six months of 1935, according to the records in the Department of Records and Research, Tuskegee Institute, and released this week by F. D. Patterson, president.

This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934 and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2. and Mississippi, 2.

St. Matthews, S. C., Times
July 11, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS 1935

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first 6 months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 3 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occured and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

La Follette, Tenn., Press
July 9, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF THIS YEAR

The following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each States are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

Harriman, Tenn. Record
July 11, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FOR SIX MONTHS OF 1935

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research there were four lynchings in the first six months of 1935.

This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

Crossville, Tenn. Chronicle
July 11, 1935

Lynching Record for First Six Months 1935

Information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year is as follows according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of Records and Research: The first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number of 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number of 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

West Point, Ga. News
July 4, 1935

Lynching Record For the First 6 Months of 1935

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number 6 for the first six month of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynching occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Clanton, Ala., News
July 11, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1935

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6, for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8, for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Augusta, Ga. Herald
July 14, 1935

TUSKEGEE'S PRESIDENT RELEASES LYNCHING RECORD

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE. — President F. D. Patterson, of Tuskegee Institute, has released the figures of the Department of Records and Research on the subject of lynchings during the first six months of 1933.

The release states that there were four lynchings during the first six months of this year as against 6 for a similar period in 1934 and 8 in 1933. All of the persons lynched were negroes, with Louisiana and Mississippi being the offending states with two lynchings each.

The offenses charged were the wounding of man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

Six lynchings are definitely recorded for the first six months of 1935 in a report just issued by the International Labor Defense. Four took place in Mississippi and two in Louisiana and a seventh negro has "disappeared" from Birmingham, Ala.

One of the men was accused of attempted rape; two died as results of efforts to organize workers; a fourth because he drew a knife in self-defense; another because he had been charged with shooting the local attorney, and the sixth because a white man wanted his property.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
STAR

JUL 5 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Lynchings for the six months of the current year as compiled by the department of research of Tuskeegee Institute, Alabama, total four, divided equally between Louisiana and Mississippi.

This is two less than for the first six months of 1934 and four less than for the first six months of 1933.

Offenses for which victims paid the penalty were murder 2; wounding man in altercation 1; and assault on woman 1.

Eventually, we believe, lynching will be relegated to the limbo of forgotten things. There will be always, we suspect, times when infuriated citizens occasionally take the law into their own hands, but there has been notable progress in the opposite direction during the last few years.

Rome, Ga. News-Tribune
July 15, 1935

LYNCHINGS ON THE DECREASE

ONLY four lynchings occurred in the South during the first six months of the present year, according to an announcement from the Tuskegee Institute, two of these being in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. During the same period last year there were six lynchings.

Oddly enough, only one of the lynchings was for the crime for which many Southerners claim lynching is justifiable; three were for other offenses, showing that the nature of the crime is not always the governing motive.

The fact that lynchings are on the decrease is most gratifying, since they represent one of the most brutal forms of outlawry and one in which mistakes are easy to make, but the fact should not be forgotten that one of the prime incentives for this form of lawlessness lies in the laxity of law enforcement in many quarters.

To remove the lynch evil, and many other evils connected with defiance of law, there must be created a condition under which the general public will feel reasonably certain that criminals will be adequately punished by legal means.

To create confidence of this nature will require greater efficiency on the part of arresting officers, far better results in the prosecution of the lawless, and a greater degree of certainty that penalties will be carried out once the criminal has been convicted.

In the development of a condition of this nature, the people as a whole bear a large measure of responsibility. They must stand squarely behind a program of this character if it is to be made effective.

Birmingham, Ala. News
July 6, 1935

Only Four Lynchings In The First Half Of 1935

Slowly, so slowly, does man see civilization advance. But once in a while there is brought to his attention something that makes him take grip once more and renew his faith in mankind's ability to move forward.

From Tuskegee Institute comes a report that is most gratifying. During the first six months of 1935 there were only four lynchings in the United States as compared to six in 1934 and eight in 1933 for the same period. So far this year there have been two Negroes lynched in Mississippi and two in Louisiana.

Surely some day lynchings will cease altogether. But it will not be the result of law. For, says The Montgomery Advertiser, "a practice which is so opposed to the entire theory of law cannot be eradicated by more law. Only a change in the standards of men can be effective."

The decline in the number of lynchings has been constant during the past half century. And when that day comes when lynching is entirely a thing of the past man may well feel pride in having taken a long step forward.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
NEWS
JUL 8 1935

Editorial Comment From Other Angles

LYNCHING DECREASES

(Charleston News & Courier)

For the first six months of the year the lynchings, so Tuskegee Institute reports, were only four. There was none in South Carolina. There will be lynchings in future, there will be killings by mob that will not be called lynchings, but they are steadily decreasing in the South.

The passage of the Costigan-Wagner law, which was written by a negro and aimed at the South, though introduced by democrats and not opposed by the White House, would have kindled "race prejudice" and caused more lynchings.

The truth is that the complete abandonment of lynching in the South would probably not promote the aims of the Northern organizations noisily supporting the Costigan-Wagner bill. Occasional outrages against negroes in the South are needed by these people in their propagandic busuiness.

Their plans include much larger purposes than the suppressing of lynchings. What they are opposing is the general assertion of race domination in politics and race separation by the Southern whites. Were no negroes lynched they would have nothing to "dramatize," nothing with which to arousue the interest of the reforming class. Were never a negro lynched in the South the uplifters might forget the existence of the negroes.

Lynchers should suffer the penalties provided for murderers. If not for murdering, they should be punished for making fools of themselves and playing into the hands of the Northern reformers who care little or nothing about a lynching but are working indefatigably and with great skill to destroy all racial barriers and differences in the United States.

RICHMOND, VA.
TIMES DISPATCH
JUL 7 1935

A Decrease in Lynchings

ONLY four lynchings occurred in the United States during the first six months of 1935, which indicates that this year should be one of the best, if not the best, from this standpoint, the country has ever experienced. The smallest total for any year since 1885, the period for which totals have been kept, was that for 1932, when eight persons succumbed to mob murder. If the second half of 1935 produces no more lynchings than the first half, the best record in the past half a century will have been tied.

Last year there were 15 lynchings, the year before there were 28, and for each year from 1923 to 1931, inclusive, the total ranged from 10 to 33, with almost all the victims Negroes, of course. Prior to 1923 the figures were much higher, 1892 carrying off the all-time record with 231 lynchings, 69 of the victims having been whites.

It is possible that the second half of this year will produce a large number of mob murders, and that the good record achieved during the first six months will be wiped out. It may be that the recent threat of the COSTIGAN-WAGNER antilynching bill served as a deterrent to would-be lynchers, and that this element will feel free to obey its savage impulses, now that the measure has been killed, at least until the next session of Congress.

But at any rate, the record to date, as compiled by Tuskegee Institute, is gratifying. The institute's compilation shows that two of the 1935 lynchings took place in Mississippi and the other two in Louisiana. The Mississippi record is particularly bad in this respect, for in 1934, six of the 15 mob murders which took place in the country occurred in Mississippi. Now that the same State has contributed half the lynchings for 1935, it seems to be on its way to achieving the title of the "Lynch State."

MONTGOMERY, ALA.
ADVERTISER
JUL 5 1935

GRADUAL, BUT CONSISTENT

Only Mississippi and Louisiana had black marks on their lynching records for the first six months of 1935. In each of these States two Negroes were lynched, according to the regular semi-annual report of Tuskegee Institute.

The four outrages compare with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933, and is in keeping with the gradual, but consistent decline for the last 50 years.

That the decline has continued supports the arguments of those who were opposed to the attempt to revive the Dyer anti-lynching bill made at this session of Congress. Lynching will some day cease altogether, but when it does it will not be the result of law. A practice which is so opposed to the entire theory of law cannot be eradicated by more law. Only a change in the standards of men can be effective.

Ocilla, Ga., Star
July 4, 1935

DECREASE IN LYNCHING

F. D. Patterson, president of the Tuskeegee Institute makes public the following facts concerning lynchings during the first six months of the year.

"I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first 6 months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on, Sent Press

JAN. - JUNE

5182

DeLand, Fla., Sun News
July 5, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD IMPROVES

The lynching record for the first six months of 1935 shows an improvement over the first six months of either 1933 or 1934, according to a report from the research department of the Tuskeegee institute.

For the first six months of this year there were but four lynchings as against six for the first six months of 1934 or as against eight for the first six months of 1933.

The four lynched thus far this year were Negroes —two for murder; one for rape, and one for fighting with a white man.

Two of the lynchings occurred in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. Florida, Georgia, Alabama and others of the southern states escaped the stigma, this year.

Richmond, Va. News-Leader
July 2, 1935

"Ole Miss" Leads With 6 Lynchings

There were sixteen lynchings in 1934, according to the annual report of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Six were reported from Mississippi, two each from Alabama, Florida and Louisiana and one each from Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee and Texas.

Records in ten instances say that mobs figured in the outrages. In other instances the killings were reported to have been done by small groups. One lynching was alleged to have been committed by a group of Negroes upon another Negro.

Sanford, Fla. Herald
July 5, 1935

That no federal lynching law is necessary or desirable is indicated by figures just released by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute for the lynching record of the first six months of 1935. During this period there were only four lynchings. This is two less than during the first six months of last year, and four less than during the first six months of 1933.

Pelham, Ga., Journal
July 4, 1935

ONLY FOUR LYNCHED IN PAST SIX MONTHS

According to records compiled during the past six months and released by F. D. Patterson, President of the Tuskegee Institute lynchings over the country show a considerable decrease. The report follows:

"I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that ni the first six month sof 1935 there were four. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

"All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation 1; rape 1; murder 2.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana 2; and Mississippi 2.

Sheffield, Ala., Daily
July 5, 1935

Gradual Abatement Of The Lynching Monstrosity

Each six months Southern newspapers receive a report from Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, of Alabama, giving a record of the lynchings occurring during those periods together with comparisons with former periods.

The lynching record, just received, for the first six months of 1935 is decidedly encouraging, as the following data from the letter of F. D. Patterson, president of the institution, reveals:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Persons worthy of the name of citizen are unquestionably unanimously opposed to taking men out of the hands of the law and out of the realm of the courts and subjecting them to such cruel death without an opportunity to be heard by a trial jury.

This has led to many movements in the history of this country, especially in recent years, looking toward punitive measures against those who commit lynchings. But passing a law providing such punishment and meting it out to an enraged mob of several hundred men is a different matter.

The recent defeat by filibuster of the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill in the United States senate gives some idea of the intensity of feeling on this subject. As time goes on it is being well demonstrated, however, that the way we must overcome the problem of mob vilence is the same as we must use to eradicate many other social sores—through the medium of broad social and patriotic education.

This year's report, therefore, is distinctly encouraging because it denotes the arrival of many more citizens and communities at the point where they will not put injustice in their own hands to defeat justice. And although no good citizen approves of mob violence the problem has persisted with us so long simply because we have not pressed those educational steps which are required to overcome it.

Chattanooga, Tenn. Times
July 4, 1935

SLUMP IN LYNCHINGS.

According to statistics compiled by Tuskegee Institute, there were in the United States only four lynchings in the first six months of the current year. This figure is two less than the number for the corresponding period in 1934 and four less than the number for the first six months of 1933. In other words there has been a decrease of 33 1-3 per cent. in lynchings as between the first halves of 1935 and 1934 and a decrease of 50 per cent. as between the first halves of 1935 and 1933.

All four of this year's lynchings occurred in the South. All occurred in two States, and Louisiana and Mississippi shared fifty-fifty in the disgrace. All those lynched were Negroes, and the charges were as follows: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2. Thus it is once again demonstrated that race prejudice plays a large part in mob violence and that the attempt to justify lynching as an institution maintained as a protection for Southern womanhood has very little basis. Insofar as it applies to the first half of the current year, the argument is at least three-fourths wrong.

Perhaps the most significant thing about the 1935 record, however, is the fact that it is far below the records of the two preceding years, and is low, indeed, in comparison with the high record of 231, in 1892, and the total of sixty-two as recently as 1921. The decrease in mob executions is not only highly gratifying, it is remarkable, all things considered. It ought to be a sufficient argument against enactment of a Federal anti-lynching law and in favor of giving public opinion and local law enforcement a chance to eradicate the brutal practice.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
TIMES UNION
JUL 9 1935

LYNCHING RECORD

Editor, The Times-Union:

I SEND you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934, and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President Tuskegee Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS
JUL 7 1935

LYNCHING RECORD.

Editor of The Daily News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON, President.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Centreville, Ala., Press
July 11, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1935

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 here were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occured and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi 2.

F. D. Patterson, President
Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.

Kingstree, S. C., Record
July 11, 1935

Lynching Record for Six Months.

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research for the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Picayune, Miss. Item
July 11, 1935

Low Lynching Record

According to information received from the Tuskegee Institute four persons were lynched during the first six months in 1935. All four were negroes; the lynching took place in Louisiana, 2; Mississippi 2. The offenses charged were: wounding man in fight, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

This record is 2 lynchings less than the first six months in 1934, 4 less than the first six months in 1933.

Seneca, S. C., Journal
July 11, 1935

Four Negroes Lynched First Six Months 1935

According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute, school for Negroes at Tuskegee, Ala., and just released, there were four lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1935. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the same period of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2

Springfield, Tenn. Herald
July 11, 1935

First Six Months 1935 Show Fewer Lynchings

Four lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1935 were two less than the 1934 mark for the same period and four less than during the same time in 1933, according to figures compiled by the department of records and research at Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

F. D. Patterson, Tuskegee president, states that of the lynchings two each occurred in Louisiana and Mississippi. Charges against the victims—all Negroes—were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald
July 11, 1935

Slump In Lynchings

According to statistics compiled by Tuskegee Institute, there were in the United States only four lynchings in the first six months of the current year. This figure is two less than the number for the corresponding period in 1934 and four less than the number for the first six months of 1933. In other words, there has been a decrease of 33 1-3 per cent in lynchings as between the first halves of 1935 and 1934, and a decrease of 50 per cent as between the first halves of 1935 and 1933.

All four of this year's lynchings occurred in the South. All occurred in two states, and Louisiana and Mississippi shared 50-50 in the disgrace. All those lynched were Negroes, and the charges were as follows: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two. Thus it is once again demonstrated that race prejudice plays a large part in mob violence and that the attempt to justify lynching as an institution maintained as a protection for Southern womanhood has very little basis. Insofar as it applies to the first half of the current year, the argument is at least three-fourths wrong.

Perhaps the most significant thing about the 1935 record, however, is the fact that it is far below the records of the two preceding years, and is low, indeed, in comparison with the high record of 231, in 1892, and the total of 62 as recently as 1921. The decrease in mob executions is not only highly gratifying, it is remarkable, all things considered. It ought to be a sufficient argument against enactment of a federal anti-lynching law and in favor of giving public opinion and local law enforcement a chance to eradicate the brutal practice.—Chattanooga Times.

Camden, S. C., Messenger
July 10, 1935

Lynching Record For First Six Months 1935

The following record of lynchings is furnished by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

"I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of the year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the depatment of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses were: wounding man in altercation 1; rape1; murder2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana 2; and Mississippi 2.

F. D. Patterson.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.
TIMES
JUL 6 1935

Letters From the People.

The 1935 Lynching Record.

To The Times:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, two, and Mississippi, two.

F. D. Patterson,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama, July 3, 1935.

Blakeley, Ga. News
July 4, 1935

LYNCHINGS SHOW DECREASE FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1935

According to records compiled by F. D. Patterson, President of Tuskegee Industrial and Normal Institute, there were four lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1935. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934, and four less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
RECORD
JUL 8 1935

Lynching Record

Editor of The Record:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find, according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934, and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, one; rape, one; murder, two.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, two, and Mississippi, two.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Hendersonville, N. C. Times
July 3, 1935

Records Showing Fewer Lynchings

Are Less By 2 In Relative Period Of 1934

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3.—F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute said today that, according to the records compiled at the institute in the department of records and research, in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934, and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana 2, and Mississippi 2.

Lumpkin, Ga., Journal
July 5, 1935

Only Four Lynchings During First 6 Months

According to information from records compiled at Tuskegee Institute there were only four lynchings in the United States during the first six months of 1935. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934, and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows; Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Lynchings – 1935 Jan. – June

Reports on, Sent Press.

5183

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.
EXPRESS
JUL 6 1935

FROM THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR A HALF-YEAR

After a period in which the evil flared up anew, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute again reports lynching on the decline. During the first half of 1935, that authority announces, four persons were put to death by mobs.

All those atrocities were perpetrated in Judge Lynch's traditional stronghold—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. Among the four victims, only one was charged with the "usual crime." Two others had been accused of murder and the fourth had wounded a white man in a quarrel.

The record shows decided improvement over that for recent years: six persons lynched during the first half of 1934 and eight in the like period of 1933. The mob murder toll for all 1934 was 15, and for the previous year 28. Six of the lynchings in 1934 were in Mississippi. The comparative figures show where intensive educational and other preventive work is needed most.

Unquestionably, economic and social conditions have something to do with lynching; any preventive measures—to be useful—must take those factors into account. Mob crimes are more numerous and widespread during hard times than in prosperity. However, economic recovery alone will not eradicate the evil.

A significant fact is that lynchings are most frequent in States which have relatively the largest negro population and therefore more occasions for friction. That situation is not easily remedied, either.

Some credit for the improvement may be due the agitation in Congress over the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill. That measure—to penalize the county where the mob outrage occurred—never had a chance of enactment. At any rate its constitutionality would have been doubtful and it would not have been highly effective if upheld by the courts.

A more sensible and salutary policy [illegible] and publicly honor and reward official courage in the face of mob threats. The problem remains primarily one of education. When the people shall be fully aroused to the enormity of such outrages upon government, justice and ordered society, they will take effective steps to eradicate it.

Therefore, better results can be expected from the work which the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching and the Southern Commission on the Study of Lynching are doing, than from new punitive laws, either State or Federal.

HOBOKEN, N. J.
OBSERVER
JUL 5 1935

FOUR LYNCHINGS IN PAST SIX MONTHS

In the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than for the first six months of 1934; and four less than for the first six months of 1933, says a bulletin from Tuskegee Institute.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred are Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Statesboro, Ga., Times and News
July 11, 1935

Number Lynchings Shown to be Less

The lynching record for the first six months of 1935, made public by the research department of the Tuskeegee Industrial Institute, shows that there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number for the first six months of 1934, and 4 less than the number for the first six months of 1934. All of the persons lynched were negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape 1, and murder 1. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana 2, Mississippi 2.

ABILENE, TEX.
REPORTER
JUL 4 1935

Louisiana Negro Reported Lynched

VILLE PLATTE, La., July 4.—(AP) Rumors that Adam Avie, negro accused of attempting to attack a white woman, had been mutilated and lynched were circulated here today following his removal from jail by a mob.

The sheriff, chief of police, deputies and other officials were unavailable for comment and inquirers were told that they could not be located.

While some citizens said they had heard the negro, taken from the jail Tuesday night, was lynched, others said they believed he was being held a captive in a cabin near Ville Platt.

The clothing of the negro was reported found near the outskirts of the town yesterday.

Tuskegee, Ala., News
July 11, 1935

Lynching Record For First Six Months, 1935

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON, President.

Wilmington, N. C. News
July 5, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Lynchings for the six months of the current year as compiled by the department of research of Tuskeegee Institute, Alabama, total four, divided equally between Louisiana and Mississippi.

This is two less than for the first six months of 1934 and four less than for the first six months of 1933.

Offenses for which victims paid the penalty were murder 2; wounding man in altercation 1; and assault on woman 1.

Eventually, we believe, lynching will be relegated to the limbo of forgotten things. There will be always, we suspect, times when infuriated citizens occasionally take the law into their own hands, but there has been notable progress in the opposite direction during the last few years.

Anniston, Ala. Star
July 9, 1935

Record Improved

The Department of Records and Research at Tuskegee Institute has issued its semi-annual report on lynchings revealing that four persons, all negroes, were killed by mobs in the South during the first half of the year. This, however, compares favorably with the record last year, when six were lynched in the first six months, and represents a drop of 50 per cent below the total of eight reported in 1933.

The states that have blotted their records with lynchings this year are Mississippi and Louisiana, with two each. Two of the victims were charged with murder, one with wounding a man during an altercation and the other with criminal assault.

With all states except two presenting a clear record and the total reduced to four, it does not seem to be too much to look for the time when there will be no lynchings.

ATHENS, GA.
BANNER HERALD
JUL 10 1935

RAPE AND LYNCHINGS DECREASE

The announcement made by the statistics department of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial College that only four lynchings occurred during the first six months of 1935 is an indication of improved conditions among the criminal element and the growth of a desire on the part for the enforcement of the law.

Of the four lynchings occurring this year, only one was for rape. Two for murder and one for wounding a man in an altercation. For the first six months in 1934, there were six lynchings and in 1933 there were eight lynchings. The lynchings this year occurred in Louisiana and Mississippi, two in each state.

In former years, lynchings were common occurrences. The occasions which brought on these lynchings were charged, committed, the number of lynchings in the nation has shown a material decrease. ble to rape. Now that this crime is seldom

SELMA, ALA.
TIMES-JOURNAL

JUL 3 1935

Decrease Reported For Lynching Toll In Southern States

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3—(AP)—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released today showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man durin an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the department of records and research at the negro institution here.

Asheville, N. C., Citizen
July 7, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1935

Editor of The Citizen-Times:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933:

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

Marianna, Fla., Times Courier
July 6, 1935

Four Lynched In U. S. During Past 6 Months

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the department of records and research, during the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the six for the same period during 1934, and four less than the eight for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were negroes. Offenses charged were wouding a man in an altercation, rape and two murder charges.

Two of the lynchings occurred in [illegible]iana and two in Mississippi.

Aiken, S. C. Journal & Review
Jul[illegible] 1935

LYNCHING RECORD FIRST SIX MONTHS 1935

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935, there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi 2.

Anderson, S. C. Record
July 4, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

The report of the Tuskegee Institute to the effect that lynching is on the decline in the country is gratifying. During the first six months of the year but four persons were lynched, as compared with half a dozen during the corresponding period of last year.

But even though there has been a decline in the number of lynchings, there are still too many cases of this kind in the nation. One would be too many.

It is, however, encouraging to note the decrease in manifestations of mob violence. The day will, however, probably never come when there will be no further manifestations of this nature. The spirit of the mob has been with us always and probably will continue to be evidenced from time to time. It is unfortunate that the law seems unable to cope with those who take the law into their own hands, but to date there does not appear, as far as we know, a case of where participants in a mob have been made to pay a penalty for their acts.

Athens, Ga., Banner-Herald
July 10, 1935

RAPE AND LYNCHINGS DECREASE

The announcement made by the statistics department of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial College that only four lynchings occurred during the first six months of 1935 is an indication of improved conditions among the criminal element and the growth of a desire on the part for the enforcement of the law.

Of the four lynchings occurring this year, only one was for rape. Two for murder and one for wounding a man in an altercation. For the first six months in 1934, there were six lynchings and in 1933 there were eight lynchings. The lynchings this year occurred in Louisiana and Mississippi, two in each state.

In former years, lynchings were common occurrences. The occasions which brought on these lynchings were chargeable to rape. Now that this crime is seldom committed, the number of lynchings in the nation has shown a material decrease.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., News
July 8, 1935

LYNCHING ON THE DECREASE

ONLY four lynchings occurred in the South during the first six months of the present year, according to an announcement from the Tuskegee Institute, two of these being in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. During the same period last year there were six lynchings.

Oddly enough, only one of the lynchings was for the crime for which many Southerners claim lynching is justifiable; three were for other offenses, showing that the nature of the crime is not always the governing motive.

The fact that lynchings are on the decrease is most gratifying, since they represent one of the most brutal forms of outlawry and one in which mistakes are easy to make, but the fact should not be forgotten that one of the prime incentives for this form of lawlessness lies in the laxity of law enforcement in many quarters.

To remove the lynch evil, and many evils connected with defiance of law, there must be created a condition under which the general public will feel reasonably certain that criminals will be adequately punished by legal means.

To create confidence of this nature will require greater efficiency on the part of arresting officers, far better results in the prosecution of the lawless and a greater degree of certainty that penalties will be carried out once the criminal has been convicted.

In the development of a condition of this nature, the people as a whole bear a large measure of responsibility. They must stand squarely behind a program of this character if it is to be made effective.

DALLAS, TEX.
TIMES HERALD

JUL 7 1935

ENCOURAGING FIGURES ON LYNCHING

A GRATIFYING DECLINE in the number of lynchings is indicated by figures compiled by President F. D. Paterson of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Only four lynchings have taken place during the first six months of this year, whereas, six were reported for the first half of last year and eight for the first six months of 1933.

At a time when the public is more than usually perturbed over prevalence of crime, the tendency of thoughtless citizens to take the law in their own hands might be expected to grow stronger, but lynching has little connection with law enforcement. It is perpetrated by passion-inflamed mobs and is a crime in itself. Lynching will eventually disappear. Enactment of drastic laws by congress would have little effect on mobs, no matter how much hardship it might work on theoretically responsible county officials.

Shelbyville, Tenn. Times
July 11, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1935

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research, in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Atlanta, Ga. Constitution
July 7, 1935

Tuskegee Institute's semi-annu[illegible] lynching report released shows th[illegible] four negroes were lynched—two [illegible] Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 193[illegible] as compared with six in the same p[illegible]riod of 1934 and eight in 1933. [illegible] elected president of the Georgia Association of Letter Carriers in its annual convention at Valdosta.

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - June

5184

Lynching Record For First Six Months, 1935

Tuskegee News

Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON, President.

SIX LYNCHINGS TO DATE IN 1935

Gadsden Times
7-3-35
Boston Mass

ONLY ONE ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTED RAPE.

Six lynchings, all of colored persons, are definitely recorded for the first six months of 1935 in a report just issued by the International Labor Defense. Four took place in Mississippi and two in Louisiana and a seventh victim has "disappeared" from Birmingham, Ala.

One of the men was accused of attempted "rape,' two died as a result of efforts to organize workers, a fourth because he drew a knife in self-defense, another because he had been charged with shooting the local attorney, and the sixth, because a white man wanted his property.

TUSKEGEE SAYS 4 LYNCHINGS

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933. All of the persons lynched were colored. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2. The states in which lynchings occured and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

LYNCHING RECORD!

Tuskegee Institute July 3, 935.

Editor Dabney:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the fist six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2; and Mississippi, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

GREENVILLE, S. C.
NEWS
JUL 4 1935

THE DECLINE IN LYNCHING

Further evidence of the declining trend in lynchings in this country is contained in Tuskegee Institute's records showing that for the first six months of the year, only four persons were lynched, two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. All were negroes.

Lynchings were thus two less than during the first six months of last year and four less than during the similar period of 1933.

Lynching records over the last few decades show that these crimes of violence are steadily becoming fewer. A reasonable conclusion is that public sentiment toward such mob actions is gradually changing for the better and that in a far greater number of instances in which a crime has aroused great public indignation the citizenship prefers to see the orderly processes of justice carried out.

The trend, it is unnecessary to point out, is one highly gratifying to citizens who deplore and oppose mob action to punish crime. And it suggests that there is less reason than ever for the adoption of federal anti-lynching laws.

GREENSBORO, N. C
RECORD
JUL 6 1935

Fewer Lynchings.

In the first half of this year only four lynchings occurred in the United States—two negroes were lynched in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—according to the semi-annual report of Tuskegee (Ala.) institute. These four outrages compare with half a dozen in the corresponding period in 1934, and with eight in 1933.

The decline in mob crimes continues, gradually and consistently, just as it has for the last several decades. Strenuous thought futile efforts were made to have Congress pass the so-called Dyer anti-lynching bill. Lynching is anarchy in its worst form. There are, of course, laws against it already. Why pass additional laws to eradicate lynching? Present laws, if enforced, seem sufficient. What is most needed is an uplifting change in the moral and intellectual standards of our people, both white and black.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
NEWS
JUL 6 1935

Fewer Lynchings Reported During First Half of Year

I find, according to the records compiled at Tuskegee institute in the department of records and research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings in the United States. This is two less than the number six for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number eight for the first six months of 1933. All of the persons lynched were Negroes.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2; Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Only Four Lynchings In The First Half Of 1935

Birmingham News
7-6-35

Slowly, so slowly, does man see civilization advance. But once in a while there is brought to his attention something that makes him take grip once more and renew his faith in mankind's ability to move forward.

From Tuskegee Institute comes a report that is more gratifying. During the first six months of 1935 there were only four lynchings in the United States as compared to six in 1934 and eight in 1933 for the same period. So far this year there have been two Negroes lynched in Mississippi and two in Louisiana.

Surely some day lynchings will cease altogether. But it will not be the result of law. For, says The Montgomery Advertiser, "a practice which is so opposed to the entire theory of law cannot be eradicated by more law. Only a change in the standards of men can be effective."

The decline in the number of lynchings has been constant during the past half century. And when that day comes when lynching is entirely a thing of the past man may well feel pride in having taken a long step forward.

THE LYNCHING RECORD FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS 1935

Patmette Leader
7-3-35

According to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were; wounding man in altercation, one; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana; 2; and Mississippi, 2.

LYNCHING DROP SHOWN

Two Negroes in Mississippi, Two in Louisiana Victims

TUSKEGEE, Ala., July 3.—(AP) Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report, released today, showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935, as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the Department of Records and Research at the negro institution here.

MACON, GA.
NEWS
JUL 3 1935

Four Are Lynched During Six Months

F. D. Patterson, president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, has sent The Evening News the record of lynchings in the United States for the first half of this year.

There were only four lynchings, he reports, or two less than for the first six months of last year, and four less than during the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation and rape, one each; murder, two.

The states in which lynchings occurred, the record shows, were: Louisiana two and Mississippi two.

4 Lynchings In South Reported By Tuskegee

Montgomery Advertiser
7-4-35

TUSKEGEE, ALA., July 3.—(AP)—Tuskegee Institute's semi-annual lynching report released today showed that four negroes were lynched—two in Louisiana and two in Mississippi—during the first six months of 1935 as compared with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933.

Two of those lynched this year were charged with murder, one with criminal assault, and the fourth with wounding a man during an altercation.

There were no reports of a white man's having been lynched.

The tabulation is kept by the department of records and research at the negro institution here.

GRADUAL, BUT CONSISTENT

Only Mississippi and Louisiana had black marks on their lynching records for the first six months of 1935. In each of these States two Negroes were lynched, according to the regular semi-annual report of Tuskegee Institute.

The four outrages compare with six in the same period of 1934 and eight in 1933, and is in keeping with the gradual, but consistent decline for the last 50 years.

That the decline has continued supports the arguments of those who were opposed to the attempt to revive the Dyer anti-lynching bill made at this session of Congress. Lynching will some day cease altogether, but when it does it will not be the result of law. A practice which is so opposed to the entire theory of law cannot be eradicated by more law. Only a change in the standards of men can be effective.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
NEWS
JUL 5 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Lynchings for the six months of the current year as compiled by the department of research of Tuskeegee Institute, Alabama, total four, divided equally between Louisiana and Mississippi.

This is two less than for the first six months of 1934 and four less than for the first six months of 1933.

Offenses for which victims paid the penalty were murder 2; wounding man in altercation 1; and assault on woman 1.

Eventually, we believe, lynching will be relegated to the limbo of forgotten things. There will be always, we suspect, times when infuriated citizens occasionally take the law into their own hands, but there has been notable progress in the opposite direction during the last few years.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
HERALD POST
JUL 5 1935

PROGRESS.

IN PLAIN matter-of-fact words, Tuskegee Institute notes progress.

Records for the first six months of the year show four lynchings. In 1934 the number was six and in 1933 it wa eight, a reduction by one-half in two years. All lynched were Negroes. The states of Mississippi and Louisiana divide the ignominy equally.

Not until the Tuskegee Department of Records and Research reports a clean bill need gratification be shown.

SAVANNAH, GA.
PRESS
JUL 3 1935

LYNCHINGS DECREASE.

F. D. Patterson, the new president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, the colored school founded by Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee, Ala., is adhering to the plan of his predecessors in keeping a record of the lynchings of negroes in different sections of the United States.

He has just issued a statement which shows there were only four lynchings in the United States for the first six months of 1935. Two of these were in Louisiana and two in Mississippi. For the first six months of 1934 the record of President Patterson shows there were six lynchings in the United States. The comparative number has been reduced for that part of 1935 which has passed. This is very gratifying. It is hoped the last half of the year will record even fewer lynchings than did the initial six months.

Lynchings and their cause make an old story in the United States. The trouble about lynching is that when mobs take the law into their own hands they may make innocent parties pay the extreme penalty for crimes that under the statutes are not punishable by death. This was the case in one of the four lynchings reported for this year. A victim of the mob had only wounded another in an altercation.

For one crime, no matter where committed, there will always be a very strong tendency to lynch. Of course it's the wrong theory, but aroused communities do not stop to consider theories when the crime unspeakable is to be avenged.

LYNCHING RECORD.

To the Editor:

Sir:—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. I find, according to the records compiled at Tuskegee Institute in the Department of Records and Research that in the first six months of 1935 there were four lynchings. This is 2 less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and 4 less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President,
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Chattanooga, Tenn.
TIMES
JUL 4 1935

SLUMP IN LYNCHINGS.

According to statistics compiled by Tuskegee Institute, there were in the United States only four lynchings in the first six months of the current year. This figure is two less than the number for the corresponding period in 1934 and four less than the number for the first six months of 1933. In other words, there has been a decrease of 33 1-3 per cent. in lynchings as between the first halves of 1935 and 1934, and a decrease of 50 per cent. as between the first halves of 1935 and 1933.

All four of this year's lynchings occurred in the South. All occurred in two States, and Louisiana and Mississippi shared fifty-fifty in the disgrace. All those lynched were Negroes, and the charges were as follows: Wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2. Thus it is once again demonstrated that race prejudice plays a large part in mob violence and that the attempt to justify lynching as an institution maintained as a protection for Southern womanhood has very little basis. Insofar as it applies to the first half of the current year, the argument is at least three-fourths wrong.

Perhaps the most significant thing about the 1935 record, however, is the fact that it is far below the records of the two preceding years, and is low, indeed, in comparison with the high record of 231, in 1892, and the total of sixty-two as recently as 1921. The decrease in mob executions is not only highly gratifying, it is remarkable, all things considered. It ought to be a sufficient argument against enactment of a Federal anti-lynching law and in favor of giving public opinion and local law enforcement a chance to eradicate the brutal practice.

The Lynching Record For First Six Months of 1935

Tuskegee Institute, Ala. July 2—The records compiled by the Tuskegee department of records and research show that for the first six months of 1935, there were four lynchings.

This is two less than the number 6 for the first six months of 1934; and four less than the number 8 for the first six months of 1933.

All of the persons lynched were Negroes. The offenses charged were: wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder 2.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: Louisiana, 2, and Mississippi, 2.

Lynchings-1935
6
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

5207

20 Lynchings In U. S. Are Reported

TUSKEGEE, ALA., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings, led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina, and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share-cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

20 PERSONS LYNCHED IN U.S., REPORT SHOWS

1935 Has 5 More Than in 1934; Mississippi Takes Lead With Seven.

12-29-35

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four, Florida two, Georgia two, Texas two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Baton Rouge, La., Times
December 28, 1935

Lynch Mobs Took Lives of Twenty During This Year

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 28 (AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings, led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 2, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2 and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

20 LYNCHINGS 1935 RECORD

TUSKEGEE COMPILES LIST OF AMERICA'S BARBARITIES—TWO OF PERSONS LYNCHED WERE WHITE

Grasdan

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 27 — According to the records compiled by Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

1-4-36

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Colored, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Colored. The offenses charged were: murder 7, attempted rape 3, rape 3, altercation with man 1, activity in share cropper organizing 1, attacking person 1, taking a prisoner from officer of the law 1, killed by mob in search of another person 1, slapping a woman 1, communistic activity 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California 1, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Louisiana 4, Mississippi 7, North Carolina 1, Tennessee 1, Texas 2.

20 LYNCHINGS ARE RECORDED DURING 1935

Tuskegee Institute Report Shows Increase of Five Over 1934

Call

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE. Twenty lynchings were recorded during the year 1935 by the department of records and research of Tuskegee institute, a release signed by President Fredrick D. Patterson said this week.

1-3-36

This is five more than the number 15 for 1934, 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers.

A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negroes were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Dr. Patterson Gives Figures On Lynchings

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.
December 21, 1935

Editor News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons. 17 white and 67 Negro were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON.
President

LYNCHINGS TOTAL 20 IN 1935

Records Show Five More Than in 1935; Mississippi Lead with Seven

12-31-35

A total of 20 perons were lynched in 1935, according to the records compiled in the Department of Research at Tuskegee Institute.

This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

53 Prevented

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynching. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken.

In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Two White

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman,1; communistic activity, 1.

Mississippi Leads

The state in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Lynch Law 1935

THERE were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail, Tuskegee Institute reports.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee. 1: Texas. 2.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL
DEC 21 1935

For Tuskegee

The President has endorsed, with an expression of great good will, the plan for an Agricultural Hall as a gift of the white people of the South to Tuskegee Institute, leading Negro college of the nation and pride and hope of all, of either race, who realize the Negro's worth to the country.

"Agriculture," he said, "is and probably will continue to be the chief source of income for the South. The success of Southern agriculture is dependent in great part upon the industry, intelligence and thrift of the Negro farmers. It seems especially wise therefore that the white people of the South should provide for the erection of an agricultural building on the campus at Tuskegee institute, as an indorsement of the splendid work being done there in the teaching of scientific agriculture.

"The success of the program now being launched by the federal government for the rehabilitation of agriculture depends upon the program of education which must go hand in hand with any new development.

"As an adopted citizen of the South I have great faith in Tuskegee."

Tuskegee has behind it the traditions of Booker T. Washington, who believed in the wisdom of educating his people for the opportunities life offered them, and of Robert Moton, who was a liberal and sure guide so as Dr. Patterson's is now.

The success of this Alabama institution is an integral part of the progress and welfare of the South as a whole, and as such should be given all help possible.

NEW YORK TIMES
DEC 27 1935

20 LYNCHED DURING 1935.

Fuskegee Institute Reports Year's Total Exceeded 1934 by Five.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 26.—Twenty persons died victims of lynchings in the United States during 1935, the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute reported today. This is five more than were listed last year but eight less than in 1933. Of the 1935 total, the report said that thirteen of the victims were in the hands of the law at the time, five being taken from jails, six from officers and that the remaining two were shot to death in a jail.

The report added that there were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, nine being in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern States. In eleven instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negroes.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State were listed as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

Rock Hill, S. C. Herald
December 28, 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935 INCREASE

Officers Saved 84 Persons from Death At Hands Of Mobs

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 28.—According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee. 1: Texas. 2

New York Herald-Tribune
DEC 27 1935

20 Lynchings in 1935 Exceed Last Year by 5

Tuskegee Institute Reports 53 Attempts Failed

Special to the Herald Tribune

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 26.—Records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute show that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number for 1934; eight less than the number for 1933, and twelve more than the number for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and forty-four in Southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negroes, was thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

NEW YORK SUN
DEC 27 1935

Lynching Record.

To the EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933, and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern States. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON.
President of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, December 26.

1935 LYNCHINGS INCREASE FIVE OVER LAST YEAR

Cordele, Ga Dispatch
December 29, 1935

President of Tuskeegee Institute Releases Figures

TUSKEGEE, Ala. Dec. 28 (AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskeegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said 84 persons—17 white and 67 negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with 7 lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia, 2 Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskeegee President said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in sharecropper organizing, Communistic activities, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those linched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law

Lynchings-1935
& Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

5210

ROANOKE, VA.
WORLD-NEWS
DEC 31 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

Of twenty lynchings in 1935 nineteen occurred in the South—one in California, where the statement of a former governor gave encouragement to that form of lawlessness. The total is five more than in 1934—an argument handed by the States of the deep South to advocates of a pending bill placing prosecution of lynchers in Federal courts. In the past twenty-five years more than 5,000 persons have been lynched in the United States, and there have been convictions of those taking part in these mob murders in less than one-half of one per cent of the cases.

Old fashioned orators in the half century following the War Between the States used to defend lynching as necessary "to protect Southern womanhood." Yet the record shows that in 1935 the offenses charged against those lynched were: Murder, 7; attempted criminal assault, 3; criminal assault, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share crop organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from an officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1. Thirteen of the twenty persons killed by lynching mobs were already under arrest when taken from the hands of officers for summary execution.

A more hopeful part of the report shows that in fifty-three instances mob killings were attempted but were frustrated. Nine of these attempts occurred in Northern and Western States, and 44 in the South. Where officers showed a determination to do their duty, to protect the prisoners entrusted to their keeping, there was little evidence of mob disorder. In eleven cases mobs were turned back by armed resistance, in 42 cases by removal of prisoners or increase in the number of guards.

How far are the law's delays an incitement to mob violence? In many circles the fact that Hauptmann was convicted nearly a year ago, and that the trial evidence was exhaustively reviewed by the Supreme Court of New Jersey six months ago, and that the agitation for commutation of his sentence still goes on, has caused many a man to decide that if another baby is taken from its nursery and murdered, the man found with the ransom money secreted will be disposed of without benefit of courts. The long drawn out Scottsboro case, in the courts for years, has caused many an Alabama citizen to conclude that a rump jury on the ground could have settled the matter with more equity and less quibbling in one afternoon. So long as trials are made into sporting contests between shrewd lawyers so long as the courts offer opportunities for years of delay, so long will there be an invitation to an outraged citizenry to make summary settlements from which there can be no appeal.

Of the 1935 lynchings, perhaps the most surprising is that of Govan Ward, put to death in broad daylight on the streets of Louisburg, N. C. For some years North Carolina had enjoyed an enviable reputation. It dealt sternly with the mob that stormed the Asheville jail, and sent to prison those who took part in the Needleman affair. And for years afterwards there was no lynching in North Carolina. In the Ward case a white North Carolinian obtained the names of nine of the lynchers and furnished them to the authorities but no action was taken. Some of the predecessors of Governor Ehringhaus were made of sterner stuff.

In the case of two Negro boys killed by a Texas mob, the county prosecutor announced that the lynchings conformed "to the will of the people," and that neither he nor any other local official had any intention of doing anything about it. His oath of office meant nothing to him so long as he considered that he was on the popular side. But to admit that he was on the popular side is to admit that the people of his county had broken through the thin veneer that separates civilization from savagery.

The pending Federal anti-lynching statute may be unconstitutional, and has been steadily opposed by defenders of rights of the States. But if the States will not protect human life, they can hardly be surprised if there is a general turning to the Federal authority. In our own section, a gigantic whiskey conspiracy was uncovered by the Federal courts, after the State had for years failed to enforce its own laws.

Hickory, N. C. Record
December 28, 1935

COMPILES LIST OF LYNCHINGS

Five More In 1935 Than In Previous Year

F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama, has compiled the record of the twenty lynchings of 1935 as follows:

The total is five more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in th hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Seneca, S. C., Journa.
January 2, 1936

Records Reveal 20 Persons Lynched In '35

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Harriman, Tenn. Record
January 2, 1936

Twenty Are Lynched During Year Of 1935

According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched during the year 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the other 11 instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white, and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder 7; attempted rape 3; rape 3; altercation with men, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1, and Texas, 2.

SAVANNAH, GA.
NEWS
DEC 29 1935

Lynchings Gained in 1935

The only encouraging feature of the report from Tuskegee, Ala., that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935 — five more than the number for 1934, eight less than the number for 1933, and twelve more than the number for 1932 — is the statement that there were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and forty-four in Southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven colored, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The inference to be drawn is that lynchings can, in most cases, be averted if officers of the law exercise prompt judgment and courage and take proper precautions to protect prisoners. The need of electing sheriffs and other officers, who are both fearless and quick-thinking, is apparent. No weakling in the garb of an officer of the law can frustrate an infuriated mob after the person believed guilty of committing a serious crime has been caught. Above all, the courts must be spurred on to meting out quicker justice to those charged with heinous offenses, by avoiding all unnecessary delays in ruling upon flimsy technicalities raised by astute lawyers.

The records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute show that thirteen of the twenty persons lynched in 1935 were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail. Of the persons lynched two were white and eighteen were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted assault, three; assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state follow: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one, and Texas, one.

BURLINGTON, IA.
GAZETTE
DEC 28

THE WAR ON LYNCHINGS.

ANNUALLY Tuskegee Institute, the famous training school for colored youth founded in Alabama by Booker T. Washington, reports on lynchings in the United States. Although the number of lynchings rose from 15 in 1934 to 20 in this year, the report is encouraging from the fact that there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

Time was when, in a great majority of cases, the legally constituted officers made but feeble gestures to prevent mob violence in this country. This was especially true in the South. Yet in the year now closing in 44 cases southern officials either repelled the mobs or removed their prisoners to safety. The other nine cases were in northern and western states. Even casual readers of such topics in newspapers must realize there has been an awakening both north and south of public indignation against mob violence and a greater desire to let the law take its course. There is also a growing demand that the course of the law should not be so frequently impeded and that court action should be speeded up, that technicalities cease to play so important a part in efforts to see that justice is done.

The next step in the war on lynching should be greater efforts to apprehend and punish mob leaders. While there has been a great improvement in the protection given prisoners, it is still entirely too customary to let the guilty escape after a mob has done its work.

WILKES BARRE, PA.
RECORD
DEC 28 1935

A Disgraceful Record

EIGHT States share in the ignominy which attaches to the lynching record of the United States for the year 1935. There is a certain satisfaction in knowing that Pennsylvania is not among those States. All but one of the 20 lynchings took place in Southern States. The lone exception is laid to California.

Discouragement is found in the fact that, during the year just ending, there have been five more lynchings than there were in 1934 and 12 more than in 1932, although eight fewer than in 1933. While 13 of the persons lynched, two of whom were white and 18 negroes, were in the hands of the law, two of them even being shot to death in jail, there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and, be it said to their credit, 44 in Southern States. According to the records of the Tuskegee Institute, a total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Offenses variously charged against the 20 persons lynched were: Murders, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

Aiken S.C. Review
Jan-3-1936

20 PERSONS ARE LYNCHED IN 1935

Many Would-Be Lynchings Were Prevented by Law Officers.

Twenty persons, two of whom were white and 18 negroes, were lynched in 1935, according to information compiled by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute, it has been announced by F. D. Patterson, president of the negro institution.

Mississippi led the list of States in which lynchings occurred during the year with seven. Louisiana had four; Flordia, Georgia and Texas, two each, and North Carolina, Tennessee and California, one each.

The 20 recorded for the year are five more than the number for 1934, eight fewer than the total for 1933, and 12 more than the number listed for 1932, which had a total of only eight. Thirteen of the 20 persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law. Five of these were taken from jails, six from the custody of officers, outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jails.

During the year there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western States according to the institute's figures. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or "the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The report lists the offenses with which the 20 lynched were charged as—murder, seven; attempted criminal assualt, three; criminal assault, three altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; and communistic activity, one.

West Point, Ga. News
January 2, 1936

Lynchings Show Increase Over 193[illegible]

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law: 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails, and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 12 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynching occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Lynchings - 1935

Jan. - Dec.

5211

Reports on, Sent Press.

LYNCHING—1935

The United States of America is the only country in the civilized world where it has been found necessary to keep count of a vile form of murder, the commission of which the government makes no attempt to curb by punishing the perpetrators. For 1935, the count stands 20; 18 colored men and 2 white men. Luckily no women were in the number, but more boys were. The excuses given for the lynching in some instances are so foolish and flinsy that the wonder is any mind above that of a moron would give them any attention. Lynching is an American pastime. It is an index of the civilization and Christianity of these sections which tolerate it, and certainly is no compliment to a government which allows it.

For years, an effort, lead by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has been made to have a Federal law enacted to stamp out, or at least make honest efforts to punish the lynchers. So far, however, no such law has been enacted, and the Federal Government continues to show itself derelict in its duty to make good the guarantee of the "due process" clause of its constitution. No attention need be given to anything said by states where lynching is popular. They little sense and less logic in saying that there is no use in enact't wipe out lynching. There is acting a Federal Anti-lynching law as it would not stop it. There are laws against murders in general but still there are killings. Would those who oppose an anti-lynching law be in favor of abolishing laws against killings because those laws have not prevented all murders?

Let it be hoped that Congress will pass a law against lynching and that 1936 will be free of this blast.

Sumter, S. C., Item
December 28, 1935

Lynchings During Year

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 28—According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934, eight less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Moultrie, Ga., Observer
December 28, 1935

20 Persons Put To Death By Mobs In Year Nearing End

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Dr F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2 and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails and two were shot to death in jail.

Fayetteville, N. C., Observer
December 28, 1935

TWENTY LYNCHINGS IN U. S. THIS YEAR

Report Says 84 Persons Were Saved From Harm at Hands of Mob

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28 (AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of hir institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Tuskegee Reports 20 Lynched During 1935

OFFICERS SAVED FIFTY-THREE FROM MOB VIOLENCE

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Jan. 3—According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933, and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and forty-four in southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2. This report is released twice yearly by F. D. Patterson, president of the school.

Macon, Ga., Telegraph
December 29, 1935

Lynching Record Still Bad

In the longer view, the number of lynchings has been falling off, but the figures still remain a blot on the country. The Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute shows that thus far 20 persons were lynched in 1935. This is five more than last year, eight less than the number of 1933 and 12 more than in 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, the report says. Five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

Officers of the law, in 53 instances, prevented lynchings. Nine of these cases were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In other cases different precautions were taken. A total of 84 persons, 67 of whom were Negroes, were thus saved from mob violence.

Of the 20 persons actually lynched this year two were white and 18 were Negroes.

Mississippi led the list in the number of lynchings, the record standing at seven; there were four in Louisiana, two each in Georgia, Florida and Texas, and one each in California, North Carolina, and Tennessee.

It is a dark record and one of which the states involved may well be ashamed.

Bartow, Fla., Record
December 28, 1935

20 Lynched In Past Year

Tuskegee, Ala. (AP)—R. F. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of the institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the U. S. during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934. He said 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved from death at the hands of mobs. Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were atken from offices outside of jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Lynch Demon's Grim Toll Reached Twenty In 1935, Tuskegee Reports

Mississippi Leads States In Reign of Mob Rule and Lawlessness With 7 Lynchings—Louisiana Next With 4.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Jan. 2—According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons—17 white and 67 Negro—were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share-cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

MOB VIOLENCE IN '35 COSTS LIVES OF 20

Report on Deaths Is Issued by Negro College

Mob violence took a score of lives in 1935 in the United States, 18 negroes and two white men being put to death by lynchings in violation of their constitutional rights to trial by jury, the Tuskegee Institute, negro college at Tuskegee, Ala., reported yesterday through its research department.

The report showed that Tennessee bore the stigma of one lynching; Mississippi, 7; Louisiana, 4; North Carolina, 7; Texas, 2; Georgia, 2; Florida, 2, and California, 1. This compares with 15 lynchings over the country in 1934; 28 in 1933 and only eight in 1932.

The report also shows that in 53 instances officers outwitted mobs either by spiriting their prisoners away or by calling in reinforcements to guard the jail. In 11 other instances, the National Guard repelled mobsters, the institute declared.

Mobile, Ala., Press
December 28, 1935

LYNCHINGS SHOW GAIN DURING YEAR

20 Cases of Mob Violence Reported; Alabama Has Clean Record

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—(U.P.)—There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee Institute, famed negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lunchings, more than any other state. Louisiana had four. In Georgia there were two lynchings; Florida and Texas had two each. One lynching took place in North Carolina and one in Tennessee.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said. "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"The alleged offenses were: murder seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organization, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from an officer of the law, one.

"A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. There were 53 instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states.

"In 42 instances prisoners were removed, the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers."

There were 28 lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932.

Florence, S. C., News
December 29, 1935

35 Lynchings In 1935; None in S. C.

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 3 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 55 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precaution staken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offences charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity. 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas 2.

Atlanta, Ga. Journal
December 29, 1935

20 Persons Lynched During 1935, Reports Tuskegee President

TUSKEGEEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced Saturday that records of his institution showed that twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that eighty-seven persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings, led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four, Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas, two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and eighteen negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Tifton, Ga., Gazette
December 28, 1935

20 PERSONS LYNCHED IN 1935

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., December 28—The records complied in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the numbor 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rapo, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organization, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Bristol, Va., Herald-Courier
December 29, 1935

20 NEGROES LYNCHED IN YEAR NOW CLOSING

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28. (AP)—Dr. F. D. Petterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers from death at the hands of mobs. Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Lynchings-1935

Jan. — Dec.

5212

Reports on, Sent Press.

20 LYNCHED DURING 1935.

New York Times

Tuskegee Institute Reports Year's Total Exceeded 1934 by Five.

N. Y. T. 12-27-35

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 26.—Twenty persons died victims of lynchings in the United States during 1935, the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute reported today. This is five more than were listed last year but eight less than in 1933. Of the 1935 total, the report said that thirteen of the victims were in the hands of the law at the time, five being taken from jails, six from officers and that the remaining two were shot to death in a jail.

The report added that there were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, nine being in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern States. In eleven instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negroes.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State were listed as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

CRIME AND DISASTER

By F. D. PATTERSON,
President of Tuskegee Institute.

I SEND you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935: I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933, and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern States. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share-cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

Tuskegee Lists Twenty Anti-American Lynchings in 1935

TUSKEGEE, Ala. — Records compiled at Tuskegee Institute reveal that twenty persons were lynched in 1935, a net addition of five over the previous year, President F. D. Patterson announced, this week.

Of the persons lynched, thirteen were in the custody of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers outside of jails, and two shot to death in jails. On fifty-three occasions, officers of the law prevented mob violence.

Two of the person lynched, the report shows, were white. The States in which the lynchings occurred and the number of each were: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1, and Texas, 2.

20 Lynched in 1935 Skegee

—Dr. Frederick Douglass Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute, announced here Tuesday that according to the report of the Records and Research Department under the directorship of Monroe N. Work, 20 people were lynched in the United States during 1935, representing four more than the number of victims of 1934 and eight less than those of 1933.

The record also revealed that in 53 instances officers of the law prevented lynching with nine of such instances occurring in Northern and western states and 44 in southern states where in such cases military forces were used to protect the prisoner.

States in which lynchings occurred and the number of victims were listed as: California one; Florida two; Georgia two; Louisiana four; Mississippi seven; North Carolina one; Tennessee one and Texas two.

Tuskegee Issues Lynching Record

TUSKEGEE INST., Ala., Jan. 2. — According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Richmond, Va. News-Leader
December 30, 1935

Lynching 5 Up Over '34 Total

Virginia Record Clear as 20 Are Reported for Closing Year.

Twenty persons were lynched in 1935, F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, reported today in a circular letter received here. There were none in Virginia.

Dr. Patterson said that the records show that there were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented mob violence, and eighty-four persons in all were saved.

The letter follows:

"I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933 and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and forty-four in Southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two."

Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Greenwood, S. C. Index-Journal
December 28, 1935

LYNCHINGS THIS YEAR INCREASE

Five More Than 1934, According To Records Of Tuskegee Institute

To the Index-Journal:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 les than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. Patterson
President
Tuskegee Institute,
December 27, 1935

Savannah, Ga./ News
December 29, 1935

Lynchings Gained in 1935

The only encouraging feature of the report from Tuskegee, Ala., that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935 — five more than the number for 1934, eight less than the number for 1933, and twelve more than the number for 1932 — is the statement that there were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and forty-four in Southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. Eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven colored, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The inference to be drawn is that lynchings can, in most cases, be averted if officers of the law exercise prompt judgment and courage and take proper precautions to protect prisoners. The need of electing sheriffs and other officers, who are both fearless and quick-thinking, is apparent. No weakling in the gaze of an officer of the law can frustrate an infuriated mob after the person believed guilty of committing a serious crime has been caught. Above all, the courts must be spurred on to meting out quicker justice to those charged with heinous offenses, by avoiding all unnecessary delays in ruling upon flimsy technicalities raised by astute lawyers.

The records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute show that thirteen of the twenty persons lynched in 1935 were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail. Of the persons lynched two were white and eighteen were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted assault, three; assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state follow: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one, and Texas, one.

Lynching Record Still Bad

In the longer view, the number of lynchings has been falling off, but the figures still remain a blot on the country. The Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute shows that thus far 20 persons were lynched in 1935. This is five more than last year, eight less than the number of 1933, and 12 more than in 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, the report says. Five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

Officers of the law, in 53 instances, prevented lynchings. Nine of these cases were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In other cases different precautions were taken. A total of 84 persons, 67 of whom were Negroes, were thus saved from mob violence.

Of the 20 persons actually lynched this year two were white and 18 were Negroes.

Mississippi led the list in the number of lynchings, the record standing at seven; there were four in Louisiana, two each in Georgia, Florida and Texas, and one each in California, North Carolina, and Tennessee.

It is a dark record and one of which the states involved may well be ashamed.

Birmingham, Ala. News
December 31, 1935

The Lynching Record For The Year 1935

The number of lynchings in 1935 was greater than in the preceding year, and in most other recent years. Records compiled at Tuskegee Institute show 20 lynchings in the year now ending, five more than in 1934. Only two or three times in the last 12 years has the number of lynchings exceeded 20. In one year, 1932, lynchings declined to the record low number of eight. In some other recent years the record was almost as good. In 1929 there were 10, in 1928 there were 11, and in 1931 there were 13.

There has been a marked downward trend in lynchings ever since annual records have been compiled. In some years there has been a setback, as there was in 1935, but in the main there has been gratifying progress in stamping out this hideous evil. From 1885, the first year for which records are available, until the turn of the century, there was but one year in which the number of lynchings was less than 100, and then it was 96. In one year during that period there were more than 200 lynchings, and in several years there were nearly 200. The last year in which lynchings reached as high as a hundred was 1901, when there were 105. From then on lynchings gradually declined, and 1922 was the last year in which there were more than 50, the number in that year being 57. From 1901 to 1922 there were only two years in which the number dropped below 50. Since 1922 it has not been above 50, and in most years since then there have been less than 20 lynchings.

Thus we see that there has been steady progress in putting down this barbarous practice. The 1935 record is disappointing both because it shows an increase over the year before and because this year started out so hopefully. In the first six months of 1935 there were only four lynchings, and we were encouraged to believe that the low mark of eight in 1932 would at least be equalled. But the last half of the year brought 16 more lynchings, four times as many as there had been in the first six months.

Of the 20 victims of mobs this year, two were white persons and 18 were Negroes. All but one of the lynchings took place in the South, California being the only state outside this section to have one. For many years lynching has been very largely confined to the South. Only rarely is there such an act of mob violence in any other section.

Mississippi is at the top of the list for 1935 with seven lynchings. Mississippi has the worst record of any state in this respect almost every year. The other lynchings in 1935 were distributed as follows: Louisiana, four; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas, two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The gradual decline in number of lynchings has not been the only encouraging fact. There has also been a gradual lessening of the area in which lynchings take place year after year. Slowly enlightened public opinion and growing respect for law have pushed the boundaries of the lynching region back. The area over which lynch law has prevailed year after year has grown steadily smaller. There was a time, for example, when Virginia and North Carolina frequently had lynchings. Mob violence is now a rarity in those states. In the same way, lynchings have become more and more rare in South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Florida and one or two other Southern states. Alabama has been free of lynchings in most years during the last 12 or 15. There was no lynching in this state in 1935. Lynch law is now largely confined to Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas—and gradually it is being put down in those states.

There is no question that public opinion, in the South as elsewhere, is now strongly set against lynching, that the great majority of people have no sympathy with it. This fact is having its influence in more ways than one. For one thing, it is curbing the spirit of mob violence. For another, it is strengthening the arm of the law in dealing with mobs. It is encouraging officers of the law to stand up against mobs which try to take prisoners from them.

Unfortunately, however, officers do not always stand up as they should against attempts at mob violence, or take the proper precautions to protect prisoners. Of the 20 persons lynched this year, 13 were at one time in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail. On the other hand, the records show that 84 attempts at mob violence were frustrated by officers of the law during the year.

Officers can do more than any others to put down lynching by taking due precautions against attempts at mob violence, and by opposing with all their strength and courage any mob that attempts to take a prisoner in their custody.

DETROIT, MICH.
NEWS
DEC 28 1935

1935's Lynching Record

The Tuskegee Institute sends us its annual compilation of the year's lynchings. Twenty in 1935.

This is neither very high nor very low. There is no definite trend in this type of crime, which, more than banditry, hoodlumism or kidnapings, pitilessly mirrors a flaw in our civilization. There were 15 lynchings in 1934; 28 in 1933; eight in 1932.

Nothing we can say in denunciation of these murders will add to what already has been said, many times over. There is one aspect of this year's record, however, which deserves emphasizing. All but one of the 20 lynchings occurred in the South or Southwest, where the excuse sometimes is made that such summary "executions" serve to protect womanhood.

Only six of the 20 lynchings of 1935 involved victims accused of a sex offense or attempt. In the remaining cases the charge ranged from murder, on the one hand, to "altercation" with another man, on the other. One victim was put to death, in this land of the free, "because he was a 'Communist.'"

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press,

Jan.-Dec.

5213

Lumberton, N. C. Robersonian
January 2, 1936

1935 LYNCHING RECORD

According to records compiled at Tuskegee institute, 20 persons—2 whites, 18 negroes—were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of 5 over the 15 lynched in 1934. In 1933 there were 28 mob murders, but only 8 in 1932.

The number of lynchings does not seem to mean anything in particular except that a certain number of persons have fallen victims of mob vengeance, and defiance of law. That is, the number goes up and down with such irregularity as to defy analysis.

Thirteen of the persons lynched this year were in the hands of the law—5 were taken from jails, 6 were taken from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail. In that respect the 1935 record seems to be unusual.

The utterly depressing effect of the record is relieved to some extent by the fact that in 53 instances officers prevented lynchings, 84 persons, 67 of whom were negroes, being thus saved from death at the hands of mobs. A lynching rarely, if ever, occurs in the face of brave and determined officers of the law.

Quoting further from the report from which the figures given above are taken:

Of the 53 instances in which officers of the lew prevented lynchings, 9 were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Oneida, Tenn. News
January 3, 1936

LYNCHING RECORD IN YEAR JUST CLOSING

Mississippi Leads List With 7, Tennessee Has 1

According to records of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precations taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repeal the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lunched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California 1; Florida 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Sanford, N. C. Herald
December 30, 1935

20 LYNCHINGS REPORTED FOR 1935 IN U. S.

Tuskegee Institute In Alabama Makes Report On Illegal Executions

ONE IN THIS STATE

According to a report special to the Sanford Herald from the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, there were 20 persons lynched in United States during 1935, North Carolina contributing one of them and Mississippi leading the list with seven.

This number is five more than were recorded in 1934 and eight less than for 1933 and 12 more than 1932. Thirteen of the number were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside jails and two were shot to death in jail.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were murder, seven; atempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follow: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; and Texas, 2.

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
DEC 28 1935

Lynchings Gain Again

Of the twenty persons lynched in 1935 up to December 21, only six were accused of rape or attempted rape—that being the crime which for so long was made the excuse for extralegal executions in states of heavy Negro populations. Where as we had been congratulating ourselves that lynching was on the wane, this year's aggregate exceeds by five the number in 1934. It is, however, eight less than the number 28 for 1933 but 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Of the twenty, thirteen already were in the hands of the law when seized and executed by the mob—five being taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two shot to death within a jail. Two of the victims were white, the others Negroes.

The foregoing statistics have been compiled by Tuskegee Institute, which presents as the other side of the picture that there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, armed force being employed in eleven cases.

Kingston, N. Y., Free Press
December 28, 1935

MORE LYNCHINGS IN NATION THIS YEAR

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 28.—(U.P.)—There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of the Tuskegee Institute, famed Negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South. That one occurred in California. Mississipp had seven lynchings, more than any other state. Louisiana had four. In Georgia there were two lynchings; Florida and Texas had two each. One lynching took place in North Carolina and one in Tennessee.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 Negrfo," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said. "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail."

Augusta, Ga. Herald
January 5, 1936

TUSKEGEE RELEASES LYNCHING RECORD OF PREVIOUS YEAR

According to a dispatch from Tuskegee Institute, Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, president, has just released the record compiled by the Department of Records and Research of the institute on the number of lynchings occurring during the year.

The release says twenty persons were lynched during the year; five more than the number of 15 for 1934; eight less than the number of 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number of nine for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched, according to the institute, were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail. There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States.

In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The report says, of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropping organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person; one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Texas, two.

ILD Says 24 Lynchings

According to figures just released by the International Labor Defense set the total reported lynchings in the United States at 24 for the year 1935. Of the 24, 23 were negroes. The one white lynching reported was that of C. L. Johnson, which occurred at Yreka, Cal., August 3. In the I. L. D. compilation, Mississippi led in the number of lynchings with eight recorded. Louisiana followed with five, Alabama was third with three. Two each were reported in Texas, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, California, Tennessee and Virginia scored one each. This list, however, declares the I. L. D., could not be claimed as complete inasmuch as many lynchings occur which are not recorded in the press and which only come to light months after, if ever. In compiling the statistics, a lynching was defined as any killing by a group of three or more, unauthorized by law, and premeditated, in a case in which commission of an offense was charged, and given as the excuse for the slaying, according to the report of the I. L. D.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
NEWS
DEC 29 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935

THE annual report of lynchings during 1935, as compiled by the department of research at Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama, shows an increase of five over the fifteen of 1934, but a decrease of eight from the 28 of 1933.

Of those lynched, eighteen were Negro and two white, and the apportionment by states shows Mississippi 7; Louisiana 4; Florida 2; Georgia 2; Texas 2; California 1; North Carolina 1; Tennessee 1.

Of particular significance is the record that on 44 occasions, southern officers prevented lynchings and saved prospective victims, an indication that lynching can be stamped out by alert agents of the law.

While the Tuskegee reports are accurate and complete insofar as they go, we hold one criticism against them. All lynchings are not included in the records. Tuskegee depends on instances where men accused or suspected of a crime are dealt with summarily, or who are removed from jail and killed.

There is no difference, insofar as the term lynching is concerned between a mob of white men who drag a negro from a cell and hang him, and the northern gangster who puts his enemy on the spot and riddles him with slugs from a machine gun, or as was the case in three gang outrages in New York this year, slowly cuts him to pieces with pocket knives.

These latter crimes are to all intents and purposes lynchings. The fact that the law does play the party of the third makes no difference; the further fact that offenses for which these men pay are as a rule not recognized by law makes less.

The Star-News would like to peruse a record of all killings in the United States for 1935 where a mob of two or more men took part: We believe in that case the apportionment between states would be a revelation, particularly to some of the more ardent advocates of the proposed federal anti-lynching law.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C.
SENTINEL
DEC 29 1935

The Year's Lynching Record

President Patterson, of Tuskegee, follows up the custom of former President Moton of that institution, by furnishing the press an annual report on lynchings in this country. His report shows that 20 persons have been lynched in 1935. This is five more than in 1934, eight less than in 1933, and twelve more than in 1932.

Thirteen of the victims of mobs this year were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in prison.

It is encouraging to note, however, that there were 53 instances in which officers prevented lynchings in the face of angry mobs. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern States. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attack person, 1; taking prisoner from officer, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

While it is a matter for deep regret that North Carolina is included in the list of eight states that had lynchings this year, it is gratifying that there was only one victim of mob law in this Commonwealth.

Forty states got along without the aid of Judge Lynch in 1935. The hope of every good citizen in North Carolina ought to be that this State will be free of mob violence and lynchings in 1935. Civilization has advanced too far in North Carolina to tolerate lynch law.

NORFOLK, VA.
LEDGER DISPATCH
DEC 31 1935

Lynchings and Law Officers

From President F. D. Patterson comes Tuskegee's annual report and brief analysis of American lynchings. There were 20 mob murders in the country during 1935: 5 more than in 1934; 8 less than in 1933; but 12 more than in 1932. This peculiarly American shame was distributed among the following states in the following numbers: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2. Of the victims, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The so-called usual crime or attempt at the usual crime was responsible for 6 of the lynchings. The other charges involved: murder, 7; altercation with another man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking another person, 1; taking prisoner from officer, 1; killed by mob in searching for another, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

Another item of Tuskegee's analysis shows a side which is both bright and dark. This item is the finding that in 53 cases officers of the law prevented lynchings—9 in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. As a result of activities on the part of officers, Tuskegee reports, 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from lynching at the hands of mobs. That is the bright side.

The dark side is that of the 20 persons lynched in 1935, 13 were in the hands of the law: 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails; and 2 were shot to death in a jail. It is both dark and shameful that these 13 were not saved from mobs by the officers in charge of them. All of us know that a mob is not only a fool but a coward. In almost every instance a mob will back down or back away from armed officers who make it clear that they are determined to protect their prisoners—even from their friends and neighbors.

Unless an officer whose duty it is to hold in custody an accused person is killed, disabled by wounds, or actually overcome by physically greater force actually applied to his person, he shares the shame of a lynching with the mob that commits it. He violates his oath and he violates one of the first principles of manhood.

Dalton, Ga., N. Ga. Citizen
January 2, 1936

Record Still Bad

We have received from President Patterson, of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, the report for lynchings during the year 1935.

It shows an improvement over years that have passed, but it is by no means creditable. In a government where law is supposed to control, and where there is machinery for the control of crime and criminals, as well as laws for the service of the people in the conduct of their civil affairs there should be no such monstrous thing as mob law. And least of all should we have an exampel of lawlessness set in high places as regards civil affairs.

The following is the official lynching record for 1935:

I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933; and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and forty-four in southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Patterson, S. C., Record
December 30, 1935

ANOTHER BLOT.

The Tuskeegee Insitute of Alabama, announces that a total of 20 persons were lynched in the year 1935. The total is five greater than during the year 1934, but eight less than in 1933.

The report is a blot upon the states in which these manifestations of mob violence occurred and impresses forcibly upon the minds of law-abiding citizens that the spirit of the mobster is still at large.

In connection with the score of lynchings during the year, one wonders how many persons who participated in these illegal killings have been punished by the courts.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

5214

5214

Greer, S. C. Citizen
January 2, 1936

Lynchings for 1935 Are Tabulated By Tuskegee Institute

The Citizen is in receipt of the following letter from F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, of Tuskegee, Ala. This college is recognized as the largest and most influential colored institution in the world and is on a par with many of the white universities of this country. For this reason, the following statement may be taken as entirely authentic.

"Dear Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings f the year 1935. I find according to t records compiled in the Departme of Records and Research of the Tu kegee Institute that there were persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 mo than the number 15 for 1934; 8 le than the number 28 for 1933; and more than the number 8 for 1932. of the persons lynched were in t hands of the law; 5 were taken fro jails, 6 from officers of the law outsi of jails and 2 were shot to death in jail.

There were 53 instances in which o ficers of the law prevented lynchin 9 of these were in Northern and We tern states and 44 in Southern stat In 42 of the instances the prisone were removed or the guards augmen ed or other precautions taken. In th 11 other instances, armed force wa used to repel the would be lynchers A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 6 Negro, were thus saved from death a the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offens es charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; adtercation with man 1; activity in share cropper organiz ing, 1; attacking person, 1; takin prisoner from officer of the law, 1 killed by mob in search of anothe person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; com munistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings oc curred and the number in each Stat are as follows: California, 1; Florid 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississip pi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1 Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. Patterson, Pres.

Columbus, Miss. Dispatch
December 29, 1935

SETS 1935 LYNCH TOLL AT TWENTY

Negro Educator Compiles Totals; Mississippi Leads List With Seven

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28—(AP)—Dr. F. D Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina nd Tennessee1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them including murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Clipper
January 2 1936

LYNCHING RECORD FOR 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This information was released December 27th. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organization, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; Communistic activity, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California one; Florida, two; Georgia, two Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven North Crolina, one; Tennessee one: Texas. two.

Fayetteville, N. C., Observer
December 30, 1935

The Public Pulse

1935 LYNCHINGS
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.
December 21, 1935.

Editor,
Fayetteville Observer.
Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Lanett, Ala. Times
January 1, 1936

Lynchings Show Increase Over 1934

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 12 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynching occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Lumpkin, Ga., Journal
January 3, 1936

20 PEOPLE LYNCHED IN 1935 GEORGIA IS CHARGED WITH 2 MISSISSIPPI LEADS WITH 7

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offences charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killing by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman,1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7. North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Forsyth, Ga., Advertiser
January 2, 1936

Twenty Reported Lynched in 1935

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced Saturday that records of his institution showed that twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that eighty-seven persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings, led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas, two, and California, North Carolin a and Tennessee, on each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and eighteen negroes while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 13 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Blakeley, Ga. News
January 2, 1936

20 LYNCHINGS IN UNITED STATES IN YEAR 1935

IS INCREASE OF FIVE OVER YEAR 1934, STATISTICS REVEAL

According to records compiled by F. D. Patterson, President of Tuskee Institute, and given to The News, there were 20 lynchings in the U. S. in 1935.

Charlotte, N. C. Observer
December 31, 1935

LYNCHING RECORD SIGNIFICANT

Several significant facts are conspicuous in Tuskegee institute's annual compilation of the Nation's lynching record for 1935, showing 20 persons lynched during the year.

It must be noted at once that 19 of the 20 lynchings occurred in the Southern States and that 18 of the victims were negroes.

Another outstanding fact in the record at once and as usual gives the lie to the contentions of those apologists who would like for the world to believe that most of the lynchings in the South are in defense of Southern womanhood. Of the 18 negroes lynched this year, only six were charged with either criminal assault or attempted criminal assault. Seven were charged with murder and one with attacking a person, another with slapping a white woman.

It may be significant—certainly it is not encouraging — that the number of lychings this year exceeded last year's record by one third and also exceeded the average annual record for the three preceding years, 1932-1934. The average for the three years was 17. The highest record for any of the four years was 28 in 1933.

The most encouraging phase of the annual compilation is the number of lynchings that were prevented. In 53 instances of threatened lynchings a total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs, according to the Tuskegee record, 44 of these instances being in the South. The batting average in favor of the officers of the law, therefore, was a little better than two to one in the Southern States; that is, more than two lynchings were prevented for each one committed.

However, no excuse or apology or argument can wipe away the ugly fact that in the year 19 lynchings were perpetrated in seven Southern States and none in any other State except California, and that in as many instances mobs succeeded in defiance of the Federal and State constitutions, the statute laws, the courts and the officers of the law, and committed an act of anarchy in each instance.

Soon Congress will be in session and will have before it for consideration a Federal anti-lynching bill. Southern Senators and Representatives will be expected to fight it to the finish on the ground that such a law would be in contravention of States' rights. Also they will argue that the States of the South are amply able to deal with the matter of lynchings and that no Federal law to deal with the crime is necessary.

The Southern States ought to prove that they can deal with lynching and put it down. As long as they fail—either because they will not or cannot do it—they are inviting Congress to enact a Federal anti-lynching law, no matter what their Senators and Representatives say about it.

And, unless the record be considerably improved, it need not surprise any one if Congress before many years does pass an anti-lynching bill. The Nation is getting tired of lynchings.

Times Courier
December 31, 1935

20 Lynched During 1935

Compilation of Figures From All Sections of U. S.; Florida Has Two Lynchings

According to records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the 15 for 1934; eight less than the 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the eight for 1932. Thirten of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented, or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows; California, 1; Florida 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

OMAHA, NEB.
WORLD HERALD
DEC 29 1935

A Lynching Record.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 21.—To the Editor of The World-Herald: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number (15) for 1934; eight less than the number (28) for 1933, and 12 more than the number (8) for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man 1; activity in share-cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Lynchings—1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5215

Columbus Ga Enquirer-Sun
January 4, 1936

LYNCHING GAINS

Twenty persons were lynched last year, according to the record by the Tuskegee Institute. This was five more than in 1934, eight less than the number in 1933 and twelve more than the number in 1932. Two were white and the others negroes. Georgia had one lynching.

An encouraging feature of the report is the statement that there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances, prisoners were removed, or guards augmented or other precautions taken. In eleven other cases, armed force was used to repel would be lynchers. Eighty-four persons, 17 white and 67 colored, were thus saved from probable deaths at the hands of mobs.

This would seem to prove the belief that lynchings can, in most cases, be averted, if officers of the law exercise prompt judgment and courage and take proper precautions to protect prisoners. The need of electing sheriffs and other officers, who are both fearless and quick-thinking, is apparent.

It requires a strong man wearing the badge of law to face a mob, but intelligence and quick thinking when a serious offender has been arrested, may make the forming of a mob useless in the minds of those who might join it.

It has often been said that the slow process of justice in cases which excite public indignation is, to an extent, responsible for mobs.

Either the courts should be speeded up or some kind of assurance given that all offenders whom mobs are liable to want will be tried within the shortest time possible. Tactics used by some lawyers to delay trial should be overruled.

Although the number of lynchings remains too high, we feel that the tendency to form lynch mobs is decreasing. Most of the lynchings now are done by small determined groups of mad men instead of the former large crowds. Perhaps the offenders may soon learn to let the law take its course—and thus preserve the good name of their state.

Salisbury, N. C., Watchman
January 3, 1936

20 Persons Are Lynched In 1935

Twenty persons, two of whom were white and 18 negroes, have been lynched so far in 1935, according to information compiled by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute, it has been annonuced by F. D. Patterson, president of the negro institution.

Mississippi led the list of States in which lynchings occurred during the year with seven. Louisiana had four ; Florida, Georgia and Texas, two each, and North Carolina, Tennessee, and California, one each.

The 20 recorded for the year are five more than the number for 1934, eight fewer than the total for 1933, and 12 more than the number listed for 1932, which had a total of only eight. Thirteen of the 20 persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law. Five of these were taken from jails, six from the custody of officers, outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jail.

During the year there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western States according to the institute's figures. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or "the guards augumented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs."

The report lists the offenses with which the 20 lynched were charged as—murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slaping a woman, one; and communistic activity, one.

Ludowici, Ga., News
January 2, 1936

5 More Are Lynched In '35 Than In '34

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and twelve more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Statesboro, Ga., Times and News
January 2, 1936

Lynchings for Year Show An Increase

Records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute show that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings; 9 of them were in Northern and Western state and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 per negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking of prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Sentinal
December 29, 1935

The Year's Lynching Record

President Patterson, of Tuskegee, follows up the custom of former President Moton of that institution, by furnishing the press an annual report on lynchings in this country. His report shows that 20 persons have been lynched in 1935. This is five more than in 1934, eight less than in 1933, and twelve more than in 1932.

Thirteen of the victims of mobs this year were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in prison.

It is encouraging to note, however, that there were 53 instances in which officers prevented lynchings in the face of angry mobs. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern States. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

While it is a matter for deep regret that North Carolina is included in the list of eight states that had lynchings this year, it is gratifying that there was only one victim of mob law in this Commonwealth.

Forty states got along without the aid of Judge Lynch in 1935. The hope of every good citizen in North Carolina ought to be that this State will be free of mob violence and lynchings in 1935. Civilization has advanced too far in North Carolina to tolerate lynch law.

Ayden, N. C., Dispatch
January 2, 1936

20 Persons Are Lynched In '35

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.
December 21, 1935.

(By F. D. Patterson)

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records of Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented of other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; takin prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas,

[illegible] C. Chronicle
January 2, 1936

Lynchings Are Higher In 1935

Lynchings for the year of 1935 are higher than any previous year according a commmunication received from the president of the Tuskegee Institute of Alabama since the year 1933 when the number of lynching of that year was 8 over the year of 1935.

While this state was not responsible for any of these lynchings.

The communication received by The Chronicle reads as follows:

"I find according to the records compiled in the Departmentf o Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number of 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number of 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the lap prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a poman, 1; communistic activity 1.

"

The States in which lynchings occured and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Pelham, Ga., Journal
January 2, 1936

20 Persons Lynched In U. S. During 1935

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number of 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number of 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number of 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 3 were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in seach of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

High Point [illegible] Enterprise
December 30, 1935

LYNCHING A FRIGHTFUL COMMENTARY ON LAW

Editor of The Enterprise:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1922. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

[illegible] Post
December 28, 1935

20 LYNCHINGS IN U. S. DURING YEAR OF 1935

One Occurred North Carolina Report States

Twenty lynchings occurred in the United States during 1935, according to records from Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, at Tuskegee, Ala., which annually compiles a report.

One lynching occurred in North Carolina, it is reported by F. D. Patterson, president. The full report follows:

"I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to rtpel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3, altercation with man, 7; activity in share cropper organization, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2."

[illegible] Tenn. News
January 2, 1936

20 Persons Lynched During Past Year

According to records compiled by the Tuskegee Negro Institute, sent The News this past week there were 20 persons lynched in the United States in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 in 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in the Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5216

Cookeville, Tenn. Herald
January 2, 1936

TWENTY PERSONS WERE LYNCHED IN PAST YEAR

"I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute," states F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Indutrial Institute, "that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail."

Mr. Patterson further states that "there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Nothern and Western states, and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs."

"Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses choarged were: murder, 7 attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoners from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1."

"The states in which lynchings occurred," he said, "and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; and Texas, 2."

High Point N. C. Enterprise
December 30, 1935

WEAK-KNEED LAW YIELDS 13 TO LYNCHERS

THIRTEEN of the 20 persons lynched during 1935, according to records of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute were taken from the hands of the law. That is a condition more alarming, if possible, than the fact that an increase of five over the preceding year's total of lynchings, and a commentary upon the inadequacy or the unwillingness of law to function against that most dangerous foe of liberty and justice, mob rule.

Geographically speaking, the lynchings and prevented lynchings—of which there were 53 — show a spread over Northern and Western territory instead of the normal restriction to the South, although the Southern area, led by Mississippi with seven lynchings, continues to lead a sorry situation in that respect. It is a blot which the South has endeavored to erase, has succeeded in a measure, but to which it must continue to give unrelenting attention if law and order are to be served as a self-respecting people must demand.

Seventeen whites and 67 Negroes were saved from mobs when law prevented would-be lynchers from accomplishing their disgraceful purpose; in that may be found some solace, but in the breakdown that allowed 13 to be taken from officers and a total of 15 to be lynched nothing is ameliorating. It is a blackness not to be washed off the hands of an altogether pitiful and too weak enforcement of law. No one is safe when law is that weak-kneed.

Lincolnton N. C. Times
January 2, 1936

20 People Lynched In U. S. This Year

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 31.—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute, announced today that records of his institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, Louisiana reported four, Florida, two, Georgia two, Texas two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in sharecropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

C., Messenger
January 1, 1936

RECORD OF LYNCHINGS

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 8 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 colored were thus saved from death in the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attemped rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organization, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina 1 Tennessee, 1; and Texas, 2.

LYNCHBURG, VA.
NEWS
DEC 31 1935

People's Forum

THE LYNCHING RECORD

To the Editor of The News:

Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, seventeen white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON.

Tuskegee, Alabama, December 21, 1935.

HARTFORD, CONN.
TIMES
DEC 27 1935

Lynchings for 1935

To the Editor of The Times:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings; nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern staaes. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro. The offences charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 26.

Norfolk, Va. Pilot
January 3, 1936

Roll of Horror

The 1935 Roll of Horror is 20 lynchings, 19 of them in Southern States, and 18 of the victims Negroes. The number is 33 per cent larger than last year's 15, but smaller by eight than the 28 in 1933. It is the largest number of lynchings in the past dozen years save in 1933, in 1931, and 1926. During these dozen years the range has been from 8 to 28; the average between 16 and 17.

Compared with earlier years around the turn of the century, when a hundred lynchings a year were not unusual, this is progress of a sort. Compared even with 20 years ago, when 50 lynchings were not infrequent, it is progress. But compared with more recent years it is regression.

It is all the more humiliating because most of the 20 victims of last year were not even charged with attacking white women—the old pretext for lynching—and 13 of them were taken from the hands of officers of the law. Three of the victims were charged with rape, and three others with attempted rape. But the majority were murdered by mobs for such alleged offenses as murder (seven), altercations, activities in organizing share croppers, slapping a woman, and communistic activity; and one merely because a mob was searching another man and found him.

Discouraging as the record is in some respects, it will not dampen the efforts of Southerners who are determined to replace the savagery of the jungle with a decent respect for law. The pressure will continue, and in the long run it will win. It will be directed toward Governors and sheriffs and policemen, and toward officers of all types. It will be directed especially toward jailers who allow mobs to taken prisoners from their very hands. It will be directed toward public opinion and toward the courts themselves.

Meantime, a special effort should be made in Mississippi. That State produced seven of the man-killing mobs of 1935 and six of the fifteen the year before. It has been for years the worst of the lynching States, as it is the most backward by nearly any other test by which civilization can be measured. But it is by no means hopeless. One Mississippi Governor who honestly sought to punish lynchers could work wonders. One Mississippi sheriff who defended a prisoner with his pistol could become a celebrity. One Mississippi jailer who defied a mob could set an example that might turn the tide. One day some such man will arise.

Rochester, N. Y.
Democrat-Chronicle
JAN 2 1936

Again the Lynching Evil

The always depressing figures on lynching have just been published for 1935, by the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. They show a total of 20 for the year, five more than the year before, but eight fewer than in 1933. Thirteen of the victims were in the hands of the law at the time; five were taken from jails, six from officers and two were shot to death in a jail.

Mississippi headed the list with seven; Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia and Texas two each, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. Eighteen of the twenty victims were Negroes.

The number of victims who are done to death by this form of mob frenzy is only a part of the story. Fifty-three other cases were recorded this year where mobs bent on lynching were beaten off by officers of the law. Had resistance been a little less determined, all of these would doubtless have been added to the horrible list. Nine of these frustrated attempts at mob law occurred in northern states.

It is difficult to find in these figures much to encourage the belief that the lynching mania is dying out. About all that can be said is that law enforcement agencies are becoming more efficient in protecting prisoners from lynchers. Here lies the main hope of ending this form of barbarism. If mobs can once be made to understand that the law can and will be enforced by orderly means, they will gradually become civilized.

Meanwhile the country has another opportunity to reflect on the problem of lawlessness in a country which raises up national heroes, then is unable to assure them safety and peace of mind.

Greensboro, N. C., Record
January 2, 1936

Remember Govan Ward!

Of the 20 lynchings which occurred in the United States in 1935 none constituted a more flagrant insult to law and decency, and none was quite so much of a spit in the face of justice as the one near Louisburg, Franklin county, North Carolina, in which a crazed negro, Govan Ward, was taken from officers, well armed, on a public highway in broad daylight, by a mob of unmasked men and put to death. The crime took place within a short distance of the state capital!

The Govan Ward case also shines in the 1935 lynching record because the official "investigation" of it stands out as superlative in weakness and farce. Despite the fact that a score or more of mobsters participated in the crime, and despite the fact that hundreds of persons, men, women and children, were on the scene shortly after the insane man was killed, no one has been punished—in fact no arrests have been made, though the lynching took place months ago.

Characterizing the Ward lynching as the "most surprising" of last year, an esteemed contemporary, the Roanoke (Va.) World-News, comments: "For some years North Carolina had enjoyed an enviable reputation. It dealt sternly with the mob that stormed the Asheville jail, and sent to prison those who took part in the Needleman affair. And for years afterwards there was no lynching in North Carolina. In the Ward case a white North Carolinian obtained the names of nine of the lynchers and furnished them to the authorities, but no action was taken. Some of the predecessors of Governor Ehringhaus were made of sterner stuff."

The World-News is right. Circumstances being what they are in the Ward case, the Record cannot believe the state of North Carolina is so impotent, so helpless, so lacking in courage and resourcefulness, so dumb, that it can obtain no evidence at all tending to reveal the identities of the white-livered cowards who by their infamous crime have placed the name of the state high on the roster of states shamed and disgraced in 1935 because of lynchings.

When mob-murderers are permitted to go unpunished, that, in effect, cordially invites and warmly welcomes more mob murders. Lynching is anarchy in its more dangerous and despicable form. Even at this late date, a clearing up of the Ward case, or even a sincere and determined move to get at the bottom of it, might serve to save the state from the ignominy of a lynching in 1936.

Hendersonville, N. C. Times
December 28, 1935

20 LYNCHINGS 1935 RECORD

Report Shows 53 Such Cases Of Violence Prevented, 44 In South

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933 and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of them were in northern and western states and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed forces was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape 3; rape 3; altercation with man 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1 Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Biloxi, Miss., Herald
December 30, 1935

Mississippi Leads In Number Lynched

Tuskegee Ala. Dec. 20—(AP)—Dr. F D. Patterson president of Tuskegee Institute announced today that records of his institution showed that 2[0] persons were lynched in the United States during 1935 a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation according to Dr. Patterson's announcement while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Lynching

Editor The News: —

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933 and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala., December 21.

Charlotte News
December 30, 1935

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5217

Atlanta, Ga.
Christian Index
Jan - 9 - 1936

OUR RECORD OF SHAME

PRESIDENT F. D. Patterson, of Tuskegee, Alabama, quoting from the records compiled in the department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, is authority for the statement that there were twenty persons lynched in the country in 1935. Dr. Patterson says: "This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933; and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in jail."

But the records from which the foregoing is quoted show that officers of the law prevented fifty-three lynchings. Forty-four of these were in the Southern states. The records give no information as to the number of lynchings prevented in former years, but we believe steady progress is being made in this particular. Methods used to prevent lynchings were the removal of prisoners, augmentation of guards or other effective precautions. In eleven instances state militia was used to prevent lynchings. Thus eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro prisoners were saved from death and the law given an opportunity to take its course.

If the records from which Dr. Patterson releases this statement are correct, only six of the twenty lynched in 1935 were charged with an attack on women. Of the fourteen others killed by mobs, the records show that seven were charged with murder, one with an altercation with a man, one with activity in share-cropper organization, one with attacking a person, one with taking a prisoner from an officer of the law, one killed by a mob in search of another person, one charged with slapping a woman and one with communistic activity.

"Made in the United States," should be stamped in letters of fire on the fly leaf of this unique record of shame. No other nation, European, Asiatic, Australian or South American begins 1936 with such a deficit. It is our record—our record of shame and not that of the community in which the law was lynched. Year after year, the American people have carried this burden imposed upon them by a few outraged persons, impatient of the long delays so often experienced in courts of justice. Year after year, the law has cried: "Is it nothing to you, all you that pass by?"

Something should be done to prevent lynching in 1936. Public sentiment against this collective crime should be aroused. The pulpit, the press, the movies, the radio, the school and civic and fraternal organizations should hold up this hateful thing to the light where it may be

"From the witnesses who have appeared before us, we find that many of the industries in this city are victimized by racketeers. This racketeering is largely centralized in the hands of a dozen or fifteen major criminals, most of them totally unknown to the public.

"We find that most of the rackets in this city are based on the systematic extortion of money from business by the criminal underworld, through pretended trade and protective associations, labor union racketeers or plain intimidation."

Opelousas, La. News
January 2, 1936

Mississippi Leads, Louisiana Second in Negro Lynching

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee 1; Texas, 2.

Lynchings-1935
6 Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

5218

Guntersville, Ala., Advertiser
January 15, 1936

STOP THIS LYNCH LAW

Records of Tuskegee Norma and Industral Institute which ha kept records on the subject for number of years comes forwar with the interesting informatio that there were 53 instances dur ng 1935 in which officers of th aw prevented lynchings. But 2 ynchings actually occurred.

This is a disgraceful record, be ng five more than were lynche during 1934, although eight les than the number 28 for 1933 an 12 more than the number 8 fo 1932. Only two of the 20 lynche during 1935 were white, the re mainder being negroes while i the 53 instances in which lynch ings were prevented, 17 white an 67 negro persons were saved from such deaths.

There is one bright spot in the report for Alabamians, however and that is due to the fact that not a single lynching occurred in this state during 1935. The states and number of lynchings in each of the year follow: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one and Texas, two.

It is generally recognized that respect for law and order and wide education of the citizenship at large must be at a high pitch before this heinous form of crime can be completely wiped out. But if there is a repetition of this record in 1936 and succeeding years or if the condition becomes more aggravated instead of improvement being noted it is quite likely that rigid federal legislation to to bring justice to bear on lynchers will be proposed and have a better chance for adoption than ever before. The best way to prevent passage of such a bill as the Wagner-Costigan measure which was proposed at the last session of congress and killed only after a stubborn filibuster by southern senators is to stop lynching people. And, unless this is done the sentiment of the people will gradually demand the enactment of such a law.—Florence Times.

Chatsworth, Ga., Times
January 16, 1936

20 Persons Lynched In U. S. During 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 3 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Villa Rica, Ga., Breeze
January 30, 1936

20 Lynched—84 Saved

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lunchings on eover half were in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California ,North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

PRESS
Morgantown - N. C.
JAN 9 1936

20 Lynched—84 Saved

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure negroes the white officers of the law protected the negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Bremen, Ga., Gateway
January 30, 1936

20 Lynched—84 Saved

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lunchings on eover half were in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California ,North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

DEMOCRAT
Freehold. NJ
JAN 23 1936

20 LYNCHED — 84 SAVED.

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Logan, W. Va. Democrat
January 2, 1936

20 Lynchings Mar Record Of The Past Year

Tuskegee Institute Statistics Reveal Increase of Mob Killings Over Similar Events in 1934

In a report released this week by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute at Tuskegee, Alabama, it is shown that there were 20 persons lynched in the United States during the year just closing, as compared with 15 lynchings in 9133, an increase of five for this year.

The 1935 record, however, contains eight less mob killings than in 1933, but 12 more than in 1932.

Thirteen of those lynched this year, the record reveals, were taken from the hands of the law, five being taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in their cells.

In fifty-three other instances of mob attack; lynchings were prevented by the police authorities. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of these cases the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken successfully, while in the other 11 instances armed force was used to repel the attacks. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were so saved from mob violence, the report continues.

Of the 20 persons who were lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. The offense charges were: Murder, 7; attempted rape 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, one; organization activity, one; attack, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which the lynchings occurred and the number in each were California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

DEMOCRAT
Russellville
JAN 16 Ky

TWENTY LYNCHED—84 SAVED.

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding Negro educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of whom were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that 84 persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these 67 were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the 20 lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi, leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia, and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina, and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.
BULLETIN
JAN 22 1936

TWENTY PERSONS LYNCHED IN 1935

To the Editor, Evening Bulletin:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number, 15, for 1934; 8 less than the number, 28, for 1933; and 12 more than the number, 8, for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offences charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee Institute, Oklahoma.

Birmingham, Ala., Labor Advocate
January 4, 1936

Annual Report Of Lynching Dec. 31

Editor Labor Advocate:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 134; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails, and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings; 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organization, 1; attacking person 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.—Yours very truly F. D. Patterson, President.

Summerville, Ga., News
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Lynched By Mobs During '35

An Increase Reported Over Preceding Year, According to Statistics Completed at Tuskegee.

During the year 1935 twenty persons were lynched in the United States, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee institute. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933, and twelve more than 8 for 1932.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 7, attempted rape 3, rape 3, altercation with man 1, activity in share-cropper organizing 1, attacking person 1, taking prisoner from officer of the law 1, killed by mob in search of anotehr person 1, slapping woman 1, communistic activity 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1, and Texas, 2.

Quincy, Fla., Times
January 9, 1936

20 Lynched—84 Saved.

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Lynchings-1935.
Reports on, Sent Ress.

Jan.-Dec.

5219

Princeton, W. Va. Observer
January 2, 1936

Lynchings Show Increase In 1935, Report Discloses

Tuskegee Institute Announces 20 Persons Lynched During Year

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States during the past year, according to records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama.

This number was five more than the fifteen lynchings reported in 1934, the report shows. However, it is eight less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched this year were in the hands of the law, the report discloses; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances, it was reported, where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negroes, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; and Texas, 2.

Pathfinder
Washington D.C.
JAN 25 1936

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Twenty persons were lynched in this country in 1935, five more than in 1934, despite the fact that there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

Drought and grasshoppers are said to have driven more than 17,000 people from South Dakota since 1930.

Immigration laws have excluded an estimated 1,000,000 aliens from the United States since late 1930.

Since the beginning of the 19th century this country has produced more than one billion ounces of gold, 12 billion ounces of silver, 40 billion pounds of zinc, 100 billion pounds of copper and 136 billion pounds of lead.

During the 1935 football season 75,900 players were injured on the gridiron and 30 players died from their injuries.

Sugar consumption requirements in the United States for this year are estimated at 6,434,088 short tons.

Fish and other aquatic animals do not drink water.

NEWS
Paris - Ky.
JAN 28 1936

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE

Gives Figures On Lynchings For Year Of 1935.

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This was five more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails, and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards by other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempte drape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; cativity in share-cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Caroling, 1; Tennessee 1; Texas, 2.

Lawrenceville, Ga., News-Herald
February 6, 1936

TWENTY LYNCHED— EIGHTY-FOUR SAVED

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were negroes. This means, according to the Tuskegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure negroes the white officers of the law protected the negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings, over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi, leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each, and California. North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Montgomery, W. Va. News
January 3, 1936

TWENTY PERSONS LYNCHED IN 1935

Officers of the Law Prevented Lynchings In 53 Instances, Report Shows

F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, founded by Booker T. Washington, for the training of colored young men and women, and located at Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, has sent out the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935:

"I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

"The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississip-

...1, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2."

Philadelphia, Miss. Democrat
January 17, 1936

THE OTHER SIDE

Tuskegee Institute takes great pains to assemble each year the figures bearing upon the number of lynchings by States.

Mississippi again heads the list, with seven. Louisiana is second, with four.

There is another side to the picture.

Tuskegee makes much ado about the number of lynchings, but says little of the fact that there would be no such lynchings if certain crimes were not committed.

In other words, if Mississippi leads in lynchings, then it is a corollary thought that Mississippi must also lead in the crimes for which such lynchings are inflicted.

Tuskegee could well afford to begin some missionary work along that line.

CATSKILL, N. Y.
MAIL
JAN 9 1936

20 LYNCHED—84 SAVED

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

NEWS
Paris - Ky.
JAN 11 1936

20 LYNCHED—84 SAVED.

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of whom were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Tallapoosa, Ga., Journal
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Lynched During 1935, Reports Tuskegee President

Tuskegee, Ala.—Dr. F. D Patterson president of Tuskegee Institute, announced that records of his institution showed that twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that eighty-seven persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings, led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four, Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas two and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and eighteen negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organization, Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

ords and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than for 1934; eight less than for 1933; and 12 more than for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; Communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

The letter in itself constitutes an editorial; it equires no comment.

Santa Barbara, Calif.
PRESS
DEC 30 1935

'Law and Order'

FOR a number of years, the newspapers of the country about this time of the year receive a form letter from Tuskegee Institute, the Alabama colored school founded by Brooker T. Washington, reporting on the number of lynchings in the United States during the year just ending.

Following is this year's letter, signed by F. D. Paterson, president of the school.

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of rec-

Jan. -Dec.

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

5220

GALESBURG, ILL.
REGISTER
DEC 30 1935

AS TO LYNCHING

The Tuskogee Normal and ~~Industrial~~ Institute sends out the following information on lynching:

"I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

"The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2."

This is signed by F. D. Patterson, president of the Institute.

It seems that lynchings were confined to eight states, so that in 40 states there were no lynchings. Mississippi stands out with the worst record, and Louisiana comes next. A bill covering this subject was debated in Congress. The foregoing communication was accompanied by no explanation and no details save the bare facts. It has been years since there was a lynching in Illinois. There is a difficulty in securing evidence against mob participating in such terrible affairs. Perhaps this may be due to a belief in the mind of one that summary punishment was deserved. The trouble with all mob action is that it is impulsive and hasty and may make mistakes. Every man is entitled to a fair trial, and it is believed that this is the universal feeling in this country.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
NEWS
JAN 6 1936

TWENTY LYNCHINGS

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE reports that there were 20 lynchings in the United States in 1935. That is five more than in 1934.

The states that contributed to this gruesome record were: California, 1; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Georgia, 2; Texas, 2; Florida, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7.

Of the offenses charged, only seven were murder, three rape and three attempted rape. One man was lynched for an altercation with a white man, another for share-cropper union agitation, one for slapping a woman. A total of 84 persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Does Congress need any more argument to prove that lynchings, like kidnapings, are its affair. The Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill still is pending.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.
JOURNAL
JAN 2 1936

1935's Lynching Record.

—Detroit News.

The Tuskegee Institute sends us its annual compilation of the year's lynchings Twenty in 1935.

This is neither very high nor very low There is no definite trend in this type of crime, which, more than banditry, hoodlumism or kidnapings, pitiless mirrors a flaw in our civilization. There were 15 lynchings in 1934; 28 in 1933; eight in 1932.

Nothing we can say in denunciation of these murders will add to what already has been said, many times over. There is one aspect of this year's record, however, which deserves emphasizing. All but one of the 20 lynchings occurred in the South or Southwest, where the excuse sometimes is made that such summary "executions" serve to protect womanhood.

Only six of the 20 lynchings of 1935 involved victims accused of a sex offense or attempt. In the remaining cases the charge ranged from murder, on the one hand, to "altercation" with another man, on the other. One victim was put to death, in this land of the free, "because he was a Communist."

DECATUR, ILL.
HERALD
JAN 2 1936

1935's Lynching Record.

—Detroit News.

The Tuskegee Institute sends us its annual compilation of the year's lynchings. Twenty in 1935.

This is neither very high nor very low There is no definite trend in this type of crime, which, more than banditry, hoodlumism or kidnapings, pitiless mirrors a flaw in our civilization. There were 15 lynchings in 1934; 28 in 1933; eight in 1932.

Nothing we can say in denunciation of these murders will add to what already has been said, many times over. There is one aspect of this year's record, however, which deserves emphasizing. All but one of the 20 lynchings occurred in the South or Southwest, where the excuse sometimes is made that such summary "executions" serve to protect womanhood.

Only six of the 20 lynchings of 1935 involved victims accused of a sex offense or attempt. In the remaining cases the charge ranged from murder, on the one hand, to "altercation" with another man, on the other. One victim was put to death, in this land of the free, "because he was a Communist."

WAYCROSS, GA.
JOURNAL HERALD
DEC 31 1935

Lynchings

During 1935 a total of 20 persons were lynched.

However, during this same year, officers of the law prevented 53 lynchings.

The States in which lynchings occurred were California, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Portsmouth, Va. Star
December 29, 1935

20 PERSONS WERE LYNCHED IN 1935

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed 20 persons ere lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 Negro—were saved by officers from farm harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, Louisiana reported 4, Florida, 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white [illegible] and 18 Negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

RALEIGH, N. C.
NEWS OBSERVER
DEC 30 1935

of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Preventing Lynchings

In 1935, the Tuskegee Institute reports, 20 persons were lynched in the United States, all but one of them in the South. This is discouraging as it represents an increase of five lynchings over 1934. But there is an encouraging element in the Tuskegee report. Though 13 of those lynched were taken by mobs from the hands of the law, in 53 instances (44 in Southern States) the courage and intelligence of officers prevented lynchings. This is demonstration that lynching can be prevented, that when lynchings do take place, they are in most instances due to the lack of vigor, intelligence or sense of duty on the part of the responsible officers of the law. Many plans, many laws have been proposed as a means of suppressing the violence against civilization and law which lynchings mean. But the only certain defense against lynching and every other crime lies in law enforcement officers of courage, intelligence and the will to do their duty.

North Emporia, Va. Messenger
January 10, 1936

FRIDAY, JANUARY 10, 1936.

20 LYNCHED—84 SAVED!

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except in California were credited to Southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by the officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida Georgia and Teaxs were the reported locations

Lynchings-1935
6 Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

5221

EL PASO TEX.
HERALD
JAN 11 1936

Twenty Lynchings

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE reports that there were 20 lynchings in the United States in 1935. That is five more than in 1934.

The states that contributed to this gruesome record were; California, one; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Georgia, two; Texas, two; Florida, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven.

Of the offenses charged only seven were murder, three rape and three attempted rape. One man was lynched for an altercation with a white man, another for share-cropper union agitation, one for slapping a woman. A total of 84 persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Does Congress need any more argument to prove that lynchings, like kidnapings, are its affair. The Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill still is pending.

FARGO, N. D.
MORNING FORUM
JAN 14 1936

1935 Lynchings

There were twenty persons lynched in this country in 1935 according to the records of the Tuskegee Institute. It is regrettable that the efforts which have been put forward in recent years have not completely done away with lynching, but there is satisfaction in knowing that we have made progress in reducing the annual toll over a period of years. In the years prior to 1901, there were 100 or more every year. In 1892 there were 231. An aroused public opinion is making headway against the evil.

One interesting and encouraging feature of the 1935 report is the fact that it shows that officers of the law were able to prevent lynchings in fifty instances, and that responsible authorities saved 84 persons, in all, from mob death.

The twenty lynchings this year form a renewed challenge to the lawabiding citizens of the country.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.
PRESS
JAN 15 1936

20 LYNCHINGS

Sometime when we are worrying about persecution and lawlessness in the more "primitive" countries of Europe why not consider for a moment the record of lynching in this country? The Tuskegee institute reports that 20 lynchings occurred in the last year. Eighty-four persons were saved from lynch mobs. Most of the lynchings occurred in southern states and Negroes were the victims.

The record cannot but compel the nation to blush in shame. While it is true that lynchings are growing less numerous, 20 in one year is anything but a condition of which to be proud. Tyrants abroad, upon reading of this country's criticism of their persecution, must be excused a smile when they read reports of lynching in this country. They obviously have no monopoly over racial prejudice and persecution.

WINONA, MINN.
REPUBLICAN HERALD
JAN 3 1936

Dishonor Roll.

The annual report of the Tuskegee Institute of Alabama shows 20 lynchings in the United States during 1935, all of them in states located far from Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The 20 represent an increase of five over 1934 and as usual nearly all occurred in southern states. Mississippi, with seven, was chief offender. Louisiana had four, Florida, Georgia, and Texas two each and California, Tennessee and North Carolina one each.

A common excuse of mobs is that they do the work in which the law fails, yet 13 of the lynching victims already were in the hands of the law. The question of why authorities in these cases could not hold their prisoners for the justice of the courts is no easier to answer in view of the fact that in 53 other instances officers did prevent lynchings during 1935.

Of those prevented, 44 were in the South the balance in northern and western states. Usually a heavier guard or removal of the prisoner was sufficient; in only 11 cases was use of armed force necessary. A total of 84 persons were saved where would-be lynchers were repelled.

Lynchings, the figures show, occur most frequently in districts leading in ignorance and poverty. Eradicating these evils may be a long-time task, but the record reveals that the crime which springs from them can be checked. That the states in which lynching is a problem have not done the checking is the reason for agitation in behalf of a federal anti-lynching law. In their hands rests the presentation of proof that such a law is not needed.

DANVILLE, ILL.
COMMERCIAL NEWS
JAN 10 1936

AGAIN THE LYNCHING EVIL

The always depressing figures on lynching have just been published for 1935, by the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. They show a total of 20 for the year, five more than the year before, but eight fewer than in 1933. Thirteen of the victims were in the hands of the law at the time; five were taken from jails, six from officers and two were shot to death in a jail.

Mississippi headed the list with seven; Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia and Texas two each, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. Eighteen of the twenty victims were Negroes.

The number of victims who are done to death by this form of mob frenzy is only a part of the story. Fifty-three other cases were recorded this year where mobs bent on lynching were beaten off by officers of the law. Had resistance been a little less determined, all of these would doubtless have been added to the horrible list. Nine of these frustrated attempts at mob law occurred in northern states.

It is difficult to find in these figures much to encourage the belief that the lynching mania is dying out. About all that can be said is that law enforcement agencies are becoming more efficient in protecting prisoners from lynchers. Here lies the main hope of ending this form of barbarism. If mobs can once be made to understand that the law can and will be enforced by orderly means, they will gradually become civilized.

Meanwhile the country has another opportunity to reflect on the problem of lawlessness in a country which raises up national heroes, then is unable to assure them safety and peace of mind.

Hartsville, S. C. Messenger
January 9, 1936

NO LYNCHINGS IN S. C.

According to figures published by the Tuskeegee Institute, twenty persons were lynched in the country last year. The number is tabulated as to the crimes committed, the manner in which the lynching was accomplished and the numbers occurring in each state. Two of these hapless victims were white, and among the crimes listed, "communistic activity" is given in one case. Most of the lynchings occurred in the Southern states, of course; Mississippi leading with seven. None are listed as being in South Carolina.—The Greer Citizen.

LEADER
Rockville, Conn.
JAN 11 1936

20 LYNCHED—84 SAVED

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs and of these sixty seven were Negroes. This means, according to Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negros.

Of the twenty lynching one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida Georgia and Texas were reported locations of two each and California North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Sparta, Ga., Ishmaelite
January 16, 1936

FIGURES ON LYNCHINGS COMPILED AT TUSKEGEE

According to records compiled by Tuskegee Institute's department of records and research, twenty persons were lynched in 1935 in the United States. This is five more than in 1934, when 15 met a similar fate. In 1933 28 persons were lynched, and eight in the year 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law. Of this number five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jails.

Lynchings were prevented by officers of the law in 53 instances, according to the Tuskegee records. Nine of these occurrences were in northern and western states and 44 were in southern states. In 42 of the instances violence was prevented when the prisoners were removed or guards were augmented, or other safety precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 whites and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs, the records show.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state, as announced by Tuskegee authorities, are: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

TRIBUNE
Bay City - Tex.
DEC 30 1935

Tuskegee Institute Lynching Report

The Tuskegee Institute has released the following report on lynchings during 1935:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions were taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communitstic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1;

F. D. Patterson, President

Charlottesville, Va.
PROGRESS
JAN 9 1936

PREVENTING LYNCHINGS

Factual evidence, indicating conclusively that practically all lynchings can be prevented if prisoners are quickly removed to safety from the vicinity of their crimes, is set forth in the annual statement of F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, where many of America's leading Negroes have been educated.

The figures show that twenty lynchings occurred in this country in 1935 as compared with 15 in the preceding year Peace officers frustrated 53 attempts of mobs to violently dispose of suspects by hustling them to jails distant from the crime scene or by increasing forces of guards. There is little doubt that most of the twenty persons lynched, eighteen of whom were colored men, would have come to trial in courts of justice had authorities acted without delay to save them from lynching-bent mobs This dilatoriness, intentional or unintentional, should be severely censured by the proper authorities, whose duty it is to see that there is no repetition

Virginia again was not blackened by the stigma of lynchings, while its sister state, North Carolina, reported one. Mississippi led with seven, Louisiana four, Florida, Georgia and Texas two each and California and Tennessee one each.

Danville, Va., Bee
December 30, 1935

The Lynching Record

The annual report on lynching issued by Tuskegee Institute which keeps a close check on these crimes and their causes shows that 20 persons were killed by mobs this year, five more than the year before. Virginia is among the states where racial hatreds happily failed to leave their blemish on the state's record.

The most significant factual record in the report is that 84 persons were saved from lynching through the courageous action of jail officials or through the bringing to bear of the military to see that the law took its course. This shows conclusively that where a state goes to the trouble to circumvent lynching by prompt resort to superior forces to maintain the law the administration of justice prevails.

In those years when the record of mob action was much higher than it is now jails were not as well built as they are today and mobilization of state militia has been speeded up to a point of efficiency where it becomes a really effective lynching deterrent.

Bremen, Ga., Gateway
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Lynched During 1935, Reports Tuskegee President

Tuskegee, Ala.—Dr. F D Patterson president of Tuskegee Institute, announced that records of his institution showed that twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that eighty-seven persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four, Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas two and California, North Carolina, and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and eighteen negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organization, Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on; Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5222

Clanton, Ala., Banner
January 2, 1936

REPORT OF LYNCHINGS IN UNITED STATES IN 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 7; Tennessee 1; Texas, 2.

Double Springs, Ala., Herald
January 3, 1936

20 Lynched In 1935

Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced Saturday that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

The persons lynched included 2 white men and 18 negroes.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

Villa Rica, Ga., Breeze
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Lynched During 1935, Reports Tuskegee President

Tuskegee, Ala.—Dr. F.D Patterson president of Tuskegee Institute, announced that records of his institution showed that twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that eighty-seven persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four, Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas two and California North Carolina, and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and eighteen negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organization, Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
HERALD POST
JAN 1 1936

20 PERSONS LYNCHED IN U. S. DURING 1935

Two Meet Death in Texas At Hands of Mob

Of the 20 lynchings in the United States during 1935, only two occurred in Texas, according to figures released today through the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.

Eigheen Negroes and two men were lynched, the record shows. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee. 1; and Texas 2.

Jefferson, Ga., Herald
January 9, 1936

20 PERSONS LYNCHED BY MOBS DURING 1935

During the year 1935 twenty persons were lynched in the United States, according to figures compiled by Tuskegee Institute. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933 and 12 more than 8 for 1932.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 7; attempted rape 3; rape 3; altercation with man 1; activity in share cropper organizing 1; attacking person 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law 1; killed by mob in search of another person 1; slapping woman 1; communistic activity 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisinia, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee. 1; Texas, 2.

Mount Olive, N. C. Tribune
January 2. 1936

20 PEOPLE LYNCHED IN U. S. IN 1935

Two White Men and 18 Negroes Killed By Mobs in 1935; Eight States Involved.

Tuskegee, Ala.—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute, announced today that records of his institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi, with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, Louisiana reported four, Florida, two; Georgia, two, Texas two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in sharecropper organizing, communistic activity, slappnig a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Greensboro, N. C., News
December 29, 1935

20 PEOPLE LYNCHED IN U. S. THIS YEAR

Two White Men and 18 Negroes Killed By Mobs In 1935, Survey Shows.

EIGHT STATES INVOLVED

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, Louisiana reported four, Florida two, Georgia two, Texas two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in sharecropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Monroe, N. C. Enquirer
January 9, 1936

RECORD OF L... KI... Press Bureau ...EE

Tuskeegee, Ala., Jan. 7.— ...D. Patterson, president of Tuskeekee ...stitute, announces that records of his institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negroes—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Doctor Patterson's announcement; Louisiana reported 4; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Texas, 2; California, North Carolina and Tennessee, 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskeekee president said, had included two white men and 18 negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, Communistic activity, slapping a woman and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside the jails: two were shot to death in jail.

Washington, N. C. News
January 7, 1936

A DISMAL RECORD

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States during the year 1935, according to records of Tuskegee Institute.

It is not a record of which the American people can be proud, particularly when it represents an increase of five over the figure for 1934. And when we reflect that 13 of these victims were in the hands of the law when taken forcibly by mobs, the number takes on added significance. Nor is this all. In 53 other instances lynchings were prevented only because officers were strong enough to stand off the mobs or adroit enough to outwit them.

The fact that all but one of the lynchings occurred in the South, and that 18 of the 20 victims were Negroes, suggests that the problem now is largely confined to Southern States. Nevertheless, it is a matter with which the entire Nation should be concerned.

CINCINNATI, O.
POST
JAN 8 1936

TWENTY LYNCHINGS

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE reports that there were 20 lynchings in the United States in 1935. That is five more than in 1934.

The states that contributed to this gruesome record were: California, one; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Georgia, two; Texas, two; Florida, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven. A total of 84 persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Does Congress need any more argument to prove that lynchings, like kidnapings, are its affair. The Wagner-Costigan antilynching bill still is pending.

BRIDGETON, N. J.
NEWS

DEC 31 1935

NOT much progress is being made by the country in overcoming the proneness to punish criminals by equal lawlessness, that is by lynchings. In the year just closing 20 persons were lynched as compared with 15 in 1934, but it is eight less than in 1933. Mississippi led all other states with seven lynchings. It must not be supposed, however, that officers of the law made no effort to prevent lynchings. Of the 20 men lynched, only 13 were in the hands of the law, while there were 53 cases in which the custodians of prisoners prevented them from being lynched, 44 of which cases were in southern states. This record speaks well for the officers of the law, but as much cannot be said for the people who made the attempts to take the law into their own hands.

CAMDEN, N. J.
COURIER

JAN 3 1936

Lynchings Increase

To the Editor:

Sir—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro.

F. D. PATTERSON.
President, Tuskegee Institute.

CAMDEN, N. J.
COURIER

JAN 3 1936

Lynchings Increase

To the Editor:

Sir—I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1936. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro.

F. D. PATTERSON.
President, Tuskegee Institute.

Crystal Springs, Miss., Meteor
January 3, 1936

MISSISSIPPI AGAIN LEADS ALL OTHER STATES IN LYNCHINGS

Mississippi, to date, has had almost twice as many lynchings this year as any other state, according to figures sponsored by Tuskegee Institute.

The figures are: Mississippi, 7; Louisiana, 4; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Texas, 2; and California, North Carolina, and Tennessee, one each.

That's an increase of five over last year's national total. But the report also adds the more cheerful item that during the year 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were saved by officers of the law from mobbery.

It has been known several months that, barring an "epidemic" of late lynchings in some other state, Mississippi would again head this black list this year. The report therefore is no surprise. But it is nonetheless regretted, and is discreditable.

The great majority of Mississippians truly hope that next year's record will be better. And, in this connection the truth should not be forgotten that in no state is a larger percentage of the leaders working to curb lynchings both by combatting the crimes which inspire them and by speeding legal trials so as to remove any contention of "justification" of mobbery.

Mississippi again leads the list, but the crimes which most often inspire lynchings also are more common in Mississippi than in the majority of states and opponents of lynching have more to overcome.—Clarion Ledger

Everybody deplore lynchings. About 95 per cent of lynchings in the South are for the crime of rape. When a black attacks a white woman in Mississippi and is caught, there is going to be a lynching, and if there are more crimes of that character in Mississippi in 1936 Tuskegee Institute will be able to record more lynchings. The only way to curb lynchings in Mississippi is to stop the crime of rape.

Rockingham, N. C. Post-Dispatch
January 9, 1936

Twenty People Lynched in 1935

Increase of Five Over 1934.

Twenty persons, two of whom were white and 18 negroes, were lynched in 1935, according to information compiled by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute, it was announced by F. D. Patterson, president of the negro institute.

Mississippi led the list of states in which lynching occurred during the year with seven. Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia, and Texas, two each, and North Carolina, Tennessee, and California, one each.

The 20 recorded for the year are five more than the number for 1934, eight fewer than the total for 1933, and 12 more than the number listed for 1932, which had a total of only eight. Thirteen of the 20 persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law. Five of these were taken from jails, six from the custody of officers outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jail.

Wadesboro, N. C., Intelligencer
January 16, 1936

RECORD OF LYNCHINGS KEPT BY TUSKEEGEE

Tuskeegee, Ala., Jan. 7. — Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskeegee Institute, announces that records of his institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons — 17 white and 67 negroes — were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Doctor Patterson's announcement; Louisiana reported 4; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Texas, 2; California, North Carolina and Tennessee, 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskeegee president said, had included two white men and 18 negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing. Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside the jails; two were shot to death in jail.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5223

PRESS
Morgantown - W. Va.
JAN 9 1936

SCORE LYNCHED IN STATES LAST YEAR

Activity of Mobs Shows Increase During Year, With Five More Victims

Twenty persons, two of whom were white and eighteen negroes, were lynched in 1935, according to information compiled by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute, it has been announced by F. D. Patterson, president of the negro institution.

Mississippi led the list of states in which lynchings occurred during the year with seven. Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia, and Texas, two each, and North Carolina, Tennessee, and California, one each.

The 20 recorded for the year are five more than the number for 1934, eight fewer than the total for 1933, and 12 more than the number listed for 1932, which had a total of only eight. Thirteen of the 20 persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law. Five of these were taken from jails, six from the custody of officers outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jail.

During the year there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states, according to the institute's figures. In 43 of the instances the prisoners were removed or "the guard augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus haved from death at the hands of mobs."

The report lists the offenses with which the 20 lynched were charged as—murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organization, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killing by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; and communistic activity, one.

ROCKFORD, ILL.
STAR
JAN 17 1936

LYNCHING OF LAW

Utter collapse of a state's dignity in hysteria over the fate of Bruno Hauptmann probably presents us with the best argument yet for abolition of capital punishment, not out of any excess of humanity but simply to protect the state from being punished by the criminal. Had the Lindbergh kidnaping occurred in Michigan, Hauptmann would be a forgotten figure now, immured in a break-proof prison. As it is, he holds the stage as an almost Wagnerian hero. This is not fair to the state.

As we become more careless of valuable life, we place an increasingly artificial value on the life of useless or criminal persons. This is one of the most remarkable phenomena of our times. We kill with utter callousness on highway or airway and at the same time go into hysterics over a life taken by the state. We doubt, moreover, if we can change this new and growing attitude, so the best thing is probably to eliminate a death penalty which merely creates sympathy for a man held by the courts to be guilty, and thus breaks down respect for courts.

In the Hauptmann case the penalty has been fixed and retreat by the state—save for good and proper reasons—makes the state appear a weak and fluctuating thing. A good case, moreover, can never be made out for continued reprieves that keep a man indefinitely in the shadow of death. We do not offer it as a solution now, but the eventual solution may be the elimination of the death penalty to avoid just such crises as the Hauptmann affair; not to save a criminal's life, but to save the state the embarrassment of having to defend justice against an hysterical mob.

There are two kinds of lynchings. One is execution without law. The other is the lynching of law itself.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.
Press-Leader
JAN 9 1936

VICTIMS OF THE MOB

Omaha World-Herald

A footnote on the state of civilization in the United States is to be found in the annual report on lynching made by F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute. In 1935, he announces, there were 20 lynchings in this country, two of the victims being white and the rest colored.

That is not good. In the list was one lynching that took place in California, a state whose governor a few years ago publicly congratulated a mob which had taken two men from jail and killed them horribly. The rest of the lynchings occurred in the southern states, Mississippi leading with seven, followed by Louisiana with four.

A significant fact is that 13 of the victims of mob fury had to be taken from the hands of the law for the lynchers to do their work. In other words, these 13, if guilty, were safely in custody. Perhaps some of them were innocent. The seven other victims of the mob were seized and slain on suspicion.

No one can contemplate such a report with any feelings of satisfaction. The facts demonstrate how thin is the veneer which hides the beast, especially when men congregate in mobs. The bright spot in Mr. Patterson's report is to be found in the statement that during last year 53 lynchings were prevented. The mobs were checked in their mad course by officers of the law, who met the mob force with force on their part. These officers demonstrated that when the police are firm, when they assert their lawful authority by armed resistance, they can defeat the cowards that make up and control a mob. This fact may inspire other officials in the future to refuse to be weaklings when barbarism controls ordinarily decent men and women.

Lynchings in 1935.

Tuskegee institute in Alabama has issued its annual statement on lynchings in the United States.

There were 20 persons lynched in 1935; 15 in 1934; 28 in 1933; 8 in 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law when taken by the mobs. Two were shot in jail.

Officers of the law prevented lynching in 53 instances, 9 in northern states and 44 in southern states. In 11 instances armed force was used to repel persons who had come for the purpose of seizing a prisoner. Eighty-four persons were saved to legal processes thereby, 67 of whom were negroes.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 18 were negroes and two were white.

Lynchings by states were:

California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

DES MOINES, IA.
REGISTER
JAN 16 1936

THE LYNCHING RECORD SEEMS TO IMPROVE.

Tuskegee institute, which compiles an annual record of lynchings in this country, announces that 20 persons were put to death by mobs last year. The number during 1934 was 15.

The Register has said before in recent years, however, that it is not so concerned with these fluctuations in the lynching total year by year as it is with some other things. And some of those other things are mildly heartening.

For one, the total of lynchings since 1922, say, has been vastly lower than for any preceding period in our history. The decline has been quite steady for a half century. Whereas the annual average of lynchings at the turn of the century was more than 100, the number for the years since 1923 has been 16, 17, 30, 16, 11, 10, 21, 13, 8, 28, 15 and 20. So at least we are warranted in assuming that lynching as a common place is disappearing.

And naturally, if lynchings are thus being reduced, the number of accused persons whom officers of the law are protecting from mobs, as they are morally and legally obligated to protect them, is increasing. In 1933, when there were 28 lynchings, 48 prisoners were saved from mob action. Last year officers resisted mobs in the protection of 84 persons, or twice as many. Perhaps we may assume, therefore, that local law enforcement agencies—especially in the south—are acquiring a stronger sense of their responsibility to order and decency.

Of course there is not a single mob execution that can really be intelligently condoned. As long as there are lynchings, no matter how many or how few, the disgrace is with us. But at least we may hope, because of the trend that the practice is on the way to ultimate extinction.

FARGO, N. D.
FORUM
JAN 15 1936

1935 Lynchings

There were twenty persons lynched in this country in 1935 according to the records of the Tuskegee Institute. It is regrettable that there are lynchings in fifty instances, and that responsible authorities saved 84 persons, in all, from mob death.

The twenty lynchings this year form a renewed challenge to the lawabiding citizens of the country.

prior to 1901, there were 100 or more every year. In 1892 there were 231. An aroused public opinion is making headway against the evil.

One interesting and encouraging feature of the 1935 report is the fact that it shows that officers of the law were able to prevent lynchings in fifty instances, and that responsible authorities saved 84 persons, in all, from mob death.

The twenty lynchings this year form a renewed challenge to the lawabiding citizens of the country.

The report shows that 20 persons were lynched in this country in 1935 according to the records of the Tuskegee institute. It is regrettable that there are lynchings in fifty instances, and that responsible authorities saved 84 persons, in all, from mob death.

The twenty lynchings this year form a renewed challenge to the lawabiding citizens of the country.

annual toll over a period of years. In the years

Wetumpka, Ala., Herald
January 16, 1936

NO ALABAMA LYNCHING IN 1935 RECORD

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Missippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Columbia Miss
Progress
Jan. 23-1936

20 Lynched During 1935 Record Shows

Twenty persons were lynched in 1935, according to records compiled in the Department of Records and Reseach of the Tuskegee Institute.

This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occured and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Wilmington N C News
December 29, 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935

THE annual report of lynchings during 1935, as compiled by the department of research at Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama, shows an increase of five over the fifteen of 1934, but a decrease of eight from the 28 of 1933.

Of those lynched, eighteen were Negro and two white, and the apportionment by states shows Mississippi 7; Louisiana 4; Florida 2; Georgia 2; Texas 2; California 1; North Carolina 1; Tennessee 1.

Of particular significance is the record that on 44 occasions, southern officers prevented lynchings and saved prospective victims, an indication that lynching can be stamped out by alert agents of the law.

While the Tuskegee reports are accurate and complete insofar as they go, we hold one criticism against them. All lynchings are not included in the records. Tuskegee depends on instances where men accused or suspected of a crime are dealt with summarily, or who are removed from jail and killed.

There is no difference, insofar as the term lynching is concerned between a mob of white men who drag a negro from a cell and hang him, and the northern gangster who puts his enemy on the spot and riddles him with slugs from a machine gun, or as was the case in three gang outrages in New York this year slowly cuts him to pieces with pocket knives.

These latter crimes are to all intents and purposes lynchings. The fact that the law does play the party of the third makes no difference; the further fact that offenses for which these men pay are as a rule not recognized by law makes less.

The Star-News would like to peruse a record of all killings in the United States for 1935 where a mob of two or more men took part. We believe in that case the apportionment between states would be a revelation, particularly to some of the more ardent advocates of the proposed federal anti-lynching law.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.
TELEGRAM
JAN 11 1936

TWENTY LYNCHINGS

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE reports that there were 20 lynchings in the United States in 1935. That is five more than in 1934.

The states that contributed to this gruesome record were: California, one; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Georgia, two; Texas, two; Florida, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven.

Of the offenses charged only seven were murder, three rape and three attempted rape. One man was lynched for an altercation with a white man, another for share-cropper union agitation, one for slapping a woman. A total of 84 persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Does Congress need any more argument to prove that lynchings, like kidnapings are its affair. The Wagner-Costigan anti lynching bill still is pending.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.
HERALD
JAN 16 1936

AN EVIL RECORD

The lynching evil is still with us, to a disgraceful extent. In 1934 lynchings numbered fifteen, but last year the were increased to twenty. To aggravate the record eighty-four attempts at lynching were recorded last year—instances where the mobs were robbed of their prey.

These facts are given out by the Tuskegee Institute. It further states that of the offenses charged by the lynchers last year seven were murder, three rape and three attempted rape. This accounts for only thirteen. The alleged provocation in the several remaining cases is typified by the report that one man was lynched for an altercation with a white man, one for share-cropper union agitation and one for slapping a woman. The lynchings were distributed as follows: California, one; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Georgia, two; Texas, two; Florida, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven.

The scandalous record of mob law above outlined justifies the enactment of the Wagner-Costigan bill, which is still before Congress. This was the measure which Senator Borah opposed on constitutional grounds, thus provoking a resentful flareback from Negro leaders outside of the South. Possibly the Idaho Senator's objections are technically sound; but, if so, they indicate a burlesque perversion of the principle of State rights.

NEWS
Richmond - Va.
JAN 30 1936

20 LYNCHED—84 SAVED

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

On encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5224

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.
MORNING TRIBUNE
JAN 12 1936

Judge Lynch in 1935

The records of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute show 20 persons lynched in 1935. Mississippi leads the role of shame with seven lynchings, and Louisiana stands second with four. The year witnessed an increase of five mob murders over 1934, but the record was substantially better than in 1933, when 28 persons were lynched.

While the figures for 1935 are nothing to be proud of, and while they are well above the all-time low of eight lynchings established in 1932, they do indicate progress over a long period. Between 1885 and 1924 there were never as few as 20 lynchings, and since 1924 there have been three years in which the record was worse than 1935. For 16 years prior to 1901 lynchings fell below the 100 mark only once, and in 1892 there were 231 persons who met death at the hands of the mob.

It is fairly plain, then, that the United States has made great progress, during the past half century, in its efforts to stamp out this particular form of savage lawlessness. The fight is far from won, but an aroused public opinion is having its effect. It is permeating the whole country and is strengthening the resistance of the law to those who would substitute brute force for the orderly processes of justice.

It is heartening to note, in the report of the Tuskegee institute for 1935, that in 53 instances officers of the law prevented lynchings. It is estimated that 84 persons, all told, were saved from death at the hands of the mob by responsible authorities who had the courage to uphold the law against the depredations of Judge Lynch.

That is the brighter side of the picture, and it is one that cannot be ignored, even while the darker side, which shows 20 persons lynched, must be deplored by every decent citizen. The United States is slowly working toward the time when it can point with pride and satisfaction towards a lynchless year. The progress may be much less rapid than we could wish, but the goal will ultimately be won. Meanwhile the record for 1935 stands as a challenge to every law-abiding element in the country, and it is the devout wish of all who believe in the orderly process of the law and justice, and who abhor violence and barbarism in every form, that 1936 may witness a conspicuous improvement in it.

TOPEKA, KANS.
CAPITAL
DEC 28 1935

Anti-Lynch Law Needed.

The Tuskegee Institute's annual report on lynchings for the year 1935 to date reveals that efforts to curb this form of mob insanity during the past year have been unavailing. There have been 20 lynchings so far this year as compared to 15 in 1934. In 1932 there were only eight lynchings, but the all-time peak was reached in 1933 with 28.

The report further reveals that in only seven instances did the lynchers catch their victim before he was in the hands of the law. In 13 instances the person lynched was already in custody and should have had the protection of peace officers who were responsible for that custody. Five were taken from jails to their deaths, two were shot to death in jail, unarmed and helpless. Six were taken from officers outside of jails.

That peace officers could and can prevent lynchings is shown by another section of the report analyzing the cases in which mobs sought to take prisoners from custody of officers and in 53 cases officers prevented all attempts to lynch their prisoners. In 42 of these instances prisoners were removed to safety and in 11 other instances armed force was used successfully to forestall lynchers.

Mississippi led all the states in number of lynchings with seven and Louisiana had four. Texas, Georgia and Florida had two each and North Carolina, Tennessee and California, one each.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. Offenses charged were murder, seven; statutory offenses or attempts, six; activity in share cropper organizing, one; slapping a woman, two; communistic activity, one; assaulting white man, two; taking a prisoner from an officer, one.

These 20 persons never were tried for the offenses with which they were charged. They were denied every right guaranteed accused persons under our federal and state constitutions. In the case of those taken from custody of officers who already had made them defenseless prisoners, there can be no excuse for the officials responsible.

Efforts to curb lynchings have made some progress, however, despite the seriousness of this report. Feeble attempts heretofore to apprehend mobsters and bring them to justice will be fortified by the present anti-lynching bill now in Congress and which has won the support of those representatives and senators who favor law and order over mob rule.

It is hoped that this report will bring to the new Congress a sense of responsibility with regard to dealing with the lynching problem and that the measure now before Congress to curb the mounting tide of lawless mob killings will find quick enactment into law.

MANKATO, MINN.
FREE PRESS
DEC 31 1935

A Shameful Record

At this period of the year, when 1935 is being surveyed and reviewed for its spiritual and material gains and losses, there issues from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute a statistical report that bears horror and shame in every item. Prepared by the department of records and research of the institute, it presents without comment the record of the lynchings in the United States during the year.

In 1935, twenty persons were put to death by mobs, five more than during the previous year and twelve more than during 1932, although the 1935 figure represented eight fewer than were lynched in 1933. The offenses charged against the victims were: Murder, 7; attempted criminal assault, 3; criminal assault, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share crop organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1. Thirteen of the twenty persons killed by mobs were in the hands of the law when seized for execution under lynch law.

This does not tell the whole story of 1935 lynch lust, for the records disclose also that there were fifty-three instances in which mob killings were attempted, but were frustrated—in eleven cases by armed resistance. Nine of these defeated attempts occurred in northern and western states and forty-four below the Mason and Dixon's line. In forty-two cases the mobs were beaten by removal of the prisoners or by augmentations of guards. In all, eighty-four persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro—were saved from the law of the rope and firebrand.

BUFFALO, N. Y.
TIMES
JAN 13 1936

TWENTY LYNCHINGS

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE reports that there were 20 lynchings in the United States in 1935. That is five more than in 1934.

The states that contributed to this gruesome record were: California, one; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Georgia, two; Texas, two; Florida, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven.

Of the offenses charged only seven were murder, three rape and three attempted rape. One man was lynched for an altercation with a white man, another for share-cropper union agitation, one for slapping a woman. A total of 4 persons were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Does Congress need any more argument to prove that lynchings, like kidnapings, are its affair? The Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill still is pending.

BOISE, IDAHO
DAILY STATESMAN
JAN 2 1936

Lynchings

The annual report of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute on the year's lynchings are always interesting, for the figures constitute one of the indexes by which we may measure the progress of our civilization. The figures this year are nothing of which to boast. They show that 20 persons were lynched during the year, five more than in 1934, eight less than in 1933, 12 more than in 1932.

Eighteen of the 20 persons lynched were negroes; two were white.

Significance may also be found in the following break down of offenses charged:

Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The figures do not tell the whole story about the spirit of lawlessness, for a total of 84 persons were saved from lynching only through desperate efforts of the officers who had them in custody.

NEWS
Roncevete - W. Va.
JAN 4 1936

LYNCHING RECORD FOR 1935

The department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, in Alabama, reports that 20 persons were lynched in 1935. This is more than the number, 15, for 1934; 8 less than the number, 28, for 1933, and 12 more than the number, 8, for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states, and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share-cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; Communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

ARGUS
Carnden, N. J.
JAN 4 1936

LYNCHINGS INCREASE

Sombre Record of Mobs' Frenzy During Year

Mob violence, resulting in lynchings, appears to have increased during the past year according to F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute. In a statement Dr. Patterson says:

"I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the 15 for 1934; eight less than 1933; and 12 more than 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed, or the guards augmented, or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, activity in share-cropper organizing, attacking person, taking prisoner from officer of the law, killed by mob in search of another person, slapping a woman, communistic activity, one each.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

SALINA, KANS.
Journal
DEC 28 1935

THE LYNCHING FIGURES

Figures on lynching compiled by Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute, reveal that 20 persons met death at the hands of mobs in this country in 1935. In comparison with other years, however, the figures indicate no trend. They do not reveal that lynching is becoming more popular and, unfortunately, they do not show that much if anything is being accomplished in the effort to weed this form of violence out of the nation.

This figure of 20 for 1935, is five more than for 1934, which would show a recession in law obedience. But it is eight less than in 1933, showing a gain for the forces of law over that year. It is 12 more than for 1932, showing a considerable lapse from that mark. Thus the number see-saws up and down, standing around 15 and 20.

While the report, consequently, fails to reveal that much headway is being made in discouraging mob violence, or that this form of criminal activity is generally increasing, there are two interesting phases of the compilation from Tuskegee. One is the statement that there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. These 53 instances involved 84 persons so that timely action by the officers is credited with saving the lives of 17 whites and 67 Negroes. This would indicate that as a rule officers do seek to do what they can to forestall mobs and in the majority of cases are successful. The weakness in the law enforcement department really is shown after the lynching occurs. There is almost no record of prosecution of lynchers and very little of any serious attempt along that line. Action rarely passes beyond the "there will be a thorough investigation" stage.

The other item of interest in the report is that lynching continues to be a southern pastime. This year's lynchings were confined to Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee and Texas except for one in California.

WINTER HAVEN, FLA.
CHIEF
JAN 3 1936

20 LYNCHINGS IN PAST YEAR

Increase of 33 Percent Over 1934; Florida Had 2 Killings

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States during the year 1935, according to figures furnished the Daily Chief today by F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Ala. The figures are compiled from the Department of Records and Research of the Institute and represent an increase of five over the 15 lynched in 1934; eight less than the 28 in 1933; and 12 more than the number eight in 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed forces were used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two — STORY NUMBER SEVEN — were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

ADA, OKLA.
NEWS
JAN 2 1936

THE 1935 LYNCHING RECORD

Statistics gathered by the Research Department of Tuskegee Institute show that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during the closing year. This is five more than the number for 1934, but eight under the 1933 record. It is twelve more than the number reported for 1932.

It is revealed that 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails and six from officers outside of jails. Two were shot to death in jail.

It is worthy of note that no lynching occurred in Oklahoma in 1935. The record by states runs as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Of particular interest is the portion of the report which discloses that in 53 instances involving 48 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, lynchings were prevented. Nine of these were in northern or western states and 44 in the South. In 42 instances the prisoners were removed or guards augmented while in 11 other cases armed force was used to repel attacks on prisons.

LYNCHINGS

...early record of lynchings, compiled at Tuskegee Institute in ...shows that 20 of these ghastly tragedies occurred in the United ...925. Of these, 18 were negroes, and all but one lynchings ... the southern states. There is no excuse for these acts of ... They are not necessary to restrain the more brutal members ...ro race. The southern courts are plenty severe enough on ...ple when any of them commit outrageous acts. If those ...tates want to keep their negro workers, and they depend very ... the colored population for their prosperity, they would better ... more protection from these cruel deeds.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were of the negro race," says the report. "The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; altercation with men, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1."

Chickasha Express.

SALEM, MASS.
NEWS
JAN 3 1936

The yearly record of lynchings, compiled at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, shows that 20 of these ghastly tragedies occurred in the United States in 1925. Of these, 18 were negroes, and all but one lynchings occurred in the southern states. There is no excuse for these acts of savagery. They are not necessary to restrain the more brutal members of the colored population for their prosperity, they would better give them more protection from these cruel deeds.

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5225

South Pittsburg, Tenn., Hustler
January 9, 1936

LYNCHINGS ALL IN SOUTH EXCEPT ONE

TWENTY VICTIMS OF MOB REPORTED BY TUSKEGEE

Five More Than During Year 1934 When Fifteen Cases Got Beyond Hands of Law.—One In California.

According to a letter from F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., there have been twenty lynchings in the nation this year compared with fifteen last year.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other State. Louisiana had four. In Georgia there were two lynchings; Florida and Texas had two each. One lynching took place in North Carolina and one in Tennessee.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and eighteen Negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said. "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"The alleged offenses were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organization, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one; attacking person one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one.

"A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. There were fifty-three instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and forty-four in Southern states.

"In forty-two instances prisoners were removed, the guards augmented as other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers."

There were twenty-eight lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932.

NORFOLK, VA.
VIRGINIAN PILOT

JAN 3 1936

Roll of Horror

The 1935 Roll of Horror is 20 lynchings, 19 of them in Southern States, and 18 of the victims Negroes. The number is 33 per cent larger than last year's 15 but smaller by eight than the 28 in 1933. It is the largest number of lynchings in the past dozen years save in 1933, in 1931, and 1926. During these dozen years the range has been from 8 to 28; the average between 16 and 17.

Compared with earlier years around the turn of the century, when a hundred lynchings a year were not unusual, this is progress of a sort. Compared even with 20 years ago, when 50 lynchings were not infrequent, it is progress. But compared with more recent years it is regression.

It is all the more humiliating because most of the 20 victims of last year were not even charged with attacking white women—the old pretext for lynching—and 13 of them were taken from the hands of officers of the law. Three of the victims were charged with rape, and three others with attempted rape. But the majority were murdered by mobs for such alleged offenses as murder (seven), altercations, activities in organizing share croppers, slapping a woman, and communistic activity; and one merely because a mob was searching another man and found him.

Discouraging as the record is in some respects, it will not dampen the efforts of Southerners who are determined to replace the savagery of the jungle with a decent respect for law. The pressure will continue, and in the long run it will win. It will be directed toward Governors and sheriffs and policemen, and toward officers of all types. It will be directed especially toward jailers who allow mobs to taken prisoners from their very hands. It will be directed toward public opinion and toward the courts themselves.

Meantime, a special effort should be made in Mississippi. That State produced seven of the man-killing mobs of 1935 and six of the fifteen the year before. It has been for years the worst of the lynching States, as it is the most backward by nearly any other test by which civilization can be measured. But it is by no means hopeless. One Mississippi Governor who honestly sought to punish lynchers could work wonders. One Mississippi sheriff who defended a prisoner with his pistol could become a celebrity. One Mississippi jailer who defied a mob could set an example that might turn the tide. One day some such man will arise.

Tobacco Leaf
Lumberton N.C.
JAN 2 1936

1935 LYNCHING RECORD

According to records compiled at Tuskegee institute, 20 persons—2 whites, 18 negroes—were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of 5 over the 15 lynched in 1934. In 1933 there were 28 mob murders, but only 8 in 1932.

The number of lynchings does not seem to mean anything in particular except that a certain number of persons have fallen victims of mob vengeance, and defiance of law. That is, the number goes up and down with such irregularity as to defy analysis.

Thirteen of the persons lynched this year were in the hands of the law—5 were taken from jails, 6 were taken from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail. In that respect the 1935 record seems to be unusual.

The utterly depressing effect of the record is relieved to some extent by the fact that in 53 instances officers prevented lynchings, 84 persons, 67 of whom were negroes, being thus saved from death at the hands of mobs. A lynching rarely, if ever, occurs in the face of brave and determined officers of the law.

Quoting further from the report from which the figures given above are taken:

Of the 53 instances in which officers of the lew prevented lynchings, 9 were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Greenville, Miss., Democrat Times
December 30, 1935

INCREASE IN LYNCHINGS

F. D. Patterson, who has succeeded to the prseidency of Tuskegee Institute, founded by the late Booker T. Washington, reports that 20 lynchings took place in the United States last year, which is 5 more than the number 15 in 1934; 8 less than the number 28 in 1933 and 12 more than the numoer 8 in 1932.

He also reports that 13 of those lynched were in the hands of the law, 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside the jails and 2 were shot to death in the jails.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of the instances were in Northern states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the other 11 instances armed forces were used to repel the wouldbe lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 7, attempted rape 3, rape 3, altercation with man 1, activity in share cropper organization 1, attacking person 1, taking prisoner from officer of the law 1, killed by mob in search of another person 1, slapping woman 1, communistic activity 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are: California 1, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Louisiana 4, Mississippi 7, North Carolina 1, Tennessee 1, Texas 2.

The above information is sent out from Tuskegee Institute without comment. No comment is needed except that law abiding citizens should wake up to the disgrace brought upon us by these lawless activities and should demand more respect for the law and better enforcement of the law.

The brightest picture that might be drawn from the entire desolate scene is the fact that lynchings were prevented in 53 instances, or nearly three times as many prevented as were committed. One of these was in Washington county, due to the active thinking and action by our sheriff.

The remedy, however, lies in the law. If criminals are promptly punished, if evasion of the law were not made so easy by legal technicalities and if the general public would lose some of its maudlin sentiment, there would be better law enforcement and fewer lynchings.

We are not proud of Mississippi's 7 lynchings, or more than one-third of the entire number in the United States for the year, but we are proud of Washington county and the manner in which our courts are conducted

In the meantime the Bar of Mississippi can have an important part in better law enforcement by removing some of the obstacles

Statesville, N. C Daily
December 28, 1935

,nty Persons Lynched In 1935

According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would - be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

Roanoke, Ala., Leader
January 8, 1936

LYNCHING RECORD IN 1935

The Leader is in receipt of the following information concerning lynching for the year 1935. According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were tatken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempt rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organization, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The state in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1: Texas, 2.

NEWS
Lake City SC
JAN 1936

LYNCHINGS FOR YEAR
INCREASE BY EIGHT

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 21:—According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Lousiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Crossville, Tenn. Chronicle
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Lynched During the Year 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1, Texas, 2.

Labor Advocate
Nashville, Tenn
JAN 2 1936

LYNCHINGS IN 1935

To the Editor of the Labor Advocate:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 2 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 pere taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails, and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the world-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.
Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Covington, Tenn. Leader
January 2, 1936

Lynchings In 1935 Show Big Increase

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number, 15, for 1934; eight less than the number, 28, for 1933; and 12 more than the number, eight, for 1932. Of the persons lynched, 13 were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these nine were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attemped rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The state in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1: Texas, 2.

Nashville, Ga., Herald
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Lynched In U. S. During 193

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number of 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number of 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number of 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail. There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan- Dec.

5226

[redacted]

Lynching Records

Though there was an increase in the number of lynchings which took place in the United States in 1935 over the number for the preceding year, there was a substantial decline from the number lynched in 1933, and the general trend toward fewer and fewer lynchings was maintained.

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings," writes F. D. Patterson, president of the Institute. "9 of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hand of mobs."

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; actively in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two."

a woman, communistic activity, one each.

Kansas is among those states conscpicuously absent from the list of those in which lynchings occurred. The states in which lynchings did occur and the number in each state:

California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one, and Texas, two.

Tuskegee Institute, which released these figures is an educational and training center for young negroes.

Sheffield, Ala., Daily
January 8, 1936

Stop This Lynch Law

Records of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute which has kept records on the subject for a number of years comes forward with the interesting information that there were 53 instances during 1935 in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. But 20 lynchings actually occurred.

This is a disgraceful record, being five more than were lynched during 1934, although eight less than the number 28 for 1933 and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Only two of the 20 lynched during 1935 were white, the remainder being negroes while in the 53 instances in which lynchings were prevented, 17 white and 67 negro persons were saved from such deaths.

There is one bright spot in the report for Alabamians, however, and that is due to the fact that not a single lynching occurred in this state during 1935. The states and number of lynchings in each of the year follow: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one and Texas, two.

It is generally recognized that respect for law and order and wide education of the citizenship at large must be at a high pitch before this heinous form of crime can be completely wiped out. But if there is a repetition of this record in 1936 and succeeding years or if the condition becomes more aggravated instead of improvement being noted it is quite likely that rigid federal legislation to bring justice to bear on lynchers will be proposed and have a better chance for adoption than ever before. The best way to prevent passage of such a bill as the Wagner-Costigan measure which was proposed at the last session of congress and killed only after a stubborn filibuster by southern senators is to stop lynching people. And, unless this is done the sentiment of the people will gradually demand the enactment of such a law.

[redacted]

Lynching

Lynching for the year 1935 shows an increase over 1934. The records show 53 cases where officers of the law prevented lynching. There seems to be in this country too much lynching and far too many attempts. Mob psychology has not yet been controlled. The Tuskegee Institute makes the following report:

"There were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five

WICHITA, KANS.
EVENING EAGLE
DEC 27 1935

20 Persons Lynched in United States in Past Year

Kansas Keeps Record Clear; Most Victims Are Negroes, Survey Discloses

Lives of 20 persons were snuffed by mobs in the United States in 1935 but Kansas again kept her record clear of lynchings, according to figures compiled at Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.

Taking the law into their own hands, maddened followers of "Judge Lynch" ran up a total of five more victims than were killed this way in 1934 when the number was 15. The year, however, was not the worst of recent years for there were 28 lynchings in 1933. In 1932, however, the number was but eight so 1935 had 12 more than 1932.

"There were 53 instances," says the report, in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of these instances, the prisoners were removed, the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs."

The report points out that of the 20 lynched, two were white persons 18 negroes.

Offenses charged against these victims, 13 of whom were in the hands of officers of the law when the mobs got them, were as follows:

Murder, seven; attempted rape three; altercation with man, activity in share-cropper organizing, attacking person, taking prisoner from officer of law, killed by mob in search of another person, slapping

Kings Mt. N. C. Herald
January 9, 1936

20 Persons Are Lynched In Country During Year 1935

Many Would-Be Lynchings Were Prevented by Law Officers.

Twenty persons, two of whom were white and 18 negroes, were lynched in 1935, according to information compiled by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute, it has been announced by F. D. Patterson, president of the negro institution.

Mississippi led the list of States in which lynchings occurred during the year with seven. Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia and Texas, two each, and North Carolina, Tennessee and California, one each.

The 20 recorded for the year are five more than the number for 1934, eight fewer than the total for 1933 and 12 more than the number listed for 1932, whiich had a total of only eight. Thirteen of the 20 persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law. Five of these were taken from jails, six from the custody of officers, outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jails.

During the year there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western States according to the institute's figures. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or "the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

The report lists the offenses with which the 20 lynched were charged as—murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; and communistic activity, one.

Morganton, N. C. Free Press
January 9, 1936

SCORE LYNCHED IN STATES LAST YEAR

Activity of Mobs Shows Increase During Year, With Five More Victims

Twenty persons, two of whom were white and eighteen negroes, were lynched in 1935, according to information compiled by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute. It has been announced by F. D. Patterson, president of the negro institution.

Mississippi led the list of states in which lynchings occurred during the year with seven. Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia, and Texas, two each, and North Carolina, Tennessee, and California, one each.

The 20 recorded for the year are five more than the number for 1934, eight fewer than the total for 1933 and 12 more than the number listed for 1932, which had a total of only eight. Thirteen of the 20 persons lynched were taken from the hands of the law. Five of these were taken from jails, six from the custody of officers outside of jails, and two were shot to death inside jail.

During the year there were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states according to the institute's figures. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or "the guards augemented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus haved from death at the hands of mobs."

The report lists the offenses with which the 20 lynched were charged as—murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organization, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killing by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; and communistic activity, one.

Newbern, Tenn. Tennessean
January 2, 1936

20 LYNCHED IN U. S. DURING THE PAST YEAR

Tuskegee, Ala.—There have been twenty lynchings in the nation this year compared with fifteen last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee Institute, famed negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other state. Louisiana had four. In Georgia there were two lynchings; Florida and Texas had two each. One lynching took place in North Carolina and one in Tennessee.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and eighteen negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school said. "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"The alleged offenses were, murder, seven; attempted attack, three; attack, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organization, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman; communistic activity, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one.

"A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. There were 53 instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states.

"In forty-two instances prisoners were removed, the guards augmented, greater precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers."

There were twenty-eight lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932.

Evergreen, Ala., Courant
January 2, 1936

Twenty Persons Lynched During Past Year

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number for number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Union Springs, Ala., Herald
January 2, 1936

NO LYNCHINGS IN ALABAMA DURING 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occured and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Morristown, Tenn. Sun
January 9, 1936

MORE LYNCHINGS IN YEAR 1935

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for for 1933 and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 Negro. The offenses charged were: murder ,7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California ,1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Lynchings - 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5227

News
Asheville, N. C., Times
December 31, 1935

North Carolina Has One Of 20 Lynchings In U. S.

(Special to The Daily News)

The United States piled up a total of 20 lynchings during 1935. That's five more than last year, and eight fewer than in 1933. Of these, North Carolina accounted for one, while Mississippi had the highest record with seven.

The Department of Records and Research of Tuskeegee Institute in Alabama made the compilation, and reports the following information in the year's lynchings:

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Goldsboro, N. C. Argus
December 28, 1935

Lynchings In U. S. Increase 5 During 1935

Twenty Lynchings Last Year As Compared to 15 Year Before

(Special to News-Argus)

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., Dec. 28—According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935.

This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
NEWS

JAN 31 1935

The Lynching Record For The Year 1935

The number of lynchings in 1935 was greater than in the preceding year, and in most other recent years. Records compiled at Tuskegee Institute show 20 lynchings in the year now ending, five more than in 1934. Only two or three times in the last 12 years has the number of lynchings exceeded 20. In one year, 1932, lynchings declined to the record low number of eight. In some other recent years the record was almost as good. In 1929 there were 10, in 1928 there were 11 and in 1931 there were 13.

There has been a marked downward trend in lynchings ever since annual records have been compiled. In some years there has been a setback, as there was in 1935, but in the main there has been gratifying progress in stamping out this hideous evil. From 1885, the first year for which records are available, until the turn of the century, there was but one year in which the number of lynchings was less than 100, and then it was 96. In one year during that period there were more than 200 lynchings, and in several years there were nearly 200. The last year in which lynchings reached as high as a hundred was 1901, when there were 105. From then on lynchings gradually declined, and 1922 was the last year in which there were more than 50, the number in that year being 57. From 1901 to 1922 there were only two years in which the number dropped below 50. Since 1922 it has not been above 50 and in most years since then there have been less than 20 lynchings.

Thus we see that there has been steady progress in putting down this barbarous practice. The 1935 record is disappointing both because it shows an increase over the year before and because this year started out so hopefully. In the first six months of 1935 there were only four lynchings, and we were encouraged to believe that the low mark of eight in 1932 would at least be equalled. But the last half of the year brought 16 more lynchings, four times as many as there had been in the first six months.

Of the 20 victims of mobs this year, two were white persons and 18 were Negroes. All but one of the lynchings took place in the South, California being the only state outside this section to have one. For many years lynching has been very largely confined to the South. Only rarely is there such an act of mob violence in any other section.

Mississippi is at the top of the list for 1935 with seven lynchings. Mississippi has the worst record of any state in this respect almost every year. The other lynchings in 1935 were distributed as follows: Louisiana, four; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Texas, two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The gradual decline in number of lynchings has not been the only encouraging fact. There has also been a gradual lessening of the area in which lynchings take place year after year. Slowly enlightened public opinion and growing respect for law have pushed the boundaries of the lynching region back. The area over which lynch law has prevailed year after year has grown steadily smaller. There was a time, for example, when Virginia and North Carolina frequently had lynchings. Mob violence is now a rarity in those states. In the same way, lynchings have become more and more rare in South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Florida and one or two other Southern states. Alabama has been free of lynchings in most years during the last 12 or 15. There was no lynching in this state in 1935. Lynch law is now largely confined to Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas—and gradually it is being put down in those states.

There is no question that public opinion, in the South as elsewhere, is now strongly set against lynching, that the great majority of people have no sympathy with it. This fact is having its influence in more ways than one. For one thing, it is curbing the spirit of mob violence. For another, it is strengthening the arm of the law in dealing with mobs. It is encouraging officers of the law to stand up against mobs which try to take prisoners from them.

Unfortunately, however, officers do not always stand up as they should against attempts at mob violence, or take the proper precautions to protect prisoners. Of the 20 persons lynched this year, 13 were at one time in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail. On the other hand, the records show that 84 attempts at mob violence were frustrated by officers of the law during the year.

Officers can do more than any others to put down lynching by taking due precautions against attempts at mob violence, and by opposing with all their strength and courage any mob that attempts to take a prisoner in their custody.

Hattiesburg, Miss. American
December 28, 1935

MISSISSIPPI LEADS NATION IN LYNCHINGS

(By Associated Press)

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Morganton, N. C. Free Press
January 9, 1936

20 Lynched—84 Saved

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure negroes the white officers of the law protected the negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Key West, Fla., Citizen
January 10, 1936

20 LYNCHED—84 SAVED

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Concord, N. C. Tribune
January 1, 1936

THE NATION'S LYNCHING RECORD.

For many years former President Moton of Tuskegee Institute, furnished the press an annual report of lynchings in the United States. His successor, President Patterson, compiled the figures this year, his report showing 20 persons lynched in the year just closing. This is five more than in 1934 eight less than in 1933, and twelve more than in 1932.

Thirteen of the victims of mobs this year were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in prison.

It is encouraging to note, however, that there were 53 instances in which officers prevented lynchings in the face of angry mobs. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attack person, one; taking prisoner from officer, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennesseee, one; Texas, two.

North Carolina, with the one black spot against her record this season, should determine that there shall be no recurrence of the mob spirit within her boundaries next year. And President Patterson should cover a wider field with his report by including the record as to the number of lynchers who were tried and convicted.

Newberry, S. C. Observer
December 31, 1935

NO LYNCHINGS IN STATE DURING 1935.

South Carolina made a perfect record this year with no lynchings to her credit. Figures just released show that there were twenty lynchings during the year, this being five more than 1934, but eight less than 1933. However it is not surprising to note that practically all of the lynchings were in Southern states: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1, and Texas 2.

It is reassuring to learn that of the fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, nine of these were in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern states.

Two of the lynched persons were white and eighteen negroes.

South Carolinians should be proud of the fact that no lynchings occurred within our state during the past year. Justice and the lawless mob do not go hand in hand. Proper enforcement of the laws of our land, with the cooperation of the public citizens and the law enforcement officers, will in time reduce the number of lynchings to a minimum.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.
MORNING POST

JAN 3 1936

THE YEAR'S LYNCHINGS.

The lynching record for 1935, while not so bad as in some years past, does not disclose progress in elimination of the evil, since the number of instances of illegal summary executions was greater than in the preceding twelvemonth. As the tally is kept by the Tuskegee Institute, there were twenty lynchings, five more than in 1934. Thirteen were in the hands of the law when seized. Of these, five were taken from jails, two from officers and two were shot to death in jails. It is disclosed that Mississippi was the chief offender with seven cases; Louisiana followed with four, while Florida, Georgia and Texas had two each, with California, North Carolina and Tennessee each presenting a single instance.

While the situation thus presented is disagreeable, it would have been vastly worse had not many officers been devoted to their duty. In fifty-three other instances mobs formed and sought victims, but through the vigilance of defenders of the law were denied the fulfillment of the purpose sought. The readiness to engage in lynchings was signified. This seems to point to the condition that there is, particularly in the Southland, widespread public favor for lynchings. However, the Northern states are not exempt from the manifestation of mob spirit, though less frequent than below the Mason and Dixon line.

As is usually true, the great majority of the victims of lynchings were black persons, though two of the twenty were white. However, we canont regard ourselves as a law abiding people until we present a condition in which offenders are brought to justice through orderly procedure in tribunals established for the purpose. Lynchings are an indefensible blot on the land.

Concord N. C. Observer
Jan 10, 1936

20 Lynched—84 Saved

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan.-Dec.

5228

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
NEWS SENTINEL
DEC 29 1935

LYNCHINGS FOR YEAR INCREASE

18 Negroes and Two White Men Killed During 1935, Five More Than 1934.

Twenty men, 18 Negro, and two white, were lynched in 1935, which is five more than in 1934, Tuskegee Institute in Alabama reports.

Mississippi led with seven. All but one were in the South. Louisiana was second with four. Florida, Georgia and Texas had two each. Tennessee, North Carolina and California had one each.

Of the 20 lynched, 13 were in the hands of the law. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted assault, 3; assault, 3; altercation with man, activity in share cropper organizing, Communistic activity, attacking person, taking prisoner from officer, slapping a woman, one each.

HIGH POINT, N. C.
ENTERPRISE
DEC 30 1935

LYNCHING A FRIGHTFUL COMMENTARY ON LAW

Editor of The Enterprise:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Rochester, N. Y.
Democrat-Chronicle
JAN 3 1936

Tuskegee Head Reports On Lynchings for 1935

Editor Democrat and Chronicle:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

BOONE, IA.
NEWS REPUBLICAN
DEC 30 1935

LYNCHINGS INCREASE

At this time of year everyone is taking stock, of themselves, their businesses and so on. It is an appropriate time to note whether the country as a whole has or has not improved in certain ways. From the president of Tuskegee Institute comes the annual report of the number of lynchings in the nation. In 1923, 20 persons met their deaths at the hands of mobs.

It is distinctly discouraging to find that this is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934, although 8 less than the 28 lynched in 1933 and 12 more than the number 8 in 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in jail.

As usual most of the lynchings occurred in the southern states. The distribution was as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2. The offenses charged were murder, rape, altercation with man, activity in share crop organizing, attacking person, taking prisoner from officer of the law, killed by mob in search of another person, slapping a woman and communistic activity.

Perhaps some ray of hope may be seen in the fact that there were 84 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings by various means. However, accused individuals are sometimes caught by the mob before the authorities have opportunity to afford them protection.

Lynchings are terrible and tragic occurrences. They are a matter of shame to the nation as a whole. A federal law against them has been proposed time and again, but defeated. It is to be doubted if this would be one hundred per cent effective. A mob is not guided by reason. A crowd inflamed by anger or hatred would not stop to think of possible penalties resulting from their act. The only hope for stamping out lynchings entirely lies in the rigid enforcement of laws and the certain punishment through the law's channels of persons accused or convicted of crimes. Once the people are convinced they can safely leave justice to the courts they will not take the law into their own hands.

PHILADELPHIA, PA
RECORD
JAN 2 1936

Lynchings Increase

To the Editor:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.

Panama City, Fla., Pilot
January 2, 1936

Concerning Lynchings For the Year 1935

The following is the record concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Records and Reasearch of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings oc-urred and the number in each tates are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

HIGH POINT, N. C.
ENTERPRISE
DEC 30 1935

WEAK-KNEED LAW YIELDS 13 TO LYNCHERS

THIRTEEN of the 20 persons lynched during 1935, according to records of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, were taken from the hands of the law. That is a condition more alarming, if possible, than the fact that an increase of five over the preceding year's total of lynchings, and a commentary upon the inadequacy or the unwillingness of law to function against that most dangerous foe of liberty and justice, mob rule.

Geographically speaking, the lynchings and prevented lynchings—of which there were 53 — show a spread over Northern and Western territory instead of the normal restriction to the South, although the Southern area, led by Mississippi with seven lynchings, continues to lead a sorry situation in that respect. It is a blot which the South has endeavored to erase, has succeeded in a measure, but to which it must continue to give unrelenting attention if law and order are to be served as a self-respecting people must demand.

Seventeen whites and 67 Negroes were saved from mobs when law prevented would-be lynchers from accomplishing their disgraceful purpose; in that may be found some solace, but in the breakdown that allowed 13 to be taken from officers and a total of 15 to be lynched nothing is ameliorating. It is a blackness not to be washed off the hands of an altogether pitiful and too weak enforcement of law. No one is safe when law is that weak-kneed.

ALBANY, N. Y.
KNICKERBOCKER PRESS
DEC 30 1935

1935's LYNCHING RECORD

From the Detroit News

The Tuskegee Institute sends us its annual compilation of the year's lynchings. Twenty in 1935.

This is neither very high nor very low. There is no definite trend in this type of crime, which, more than banditry, hoodlumism or kidnapings, pitilessly mirrors a flaw in our civilization. There were 15 lynchings in 1934; 28 in 1933; eight in 1932.

Nothing we can say in denunciation of these murders will add to what already has been said, many times over. There is one aspect of this year's record, however, which deserves emphasizing. All but one of the 20 lynchings occurred in the South or Southwest, where the excuse sometimes is made that such summary "executions" serve to protect womanhood.

Only six of the 20 lynchings of 1935 involved victims accused of a sex offense or attempt. In the remaining cases the charge ranged from murder, on the one hand, to "altercation" with another man, on the other. One victim was put to death, in this land of the free, "because he was a 'Communist.'"

WATERTOWN, N. Y.
TIMES
DEC 30 1935

Lynchings in 1935.

To The Times:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935: I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. Patterson,
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.
Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 30, 1935.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.
COURIER-NEWS
DEC 31 1935

'I Must Write To the Editor About That'

Lynchings in 1935

Editor, The Courier-News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 52 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 8: persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON
President, Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

Greensboro, N. C., Record
January 4, 1936

Lynching and a Law

Peculiarly American, most horrific of crimes, is lynching. This week statistics gathered by President F. D. Patterson, of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute in Alabama, showed mob vengeance cost the lives of 20 United States citizens during 1935, five more than in 1934. North Carolina had one such act of violence to its discredit, the hanging of a negro in Franklin county early in the summer. Mississippi led all other states with seven lynchings.

Brighter side of the picture was the growing tide of public responsibility where mob violence threatened. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved by alert peace officers during the past year. Though the mark of 20 was higher than in 1934, it was revealed that 28 lynchings were committed in 1933. Such crimes, though in some years there are spasmodic increases, have generally declined since such statistics were first taken. In 1885, for instance, 106 white persons and 78 negroes were lynched. The peak of mob violence was in 1892, when 225 persons met death by lynching. Fewest cases on record were for 1929. That year only 10 died.

Later this week, as anti-lynching agitation was resumed, Senator Van Nuys, Indiana Democrat, announced he would demand a congressional investigation of lynching at present session of Congress. A southern senate filibuster pigeon-holed the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynch bill at last session of Congress.

LYNCHBURG, VA.
ADVANCE
JAN 1 1936

THE TREND IS DOWNWARD

Although the lynching record for 1935 constitutes a blot upon the fair name of the South, nevertheless the trend is definitely towards the elimination of lawless methods of dealing with crime. In the past forty-five years approximately 5,000 persons have been lynched in this country but the peak was reached prior to the turn of the century.

Statistics cited by the Richmond Times-Dispatch show that between 1885 and 1901, the lowest for any one year was 96 and the highest 231. Since 1901 only one year has approached even the low record of the previous 15 years. In 1919 there were 80 lynchings.

The year just closing is credited with 20 lynchings, 19 of which were in the South. Last year there were only 15 lynchings while in 1933 there were 28 and in 1932 only eight. The increase in 1935 over the previous year is to be deeply regretted but if improvements from one decade to another continue, there is hope that within the not distant future the lynching crime may become extinct.

Aside from the hideous character of lynching, the South is facing trouble unless lawless actions of mobs are controlled. Anti-lynching legislation is always a threat and the day may come when local authorities will have to give way to federal agencies in the prosecution of persons charged with the lynching offense. That is not a very happy condition to which to look forward.

Vindicator
Jeannette-Penn.
JAN 1 1936

ONE LYNCHED IN STATE IN 1935

Twenty Total Of Those Lynched Over The United States; 2 White Men and 18 Negroes

20 persons were lynched in 1935 according to a bulletin released from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute recently.

This is five more than the number in 1934, eight less than the number in 1933 and 12 more than the number in 1932. Thirteen of those lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of the jail and 2 were shot to death inside of jails.

There were fifty-three instances when officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of the total number lynched 2 were white men and eighteen were negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7 follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2. attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; alby mob in search of another per tercation with man, 1; activity in son, 1; slapping a woman, 1; com share cropper organizing, 1; at munistic activity, 1.
tacking person, 1; taking prisoner The States in which lynchings from officer of the law, 1; killed occurred and the number in each

Lynchings- 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5229

WOONSOCKET, R. I.
CALL
DEC 28 1935

The Year's Lynching Record

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, founded by the late Booker T. Washington, for the training of colored young men and women, has, for years, waged a campaign against lynchings, especially in the South where colored persons are usually the victims of such outrages. Its Department of Records and Research keeps a careful check each year on lynchings throughout the Nation. Figures just compiled by that department show a total of 20 lynchings in 1935, which is fast being drawn to a close.

Not encouraging is the fact that the number of such crimes this year is five more than in 1934 and 12 more than in 1932, when there were but eight. Other figures show that of this year's lynchings 13 of the victims were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

Perhaps encouraging is the statement that in 53 instances during the past year officers of the law, as should be their solemn duty, prevented lynchings. In 42 of these cases, it is reported, prisoners were removed, guards augmented or other precautions taken. In 11 cases armed force was used to repel would-be lynchers. Such figures as these latter ones do reveal that law enforcement agencies are at least making more sincere efforts to prevent lynchings, and frankly such was not always the case.

It has often been said that people in the North do not appreciate the situation in the South as it concerns the feelings of whites towards those of the colored race and that because the situation is different it is natural to expect more lynchings in the South than in any other section of the Nation. The fact remains that there is neither excuse nor justification for lynchings in any part of the United States, especially if there is a general and sincere desire for law and order. When the law is permitted to take its course there are many who believe that injustice is seldom done, whereas the same cannot be said when mob rule replaces law and order and when citizens take the law into their own hands.

This year's lynching record is one which is to be deplored, especially since it shows such an increase over the previous year. It may show crime on the increase in the South especially, for without crime or alleged crime there are no lynchings.

Because the Tuskegee Institute and other agencies working for the education, advancement and proper protection of colored people throughout the Nation have persistently waged a campaign against lynching it is to be assumed that there has been, in modern times, an improvement in the situation. The fact remains that when 20 citizens are executed at the hands of mobs in the course of a year there is still room for considerable improvement. Lynching can and must be stopped before our people, regardless of in what part of the United States they reside, can lay claim to be an orderly and law-abiding aggregation of human beings.

Jackson, Miss. Ledger
December 31, 1935

Mississippi Again Leads All Other States In Lynchings

Mississippi, to date, has had almost twice as many lynchings this year as any other state, according to figures sponsored by Tuskegee Institute.

The figures are: Mississippi, 7; Louisiana, 4; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Texas, 2; and California, North Carolina, and Tennessee, one each.

That's an increase of five over last year's national total. But the report also adds the more cheerful item that during the year 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were saved by officers of the law from mobbery.

It has been known several months that, barring an "epidemic" of late lynchings in some other state, Mississippi would again head this black list this year. The report therefore is no surprise. But it is nonetheless regretted, and is discreditable.

The great majority of Mississippians truly hope that next year's record will be better. And, in this connection, the truth should not be forgotten that in no state is a larger percentage of the leaders working to curb lynchings, both by combatting the crimes which inspire them and by speeding legal trials so as to remove any contention of "justification" of mobbery.

Mississippi again leads the list, but the crimes which most often inspire lynchings also are more common in Mississippi than in the majority of states and opponents of lynching have more to overcome.

ELMIRA, N. Y.
STAR GAZETTE

JAN 2 1936

AGAIN THE LYNCHING EVIL

THE always depressing figures on lynching have just been published for 1935 by the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. They show a total of 20 for the year, five more than the year before but eight fewer than in 1933. Thirteen of the victims were in the hands of the law at the time; five were taken from jails, six from officers and two were shot to death in a jail.

Mississippi headed the list with seven; Louisiana had four; Florida, Georgia and Texas two each, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. Eighteen of the 20 victims were Negroes.

The number of victims who are done to death by this form of mob frenzy is only a part of the story. Fifty-three other cases were recorded last year where mobs bent on lynching were beaten off by officers of the law. Had resistance been a little less determined, all of these would doubtless have been added to the horrible list. Nine of these frustrated attempts at mob law occurred in northern states.

It is difficult to find in these figures much to encourage the belief that the lynching mania is dying out. About all that can be said is that law enforcement agencies are becoming more efficient in protecting prisoners from lynchers. Here lies the main hope of ending this form of barbarism. If mobs can once be made to understand that the law can and will be enforced by orderly means, they will gradually become civilized. Meanwhile the country has another opportunity to reflect on the problem of lawlessness in a country which raises up national heroes, then is unable to assure them safety and peace of mind.

Sandersville, Ga., Progress
January 2, 1936

Lynching Statistics Set at 20 for 1935

According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, of Tuskegee, Ala., that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negroes.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

ROME, GA.
NEWS TRIBUNE
JAN 1 1936

INCREASE IN LAWLESSNESS

THE lawlessness that has been so rampant throughout the nation during the past year and which brought about the removal of the Lindbergh family to a foreign nation in quest of safety, was reflected in the increased number of lynchings, as well as in other acts of violence.

Twenty persons were lynched during 1935, an increase of five over the previous year. As usual, most of the lynchings were in the South. There were two each in Florida, Texas and Georgia; one each in North Carolina and Tennessee; four in Louisiana; seven in Mississippi and one in California. The victims included eighteen negroes and two white persons.

It is significant that in only six of the lynchings was the "usual crime" involved, criminal attacks upon women not figuring in fourteen of the lynchings. This record shows how lynch law, once tolerated in one field, will spread quickly to other fields. Mobs that are permitted to do violence in one connection will turn quickly to violence in other directions and thus a condition is created under which the innocent may suffer along with the guilty. The list of 1935 victims included one person who was killed while a mob was trying to get another man.

The record is an appalling one but it has one bright angle. There were fifty-three instances during the year in which determined officers of the law prevented mobs from carrying out their designs. Forty-four of these instances occurred in the Southern states and this furnishes cause for gratification.

The lives of no persons are safe when lawlessness is rampant and it is altogether too rampant in the South as well as in other portions of the country. The urgent need is for courageous and determined officers, resolute courts and solidified public sentiment.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
TIMES UNION
DEC 29 1935

TWENTY LYNCHED IN U. S. THIS YEAR

All Except One of Mob Killings Throughout Nation Occurred in South.

By United Press.

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 28.—There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee Institute, negro college.

All except one of the lynchings occurred in the south. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other State. Louisiana had four. Georgia, Florida and Texas had two each; North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said. "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

"The alleged offenses were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organization, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; Communistic activity, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from an officer of the law, one.

"A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. There were 53 instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States.

"In 42 instances prisoners removed, the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers."

There were 28 lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932.

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.
DEC 30 1935

LYNCHING RECORDS

Another year's report on lynchings comes from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute. An increase is noted from fifteen to twenty. Of the twenty all but two were Negroes and all but one was carried out in the Southern states, Mississippi leading with seven. California was the Northern state to disclose disregard of lawful procedure.

No less than thirteen of the lynched persons were in the hands of legal officials, when attacked. On the other hand, officials of the law prevented fifty-five lynchings and in eleven other instances armed forces protected the offenders from raiders. No less than eighty-four persons, of whom seventeen were white, were saved from mob action which would deny due process of law.

While the record of the year discloses a small increase, still when compared with what was done in other years, the report indicates a decided change for the better. The record year was 1892 with 255, of whom 100 were whites. The year with the best showing is 1932 when only eight were reported.

New Brunswick, N. J.
HOME NEWS
DEC 31 1935

RECORD OF LYNCHINGS

To the Editor of The Home News:
Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 whites and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking a person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON, president,
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.

Panama City-Fla.
DEC 30 1935

Concerning Lynchings For the Year 1935

The following is the record concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Records and Reasearch of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each states are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Lynchings-1935
Reports On, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5230

Carrollton, Ga., Times
January 2, 1936

Records Show More Lynchings Occurred In 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935.This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and twelve more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern states. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officers of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
RECORD
DEC 27 1935

Horrible and Shameful.

One of the most horrible and shameful features of the record for the year now nearing its close is revealed in a statistical report from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute showing that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during the last 12 months.

This is five more than the number put to death by mobs during 1934, and 12 more than the 1932 total, although the 1935 figure represents eight fewer than were lynched in 1933.

The offenses charged against this year's victims were: Murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share crop organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one. Thirteen of the 20 persons put to death by mobs were in the custody of the law when seized and executed under lynch law.

The 1935 record reveals that there were 53 instances in which mob killings were attempted, but were frustrated—in 11 cases by armed resistance. Nine of these defeated attempts took place in northern and western states, and 44 in southern states. In 42 instances the mobs were defeated in their purpose by removal of prisoners or by augmentation of guards.

Eighty-four persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved from lynching by rope, firebrand, mutilation or bullet. Many more, perhaps all, would have been saved had the officers of the law displayed more nerve, resourcefulness and a stronger determination to do their duty. There are no braver men than those officers who protect prisoners at the risk of their own lives.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
RECORD
JAN 2 1936

Remember Govan Ward!

Of the 20 lynchings which occurred in the United States in 1935, none constituted a more flagrant insult to law and decency, and none was quite so much of a spit in the face of justice as the one near Louisburg, Franklin county, North Carolina, in which a crazed negro, Govan Ward, was taken from officers, well armed, on a public highway in broad daylight, by a mob of unmasked men and put to death. The crime took place within a short distance of the state capital!

The Govan Ward case also shines in the 1935 lynching record because the official "investigation" of it stands out as superlative in weakness and farce. Despite the fact that a score or more of mobsters participated in the crime, and despite the fact that hundreds of persons, men, women and children were on the scene shortly after the insane man was killed, no one has been punished—in fact no arrests have been made, though the lynching took place months ago.

Characterizing the Ward lynching as the "most surprising" of last year, an esteemed contemporary, the Roanoke (Va.) World-News, comments: "For some years North Carolina had enjoyed an enviable reputation. It dealt sternly with the mob that stormed the Asheville jail, and sent to prison those who took part in the Needleman affair. And for years afterwards there was no lynching in North Carolina. In the Ward case a white North Carolinian obtained the names of nine of the lynchers and furnished them to the authorities, but no action was taken. Some of the predecessors of Governor Ehringhaus were made of sterner stuff."

The World-News is right. Circumstances being what they are in the Ward case, the Record cannot believe the state of North Carolina is so impotent, so helpless, so lacking in courage and resourcefulness, so dumb, that it can obtain no evidence at all tending to reveal the identities of the white-livered cowards who by their infamous crime have placed the name of the state high on the roster of states shamed and disgraced in 1935 because of lynchings.

When mob-murderers are permitted to go unpunished, that, in effect, cordially invites and warmly welcomes more mob murders. Lynching is anarchy in its more dangerous and despicable form. Even at this late date, a clearing up of the Ward case, or even a sincere and determined move to get at the bottom of it, might serve to save the state from the ignominy of a lynching in 1936.

HERALD
Sanford - N. C.
DEC. 30 1935

20 LYNCHINGS REPORTED FOR 1935 IN U. S

Tuskegee Institute In Alabama Makes Report On Illegal Executions

ONE IN THIS STATE

According to a report special to the Sanford Herald from the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, there were 20 persons lynched in United States during 1935, North Carolina contributing one of them and Mississippi leading the list with seven.

This number is five more than were recorded in 1934 and eight less than for 1933 and 12 more than 1932. Thirteen of the number were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside jails and two were shot to death in jail.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were murder, seven; atempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follow: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee. 1; and Texas. 2.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.
OBSERVER
DEC 30 1935

The Public Pulse

1935 LYNCHINGS
Tuskegee Institute, Alabama.
December 21, 1935.

Editor,
Fayetteville Observer.
Dear Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.
OBSERVER
DEC 31 1935

LYNCHING RECORD SIGNIFICANT.

Several significant facts are conspicuous in Tuskegee institute's annual compilation of the Nation's lynching record for 1935, showing 20 persons lynched during the year.

It must be noted at once that 19 of the 20 lynchings occurred in the Southern States and that 18 of the victims were negroes.

Another outstanding fact in the record at once and as usual gives the lie to the contentions of those apologists who would like for the world to believe that most of the lynchings in the South are in defense of Southern womanhood. Of the 18 negroes lynched this year, only six were charged with either criminal assault or attempted criminal assault. Seven were charged with murder and one with attacking a person, another with slapping a white woman.

It may be significant—certainly it is not encouraging — that the number of lychings this year exceeded last year's record by one third and also exceeded the average annual record for the three preceding years, 1932-1934. The average for the three years was 17. The highest record for any of the four years was 28 in 1933.

The most encouraging phase of the annual compilation is the number of lynchings that were prevented. In 53 instances of threatened lynchings a total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs, according to the Tuskegee record, 44 of these instances being in the South. The batting average in favor of the officers of the law, therefore, was a little better than two to one in the Southern States; that is, more than two lynchings were prevented for each one committed.

However, no excuse or apology or argument can wipe away the ugly fact that in the year 19 lynchings were perpetrated in seven Southern States and none in any other State except California, and that in as many instances mobs succeeded in defiance of the Federal and State constitutions, the statute laws, the courts and the officers of the law, and committed an act of anarchy in each instance.

Soon Congress will be in session and will have before it for consideration a Federal anti-lynching bill. Southern Senators and Representatives will be expected to fight it to the finish on the ground that such a law would be in contravention of States' rights. Also they will argue that the States of the South are amply able to deal with the matter of lynchings and that no Federal law to deal with the crime is necessary.

The Southern States ought to prove that they can deal with lynching and put it down. As long as they fail—either because they will not or cannot do it—they are inviting Congress to enact a Federal anti-lynching law, no matter what their Senators and Representatives say about it.

And, unless the record be considerably improved, it need not surprise any one if Congress before many years does pass an anti-lynching bill. The Nation is getting tired of lynchings.

BALTIMORE, MD.
MORNING SUN
DEC 27 1935

LYNCHINGS

At this period of the year, when 1935 is being surveyed and reviewed for its spiritual and material gains and losses, there issues from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute a statistical report that bears horror and shame in every item. Prepared by the department of records and research of the institute, it presents without comment the record of the lynchings in the United States during the year.

In 1935, twenty persons were put to death by mobs, five more than during the previous year and twelve more than during 1932, although the 1935 figure represented eight fewer than were lynched in 1933. The offenses charged against the victims were: Murder, 7; attempted criminal assault, 3; criminal assault, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share crop organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; Communistic activity, 1. Thirteen of the twenty persons killed by mobs were in the hands of the law when seized for execution under lynch law.

This does not tell the whole story of 1935 lynch lust, for the records disclose also that there were fifty-three instances in which mob killings were attempted, but were frustrated—in eleven cases by armed resistance. Nine of these defeated attempts occurred in Northern and Western States and forty-four below the Mason and Dixon's Line. In forty-two cases the mobs were beaten by removal of the prisoners or by augmentations of guards. In all, eighty-four persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro—were saved from the law of the rope and firebrand.

NEWS
Derry N. H.
DEC 27 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskagee Institute, Alabama, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 person, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 person lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were, murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

ROANOKE, VA.
TIMES
DEC 28 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935.

From the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute comes what the Baltimore Sun correctly terms "a statistical report that bears horror and shame in every item." Prepared by its department of records and research, the Institute presents without comment—for that matter, the actual figures speak for themselves—a record of the lynchings in the United States during the year now approaching a close.

In 1935, twenty persons were put to death by mobs, five more than during the previous year and twelve more than during 1932, although the 1935 figure represented eight fewer than were lynched in 1933. The offenses charged against the victims were: Murder, 7; attempted criminal assault, 3; criminal assault, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share crop organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; Communistic activity, 1. Thirteen of the twenty persons killed by mobs were in the hands of the law when seized for execution under lynch law.

Besides the foregoing, the record shows that in fifty-three instances mob killings were attempted but were frustrated. Nine of these defeated attempts occurred in Northern and Western States and forty-four in the South.

Insofar as this indicates a growing disposition on the part of law enforcement officers in Southern States to do their duty and resist force with force, it is to be applauded as one of the most encouraging features in a sorry and deplorable situation. In eleven cases the mob was balked by armed resistance and in forty-two cases mobs were frustrated by removal of the prisoners or by augmentations of the guards. Intelligence and courage on the part of officers of the law in coping with those who would take it into their own hands make an effective combination, one that is successful nine times out of ten.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5231

MIAMI, FLA.
NEWS
JAN 2 1936

Dishonor Roll

The annual report of the Tuskegee Institute of Alabama shows the number of mob victims last year totaled 20, with Florida accounting for 10 per cent of these. This is an increase of five over 1934. As usual, nearly all of the lynchings occurred in the South. Mississippi, with seven, was the worst offender. California had one, Texas two. Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina and Tennessee are the other states on the list.

A common excuse of mobs is that they do the work in which the law fails, yet 13 of the 1935 lynching victims were already in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers outside jails, and two were shot to death in jail. The question of why the law in these cases could not hold its prisoners for the justice of the courts is no easier to answer in view of the fact that in 53 other instances officers of the law did prevent lynchings.

Of the lynchings prevented, 44 were in the South, the balance in northern and western states. Usually a heavier guard or removal of the prisoner was sufficient; in only 11 cases was it necessary to use armed force in repelling the mob. But for the courage of these authorities the number of persons lynched in 1935 would have been 104 instead of 20.

The significance of the figures is inescapable. Lynchings occur most frequently in districts where ignorance and poverty are the rule. Eradicating these evils may be a long-time task, but the record reveals that the crime which springs from them can be checked now. It is up to the states which do not want a federal anti-lynching law to prove that such a law is not needed.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.
TIMES
DEC 30 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

Editor of The Times:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Institute.

Tuskegee Institute, Alabama,
Dec. 21.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.
PRESS
JAN 2 1936

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.,
Dec. 21, 1935.

To The Editor of The Binghamton Press:

Sir:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934, eight less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven, attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
DEC 28 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD

The Regular Report Comes From Tuskegee Institute

To the Editor of The Courant:—

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskeegee Institute that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934, eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933 and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern States. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances, armed force was used to repel the wouldbe lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON.

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 27, 1935.

DEMOCRAT
Logan - W. Va.
JAN 2 1936

20 Lynchings Mar Record Of The Past Year

Tuskegee Institute Statistics Reveal Increase of Mob Killings Over Similar Events in 1934

In a report released this week by th Tuskegee Normal and Industria Institute at Tuskegee, Alabama, i is shown that there were 20 persons lynched in the United States during the year just closing, as compared with 15 lynchings in 9133, an increase of five for this year.

The 1935 record, however, contains eight less mob killings than in 1933, but 12 more than in 1932.

Thirteen of those lynched this year, the record reveals, were taken from the hands of the law, five being taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in their cells.

In fifty-three other instances of mob attack, lynchings were prevented by the police authorities. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of these cases the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken successfully, while in the other 11 instances armed force was used to repel the attacks. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were so saved from mob violence, the report continues.

Of the 20 persons who were lynched, two were white and 18 were Negroes. The offense charges were: Murder, 7; attempted rape 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, one; organization activity, one; attack, one; taking prisoner from officer of law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping woman, one; communistic activity, one.

Tre states in which the lynchings occurred and the number in each were California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

Commission has announced open

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
REPUBLICAN
DEC 27 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935

Five More Than in 1934, According to Tuskegee Records

To the Editor of The Republican:—

I send you the following information concerning lynching for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number, 15, for 1935; eight less than the number, 28, for 1933; and 12 more than the number, eight, for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON.
President.

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., December 31. 1935.

Elberton, Ga., Star
December 31, 1935

20 Persons Lynched in U.S. During 1935

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskeegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 3 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; atempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tenessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Marianna, Fla., Times Courier
January 2, 1936

20 Lynched During 1935

Compilation of Figures From All Sections of U. S.; Florida Has Two Lynchings

According to records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the 15 for 1934; eight less than the 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented, or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows; California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Cardlina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Toccoa, Ga., Record
January 2, 1936

20 Persons Lynched In U. S. During 1935

According to records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskeegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of there were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repell the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negros, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 8 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person,1 ; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; North Carolina,1; Louisiana, 4; Texas, 2; Mississippi, 7; Tennessee, 1.

Glenville, Ga., Sentinel
January 2, 1936

20 PERSONS LYNCHED DURING 1935 REPORTS TUSKEGEE PRESIDENT

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30.—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced Saturday that records of his institution showed that twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1834.

He said that eighty-seven persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven negroes—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings, led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported four, Florida, two Georgia, two; Texas, two, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee, one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and eighteen negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, Communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

Thomasville, Ga., Press
January 3, 1936

20 Persons Put To Death By Mobs In Year 1935

Dr. F D Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons wer lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of 5 over 1934

He said 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hande of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, while Louisana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2 and Tennessee, California and North Carolina 1 each

The persons lynched included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, commusictic activity, slapping a woman and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched were at one time in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails and two were shot to death in jail.

Philadelphia, Pa.
Inquirer-Public ledger
JAN 1 1936

LYNCHINGS IN 1935

To the Editor of the Evening Ledger:

I find, according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number (fifteen) for 1934, eight less than the number (twenty-eight) for 1933, and twelve more than the number (eight) for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were fifty-three instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western States and forty-four in Southern States. In forty-two of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of eighty-four persons, seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the twenty persons lynched two were white and eighteen were Negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organizing, one; attacking person one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; Communistic activity, one.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON, President.
Tuskegee Institute. Alabama.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. - Dec.

5232

GLENS FALLS, N. Y.
TIMES

JAN 2 1936

THE LYNCHING RECORD OF 1935

The year just closed exceeded the year previous in the number of lynchings. Twenty times during 1935 a band of interrified citizens, alert to the welfare of society, took matters into their own hands and inflicted capital punishment on the spot. As usual we find public spirit of this nature running higher below the Mason and Dixon line than elsewhere in these United States, according to the figures given out by the department of records and research of Tuskegee Institute. Except for one lynching in California (where anything can happen) the people of no state except a southern state found it necessary to set aside the customary procedure of the courts.

The place of honor goes to Mississippi with seven lynchings in 1935. Louisiana takes second place with four. Florida, Georgia and Texas were contented with two each. North Carolina and Tennessee scored but one.

The penalty of death was thus exacted for a number of causes. Humanitarians today look back with horror upon the savage old criminal code of England under which a man could be hanged for picking a pocket, harboring a smuggler, stealing five shillings, robbing a rabbit-warren, cutting a hop vine or injuring Westminster bridge. Judge Lynch last year dealt with equal severity with some equally grave offenses. While seven of those lynched were charged with murder, three with rape and three attempted rape, one was lynched for engaging in an altercation with another, one for activity in a share-cropper organization, one for communistic activity, one for slapping a woman and one was lynched by a mob who intended to lynch some one else. In other words, he was lynched for being in the way of the lynchers.

The underlying excuse for most of the lynchings was of course the old one of keeping the negroes in their place. Of twenty lynched two were white.

DULUTH, MINN.
NEWS TRIBUNE

DEC 30 1935

A Disgraceful Record

The gruesome record of lynchings, as compiled by the Tuskegee Institute shows that twenty persons were lynched in 1935 as compared to fifteen in 1934. Thirteen of the persons killed by lawless mobs already were in custody. Of the twenty persons lynched eighteen were colored and two were white. All the lynchings took place in Southern states, with Mississippi leading with seven.

The blot of lynching which disgraced eight Southern states this year is all the more discreditable because of the fact that it was the Southern states which defeated the measure in the last congress which would have done much to restrain mobs, make law officers more diligent, and cause lynching to be unpopular even in Southern communities.

[redacted]

JAN 2 1936

NUMBER OF LYNCHINGS INCREASE

In 1934, the number of lynchings was 15; the number in 1933 was 12, but in 1935, the number reached 20, which show an increase for the past year. Practically all of the lynchings occurring last year were committed in the southern states. California, however, having one.

A majority of the lynchings were due to the crime of rape and to the delays and bickerings of the courts. Mob violence cannot be justified nor can the action of the officers and the courts in failing to detect, arrest and try the members of mobs. In some instances, alleged members of mobs have been arrested and tried in the courts, but few convictions have resulted. To the laxity of the laws and their enforcement by the courts is due, in a great measure, the deplorable condition existing throughout the country.

SPARTANBURG, S. C.
JOURNAL

JAN 1 1936

Lynching Record

The yearly statistics adduced as to lynchings in the United States confirm that this form of outrageous and indefensible mob rule is still in the saddle at least to some extent throughout the country, and that after all this thing called civilization is a thin veneer when such manifestations break out here and there throughout the course of a twelve-month period. There was a total of 20 lynchings, five more than for the year 1934. They were confined almost exclusively to the southeastern states, with Mississippi in the lead, in which state Judge Lynch demanded seven victims. South Carolina had none to blot her escutcheon throughout the past year. Let's keep the slate clean for 1936.

BUTTE, MONT.
POST

JAN 3 1936

OUR LYNCHING SHAME.

The annual report of the Tuskegee Institute on lynchings is one of the unpleasant summaries of last year's happenings. It shows that 20 persons, two white and 18 Negro, met death at the hands of mobs in 1935. That is an increase of five such crimes over the 1934 record and is a greater number than in any of the past five years, with the exception of 1933. As usual, most of the killings took place in the South, the distribution by states including: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Bad as this record is, it would have been much worse had it not been for the action of peace officers who in 53 other instances prevented lynchings. In some of these cases guards were augmented; in others prisoners were removed to safe places; in all, 84 lives were saved. That is one bright feature of the report; on the other side of the picture is the fact that of the 20 who were lynched, 13 were in the hands of the law. Five of them were taken from jails, six from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

From these facts it is apparent that the onus rests, in large part at least, upon peace authorities. Where they courageously refused to surrender prisoners and met mob violence with stern force, lynch attempts to be popular accomplish this is nch law imposing

lict officers.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
RECORD

DEC 30 1935

Twenty Lynchings Reported This Year; Only 15 In 1934

North Carolina Has First Mob Execution In Many Years; Mississippi Leads With Total of Seven.

There have been 20 lynchings in the United States this year, compared with 15 for 1934 and 28 for 1933, according to a report just submitted to this paper by F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute, of Tuskegee, Ala.

North Carolina offered one lynching to the total of 20, a negro being hanged early in the summer near Louisburg, in Franklin county. Mississippi led the list with seven lynchings. Other states in which that form of violence took place were California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Texas, two; and Tennessee, one.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organization, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from an officer of the law, one; killed by a mob in search for another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

Thirteen Taken From Law.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside jails; and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, nine were in the northern and western states and 44 in the southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were moved or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In 11 cases armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

JACKSON, MISS.
NEWS

DEC 30 1935

TABLE SHOWS STATE LEADS IN LYNCHINGS

TUSKEGEE—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, a gain of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved by officers of the law from death at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes, while the charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the l

Thirteen of these lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six were taken from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jail.

ENID, OKLA.
MORNING NEWS

DEC 31 1935

THE DECLINING POWER OF JUDGE LYNCH

Official records of Tuskegee Institute, just released, show an increase in the number of lynchings in 1935 as compared to 1934, but still show the gradual downward trend of mob rule as compared to most of the years of the present century. Twenty persons were lynched in 1935, an increase of five over 1934 but not comparable at all to records of many years. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; two were shot to death in a jail.

The best lynching record of the last three and one-half decades was established in 1932, when only eight persons, white or colored, were victims of the mob. The worst year of the century was 1901 when 135 persons were victims of the noose, the gun or the stake at the hands of crowds inflamed by prejudice and the mob spirit.

Mob rule has no place in a civilized country, and, fortunately, is generally on the down grade. Yet the small increase this year in the number of those put to death without benefit of trial is deplorable enough, and a continued blot on the record of law enforcement agencies in America.

Mob rule is savage rule; civilization has provided a better plan of bringing to book those accused of crime; and, too often, the mob's victims are innocent parties, caught in a web of circumstances from which, probably, a calm and ordered trial by jury could extricate them.

That the majority of mob victims are negroes is, no doubt, largely due to race prejudice, as indicated by the fact that 19 of the 20 lynchings last year occurred in southern states; yet there were 17 white persons in other states who were saved from mobs during the year only by the prompt and stern efforts of the law officers, and 67 negroes likewise who were properly protected from the passions of the horde.

Twenty persons illegally done to death is, perhaps, not many in a nation as large as the United States, yet it is twenty too many. There are legal ways to determine the guilt, to convict, to sentence, and even to execute the person or persons guilty of serious crime. The lynch rope or the stake determine nothing, except to emphasize the mad passions of the mob and to cast a shadow on civilization

ALBANY, N. Y.
NEWS

DEC 31 1935

Lynching

THE annual report of the court of Judge Lynch in America is dark enough but it has some beaming candles therein. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, cites a total of 20 lynchings in 1935 or five more than in 1934, but eight less than in 1933. However it is 12 more than in 1932. Thirteen of those lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers and two were shot in jail. All but two of those lynched were Negroes and race prejudice played the biggest part in mob vengeance last year.

That is a shameful record indeed, a national disgrace. Yet let us look on the other side of the picture. Dr. Patterson points out that in 53 instances officers prevented lynchings. Nine of these instances were in Northern and Western states and 44 were in Southern states. So the North need not draw its skirts about it and look at the South as altogther to blame for lynchings. In 44 cases Southern officers prevented lynchings and did their duty at the risk of their own lives and defiance of the warped "sentiment" of their neighbors who had organized themselves into mobs. In these 53 instances the lives of 84 persons, 17 whites and 67 Negroes, were saved from lynchers. That is a bright spot. Another bright spot is the work of women of the South who are doing their utmost to discourage lynching and calling on men of the South not to take the law into their own hands.

Lynching is a blot on America. Will it never be removed?

FORT WORTH, TEX.
EVENING STAR TELEGRAM

JAN 3 1936

Lynching in 1935.

THE ANNUAL REPORT on lynching in the United States, made by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, Tuskegee, Ala., contains in its round figures little encouragement for the hope that this crime is on the way out. The number of persons lynched in 1935 was 20, which is five more than in 1934, and 12 more than in 1932, although eight fewer than in 1933.

But in the figures for prevented lynchings there is much encouragement for the belief that the crime can be suppressed by determined action of peace officers. There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings—in 42 cases by removal of the prisoners or augmentation of prison guards so as to overawe the mob, and in 11 instances by armed force employed to repel attack by a mob. A total of 84 persons, 17 white, were thus saved

Lynchings-1935
6
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5233

Twenty Persons Victims Of Lynching Orgies In 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 colored were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in shar ecropper organizing 1; attacking person, 7; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Montgomery, Ala. Journal
December 28, 1935

Score of Persons Lynched in 1935

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee institute, announced today that records of his institution showed that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935 a gain of 5 over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved from death at the hands of mobs by officers of the law.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation according to Dr. Patterson's announcement, while Louisiana reported 4, Florida 2, Georgia 2, Texas 2, and California, North Carolina and Tennessee each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, included two white men and 18 negroes charged with murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, communistic activity, slapping a woman, and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers outside the jails, and two were shot to death in jails.

Richmond, Va. News-Leader
December 28, 1935

20 Lynched in 1935, Says Tuskegee Man

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28.—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, announced today that records of his institution showed twenty persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that eighty four persons—seventeen white and sixty-seven Negro—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

LYNCHINGS FOR 1935

December 21, 1935

Dear Sir: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Departments of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1: Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. Patterson, Pres.

Spartanburg S. C. Herald
December 29, 1935

Mobs Kill Twenty in 1935

The mob spirit was rife during 1935. Twenty persons were lynched, an increase of five over the previous year. But other mobs were not so successful and the lives of 84 persons—17 white and 67 negro—were menaced by them. It is to the credit of peace officers that these persons were saved from lynching.

According to data collected by Dr. D. F. Patterson, of Tuskegee Institute, the year's lynchings were confined to the eight states of Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Georgia, Florida, Arkansas, North Carolina and Tennessee, Mississippi leading all with a total of seven.

It is gratifying to South Carolinians to see the name of their state missing rfom the list of those in which mobs committed murder during the year 1935, though there have been killings in the state this year that were almost as humiliating to all right-thinking people.

Selma, Ala. Times
December 29, 1935

1935 LYNCHING RECORD

It is regrettable that the very authentic chronicle of lynchings which is kept by the Tuskegee Institute shows an increase of five in the number of victims of mob law in 1935 compared with 1934, the figures being 20 for this year and 15 for the year before. It is shown that 13 of the number lynched were already in the hands of the law. They were wrested away from officers or taken from jails, two were shot in jail. There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape. 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person. 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia. 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Alabama does not appear in the list of states blighted by the lynching evil, for which we may well give thanks.

Brooklyn, N. Y. Citizen

JAN 2 1936

Old Judge Lynch still claims his toll. The ~~total~~ for 1935 is twenty. Last year it was only fifteen and in 1933 it was twenty-eight. In thirteen cases this year the victims were taken either from jails or from the arms of the law. Nineteen of the cases occurred in the South and one in California. The savagery and unwillingness of the Southerners to rely on the due processes of the law are no less rampant than ever, although it is admitted that some of the lynching victims perpetrated horrible crimes. The Southern States will do nothing about the practice and efforts to pass Federal legislation are blocked by Southern Senators. The South believes greatly in tradition and will not abandon it, even if that tradition is most uncivilized.

Shelby, N. C. Star
December 30, 1935

Twenty Lynchings Occur In '35 And 53 Preventions Reported

According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 ohter instances, armed force was used to repeal the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

"The alleged offenses were: murder, seven; attempted rape ,three; rape ,three; altercation with man one; activity in share-cropper organization, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, oe; communistic activity, one.

"A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. There were 53 instances where officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states ad 44 in southern states," the report said.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.
NEWS PRESS
DEC 30 1935

Editorial Observations

The Tuskegee Institute says there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933, and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail. Of the twenty persons lynched, two were white and eighteen were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one. The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one Texas, two.

Anniston, Ala. Star
December 28, 1935

Lynchings In Nation Increase To 20 This Year; 15 In 1934

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 28. (U.P.)—There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee Institute, famed negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other state. Louisiaa had four. In Georgia there were two lynchings; Florida and Texas had two each. One lynching took place in North Carolina and one in Tennessee.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said. "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

Columbia, S. C. State
December 29, 1935

Tuskegee Lynching Data

Tuskeegee, Ala., Dec. 28—(AP)—Dr. F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskeegee institute, announced today that records of his institution showed 20 persons were lynched in the United States during 1935, an increase of five over 1934.

He said that 84 persons—17 white and 67 Negro—were saved by officers from harm at the hands of mobs.

Mississippi with seven lynchings led the nation, according to Doctor Patterson's announcement; Louisiana reported 4, Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Texas, 2; California, North Carolina and Tennessee, 1 each.

The persons lynched, the Tuskegee president said, had included two white men and 18 Negroes, and charges against them included murder, attack, activity in share cropper organizing, Communistic activity, slapping a woman and taking a prisoner from an officer of the law.

Thirteen of those lynched, he said, were at one time in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside the jails; two were shot to death in jail.

LOWELL, MASS.
EVENING LEADER
DEC 30 1935

LYNCHING RECORD OF 1935.

While either insufficient information, or a difference of opinion in some cases, as to whether a homicide could properly be described as a "lynching" occasionally produces slight differences in the statistics emanating from various sources, those which are issued each year from the Tuskegee Institute are usually considered standard. According to this report the crimes of this sort exceeded in number those of 1934 by five, and those of 1932 by eight; but fell below those of 1933 by eight.

This number, 20, seems to represent neither favorably nor very unfavorably the present status of lynching in the United States. Except in 1917, when war conditions may have had an effect in checking mob violence directed against Negroes, in consequence of the fact that they, together with the young men of the white race, were fighting for their country and were kept out of mischief by service in the army, the victims of mob violence had never been fewer than 50 since the beginning of the record. For some reason there was an abrupt drop to 33 in 1923. Even this was to be far above the average of future years. The number was reduced by more than 50 per cent the next year and only twice has it reached or approached 30 since then. But it cannot be said that there has been much indication that conditions have improved over a 12-year period.

As usual the great majority of the victims were Negroes. The two lynchings of whites were political murders directed against a share cropper agitator and a Communinst. In view of the ruthless suppression of attempts at organization of low-priced labor in some of the far western states, it is rather surprising that only one lynching is reported from that region.

In one case the mob got the wrong man, one lynching was for altercation with a white man, one for slapping a woman. The others were for offenses for which the victims, if they were guilty, would probably have been convicted and executed. The six rape cases represent perhaps the irreducible minimum of lynchings, since it may well be doubted that southern mobs will ever let the law take its course after all such crimes.

Mississippi usually stands near the head of the list, and this year its contribution is more than a third of the whole. California was the only northern state represented. It is not beyond doubt that the southern people as a whole are becoming really more willing to leave punishment to the law. The decrease in the number of completed crimes is due largely to greater vigilance on the part of the authorities. Nine lynchings in the North and 44 in the South were prevented by either strategy or armed resistance on the part of the officials who had charge of the prisoners. This fact ought to be taken into consideration when the annual anti-lynching bill comes up next year. The situation is certainly disgraceful, even if it is not as bad as it was in the early years of this century, to say nothing of the years when the number of victims was in the hundreds; yet it is possible that state effort will in the end accomplish fully as much as federal intervention. The 18th amendment showed that federal laws settle nothing where they are not backed up by local sentiment.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y
STANDARD STAR
DEC 30 1935

LYNCHING DATA

President of Tuskegee Institute Sends In Report of Cases for Year of 1935

Editor, The Standard-Star: I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON,
President.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.
Dec. 21. 1935.

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press

Jan. -Dec.

5234

Roanoke, Va., World News
December 31, 1935

THE LYNCHING RECORD.

Of twenty lynchings in 1935 nineteen occurred in the South—one in California, where the statement of a former governor gave encouragement to that form of lawlessness. The total is five more than in 1934—an argument handed by the States of the deep South to advocates of a pending bill placing prosecution of lynchers in Federal courts. In the past twenty-five years more than 5,000 persons have been lynched in the United States, and there have been convictions of those taking part in these mob murders in less than one-half of one per cent of the cases.

Old fashioned orators in the half century following the War Between the States used to defend lynching as necessary "to protect Southern womanhood." Yet the record shows that in 1935 the offenses charged against those lynched were: Murder, 7; attempted criminal assault, 3; criminal assault, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share crop organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from an officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1. Thirteen of the twenty persons killed by lynching mobs were already under arrest when taken from the hands of officers for summary execution.

A more hopeful part of the report shows that in fifty-three instances mob killings were attempted but were frustrated. Nine of these attempts occurred in Northern and Western States, and 44 in the South. Where officers showed a determination to do their duty to protect the prisoners entrusted to their keeping, there was little evidence of mob disorder. In eleven cases mobs were turned back by armed resistance, in 42 cases by removal of prisoners or increase in the number of guards.

How far are the law's delays an incitement to mob violence? In many circles the fact that Hauptmann was convicted nearly a year ago, and that the trial evidence was exhaustively reviewed by the Supreme Court of New Jersey six months ago, and that the agitation for commutation of his sentence still goes on, has caused many a man to decide that if another baby is taken from its nursery and murdered, the man found with the ransom money secreted will be disposed of without benefit of courts. The long drawn out Scottsboro case, in the courts for years, has caused many an Alabama citizen to conclude that a rump jury on the ground could have settled the matter with more equity and less quibbling in one afternoon. So long as trials are made into sporting contests between shrewd lawyers so long as the courts offer opportunities for years of delay, so long will there be an invitation to an outraged citizenry to make summary settlements from which there can be no appeal.

Of the 1935 lynchings, perhaps the most surprising is that of Govan Ward, put to death in broad daylight on the streets of Louisburg, N. C. For some years North Carolina had enjoyed an enviable reputation. It dealt sternly with the mob that stormed the Asheville jail, and sent to prison those who took part in the Needleman affair. And for years afterwards there was no lynching in North Carolina. In the Ward case a white North Carolinian obtained the names of nine of the lynchers and furnished them to the authorities, but no action was taken. Some of the predecessors of Governor Ehringhaus were made of sterner stuff.

In the case of two Negro boys killed by a Texas mob, the county prosecutor announced that the lynchings conformed "to the will of the people," and that neither he nor any other local official had any intention of doing anything about it. His oath of office meant nothing to him so long as he considered that he was on the popular side. But to admit that he was on the popular side is to admit that the people of his county had broken through the thin veneer that separates civilization from savagery.

The pending Federal anti-lynching statute may be unconstitutional, and has been steadily opposed by defenders of rights of the States. But if the States will not protect human life, they can hardly be surprised if there is a general turning to the Federal authority. In our own section, a gigantic whiskey conspiracy was uncovered by the Federal courts, after the State had for years failed to enforce its own laws.

Tuskegee, Ala., News
January 2, 1936

Dr. Patterson Gives Figures On Lynchings

Tuskegee Institute, Ala.
December 21, 1935

Editor News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

Yours very truly,
F. D. PATTERSON.
President

MONROE, MICH.
NEWS
DEC 27 1935

LYNCHINGS

Editor, Evening News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; Communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President.

Greensboro, N. C., Record
December 27, 1935

Horrible and Shameful.

One of the most horrible and shameful features of the record for the year now nearing its close is revealed in a statistical report from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute showing that 20 persons were lynched in the United States during the last 12 months.

This is five more than the number put to death by mobs during 1934, and 12 more than the 1932 total, although the 1935 figure represents eight fewer than were lynched in 1933.

The offenses charged against this year's victims were: Murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share crop organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one. Thirteen of the 20 persons put to death by mobs were in the custody of the law when seized and executed under lynch law.

The 1935 record reveals that there were 53 instances in which mob killings were attempted, but were frustrated—in 11 cases by armed resistance. Nine of these defeated attempts took place in northern and western states, and 44 in southern states. In 42 instances the mobs were defeated in their purpose by removal of prisoners or by augmentation of guards.

Eighty-four persons—17 white and 67 negro—were saved from lynching by rope, firebrand, mutilation or bullet. Many more, perhaps all, would have been saved had the officers of the law displayed more nerve, resourcefulness and a stronger determination to do their duty. There are no braver men than those officers who protect prisoners at the risk of their own lives.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS
DEC 30 1935

LYNCHINGS IN 1935.

Editor of The Daily News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., TIMES
Tuesday, December 31, 1935

ANNUAL REPORT SHOWS GAIN IN MOB LYNCHINGS

20 Occur in Nation During Year Compared With 15 in 1934.

By United Press

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30.—There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee Institute, Negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other state. Louisiana had four Georgia, Florida and Texas had two each; North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 Negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said: "Thirteen of these persons were in the hands of the law. Five were taken from jails; six were taken from officers outside of jails, and two were shot to death in a jail.

Offenses Listed

"The alleged offenses were: Murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share-cropper organization, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; Communistic activity, oe; attacking person, one; taking a prisoner from an officer of the law, one.

"A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs. There were 53 instances were officers prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states.

"In 42 instances prisoners were removed, guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 used to repel the would-be lynchers."

Thre were 28 lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932.

State
1, 1936

Lynching Can Be Abolished.

Lynchings in 1935, according to statistics given out December 28 by Tuskegee institute, numbered 20; two white men and 18 Negroes. This is five more than for 1934; but it is also eight fewer than in 1933.

The State has never condoned a lynching, and certainly does not want to be misunderstood when it says that even with the increase of five this year, the lynching situation is one which gives the hosts of decent citizens and the militant newspapers which have been fighting against it encouragement to believe that this barbarity will be downed eventually.

Back in 1892, just one year after The State was founded, lynchings in the United States reached the record figure of 231. From that dark year on, slowly but surely the number has fallen. Of course in some of these 43 years, there have been increases, but the black line has gone steadily downward. The all-time low to date, was reached in 1932, with a total of eight; 1933 saw a rise to 28; there was a fall in 1934 to 12, and in 1935 the figure went up again to 20.

Lynching is just as horrible a crime as ever. Those 20 mob murders in 1935 are just 20 too many. Friends of law and order, indeed of civilization itself, cannot relax the fight against this evil till it be wiped out. But happily the past decade, in which no year has seen more than 30 lynchings, gives fair promise that eradication of this crime can and will finally be achieved.

Henderson, N. C. Dispatch
December 30, 1935

LYNCHINGS ARE 20 IN THE YEAR 1935

All But Two Are Negroes And Franklin County Affair is Included.

During the year 1935 there were a total of 20 lynchings in the United States, according to information compiled by Tuskegee Institute for Negroes at Tuskegee, Alabama.

This score of lynchings was five more than the 15 in 1934, eight less than the 23 in 1933 and 12 more than the eight in 1932. Thirteen of those lynched were in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances, the prisoners were removed or the guard augmented, or other precautions taken. In the eleven other instances armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hand of mobs, the record shows.

Of the 20 persons lynched two were whites and 18 Negroes. The offenses charged included seven for murder three for rape and three for attempted rape, and one each for altercation with man, activity in share cropper organization, attacking person, taking prisoner from officer of the law, killed by mob in search of another person; slapping a woman, and communistic activity.

The States in which lynchings occurred showed seven in Mississippi four in Louisiana, two each in Florida, Georgia and Texas, and one each in North Carolina, Tennesse and California.

Greensboro, N. C. Record
December 30, 1935

Twenty Lynchings Reported This Year; Only 15 In 1934

North Carolina Has First Mob Execution In Many Years; Mississippi Leads With Total of Seven.

There have been 20 lynchings in the United States this year, compared with 15 for 1934 and 28 for 1933, according to a report just submitted to this paper by F. D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute, of Tuskegee, Ala.

North Carolina offered one lynching to the total of 20, a negro being hanged early in the summer near Louisburg, in Franklin county. Mississippi led the list with seven lynchings. Other states in which that ferm of violence took place were California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Texas, two; and Tennessee, one.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negroes. The offenses charged were: Murder, seven; attempted criminal assault, three; criminal assault, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organization, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from an officer of the law, one; killed by a mob in search for another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

Thirteen Taken From Law.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside jails; and two were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Of these, nine were in the northern and western states and 44 in the southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were moved or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In 11 cases armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Chicago, Ill. Daily News
Journal
Mon., Dec. 30, 1935

Negro College Reports Increase in Lynchings

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Dec. 30.—There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee Institute, famed Negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the south. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other state. Louisiana had four. Georgia, Florida and Texas had two each; North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 Negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said.

There were 28 lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., JOURNAL
Sunday, December 29, 1935

LYNCHINGS SHOW INCREASE OF FIVE DURING THE YEAR

TUSKEGEE, ALA. (UP) There have been 20 lynchings in the nation this year compared with 15 last year, according to the annual report of Tuskegee institute, famed Negro college.

All but one of the lynchings occurred in the South. That one occurred in California. Mississippi had seven lynchings, more than any other state. Louisiana had four Georgia, Florida and Texas had two each; North Carolina and Tennessee one each.

"Two of the persons lynched were white and 18 Negro," F. D. Patterson, head of the school, said.

There were 28 lynchings in 1933 and eight in 1932

Lynchings-1935
Reports on, Sent Press

Jan. - Dec.

5235

Sanford Herald
December 30, 1935

Lynching Records

Though there was an increase in the number of lynchings which took place in the United States in 1935 over the number for the preceding year, there was a substantial decline from the number lynched in 1933, and the general trend toward fewer and fewer lynchings was maintained.

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings," writes F. D. Patterson, president of the Institute. "9 of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hand of mobs."

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

white. The offenses charged together with the number of persons slain for each offense were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organization, 1; attacking a person, 1; taking prisoner from the officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; and communistic activity, 1.

As usual, it is shown that the South has led in this activity with only one lynching taking place outside this territory and that in the far west. While the number was larger than that for last year, it was smaller than the total reported for 1933 when twenty-eight persons were lynched, but much larger than the figure for 1932 when only eight persons met their death in this manner. We cannot lay claim to having advanced very far in the matter of showing respect for law and order and neither can we point to a very great increase in the willingness of the citizenry to abide by the rulings of the courts.

The fact that every year there are from less than a dozen to a more than a score of persons whose lives are taken before a jury has had an opportunity to do its part in giving them a fair trial bespeaks rather poorly for our courts. Yet, when we consider that only one out of every one hundred persons in North Carolina who is convicted of murder ever has his life taken by the state leads us to believe that the people may have lost confidence in the courts and fear that justice will not be done if the offenders are permitted to stand trial. The business of lynching, however, is bad, and those who take part in them should devote more of their time and energy toward trying to obtain action from the courts instead of taking the law into their own hands.

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C.
TELEGRAM
DEC 31 1935

TWENTY DEAD MEN

Twenty persons in eight states of the Union came to their deaths this year without benefit of judge or jury—by the lynching route according to information contained in a bulletin which recently has been released by the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama. The compilation shows that the total has increased by five over that for the year 1934 and that eighteen of the persons slain were Negroes and two were

SALESBURG, ILL., REG. MAIL
Monday, December 30, 1935

AS TO LYNCHING

The Tuskogee Normal and Industrial Institute sends out the following information on lynching:

"I find according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails; 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

"The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2."

This is signed by F. D. Patterson, president of the Institute.

It seems that lynchings were confined to eight states, that in 40 states there were no lynchings. Mississippi leads out with the worst record, and Louisiana comes next. All covering this subject was debated in Congress. The foregoing communication was accompanied by no explanation and no details save the bare facts. It has been years since there was a lynching in Illinois. There is a difficulty in securing evidence against mob participating in such terrible affairs. Perhaps this may be due to a belief in the mind of one that summary punishment was deserved. The trouble with all mob action is that it is impulsive and hasty and may make mistakes. Every man is entitled to a fair trial, and it is believed that this is the universal feeling in this country

Rome Ga News Tribune
January 1, 1936

INCREASE IN LAWLESSNESS

THE lawlessness that has been so rampant throughout the nation during the past year and which brought about the removal of the Lindbergh family to a foreign nation in quest of safety, was reflected in the increased number of lynchings, as well as in other acts of violence.

Twenty persons were lynched during 1935, an increase of five over the previous year. As usual, most of the lynchings were in the South. There were two each in Florida, Texas and Georgia; one each in North Carolina and Tennessee; four in Louisiana; seven in Mississippi and one in California. The victims included eighteen negroes and two white persons.

It is significant that in only six of the lynchings was the "usual crime" involved, criminal attacks upon women not figuring in fourteen of the lynchings. This record shows how lynch law, once tolerated in one field, will spread quickly to other fields. Mobs that are permitted to do violence in one connection will turn quickly to violence in other directions and thus a condition is created under which the innocent may suffer along with the guilty. The list of 1935 victims included one person who was killed while a mob was trying to get another man.

The record is an appalling one but it has one bright angle. There were fifty-three instances during the year in which determined officers of the law prevented mobs from carrying out their designs. Forty-four of these instances occurred in the Southern states and this furnishes cause for gratification.

The lives of no persons are safe when lawlessness is rampant and it is altogether too rampant in the South as well as in other portions of the country. The urgent need is for courageous and determined officers, resolute courts and solidified public sentiment.

Orangeburg, S. C., Democrat
December 31, 1935

20 Lynched—84 Saved.

The annual lynching statistics of Tuskeegee Institute, one of the outstanding colored educational institutions in the country, have been made public for the year 1935.

Twenty persons were lynched in the United States, seven of which were in Mississippi and all except one in California were credited to southern states. Two of the victims were white men.

An encouraging factor is that this report shows that eighty-four persons were saved by officers from possible harm at the hands of mobs, and of these sixty-seven were Negroes. This means, according to the Tuskeegee figures, that in four cases out of every five in which mobs sought to injure Negroes the white officers of the law protected the Negroes.

Of the twenty lynchings one over half took place in Louisiana and Mississippi leaving only nine which occurred in other states. Florida, Georgia and Texas were the reported locations of two each and California, North Carolina and Tennessee one each. These figures indicate that public sentiment is fairly generally opposed to the crime of lynching.

Athens, Ga., Banner-Herald
January 2, 1936

NUMBER OF LYNCHINGS INCREASE

In 1934, the number of lynchings was 15; the number in 1933 was 12, but in 1935, the number reached 20, which show an increase for the past year. Practically all of the lynchings occurring last year were committed in the southern states. California, however, having one.

A majority of the lynchings were due to the crime of rape and to the delays and bickerings of the courts. Mob violence cannot be justified nor can the action of the officers and the courts in failing to detect, arrest and try the members of mobs. In some instances, alleged members of mobs have been arrested and tried in the courts, but few convictions have resulted. To the laxity of the laws and their enforcement by the courts is due, in a great measure, the deplorable condition existing throughout the country.

Nashville, Tenn. Banner
January 4, 1936

THE LYNCHING RECORD

The number of lynchings in 1935 was greater than in the preceding year, and in most other recent years. Records compiled at Tuskeege Institute show twenty lynchings in the year now ending, five more than in 1934. Only two or three times in the last twelve years has the number of lynchings exceeded twenty. In one year, 1932, lynchings declined to the record low number of eight. In some other recent years the record was almost as good. In 1929 there were ten, in 1928 there were eleven, and in 1931 there were thirteen.

There has been a marked downward trend in lynchings ever since annual records have been compiled. In some years there has been a setback, as there was in 1935, but in the main there has been gratifying progress in stamping out this hideous evil. From 1885, the first year for which records are available, until the turn of the century, there was but one year in which the number of lynchings was less than 100, and then it was ninety-six. In one year during that period there were more than 200 lynchings, and in several years there were nearly 200. The last year in which lynchings reached as high as 100 was 1901, when there were 105.—Birmingham News.

MACON, GA.
NEWS
DEC 29 1935

Lynching Record Still Bad

In the longer view, the number of lynchings has been falling off, but the figures still remain a blot on the country. The Department of Records and Research of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute shows that thus far 20 persons were lynched in 1935. This is five more than last year, eight less than the number of 1933 and 12 more than in 1932.

Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law, the report says. Five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

Officers of the law, in 53 instances, prevented lynchings. Nine of these cases were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In other cases different precautions were taken. A total of 84 persons, 67 of whom were Negroes, were thus saved from mob violence.

Of the 20 persons actually lynched this year two were white and 18 were Negroes.

Mississippi led the list in the number of lynchings, the record standing at seven; there were four in Louisiana, two each in Georgia, Florida and Texas, and one each in California, North Carolina, and Tennessee.

It is a dark record and one of which the states involved may well be ashamed.

Birmingham, Ala. News
January 1, 1936

THE LYNCHING RECORD

To the Editor The News:

For us the records on lynching released by Tuskegee Institute hold just one bright spot during 1935 not one lynching occurred in Alabama. But as we lay this flattering unction to our soul, let us note that 19 of the 20 lynchings of the closing year took place in the South. We may feel pride as Alabamians, but as Southerners we must blush with shame.

The Tuskegee report lists the offenses for which the mob lynched its victims. Some were charged with murder and attack but others were guilty of only the most trivial misdemeanors. These included "sharecropper organizing, communistic activity, and slapping a woman." Here, to put it mildly, the punishment was not made to fit the crime. But the ultimate in brutish folly was reached when a person was lynched for "taking a prisoner from an officer of the law." In the moral arithmetic of the lyncher, two wrongs make a right.

Again it is evident that those well-meaning people who uphold lynch law with the stock excuse that "we must protect our Southern womanhood" are simply libeling a race. Other records show that rape or attempted rape was alleged in less than 25 per cent of the lynchings of the past 40 years. Once this fact is driven home, lynch law will lose its last apologists among men of good will.

2713 Hanover Circle. HERMAN PFAFF.

20 LYNCHINGS IN 1935, SAYS TUSKEGEE INST.

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala. Dec. 27—Twenty persons were lynched during 1935, according to an announcement made this week by the Department of Records and research of Tuskegee.

The Tuskegee report, which is one of several made annually, stated that the 1935 figure represents an increase of five over the 1934 total of 15.

Mississippi led all other states in the number of lynchings, with seven, and Louisiana was second with four. Eighteen of the 20 lynch victims were members of the Race.

The report, bearing the signature of Dr. Frederick D. Patterson, the president of Tuskegee, follows:

"I find, according to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933, and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

"There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

"Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activitity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a person from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

"The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2."

The above statement at Tuskegee Institute on the lynchings occurring during the year of 1935 does not include men and women lynched and murdered whose names have never been given to law enforcing agencies. It is a known fact that black persons are murdered for trivial offenses sometimes for refusing to obey share crop overseers and at other times men have been shot down for insisting upon being paid for their labor by their white employers.

Lynchings- 1935
Reports on, Sent Press.

Jan. -Dec.

5236

Millen, Ga., News
January 2, 1936

LYNCHING RECORD

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 taken from jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

WORCESTER, MASS.
TELEGRAM
DEC 27 1935

THIS YEAR'S LYNCHINGS

There Were Five More Than in 1934, Says Tuskegee Report

To the Editor of the Telegram:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the year 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of reords and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 5 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1 Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

F. D. PATTERSON,
President, Tuskegee Institute,
Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 21.

MARION (IND.) POST
Tuesday, December 31, 1935

Twenty Persons Lynched in 1935

According to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934—8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932.. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would-be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of fobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: Murder 7, attempted rape 3, rape 3, altercation with man 1, activity in share cropper organizing 1, attacking white man 1 taking prisoner from officer of the law 1, killed by mob in search of another person 1, slapping a woman 1, communistic activity 1.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee. 1; Texas. 2.

Orangeburg, S. C., Democrat
December 31, 1935

Data Compiled As to Lynchings

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; 8 less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 8 for 1932. 13 of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. 9 of these were in Northern and Western States and 44 in Southern States. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were: Murder, 7; attempted rape, 3; rape, 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in share cropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking prisoner from officer of the law, 1; killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1 communistic activity 1

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tenessee, 1; Texas, 2.

W... Com'rcial Appeal
January 1, 1936

MOB VIOLENCE IN '35 COSTS LIVES OF 20

Report on Deaths Is Issued by Negro College

Mob violence took a score of lives in 1935 in the United States, 18 negroes and two white men being put to death by lynchings in violation of their constitutional rights to trial by jury, the Tuskegee Institute, negro college at Tuskegee, Ala., reported yesterday through its research department.

The report showed that Tennessee bore the stigma of one lynching; Mississippi, 7; Louisiana, 4; North Carolina, 7; Texas, 2; Georgia, 2; Florida, 2, and California, 1. This compares with 15 lynchings over the country in 1934; 28 in 1933 and only eight in 1932.

The report also shows that in 53 instances officers outwitted mobs either by spiriting their prisoners away or by calling in reinforcements to guard the jail. In 11 other instances, the National Guard repelled mobsters, the institute declared.

Greensboro, N. C., News
December 30, 1935

LYNCHING IN 1935.

Editor of The Daily News:

I send you the following information concerning lynchings for the 1935. I find according to the records compiled in the department of records and research of the Tuskegee Institute that there were 20 persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails; six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings, nine of these were in northern and western states and 44 in southern states. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augmented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched, two were white and 18 were negro. The offenses charged were: murder, seven; attempted rape, three; rape, three; altercation with man, one; activity in share cropper organizing, one; attacking person, one; taking prisoner from officer of the law, one; killed by mob in search of another person, one; slapping a woman, one; communistic activity, one.

The states in which lynchings occurred and the number in each state are as follows: California, one; Florida, two; Georgia, two; Louisiana, four; Mississippi, seven; North Carolina, one; Tennessee, one; Texas, two.

F. D. PATTERSON.
Tuskegee Institute, Ala.

Citizen
January 2, 1936

NO LYNCHINGS IN S. C.

According to figures published by the Tuskegee Institute, twenty persons were lynched in this country last year. The number is tabulated as to the crimes committed, the manner in which the lynching was accomplished and the numbers occurring in each state. Two of these hapless victims were white, and among the crimes listed, "communistic activity" is given in one case. Most of the lynchings occurred in the Southern states, of course; Mississippi leading with seven. None are listed as being in South Carolina.

Fayetteville, Tenn., News
January 2, 1936

20 LYNCHED DURING 1935

According to the records compiled in the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute there were twenty persons lynched in 1935. This is five more than the number fifteen for 1934; eight less than the number twenty-eight for 1933; and twelve more than the number eight for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched were in the hands of the law; five were taken from jails, six from officers of the law outside of jails and two were shot to death in a jail.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2.

20 Lynchings Recorded In Year

TUSKEGEE, Ala.—Dr. Frederic D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute, has just released the record compiled by the Department of Records and Research of the institute, on the number of lynchings occuring during the year 36.

According to Dr. Patterson, twenty persons were lynched during the year; 5 more than the number 15 for 1934; eight less than the number 28 for 1933; and 12 more than the number 9 for 1932. Thirteen of the persons lynched accord ing to the Institute were in the hands of the law, 5 were taken from jails, 6 from officers of the law outside of jails and 2 were shot to death in a jail.

There were 53 instances in which officers of the law prevented lynchings. Nine of these were in Northern and Western states and 44 in Souther nstates. In 42 of the instances the prisoners were removed or the guards augumented or other precautions taken. In the 11 other instances, armed force was used to repel the would be lynchers. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 Negro, were thus saved from death at the hands of mobs.

Of the 20 persons lynched 2 were white and 18 were Negro. The offenses charged were; murder, 7; attempted rape 3; rape 3; altercation with man, 1; activity in sharecropper organizing, 1; attacking person, 1; taking a prisoner from officer of the law, 1, killed by mob in search of another person, 1; slapping a woman, 1; communistic activity, 1.

The states in which lynching occurred and the number in each state are as follows, California, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 2; Louisiana, 4; Mississippi, 7; North Carolina 1; Tennessee, 1: Texas, 2.

Cullman Ala. Democrat
January 2, 1936

LYNCHINGS INCREASE; NONE IN ALABAMA DURING YEAR

F. D. Patterson, president of the Tuskegee Institute has just released statistics showing that the number of lynchings increased to 20 in 1935 from 15, in 1934. Thirteen of those lynched were taken from officers, five from jails, and two were shot in jail. A total of 84 persons, 17 white and 67 negroes were saved from mobs by officers. Of the 20 lynchings, two were whites, and 18 negroes. Alabama had no lynchings. Mississippi topped the list with seven.

Aiken S.C. Review
Jan 3-1936

ANOTHER BLOT

The Tuskeegee Institute, of Alabama, announces that a total of 20 persons were lynched in the year 1935. The total is five greater than during the year 1934, but eight less than in 1933.

The report is a blot upon the states in which these manifestations of mob violence occurred and impresses forcibly upon the minds of law-abiding citizens that the spirit of the mobster is still at large.

In connection with the score of lynchings during the year, one wonders how many persons who participaated in these illegal killings have been punished by the courts.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. News
Saturday, December 28, 1935

More Lynchings

Lynchings in 1935 were 20, five more than in 1934. We take a backward step in the number of times that mobs refuse to wait for the law to take its course although not equaling the 1933 figure of 28.

The Tuskegee Institute, founded by Booker T Washington, furnishes the figures each year and gathers additional data concerning the states where the lynchings occurred as well as the offense charged. President F. D. Patterson outlines 10 offenses ranging from murder and rape to slapping a woman and for communistic activity. One lynching resulted from a "search of another person."

It is going to take time to get a steady return to the figure of eight in 1932. Meanwhile Mississippi Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, California, North Carolina and Tennessee, where the 1935 lynchings occurred need to do everything possible to increase respect for their courts and curb their lawless elements.

Spartanburg S. C. Journal
January 1, 1936

Lynching Record

The yearly statistics adduced as to lynchings in the United States confirm that this form of outrageous and indefensible mob rule is still in the saddle at least to some extent throughout the country, and that after all this thing called civilization is a thin veneer when such manifestations break out here and there throughout the course of a twelve-month period. There was a total of 20 lynchings, five more than for the year 1934. They were confined almost exclusively to the southeastern states, with Mississippi in the lead, in which state Judge Lynch demanded seven victims. South Carolina had none to blot her escutcheon throughout the past year. Let's keep the slate clean for 1936.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.
STATES
Jan 2, 1936
JAN 2 1936

Antilynching Bill

THE annual statistics by Tuskogee Institute relative to lynchings in the United States brings immediate announcement of a probable move in Congress for a committee to investigate the evil and the revival of the Wagner-Costigan bill to give some sort of federal jurisdiction over lynchings.

We suggested last session, when Southern senators succeeded by a filibuster of several days in forcing the supporters of the Wagner-Costigan bill to lay it aside, to take warning from the fact that Democratic members were joining in advocacy of the measures, that unless there was a decrease in these outbreaks of violence, enough senators might finally rally behind the bill to put it over.

The measure contemplated probably is an unconstitutional invasion of the rights of the states. Senator BORAH and other distinguished lawyers and senators have so expressed themselves and oppose the legislation. But in these days no one can see into the minds of the gentlemen of the supreme court, and that body might take the congressional view if the Wagner-Costigan bill is put over. Prudence dictates that the South should take no risks in the matter, for it might have serious consequences. The only certain way to block antilynching legislation is by suppression of the crime by the South itself.

* * *

THE record for 1935 is disappointing. Where we had hoped for a decline there was an increase. Twenty persons were victims of mob justice. This is more than the number 15 for 1934, eight less than the number 28 in 1933, and 12 more than the number eight for 1932.

The only encouragement in the figures is that in 53 instances lynchings were prevented by officers of the law, nine of these in Northern and Western states and 44 in the South Southern public sentiment is having some effect.

By contrast, a lamentable fact is that of the 20 lynchings, Mississippi (7) and Louisiana (4) contributed more than half the total. Texas had two lynchings, California one, Florida two, Georgia two, North Carolina one and Tennessee one. No less lamentable is the fact that a number of the lynchings were unprovoked, since the crimes alleged were under no construction of the law punishable by death.

DAYTON, O.
NEWS
DEC 30 1935

Dishonor Roll

The annual report of the Tuskegee Institute of Alabama shows that up to Dec. 26 the number of mob victims this year totaled 20. This is an increase of five over 1934. As usual, nearly all of the lynchings occurred in the south. Mississippi, with seven, was the worst offender. California had one, Texas two. Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina and Tennessee are the other states on the list.

A common excuse of mobs is that they do the work in which the law fails, yet 15 of the 1935 lynching victims were already in the hands of the law, five were taken from jails, six from officers outside jails, and two were shot to death in jail. The question of why the law in these cases could not hold its prisoners for the justice of the courts is no easier to answer in view of the fact that in 53 other instances officers of the law did prevent lynchings.

Of the lynchings prevented, 44 were in the south, the balance in northern and western states. Uusually a heavier guard or removal of the prisoner was sufficient; in only 11 cases was it necessary to use armed force in repelling the mob. But for the courage of these authorities the number of persons lynched in 1935 would have been 104 instead of 20.

The significance of the figures is inescapable. Lynchings occur most frequently in districts where ignorance and poverty are the rule. Eradicating these evils may be a long-time task, but the record reveals that the crime which springs from them can be checked now. It is up to the states which do not want a federal anti-lynching law to prove that such a law is not needed.

Lynchings-1935
Side Lights.

Alabama

30

5145

Armed Alabama Thugs Abduct and Slug Negro

This photograph of John Harvey, taken two weeks after he was beaten by armed vigilante thugs in Birmingham, shows the mass of welts and cuts still plainly visible on his body.

Kidnaped While on the Streets of Birmingham John Harvey, Young Communist, Was Taken to Woods and Beaten—Aid Later Refused Him

By Cyril Briggs

His head, face and body a mass of ugly welts and cuts, John Harvey, militant Alabama Negro youth and a member of the Young Communist League, arrived in New York City last Thursday evening after a narrow escape from lynching at the hands of a gang of Birmingham vigilantes who kidnaped and beat him on the eastern outskirts of the Southern city.

Although the attack on the Negro youth occurred a little over two weeks ago, clear evidence of the savage brutality to which he was subjected is still plainly visible in the numerous welts and scars on his body and face, and the bumps and gashes on his head, as shown in the accompanying photograph taken last Friday in the Daily Worker office.

Seized by Four Men

Harvey was in the company of five other Negro youths on the morning of Aug. 10, when he was attacked, he told the Daily Worker yesterday. "We were sitting on the side of the road just out of Birmingham when a 1935 Ford rolled up, and four white men got out, leaving another white man at the wheel. The four men came over to our group and looked us all over. Then they all four grabbed hold of me, and told me 'get in this car, nigger.'"

When Harvey protested, and asked what "crime" he had committed, one of the gang retorted "your crime is too grave to take you to the jail here. We are taking you to Montgomery to Kilby Prison." It is at Kilby Prison that Haywood Patterson and Clarence Norris, two of the Scottsboro boys, are confined.

All Carry Guns

Harvey was thrown, protesting, into the car by the four men, all of whom were armed with automatic pistols. As the car started off, his captors began questioning Harvey and taking notes of his answers, and finding his answers negative, started beating him up in the car. Among the questions put to him was whether he knew Robert Woods, Birmingham secretary of the International Labor Defense who has been twice kidnaped and beaten by vigilantes in the employ of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, and Beth Mitchell, an I. L. D. organizer. When Harvey refused to give information as to members of the I. L. D., the Y. C. L. and other working-class organizations, he was driven into the woods and savagely beaten.

This time all five men got out of the car, pulled off their coats, pulled Harvey out of the car by his heels and began punching him, kicking him in the face when he fell, continuing the attack until the young worker was rendered unconscious. On his revival, his tormentors again attacked him, knocking out a front tooth, beating him on his head and face, tearing off his clothes and finally launched a volley of kicks at him.

"They used me as if I were a football," the young worker told the Daily Worker, "kicking me from all sides at once. They told me I was a 'Red' and they would beat me till my body was all red."

Aid Is Refused

After making him stand up and knocking him down several times, they drew their guns and ordered him to run, forcing him deeper into the woods. Finally managing to escape his tormentors, Harvey rested in the woods for a time and then made his way to the nearest highway, where he tried to get a lift back to the city from a white driver. The latter jumped on him with a crank and threatened to kill him. Thinking that this man might return with others, Harvey made his way back to the woods where he lost consciousness. When he revived, he went to another highway where while waiting for a car to pass by, he again lost consciousness. This time he revived to find a white man and his wife bending over him. The couple refused to give him a lift, but returned after an hour with eight or ten white men. The Chief of Police of Homewood, a small city near Birmingham, was then notified and arrived on the scene, but not to hunt the kidnapers of the Negro youth but to grill Harvey on the "reason" why the thugs had found it "necessary" to kidnap and beat him: "had he been going with a white girl?" "was he fooling around with 'em Commue-nists?"

Police Take No Action

Harvey was finally taken to the Hillman Hospital in Birmingham where doctors stitched the worst cuts in his head, applied iodine to the other head cuts but refused to treat the cuts and welts on his body. He was kept in the hospital until the following Tuesday morning, when he was discharged, his body injuries still not treated.

Harvey did not recognize any of the men who kidnaped and beat him, but states he could identify them if given the opportunity. Police, however, made no attempt to arrest any of the gang. Two days after the attack on Harvey, Birmingham papers reported the finding of the body of another Negro worker "who fell off a cliff while walking along Shade Mountain."

The Birmingham Y. C. L., which provided medical care for Harvey after he was discharged from the hospital, sent him to New York City as soon as he was able to travel. Harvey, his militant spirit unbroken by the vicious attack on him, told the Daily Worker yesterday that he was ready to return to the South in the near future to continue his work, or accept any assignment given him by the Young Communist League.

Eufaula Negro Brought Here To Kilby Prison

9-22-35

In a serious condition from bullet wounds in the chest and left arm, Nathan Beauchamp, Eufaula negro, was under treatment last night in the hospital at Kilby Prison where he was taken early yesterday by Sheriff M. P. Williams, of Barbour County, who said he brought him to Kilby when he learned a plan was on foot to take the negro from a hospital in Eufaula and lynch him.

Beauchamp is charged with fatally shooting Will Britt, filling station operator, in a pistol battle that occurred Thursday night in Eufaula. The negro's condition was understood to be critical late last night and it was not known at that time whether he would survive until morning.

Lynchings-1935
Side Lights.

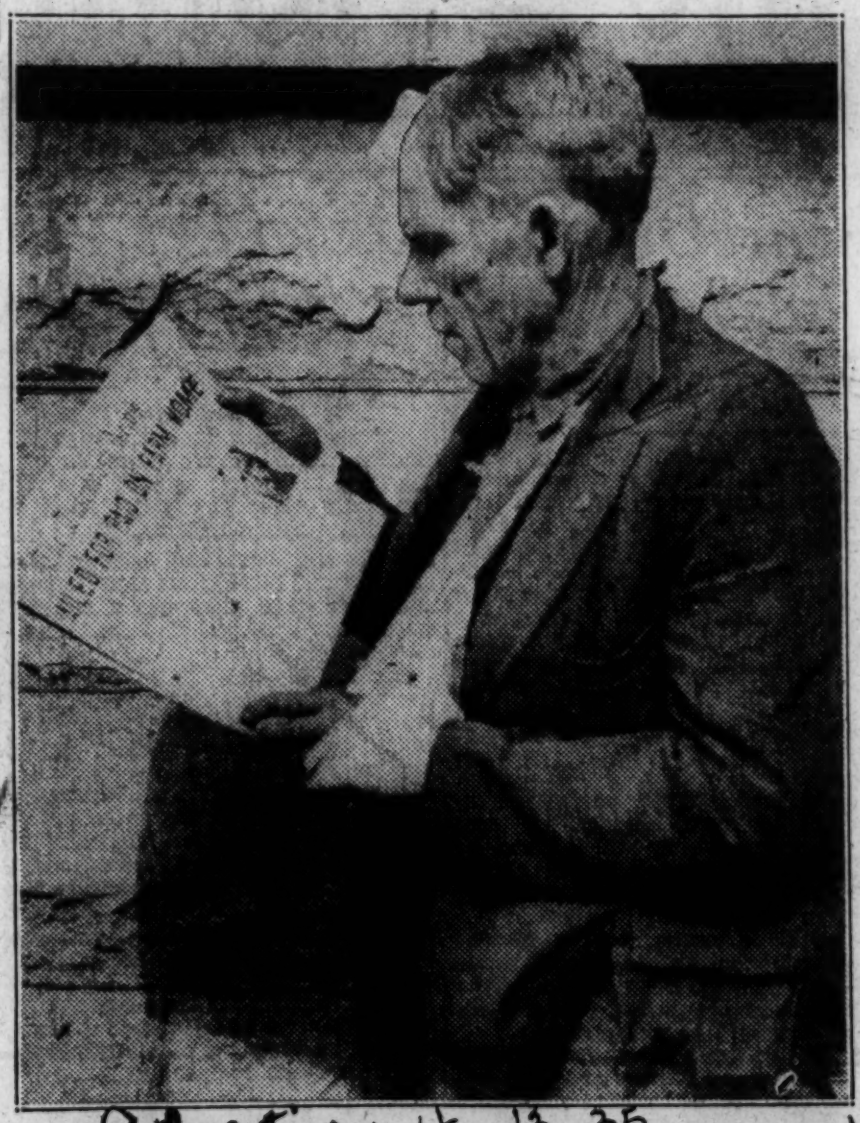
Alabama

5237

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
POST

FEB 7 1935

STORY OF LYNCHING WILL BE PROTESTED



Resolution Will Be Introduced To Ask Revision Of Report

A resolution requesting Tuskegee Institute to revise a report which classifies the fatal shooting of a Negro in East Birmingham last August as "Alabama's only lynching will be introduced at the weekly City Commission meeting next Tuesday, Public Safety Commissioner W. O. Downs announced today.

"By no stretch of the imagination can the death of this Negro be called a lynching," Commissioner Downs declared. "The Negro attempted to abduct three white girls who were on their way to a religious meeting. He also threatened them with a pistol. The posse of citizens which rescued the girls shot the Negro after he shot at its members."

Police Chief Luther Hollums voiced his approval of the resolution, explaining that the Negro was shot while resisting arrest.

Alabama Man Beaten By Mob

Attacked in his home by seven men whom he claimed were searching for a missing liquor distillery, Andrew Greathouse (above), 65 of south Tuscaloosa County, Ala., was beaten and his household furniture was smashed. The mob also beat his daughter-in-law. Seven persons accused of the assault were charged with assault with intent to murder. (Associated Press Photo)

Sheriff Places Negro in Hands Of Lynch Gang

Missing Since Release, Friends Fear Man Was Murdered

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 24.—John Foster, militant Negro worker, is missing since last Sunday when he was released from the county jail at the point of a gun and turned over to a police-landlord gang waiting for him in several automobiles.

It is feared here that Foster was either murdered outright or so badly injured that he is unable to make his way home.

Only two weeks ago Elaine Owen and Henry Johnson, two white workers arrested by sheriff deputies at a meeting of Dallas County Negro croppers, were forced out of Selma jail by Sheriff Reynolds, at the point of a gun, into the arms of a group of landlords who beat them up and dropped them on a road fifteen miles from here.

A Communist meeting in a private home in Bradford, a suburb of Birmingham, was broken up by police yesterday. Five of the workers present were taken for a ride and warned to leave "that business alone." No one was placed under arrest.

LYNCH LAW HINTED IN SLAYING OF CHIEF

Sacramentan Is Third Police Head To Be Slain in California Recently.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11.—(AP)—The third chief of police to be shot down in northern California in recent weeks was killed fatally today by bullets from a prowler's pistol.

The victim was Frank G. Fish, 47-year-old police chief of North Sacramento. Shot in an exchange of gunfire with two men, he bled to death within 30 minutes.

Lynching Rumored.

Muttered talk of lynch law was heard in the streets of the Sacramento suburb a few hours after a suspect was placed in jail. Later, two companions were arrested.

One man was arrested and booked as George O. Wallace, 27, of Oakland. He was picked up by Deputy Sheriff C. K. Harder, of Sacramento, who had been called to the neighborhood by citizens complaining of prowlers.

The other two made no attempt at resistance when the sheriff came across them at a railroad station. He said they readily admitted they were Alfred Paine and Huge F. Smith.

The deputy sheriff did not learn of the slaying of Chief Fish until he had brought his prisoner to headquarters here.

Other police department heads who have been slain in recent weeks in northern California were F. R. Daw, of Dunsmuir, and Police Chief O'Neil, of Santa Rosa.

Robbed Store.

The prisoner, Wallace, after lengthy questioning at headquarters said he had left two companions in the vicinity where the shooting took place. He said they had gone to rob a grocery store, but Sheriff Harder found him as he was waiting for his companions to return, he told police.

Records of the state bureau of criminal identification listed an Alfred A. Paine, alias Ralph Paine, 26, with five minor law violations against him in Alameda county, of which Oakland is the county seat.

Suspects Flee.

The county jail here in which Wallace is held is a large gray stone structure. No attempt was made to seize him, but there was talk in the streets that "they'd better put him in a strong place if they want to keep him."

A week ago C. L. Johnson, confessed slayer of Chief Daw, of Dunsmuir, was taken from the jail at Yreka and lynched.

No violence followed the killing of Chief O'Neil.

The barking of the dog of M. W. Millert, an elderly resident of the suburb, nearly led to the capture of the slayer of Chief Fish.

Almost Nabbed.

Awakened by the barking, Millert went to the backyard of his home in his nightclothes in time to see a man leap over a hedge with a box of groceries. The prowler slipped, and Millert, pretending to have a pistol in his hand, cried out for him to halt.

R. H. Alexander, a neighbor, joined Millert and as they were about to seize the prowler a shot was fired by a second man they could not see, the bullet scattering dirt at their feet.

At the command of the unseen gunman, Millert and Alexander backed away, and the two prowlers fled.

A block up the street a young woman, Huolene Towns, sat in an automobile and heard the shot. A moment later she saw the two men fleeing. A few minutes afterward she heard a series of shots from farther up the streets.

Police believe the second burst of gunfire marked the shooting of Chief Fish.

ORANGE, TEXAS, CHIEF SLAIN BY BANDITS

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 11.—(AP) Johnnie Godwin, 31, acting police chief of Orange, Texas, died today by a bullet wound suffered in a fight with two motor car theft suspects—just 75 days after the slaying of his predecessor, Ed J. O'Reilly.

Clyde Dawson, 21, and B. F. Thompson, 29, were arrested nd charged with murder. Police Officer George Lafitte said Dawson admitted firing the fatal shot last night.

Officer Lafitte captured Thompson at the scene of the shooting, which broke out with an attempt to arrest the pair on a charge of stealing the taxicab of Fred Thomas, of Beaumont.

Dawson was arrested in Lake Charles, La., after, officers said, he kidnaped Jessie Webb and Miss Rosa Lee Patterson, of Orange, in their motor car to flee.

Chief of Police O'Reilly, who hired Godwin only a few months ago, was shot to death May 29 in an altercation with the Rev. Edgar Eskridge, Baptist minister, now in jail at Houston awaiting trial for murder.

UNION BARES LYNCHING OF SHARECROPPER

Federal Government Is Asked To Intervene

By ALBERT JACKSON

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 30.—On July 21, Joe Spinner Johnson, Negro share cropper and a leader of the Share Croppers Union in Perry County, was called from his cotton patch by the landlord, B. J. Young, and the overseer, Locke Trainer, delivered into the hands of a vigilante gang, and murdered.

The lynching of Johnson is one of the many secret lynchings that are not reported in the white press. The majority of these lynchings never come to light. But now and then the foul deed is discovered. Investigators of the Share Croppers Union, after more than a month of search, have uncovered the facts. The union is now pushing with all its might to have the lynchers brought to trial and sentenced to the usual penalty for premeditated murder—death!

Johnson was bound hog fashion with a board behind his neck and his hands and feet tied in front of him, brutally beaten and carried to the Selma, Dallas County, jail.

About 11 o'clock that night the inmates heard a terrible commotion, beating and screaming which lasted until 12 o'clock.

Union Makes Demands

The next morning Joe Johnson was not in jail. A few days later his mutilated body was found in a field near a crossroads around Greensboro. The coroner did not hold an inquest, did not identify the body, did not turn it over to the family for burial. The landlords dumped it in a secret grave to keep the information from getting out. Friends of Joe Johnson, however, recognized the body.

The Share Croppers Union is making the following demands upon the state officials and upon President Roosevelt and Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings:

1. The immediate arrest and conviction of B. J. Young and the Selma jail officials for murder. Death penalty for the lynchers.
2. Intervention and prosecution by the federal government.
3. A jury on the case, composed of Race and white workers, share croppers and tenants.
4. The right to armed self-defense for the Race and white workers, sharecroppers, tenants and poor farmers, and ample protection for witnesses and jury during the trial.
5. Payment of $100 a month, by the State of Alabama, for the upkeep of Mrs. Johnson and her eight children, during the remainder of her life.

Uncover Secret Lynching of Ala. Sharecropper's Leader

By Albert Jackson

(Secretary, Share Croppers Union)

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—On July 11 Joe Spinner Johnson, Negro share cropper and a leader of the Share Croppers Union in Perry county, was called from his cotton patch by the landlord, B. J. Young, and the overseer, Locke Trainer, delivered into the hands of a vigilante gang, and murdered.

The lynching of Johnson is one of the many secret lynchings that are not reported in the white press. The majority of these lynchings never come to light. But now and then the foul deed is discovered. Investigators of the Share Croppers Union, after more than a month of search, have uncovered the facts. The union is now pushing with all its might to have the lynchers brought to trial and sentenced to the usual penalty for premeditated murder—death!

Victim Bound Like Hog

Johnson was bound hog-fashion with a board behind his neck and his hands and feet tied in front of him, brutally beaten and carried to the Selma, Dallas county, jail.

About 11 o'clock that night the inmates heard a terrible commotion, beating and screaming which lasted until 12 o'clock.

The next morning Joe Johnson was not in jail. A few days later his mutilated body was found in a field near a crossroads around Greensboro. The coroner did not hold an inquest, did not identify the body, did not turn it over to the family for burial. The landlords dumped it in a secret grave to keep the information from getting out. Friends of Joe Johnson, however, recognized the body.

Landlords Angry at Union

Mrs. Virginia Johnson, militant wife of Joe Johnson, had been sick in bed for five weks before this happened. Her eight children were left without anyone to take care of them. Locke Trainer, the overseer, told her she would have to move right away. He "consoled" her by saying the landlords were not sore at her, it was just her husband who had been "distributing literature" and "organizing that damn union against the white folks".

After the murder of her husband, Mrs. Johnson went to visit Governor Bibb Graves about the case. The Ku Kluxer was "busy" and she could not get by his secretary. Then she went to see Attorney-General Albert Carmichael, but he had a secretary too. This secretary told her to see Mayor Joseph James in Greensboro. Now it happened that James was one of the leaders of the lynch-gang that murdered Joe Johnson.

Lynchers Are Known

But the lynchers are known! There is no excuse. If the state officials would act they would have the evidence and the guilty parties! The landlord, B. J. Young; the overseer, Locke Trainer, and the officials of the Selma jail are among those who should be indicted for the lynching.

The Share Croppers Union is making the following demands upon the state officials and upon President Roosevelt and Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings:

1. The immediate arrest and conviction of B. J. Young and the Selma jail officials for murder. Death penalty for the lynchers.
2. Intervention and prosecution by the federal government.
3. A jury on the case, composed of Negro and white workers, share croppers and tenants.
4. The right to armed self-defense for the Negro and white workers, share-croppers, tenants and poor farmers, and ample protection for witnesses and jury during the trial.
5. Payment of $100 a month, by the State of Alabama, for the upkeep of Mrs. Johnson and her eight children, during the remainder of her life.

Lynchings-1935
Side Lights.

Arkansas.

5238

Posse Seeking Negroes Who Wounded Deputy

ASHDOWN, Ark., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A posse of officers with the aid of bloodhounds tonight was scouring Red River bottoms near here for two negroes in connection with the wounding of Willard Locke, Little River County deputy sheriff, who was shot this morning when he attempted to question a group of negroes concerning a burglary.

Officers said they suspected one of the negroes being hunted as the officer's assailant and the other of burglarizing a negro house.

The deputy was believed not seriously wounded. He was fired upon without warning as he approached several negroes after going to the area alone.

Negro Organizer Hides After Mob Fires Into Home

MARKED TREE, ARK., March 21.—(AP)—A negro organizer for the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union who said he escaped when a mob fired 32 bullets into his home in the negro section here late last night was in hiding tonight after conferences with union leaders.

C. T. Carpenter, attorney for the union, an organization of sharecroppers, said the negro, A. B. Brookins, escaped from his home silently, said, when the mob arrived there about midnight to "talk" to him, describing themselves as "members of the union."

Brookins, a preacher, about 60 years old, was active in enrolling negro sharecroppers in the union, and is regarded as the "chaplain" of the negro section.

Carpenter said the negro escaped unhurt, and that a blind negro woman housekeeper who was in the home when the firing started, crawled under a bed to escape the bullet fire. He said the group arrived at the home in two automobiles, and that after the firing, one car started toward Tyronza, the other toward Lepanto, Ark.

The negro preacher was described by union officials as "badly frightened" tonight and uncertain of his plans.

Fred H. Stafford, deputy prosecuting attorney, said he was making a thorough investigation, but that he had no information as to members of the mob.

The mob appeared at the home two or three times, Carpenter said he was told, and once asked where other organizers for the union could be located.

THOMAS CLAIMS MOB PREVENTED SPEAKING

Telegram to Roosevelt Tells of "Armed Planters"

A telegram saying that he was forcibly prevented by a mob of armed planters from addressing a meeting of agricultural workers, mostly negroes, from the steps of a church" Friday afternoon in Birdsong, Ark., was sent by Norman Thomas, national Socialist leader, to President Roosevelt last night.

Mr. Thomas told reporters here that he had been invited to speak at a negro Baptist Church and that a spokesman for a group of 30-odd planters assembled there said, "If you don't get out, we'll pull you out."

No Charges Preferred

As he was being "bustled out," Mr. Thomas said, he asked whether authorities were preferring any charges and was told that they were not.

"Then the man who pulled me off the platform came up to me and said he represented the sheriff and advised me to go because he could not give me and the innocent people who were there to hear the speakers protection."

In his telegram, Mr. Thomas said: "This is but one sample of the most arrogant tyranny I have seen in America."

He spoke at tenant farmer meetings yesterday at Gilmore, Marked Tree and Lepanto on behalf of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union.

Mr. Thomas left Memphis last night to fill speaking engagements in New England.

TENANT ORGANIZER FLEES

"Missing" Negro Of Marked Tree Runs When Bullets Fly

MARKED TREE, Ark., March 21 (AP)—A negro organized of the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union was reported "missing" today by C. T. Carpenter, union attorney, who said the negro's house was the target last night of gunfire by a mob. Carpenter said A. B. Brookins, negro preacher, escaped through the back door when the firing started, and that he apparently was still in hiding today.

Brookins, Carpenter said, has been active in organization of negro locals of the union.

Bandit Brothers Slain By Posse

EL PASO, ARK., May 6—(AP)—Two men identified by Sheriff T. C. Plant, of White County, as Clarence and Freddie Busche, 21 and 22-year-old Missouri bandit brothers accused of five murders in two states since January 1, were shot to death in a gun battle with an Arkansas posse tonight.

They were killed after they opened fire on two possemen, Hanford Russell and Mark Huckaby, who were trailing them through the woods after receiving a tip from a farm youth that they had been seen in woods two miles east of El Paso late this afternoon.

Russell shot a pistol from the hand of one of the Busche brothers after he had fired one shot. Russell and Huckaby were armed with automatic shotguns while a saw-off shotgun, a German Luger, and an automatic revolver were found beside the brothers.

Russell, a Vilonia farmer, had engaged in a previous gun battle with the desperadoes, his marksmanship forcing them to abandon their car near Vilonia last Saturday night after he and another man shot the windshield out of the machine.

Sheriff T. C. Plant, of White County, Sheriff J. I. Summers, of Faulkner County, and others of the 100 officers and citizens who had been tracking the bandits since Saturday reached the scene shortly after the battle.

The two were identified as the men who shot and killed two men and wounded two others at a rural dance near Grapevine, Ark., last Wednesday night when they became angered over a dance being concluded.

They also are wanted at Ironton, Mo., for the murder of an officer and Superintendent A. Gray Albright, of the Arkansas State Rangers, declared he believed they were the men who slew a night marshal at Malvern, Ark., in March and killed a youth in northern Arkansas several weeks ago.

Vigilantes Try To Kill Negro

MARKED TREE, Ark., March 26.—The home of Rev. A. B. Brooks, a Negro organizer of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, was riddled with bullets late last Wednesday night. The 65-year old Negro preacher escaped through the back door of his home in the Negro section when the firing started. Thirty-two bullet holes were found in the walls of the house.

Negro tenant farmers are reported to be hiding Rev. Brooks from the vengeance of the landowners and their armed bands.

W. H. Stultz, president of the union, found a note on his door step this morning warning him to leave Poinset County "within twenty-four hours."

Birmingham, Ala. News
March 21, 1935

ORGANIZER "MISSING"

Negro Union Workers Home Reported Fired On In Arkansas

MARKED TREE, Ark.—(AP)—A Negro organizer of the Southern Tenant Farmers Union was reported "missing" Thursday by C. T. Carpenter, union attorney, who said the Negro's house was fired upon Wednesday night by a mob.

Carpenter said A. B. Brookins, a negro preacher about 60 or 65 years of age, escaped through the back door of his home in the Negro section when the firing started Wednesday night, and that he apparently was still in hiding in another Negro home Thursday.

Brookins, Carpenter said, has been active in the organization of Negro locals of the sharecroppers' union.

Carpenter said he was told by members of the union who visited the scene Thursday morning that there were 32 bullet holes in the house.

Marked Tree has been the center of the controversy in East Arkansas between the sharecroppers union and planters. The union has charged wholesale illegal evictions of tenants.

Fred H. Stafford, deputy prosecuting attorney, said he would investigate the shooting.

Birmingham, Ala. News
March 22, 1935

NEGRO STILL MISSING

MARKED TREE, Ark. —(AP)— Information as to the whereabouts of A. B. Brookins, a Negro organizer for the Southern Tenant Farmers Union, was kept a secret by union officials Friday as Deputy Prosecuting Atty. Fred H. Stafford investigated a report that the Negro had fled from his home following a hail of gunfire. Brookins, a 60-year-old preacher, escaped unhurt after 32 bullets had been fired into his house Wednesday night by two "mobs." C. T. Carpenter, attorney for the tenant farmers' union, said. A Negro woman housekeeper obtained shelter beneath a bed, the attorney declared. Identities of the "mob" members have not been determined. Stafford said.

Lynchings - 1935
Sidelights

California

5108

Memphis, Tenn., Com'rcial Appeal
August 6, 1935

Food For Thought

For the third time in two years, California steps out with a lynching. The latest victim, one Clyde Johnson in jail on a charge of murdering a chief of police, was taken by a mob of indignant citizens and hanged to a pine tree. An investigation has been ordered, and officers are busy trying to identify members of the mob.

Regardless of the outcome of this investigation, the district attorney offers an explanation that casts an entirely new light on some of the difficulties of a well-ordered enforcement of the law. He makes no mention, for the moment, of the brutality of the crime. But it seems that some two years ago a state highway patrolman, a citizen of the county, was murdered. A jury convicted the murderer, he was sentenced to death. The conviction was resisted through a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the federal courts, and "has been slowly manipulated to the country's highest tribunal." Such a display of "apathy by the supreme court of the United States and other federal courts," concluded the district attorney, aroused the people of the community to an "uncontrollable unrest."

In other words, the citizens lost confidence in law enforcement. They knew that an outrageous and, as the district attorney suggests, a wanton murder had been committed. A jury, after hearing all the evidence, said so. The higher courts of California agreed. And yet, this murderer goes into the federal courts upon a technical point and ties up the law enforcement machinery of the entire state of California.

Without knowing any of the details of the case, and relying solely upon the district attorney's statement, it is a safe bet that the guilt or innocence of this murderer is not an issue in the federal courts. Similar appeals have hinged upon such absurd suggestions as the incompetency of a juror because he was delinquent in his taxes, or because trivial forms were not complied with in the prosecution of the case. Not only do such questions have nothing to do with the guilt or the innocence of a defendant but they irritate and confuse the average citizen who is impatient of the law's delay.

No one blames even a criminal for fighting to the last. The courts must see to it that all of the forms of law have been observed to enable him to prove his innocence. But after it appears that he is guilty, it would be well if technicalities and such could be brushed aside.

Lynchings-1935
Side Lights

Florida

5239

5239

SEBRING, FLA.
AMERICAN
JUL 25 1935

HOPELESS

A rather hopeless task the Broward County grand jury has on its hands in trying to bring to justice the mob who took the negro, Reuben Stacey, away from the officers as they were taking him away for safe-keeping, and lynched him. The utter hopelessness of the situation is seen in the statement of State's Attorney Louis Maire: "We intend to do all we can in the matter, and that's all we can do." Governor Sholtz has demanded immediate action. Circuit Judge George W. Tedder, in charging the investigating grand jury, reminded them that while a good citizen does not condone, but condemns the crime of the negro, still there was no excuse for the mob to take the law into their own hands. In spite of all this, it will be almost impossible to ascertain the identity of the lynchers.

TAMPA, FLA.
TRIBUNE
JUL 24 1935

13 WITNESSES SUMMONED IN LYNCHING PROBE

Grand Jury Hears Story Of Mob Slaying

FORT LAUDERDALE, July 23.—(Associated Press.) — Thirteen new subpoenas were issued after the grand jury today finished the opening sessions of its inquiry into the lynching last Friday of a negro accused of attacking a white woman with a knife.

The jurors, told that "lynching is an unlawful means to an end." Learned from the officers how a masked band of 100 men overpowered five deputies and hanged Reuben Stacey, 37, negro, to a roadside tree.

They also heard of the attack from Mrs. Marion Jones, 30, who identified Stacey as her assailant. Circuit Judge George W. Tedder warned the jurors to consider the second crime, excluding the attack.

Among those summoned for tomorrow were Indian Commissioner R. L. Glenn—the negro was snatched from the deputies a short distance from the Seminole reservation — and the tender of the bridge over which the lynching party passed.

"We intend to do all we can in the matter," said State Attorney Louis Maire, "and that's all we can do."

Suggests Federal Help

He expressed the belief the case as is now stands was a matter for investigators. He suggested G-men, rather than the deliberative grand jurors.

"If anyone can help us in any way in this investigation," he promised, "it will be appreciated. The investigation will last as long as necessary to bring forth the facts."

Judge Tedder, charging the jury said it had been called to place responsibility and to indict those it finds guilty.

"A good citizen does not condone, but condemns the first crime," he said of the attack on Mrs. Jones, mother of three small children. "However, there is no excuse for us to take the law into our own hands."

Emphasizing the blessings enjoyed under the constitution and the law, Judge Tedder said: "If we allow our laws to be broken, those blessings will vanish. No one can tell when mob violence begins where it will end, and it may lead to the breaking down of all laws."

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.
JOURNAL
JUL 25 1935

JURY PROBE OF LYNCHING FAILS

Find It Impossible to Return True Bill

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., July 25—(AP)—An investigation into the lynching of Reuben Stacey was continued today by State Attorney Louis F. Maire after a grand jury probe had collapsed.

After questioning 30 witnesses in a special two-day session, the grand jurors said they found it "impossible to return a true bill." Earlier a coroner's jury reported the lynchers were "unknown."

Sheriff Walter R. Clark said he also would continue his investigation.

Stacey was taken from six deputies sheriff carrying him to Miami for safekeeping by 100 masked men, who hanged him and riddled his body with bullets. He had been identified by Mrs. Marion Hill Jones as the negro who attacked her with a knife.

Sham Inquiry of Lynching Begun by Florida Governor

Daily Worker
New York, 7-29-35

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., July 21.—A fake investigation into the lynching last Friday of Rubin Stacey, 37-year-old Negro, has been set in motion by Governor Dave Sholtz.

In his order for the investigation Governor Sholtz duplicated the sham indignation he had expressed in connection with the brutal torture and lynching October 26, 1934, of Claude Neal. The "investigation" ordered by the Governor at that time petered out within a few weeks.

Stacey was handed over by six Broward County officers, headed by Deputy Sheriff Virgil Wright, to a masked band of lynchers last Friday. He had been arrested earlier that day on a charge of slashing a white woman with a pen-knife.

He was being taken to the Dade County Jail in Miami when he was handed over by the officers to the mob. Deputy Sheriff Virgil Wright offers the explanation that he and his men were "overpowered" by the mob.

With great zest, he described the lynching, saying that the hooded band took the Negro "up the road and hanged him. He was filled full of bullets, too. I guess they shot him both before and after they hanged him."

"As far as we can figure out, they just picked him up with the rope from the ground—didn't bother to push him from an automobile or anything," the deputy continued, while denying that he and his fellow officers were present at the lynching.

The deputy sheriff said that the officers were unable to identify any of the lynch gang.

MIAMI, FLA.
NEWS
JUL 20 1935

The Mob Returns

The first lynching in many years is reported in southeastern Florida. The victim—a negro, as usual—had been identified by a white woman and her three children as the man who attacked her with a knife. The sheriff and his deputies appear to have attempted to guard their prisoner. But the mob spirit was not to be denied.

There are just two excuses commonly offered in defense of lynching. One is the supposition that it is the only effective way of keeping the negro "in his place" and the other is that justice, as administered by the courts, is too uncertain. The two excuses are really one. If the courts are effective, there is no need for mob intervention.

The entire record of the courts, in regard to negro criminals in the South, betrays no lack of severity. It has been said that a southern jury is inclined to regard a negro as guilty until proved innocent; if there has been any lack of justice, it has not been through leniency. The weakness of the courts is found in dealing with white criminals who are able to employ the shrewdest and most unscrupulous lawyers—but these offenders who so often are freed to prey again on society are rarely, if ever, the victims of the lynching mob.

In the final analysis, the robes of chivalry and justice with which the mobsman seeks to clothe himself cannot conceal the ugly spirit of brute vengeance, the savage lust for the kill. The very fact that lynching usually makes its victim a negro, toward whom the courts themselves are noted for severity, strips away the only claim to virtue.

Lynchings - 1935
Side Lights.

Florida.

5241

Umatilla, Fla., Tribune
May 17, 1935

According to the Winter Park Herald the citizens, business men and Mayor of that attractive city are highly indignant over a front page sensational story appearing in the Orlando Sentinel of May fourth. The exagerated account of the arrest of a negro, suspected of petty larceny, has brought forth strong protests contradicting the statement that there was a "near-lynching."

Grand Jury Plans Hunt For Lynchers

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA., July 20 —(AP)—A two-way investigation to unmask the 100 men—a coroner's jury declared them "unknown"—who lynched a negro attacker, was launched here today in response to Gov. Sholtz's command.

Reuben Stacey, 37, negro laborer, died "by strangulation or bullet wounds," the jury found, and Sheriff W. R. Clark and his deputies "used diligent care and precaution for the safety of the deceased."

Directed to make "an immediate and searching" investigation of the negro's hanging late yesterday, State Atty. Louis F. Maire and Sheriff Clark prepared for a special session of the Broward Grand Jury, called for Tuesday.

Exhibiting knife scarred hands, Mrs. Marion Hill Jones, 30, mother of three small children and member of a pioneer family, told the jury of the attack upon her last Tuesday.

"Do you positively identify Reuben Stacey as the man?" she was asked.

"There is no doubt in my mind that he is the man who attacked me," replied the housewife, unaware until this morning of the hanging of the negro to a roadside tree a quarter mile from her home

Alleged Victims Of Assault Held

Two young women of Barton, Fla., who early yesterday had two Montgomery men arrested on charges of criminal assault, last night had been placed in jail also and police ventured the opinion that "nothing would come of the charges."

Yesterday morning the women appeared at police headquarters and told Lieut. J. L. Phenix that the men had given them a ride into Montgomery from the Birmingham Highway, had taken them to a house on Pollard Street, and criminally assaulted them.

The men, who gave their names as Leon Perdue, 27, and Wilbur Crittendon, 26, were arrested and taken to jail. Both denied the charges.

Later police determined to question the women and they, likewise, were arrested and jailed. There, according to Police Capt. Ralph King, they admitted that if the men had agreed to pay them $15 they would withdraw the charges.

The women gave their names as Maggie and Ruby Nell Brown, aged 21 and 19 years, respectively, and said they were hitch-hiking to Barton, Fla., from Centerville, Ala.

Georgia Negroes Held in Shooting

Florida Man Allegedly Injured by Gang Escapes

MAYO, Fla., July 15 (AP)—Four Negroes who escaped from a Georgia chain gang early last week, were brought here from Green Cove Springs today to face charges of shooting Charlie Strickland, a filling station operator.

They were arrested at Green Cove Springs late Friday. Sheriff Thomas J. Pearson of Mayo said the four had admitted shooting Strickland when he attempted to make them pay for gasoline they obtained from him Thursday.

Strickland is in a Gainesville hospital and was reported in a serious condition from the gunshot wounds. If he recovers, Sheriff Pearson said, the Negroes will be charged with assault with intent to murder and with armed robbery, the latter a crime punishable with life imprisonment in this state.

Lynchings-1935
Sidelights

Georgia

5240

HOMER CROWD HUNTS NEGRO AFTER ATTACK

HOMER, Ga., Aug. 13.—Several hundred persons today were seeking an unidentified negro who reportedly attacked a white woman living near here yesterday.

Reports during the early afternoon said the negro had not been found.

According to reports the negro applied to the woman at her home for food and when she handed him a plate he attacked her. Her husband was away from home at the time.

Two Negroes Jailed For Investigation Face Lynch Threat

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Sept. 23.—Lynch incitement in the local press is endangering the lives of two Negro workers held in jail here for "investigation" in connection with the shooting of Hulan Clack, a 19-year old white youth.

In the face of the total absence of any evidence connecting them with the shooting, the two workers are being held by the police on vague grounds that they "were reportedly seen in the vicinity of the Clack home." Protests should be sent immediately to Gov. Eugene Talmadge, Atlanta, Ga.

NEGRO IS HUNTED IN YOUTH'S DEATH

Colquitt Boy Killed and Girl Companion Wounded by Shotgun

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 16.—(AP)—A posse searched the southern section of Colquitt county today for a negro wanted in the fatal shooting of a young man here last night and the wounding of his woman companion.

Police Chief L. L. Smith, who questioned the girl in the hospital, said she told him she and Otis Howell Gay, 23, were seated on an embankment when a negro approached, lifted a shotgun to his shoulder and without saying anything fired one shot.

Gay was killed and the birdshot from the charge struck the young woman in the right shoulder and face.

Chief Smith said officers had found where the negro borrowed a gun from a farmer, saying he was going hunting, and that the gun was returned about half an hour after the shooting.

The negro then went to his house, gathered up his clothes and fled, Smith said he was told.

Two other couples who had accompanied Gay and his companion to the spot on the Hamilton road, were sitting in an automobile approximately 100 yards up the road when the shooting occurred. They had no inkling, they said, of what was taking place until they heard a shot and saw the negro run by them and on down the road.

GEORGIA NEGRO IS VICTIM OF POSSE

Slain By Group Seeking Another Negro In White Man's Death

MOULTRIE, GA., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A negro farmer was dead today, the victim of a posse which was seeking another negro for the slaying of a white man.

The Moultrie Observer said the negro killed in a rural section of the county last night was listed as "Bo" Brinson and that his family reported he had been beaten severely by an enraged mob.

The search continued for the negro wanted in the slaying of a white man, Otis Gay, Tuesday night.

Sheriff T. V. Beard said he was notified of the shooting of the negro today. He planned an investigation.

Brinson was shot several times in the head and chest. Reports here were that he tried to take a gun from a member of the posse while the men were searching his home.

The sheriff said armed groups roamed over the area bordering Thomas County yesterday and last night in quest of the slayer.

He said the wounded negro was being brought to the hospital here before he knew of the accident. Brinson died shortly after reaching the hospital.

Beard yesterday and last night toured areas as far south as Tallahassee, Fla., with officers of neighboring counties. He said no trace had been found of the actual slayer since he reportedly fled from his house not far from the scene of the slaying of the white man.

Gay was shot to death in the vicinity of the scene of the slaying of the negro. A young woman companion of Gay's was quoted by Police Chief L. L. Smith as saying a negro approached her and Gay as they sat on an embankment, raised a shotgun and, without saying a word, fired one shot. Gay fell dead and the young woman was struck in the face and shoulder by birdshot.

NEGRO IS VICTIM OF ARMED POSSE

White Men Kill Colquitt Farmer While Seeking Slayer of Otis Gay

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 17 (AP)—A Negro farmer was dead today, the victim of a posse which was seeking another Negro for the slaying of a white man.

The Moultrie Observer said the Negro killed in a rural section of the county last night was listed as "Bo" Brinson and that his family reported he had been beaten severely by an enraged mob.

The search continued for the Negro wanted in the slaying of a white man, Otis Gay, Tuesday night.

Sheriff T. V. Beard said he was notified of the shooting of the Negro today. He planned an investigation.

Brinson was shot several times in the head and chest. Reports here were the Moultrie Observer said, we that he tried to take a gun fr a member of the posse while men were searching his home.

Armed Groups Roam

The sheriff said armed gro roamed over the area border Thomas County yesterday and last night in quest of the slayer.

He said the wounded Negro was being brought to the hospital here before he knew of the incident. Brinson died shortly after reaching the hospital.

Beard toured areas as far south as Tallahassee, Fla., with officers of neighboring counties. He said no trace had been found of the actual slayer since he reportedly fled from his house not far from the scene of the slaying of the white man.

Gay was shot to death in the vicinity of the scene of the slaying of the Negro. A young woman companion of Gay's was quoted by police Chief L. L. Smith as saying a Negro approached her and Gay as they sat on an embankment, raised a shotgun and, without saying a word, fired one shot. Gay fell dead and the young woman was struck in the face and shoulder by birdshot

NEGRO IS JAILED IN DUBLIN ATTACK

Alleged Assailant of Laurens Sheriff Is Captured by Posse Early Today

DUBLIN, Ga., Oct. 29. (AP) — Charged with shooting and wounding Sheriff W. H. Adams of Laurens county, a Negro was arrested in a woods near here early today and placed in the county jail.

The hospital said the sheriff was out of danger, and received only a flesh wound.

Mrs. Adams, the sheriff's wife, said her husband had had a fairly comfortable night.

Tracked by Dogs

She said bloodhounds, brought here from Wrightsville, were used to track down the Negro.

The accused man was named by Deputy Sheriff B. F. Branch as Ernest Clarke, who had lived in the vicinity of Dublin about a year.

Branch said Sheriff Adams was shot while trying to arrest Clarke on a charge of shooting two Negro women at a church meeting Sunday night.

Adams went with Branch and two other deputies to a Negro house where Clarke had left his automobile. While they were deployed about the house, Branch said, the Negro came up in the semi-darkness and opened fire with a pistol as Sheriff Adams flashed a light on him.

Bloodhounds and Posse Let Loose

DUBLIN, Ga., Nov. 4.—Bloodhounds and an armed posse were let loose on Earnest Clark, a Negro worker of this city, and his capture was effected by deputized thugs and a crazed mob. Clark, now held in the county jail, was charged with shooting two Negro women. Last night his home was surrounded and broken into by the posse. Clark tried to defend himself by firing on the armed mob Sheriff B. F. Branch said to have received a slight flesh wound in the hip.

This sequence of incidents in a cruel reign of terror against Negro people, together with slashing of thousands of workers, both Negro and white, from relief rolls, the cutting of wages of all factory workers, is a drive to crush the spirit of the Georgia workers and grind them in the dust.

Lynch Law Terror Rages

MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 4.—"Somewhere in Georgia" another Negro worker, John Sloan, was lynched today on the charge of slaying Otis Gay, a white. The reign of terror against the Negro people has been going on since Oct. 15, when Bo Brinson, a Georgia Negro farmer, was lynched and his body riddled by bullets because he attempted to defend himself against armed lynch mobs who were searching for "an unidentified Negro" who was charged with the slaying of Gay.

John Sloan was arrested in Havana, Fla., by Sheriff T. V. Beard of Moultrie, and, without any extradition papers or any pretense of justice, Sloan was brought over into Georgia and is held in an unknown Georgia jail. As yet no official charges have been lodged against Sloan.

This terror is launched at a time when over 5,000 Georgia relief workers are being cut off from F. E. R. A. projects and only a few are being transferred to W. P. A. work. Starvation and lowest misery are rampant. This is a studied maneuver of the Georgia lynch bosses to divide the unity of white and black workers and prevent militant action against wretched conditions.

Lynchings—1935
Side Lights.

Georgia.

5242

HIS WORK SUPERIOR, DENTIST CHASED

Courier

White Dentist Has Dr. Staley Chased by Hoodlums After Doing Better Dental Job.

4-13-35

By ANDREW J. WHITE
(Special to The Courier)

CAMELIA, Ga., April 11—There occurred just another one of Dixie's performances last Wednesday, when a group of white hoodlums burned the home, office and car of Dr. A. L. Staley and chased him out of town. The trouble started when Dr. Staley performed a better piece of work than a local white dentist of the same city. The white dentist extracted a tooth in a man's mouth and broke his jaw, which set in to disfigure his face. The patient then came to Dr. Staley for treatment. The man's face was restored to its orig[illegible]

News spread of what Dr. Staley had accomplished and the white dentist had him chased out of town.

At the time Dr. Staley's home was burned he was visiting a friend nearby, when suddenly a bright light flashed like gasoline exploding. He and his friends rushed to the door and found that his property was being destroyed. He immediately disguised himself and went in the streets in an attempt to reach his car. On reaching the scene he found his car was being burned along with the rest of his property.

While searching he found a note that read: "Do not let sun-up catch you here." Signed KKK.

The fire department refused to put the fire out, as it was understood that this would take place. After reading the note, Dr. Staley left immediately through the back way and then through the woods until he reached the railroad. There he caught a freight train to Flemington, Ala., and went to Pensacola, Fla.

Dr. Staley is the son of Prof. A. S. Staley, who was principal of the Americus, Ga., high school for forty years. His son is a freshman at Morehouse College.

NEGRO IS CHARGED WITH ENTERING HOME

Courier 10-18-35

JEFFERSON, Ga., Aug. 17.—A negro named Williams, [illegible] years old, was arrested this morning and charged with having entered a room in the home of E. P. Howington, two miles from Commerce, early today. Screams of Howington's daughter frightened the negro who fled. Sheriff H. M. Culberson later apprehended Williams, who was shot in the leg during the capture.

Williams was later in the day carried to Atlanta and placed in the jail there.

NEGRO MAN KILLED BY GEORGIA POSSE

Courier Atlanta Ga.

MOULTRIE, Ga., Oct. 17.—(AP)—A negro farmer was dead today the victim of a posse which was seeking another negro for the slaying of a white man.

The Moultrie Observer said the negro killed in a rural section of the county last night was listed as "Bo" Brinson and that his family reported he had been beaten severly by an enraged mob.

The search continued for the negro wanted in the slaying of a white man, Otis Gay, Tuesday night.

Gay was shot to death in the vicinity of the scene of the slaying of the negro. A young woman companion of Gay's was quoted by Police Chief L. L. Smith as saying a negro approached her and Gay as they sat on an embankment, raised a shotgun and, without saying a word, fired one shot. Gay fell dead and the young woman was struck in the face and shoulder by bird shot.

Lynchings-1935

Illinois.

5243

Side Lights.

OTTAWA, ILL.
REPUBLICAN TIMES

APR 2 1935

Fear of Lynching Reason Suspect Attempted Suicide

Fear that Grundy county farmers would take him from jail and lynch him was given by Louis Lutz as the reason why he attempted suicide in the county jail at Morris Friday morning. He is recovering in the Morris hospital. He had severed his windpipe and larynx. He was taken to Morris from Chicago and is held on suspicion of slaying Policeman Clarence Roseland on February 3.

Lynchings - 1935
side Lights

Louisianna

5244

New York Herald-Tribune
JUL 5 1935

Negro Thrashed by Mob

Freed of Assault Charge After Reported Lynching

VILLE PLATTE, La., July 4 (AP).—Adam Avie, Negro, was free today of a charge of assault on a white woman after he had been severely thrashed by a mob which spirited him from jail late Tuesday. He had first been reported lynched.

Sheriff Charles Picou cleared the mystery of the Negro's whereabouts when he announced that Avie was alive in Ville Platte and free of the assault charge. The sheriff said the mob, reported to have numbered about twelve when it smashed the lock of the jail, beat Avie severely. No participants have been arrested.

New York World Telegram
JUL 5

NEGRO BEATEN, ACQUITTED

Freed of Assault Charge After Being Thrashed by Louisiana Bob.

By the Associated Press.

VILLE PLATTE, La., July 5.—Adam Avie, Negro, was free today of a charge of assault on a white woman after he had been severely thrashed by a mob which spirited him from jail late Tuesday. He had first been reported lynched.

Sheriff Charles Picou announced that Avie was alive in Ville Platte and free of the assault charge.

The Sheriff said the mob, reported to have numbered about twelve persons when it smashed the lock of the jail, beat Avie severely. No participants have been arrested.

'Lynched' Negro Is Found, Freed

Montgomery Ala.
Montgomery

VILLE PLATTE, LA., July 4.—(AP)—Adam Avie, negro, was free today of a charge of assault on a white woman after he had been severely thrashed by a mob which spirited him away from the local jail late Tuesday. He had first been reported lynched.

Sheriff Charles Picou lifted the cloud of mystery as to the negro's whereabouts when he announced that Avie was alive, present in Ville Platte, and free of the assault charge.

The sheriff said the mob, reported to have numbered about 12 persons when it smashed the lock of the jail, beat Avie but that the negro was not fatally hurt.

No participants of the mob have been arrested.

Feeling ran high in Ville Platte after the white woman reported she had been attacked, though citizens and officials were reticent over the affair until Sheriff Picou announced Avie's release today.

Winston Salem, N. C
SENTINEL
JUL 6 1935

Is the Mob Easing Up?

In Louisiana a few days ago white mobsters caught a Negro who was accused of criminally attacking a white woman. They took him to a secluded spot, lashed him severely and turned him loose.

Harsh as this treatment may seem, it appears to be quite an improvement over the art of swinging Negroes on a rope from a limb until they are dead, and the business of roasting black-skinned persons at the stake. No doubt is that many Negroes have hung from the hemp in the bayou country for lesser offenses than that with which the latest mob victim was charged.

If mobs must do something to Negroes who attack white women, this lash treatment which stops short of the actual taking of human life might prove more effective than murder. A living victim who has felt the keen edge of the "scorpion" that carded his naked back carries vivid memory of those lightning-stabs of pain with him to his grave. His description of the event to other members of his race could be depended upon to make a deep impression.

But mob action is mob action, whatever its result. It has no place in civilized society while the institutions of free government stand erect. In the terror, chaos and confusion of the reconstruction period the structure of government in the South was broken down and disorganized. For a brief time it seemed imperative that the White South resort to mob action to restore order and re-establish the institutions of a law-abiding society. That era has long since passed, and today there is no excuse for any kind of mob action at any time, under any circumstances at any place, even when such action is not harsh and its result is not written in terms of the death of a human being.

Threaten All Negro People In Village

5-26-35

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 25.—The Ville Platte Gazette openly threatened today to have every Negro in the village lynched if the International Labor Defense presses its campaign for the arrest and prosecution of seven leaders of a mob which carried out the near-lynching of Adam Joseph, Negro worker, early in July.

Ridiculing the results of the investigation by the I.L.D., the paper stated: "Any legal procedure will cause the speedy removal of the hide from all the rest of the blacks around here."

The population of Ville Platte is 1,772, with 370 Negroes.

Otley Deville, whose family runs a lumber yard in the village, was among the seven men identified by Joseph as leaders of the mob. Several days ago the I.L.D. submitted the names of the seven lynch-leaders to District Attorney Gaston Porterie, with a demand for their immediate indictment.

Herman Midlo, New Orleans attorney, is entering suit for $10,00 against each of the seven members of the lynch gang whom Joseph was able to recognize. The International Labor Defense of New Orleans has presented the names of the seven to District Attorney Gaston Porterie, with a demand for their immediate indictment.

Lynchers

The seven are Ferdinand Deville, merchant and the recognized ring-leader of the lynchers; Otley Deville, Johnnie LeFleur, Loren Scileau, Jack Peete, Chester LeFluer and Ferdinand Vidrins.

The near-lynching of Joseph reulted from the pique felt by Otley Deville, white merchant, when Joseph "talked back" to him. This fact, and details of the events as seen by eye-witnesses, were brought to light last week when Ann Miller, secretary of the New Orleans,I.L.D., came to Ville Platte and interviewed the principals in the affair.

Lynch Elements Terrorize Negroes

Knoxville, Tenn.
Knoxville News Sent

VILLE PLATTE, La.,—(CNA)—Two days after a threat in the Ville Platte Gazette that any attempt to prosecute the members of the lynch-gang that kidnapped and beat Adam Joseph, local farm hand, on July 2nd, would result reprisals against the Negro population, E. J. Brown, a friend of Joseph , was arrested here on a charge of "attempting to rape a white woman" three years ago.

Frame-up 8-29-35

The "rape" which Brown is charged with committing is supposed to have occurred on July 23, 1932. This cynical charge is in line with the editorial in the Gazette, which stated: "Any legal procedure (against the would-be lynchers of Joseph) will cause the speedy removal of hide from the rest of the blacks around here."

Lynchings – 1935
Side Lights.

Louisiana

5245

Abducted and Slugged, Negro Is Left to Die

Daily Worker
New York.

Kidnaping and Near-Lynching of Adam Joseph Shows How 'Rape' Stories Are Fabricated—Victim to Sue 7 Members of Mob

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 24.—A white merchant's pique at hearing "back-talk" from a Negro was the reason behind the frame-up, arrest, beating and near-lynching early in July of Adam Joseph, Negro worker of Ville Platte, La. This fact and details of the events as seen by eye-witnesses, came to light last week when Ann Miller, secretary of the New Orleans International Labor Defense, went to Ville Platte and interviewed the principals in the affair.

Joseph is now receiving medical treatment at the New Orleans Charity Hospital. Suit for $10,000 against each of seven members of the lynching party, whom Joseph was able to recognize, is being filed by Herman Midlo, attorney. The I. L. D. has submitted to District Attorney Gaston Porterie the names of the seven, with a demand for their immediate indictment.

Had Argument with White Man

Mrs. P. M. Reed, on whose plantation Joseph had been handy man for twelve years, and in whose employ he was at the time of the attempted lynching, told Miss Miller the following story:

During the last part of June, Mrs. Reed sent Joseph for a load of wood to the yard of Otley Deville, whose family runs a lumber yard. Deville agreed to a week's credit on the wood. The following day, however, Deville appeared at her home saying he wanted the money at once, or he would take his wood back. Mrs. Reed says that she though little of the incident, as Deville is generally considered by the entire community to be mentally abnormal. Looking out of the window a few minutes later, she saw Deville loading the wood to haul it away.

Joseph, who was in the yard, advised Deville not to remove the wood, as Mrs. Reed had been a good customer. Deville told Joseph to shut up, saying: "It's not for a nigger to tell me anything."

Attack Rumors Spread

When Otley Deville went home that day, he found there Loren Soileau, who has a reputation about town as a ne'er-do-well. Deville related the incident at Mrs. Reed's and began to curse Joseph. Soileau is reported to have said: "A guy like that ought to be lynched." Soileau, Deville and his father Ferdinand are among the seven named as members of the lynch-gang of a few days later, Ferdinand Deville being recognized as the ring-leader.

Rumors began to be circulated about town that Joseph had not only "talked back" to Otley Deville, but had also insulted his wife. Joseph was placed in jail.

Mrs. Reed herself went to the jail and tried to get Joseph released, but failed. She then went to call on Otley Deville's wife and questioned her. Mrs. Deville refused to answer questions, became very confused, and began to cry, not stopping until Mrs. Reed left.

That night a mob broke into the jail, carried Joseph six or eight miles out of town in an auto, threw him on the ground face down and shot him in the lower part of the back. Ferdinand Deville insisted that Joseph be strung up. Another man said: "No, let's just beat him." After much controversy, it was decided that each man present would give Joseph ten lashes.

Left Dying on Road

The mob left Joseph on the road, unconscious, and still bound. The next morning the Negro chauffeur of Dr. Attaway found him and carried him to his employer's clinic. Friends of Joseph, learning that he was still alive, went to him under cover of darkness with $3.50 for train fare to New Orleans and the address of the New Orleans International Labor Defense.

Several local inhabitants of Ville Platte told Miss Miller that Ferdinand Deville had personally invited them to join the lynch-party, but that they had refused.

Lynchings—1935

Maryland.

5246

5246

5246

Side Lights.

HAGERSTOWN, MD.
MAIL
DEC 3 1935

Believes Lynching Story, Negro Tries To Commit Suicide

ELKTON, Md., Dec. 2 (AP).—Some of his fellow prisoners at the county jail jestingly told George Hendrix, negro, held for larceny, he was going to be lynched. Hendrix did not know they were joking and, badly frightened, he obtained a bottle of disinfectant and drank it in a suicide attempt. He is recovering at a hospital.

Lynchings - 1935
Side Lights.

Massachusetts.

5247

Boy Burned at Stake Buried by Playmates

BROCKTON, Mass., March 13.—(AP)—The "Indians" who burned nine-year-old Edward Smith "at the stake" last Saturday, carried him to his grave today. The youngsters, whose ages ranged from eight to 11, wept openly as they performed this final duty to their erstwhile "captive cowboy."

Overcoming their first bitterness at the tragic termination of the fatal game, during which Eddie and a companion were lashed to a tree around which grass and leaves had been heaped and then set on fire, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Smith, the boy's parents, finally succumbed to the tearful entreaties of the grief-stricken "Indians" and granted them their request that they serve as pall-bearers.

Ten other former classmates of the boy served as honorary pallbearers.

Lynchings - 1935

Side Lights

Mississippi.

5248

MISSISSIPPI NEGRO DYING AS RESULT OF SEVERE BEATING BY BLOODY KEMPER COUNTY MOB

Bloody Kemper
3-23-35

MOTHER, WIFE AND CHILDREN DRIVEN AWAY IN EFFORT TO GAIN LAST LOOK

Carried Across State Line In Ruse of Giving Medical Attention

By DAVID JONES

Poor Yank Ellington is dying in the county jail at Jackson, Mississippi. Dying from the effects of severe injuries inflicted upon him by the mob in Bloody Kemper and from the lack of proper medical treatment in the early part of his sufferings.

And the authorities of Bloody Kemper have notified those of Hinds county that they are not willing to undertake the expense incident to giving Yank the proper hospitalization to invite a recovery in his case

It may be that at the time this is being read that Yank will be dead —which will be just what the mob wishes to happen to him, since they are greatly angered at being deprived of the opportunity to have made the 8th day of February a Roman Holiday in Bloody Kemper.

Poor Yank was the chief actor in the grim tragedy which occurred in Bloody Kemper just a year ago.

Yank played the leading role and performed to a crowded house the night of his first appearance in the historic pages upon which have been inscribed the great number of brutal murders that have been committed in that county for more than fifty years.

His was a sad role, not only because he was innocent, but also because he was absolutely defenseless.

He is a martyr to man's inhumanity to man in a county where the Spirit of Justice has never alighted since the day of its origin.

He has spent his life up to manhood and fatherhood among a class of white people, whose sole and greatest enjoyment has been the infliction of every conceivable manner of indignity, injustice and torture upon a poor and defenseless people, that could be invented in the minds of fiends, and that with his mother were driven away from

Yank has never seen his mother nor his wife and two little babies since the day when he was carried off by the mob. Both his wife and his mother were driven away from the jail in Meridian where they came for what was then expected to be their last look at him while alive with the assertion that it would be time enough to see him after he was hanged in Bloody Kemper.

Yank Ellington was seized by the mob, alleged to have been led by the sheriff of Bloody Kemper on the night of the discovery of the murder of Raymond Stewart, at the house of a colored woman named Nannie, who had been the cook of Stewart for 20 years, and with whom he and his wife and little babies were living.

The mob came for Nannie to go with them to Stewart's house about a mile off to show them where Stewart kept his "things" in the house and Yank was taken along on the general principles of making somebody the scapegoat.

Yank was trussed up with his hands tied behind his neck, and beaten by the mob; then hanged by the neck to a tree, after which he was cut down and allowed to fall on the ground where he lay unconscious for hours, in the attempt to force him to say that he did the killing.

Nannie was also hanged until the rope seared her neck and beaten severely with the grass rope by the mob to make her acknowledge that she had some part in the murder.

Both protested their innocence and lack of any knowledge of the slaying in spite of the continued beatings by the mob to force them to own up to the murder.

Early the next morning Yank's mother came from over in Alabama —this part of Mississippi is just a few miles from the state lines— carrying him to her home for medical treatment.

In order to prevent them from securing medical attendance that soon after the mob had inflicted the beatings, which would be positive evidence of his physical condition to impress a jury, the mob, again alleged to have been led by the sheriff, crossed over into the state of Alabama to get Yank again in their clutches. The mob persuaded the mother to let them have Yank—that it would be all right—that they would take Yank to Meridian where he could get the best medical treatment. There is an excellent hospital at Electric Mills in Mississippi about five miles away, while Meridian is over 40 miles off.

The mob stopped at Livingston, Alabama, where they purchased a new leather wagon trace, and, then taking a circuitous route off the main highway, proceeded to beat Yank again, though he was at the time in almost a dying condition, inflicting severe internal injuries from which it seems, according to the last reports, Yank will never recover—then bringing him to jail in Meridian in a dying state

Ed Brown, the second man, had been the good man Friday for Stewart for many years and was supposed to be going to Scooba with him on the morning the dead body was found The mob started to kill him promptly, but finally changed its mind ,and brought him to the Meridian jail for safe keeping before Yank was carried there, and without beating him a single time.

The confession was being framed up!

Henry Shields, the next of the trio, was a tenant hand of Stewart, who had taken Shield's cotton acreage check out of the mails and had appropriated the funds to his own personal use after forging Shield's name to the check and getting the money from he bank. Shields accosted Stewart about the check, and Stewart first denied having seen the check. Shields had declared against this injustice, since he was not indebted to Stewart in any way, and though the bank was legally liable for repayment to Shields, nothing was done to rectify the wrong.

This was sufficient to bring Shields into the case, and he, too, was arrested and placed in the Meridian jail where the other two were already confined.

And then was the celebrated confession confessed!

Simmons Harris, another Negro, had a dispute with Stewart a long time prior to the killing, over some injustice that was being done him by Stewart and that was incentive enough for the mob to make a visit to Harris and beat him just as severely as they had done Ellington.

John Little, the Negro, who was the first to discover something wrong at Stewart's house that momentous morning, would have been hanged by the mob had it not been for the intervention of the white man for whom Little was working who declared that he had sent Little to Stewart's house early on that morning to get a yoke of oxen that Stewart had promised to let him have and that Little came back at once to noitfy him of the peculiar groanings and noises that were to be heard at Stewart's house.

On the third night, Bloody Kemper broke loose in pristine style. Negroes were beaten, robbed, looted and pillaged in a manner that would bring to mind the historic barbarity and outrages during the Slaughter of the Innocents in the Middle Ages.

Naturally a godless and lawless country, in which the white people neither fear God nor regard man, it was alive with fleeing Negroes and howling white mobs, who had been maddened and inflamed with the moonshine whiskey for which Bloody Kemper is so famous.

Over a county in which a white man is rarely ever arrested for any crime committed, and never when committed against a Negro, whether the crime be robbery, assault or ravishment, the mob rode all the night without let or hindrance from the sheriff or his deputies.

And now poor Yank is slowly dying.

The statutory law declares that "any officer or guard, or other employes—having the custody of any convict prisoner—who shall wilfully fail to furnish . . . medical attendance to any such convict, shall upon conviction be fined not less than $10 or more than $50 and be imprisoned not less than one month or both at the discretion of the court."

Miss. Torture Case To U. S. Supreme Court

Mississippi
New York

JACKSON, Miss. — The case of Ed Brown, Yank Ellington and Henry Shields, three Kemper County farm hands who were tortured and beaten into "confessing" the murder of a white tenant farmer, is ready to be filed in the United States supreme court, attorneys acting for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced last week.

Shields, Ellington and Brown were convicted last summer and their conviction appealed to the Mississippi supreme court last fall. By a majority opinion the court affirmed the conviction, but a strong dissenting opinion by two justices gave hope for success if an appeal were taken to the United States supreme court.

The dissenting justices maintained that the torture of these men was "unbelievable savagery," and stated that the case was "worse than the Scottsboro case."

The N. A. A. C. P is being assisted by southern individuals and agencies, who became interested in the case after the assocation had saved the men from execution, but the expenses of an appeal to the highest court are so great that funds are needed at once if the appeal is to be presented properly.

DETAILS OF Bloody LYNCH PARTY Defenders ARE EXPOSED

Chicago, Ill.
7-13-35

Mobbists 'Says Victim Confessed Rape; 'No Rape,' Doctors

TUSKEGEE INST., Ala., July 12.—According to records compiled at Tuskegee Institute department of records and research there were four lynchings for the first six months of the current year. Causes were given as wounding man in altercation, 1; rape, 1; murder, 2. Louisiana and Mississippi are credited with the outrages each having two.

(By Special Correspondent)

WIGGINS, Miss., July 12.—The point of this story is not that R. D. McGee, 25 year old farm hand was lynched by a mob of three hundred men here June 22.

Nor is it the recent revelation that another Race man severely whipped and set free during the 24 hour reign of terror which followed an alleged attack upon an 11-year-old daughter of a white dairy farmer.

Neither is it startling that the coroner's investigation resulted in a verdict that "the Negro came to his death at the hands of parties unknown."

There is nothing unusual about any of these incidents. They occur with disgraceful regularity in the South although all of them are not published nor generally known.

Four Salient Points

The interesting details of this story follow:

1. Physicians who examined the girl stated that she had not been criminally attacked.

2. Members of the mob stated that McGee confessed attacking the girl and gave as his reason, "I must have been crazy."

3. In spite of a detailed account of the lynching including the statements of the lynched man which must have been obtained either from a member of the mob or an eye witness to the lynching, the crime was committed by "hands of unknown parties," and no arrests have been made.

4. Finally the alleged rapist was brought before the girl, who is confined to bed for identification, yet the members of the mob are still unknown.

Just Another Lynching

As to the story back of the lynching it is very ordinary. Just like a hundred others you may or may not have read of the lynchings which occur here and elsewhere in the deep South.

If it were thought that the story might move officials of the federal government to take steps to prevent a reoccurrence of this outrage or to even make a conscientious effort to run down, capture and penalize the mobbists, it would be recited for their benefit alone.

But the federal government is not interested in the lynching of black men. It has shown that on several occasions. The last two sessions of congress, for example, refused to pass or even seriously consider a bill offered to deal with this problem.

U. S. Not Interested

The highly touted department of justice with its nemesis of criminals, Homer S. Cummings winked at the kidnap-lynching of Claude Neal in Florida and refused to lift a finger to aid in the apprehension of his persecutors even though the outrage bore all the qualifications for prosecution under the Lindbergh law.

But the story will be told. It might inspire some of the 40,000,000 persons who supported the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynch bill to renew their fight against the rope justice of the court of passion.

The story will be told with the hope that it might move a people constantly bickering over inconsequentials and apparently blind to the vital issues of their race to do something more than prate and pray.

And so the story is told as best it could be learned:

How It Happened

An 11 year old white girl was choked into unconsciousness Friday, June 21. She was seized as she was about to enter the gate to her father's pasture, struck over the head with a shovel handle, dragged into a field and left there for dead.

Medical men who examined her immediately after she was found, said her eyes were bloodshot, that blood vessels in her throat were ruptured, that her face and body were bruised.

"Was she attacked?" Naturally anxious parents wanted to know that above all else.

The doctors were unable to find any evidence of criminal assault. Then made their report. They advised that the child be kept in bed. She was very weak and suffered from shock.

"Who did it?"

"A nigger, of course. Who else would do such a thing?"

Immediately a posse was formed and set out in search of a victim. Friday night about 11 p.m. the mob angered by its inability to find a victim sooner found McGee asleep. They spirited him away to the woods.

All night long he was kept under heavy guard, taunted, tortured and grilled. With the arrival of morning they carried him to the girl's house. She, very ill, suffering from shock and naturally not acutely aware of what was going on, identified the man as her attacker.

The Christian host, exultant over prospects of a grand and glorious lynching carried McGee across (not around) town to a cemetery. Here with noose about his neck and a barbaric, howling mob of 300 clustered about him, he is supposed to have confessed to a rape which never occurred.

With dispatch the other end of the rope which had been flung over a stout bough of an oak tree was pulled and slowly but surely McGee's feet left the ground. Soon he was swaying in the breeze.

A Great Sport

From the pockets of vegetable stained overalls, from trousers reeking with cheap tobacco and harsh corn liquor, revolvers were drawn. Several shotguns unnoticed until now appeared and the shooting began.

It was great sport, picking out a particular feature on the man's body then trying to hit it as the black corpse swayed. The game continued until the ammunition was exhausted and a Nordic lust for Race blood satisfied.

The body was then cut down and dragged to another tree on the main highway where it was hoisted again so that all who passed might see it. So that the coroner and the sheriff would have no difficulty finding it; so that other 'niggers' would would see it and understand.

The coroner and Sheriff J. A. Simpson of Stone County came and held an inquest. They ordered the body cut down and disposed of. Then they drove back to town and told the men who carried guns with smoking barrels, men whose eyes were red from loss of sleep:

"The Negro came to his death at the hands of unknown parties."

A mighty cry arose and in a few hours the town settled back to normalcy.

Last week, it was discovered that the mob in the hunt for McGee or someone had beaten another black man into insensibility. They could not lynch him for they knew deep down within them that he was innocent. But it never hurts to beat 'nigger.'

"Keeps them in line," one said.

"Instills respect in 'em," assented another.

COLUMBIA, S. C.
RECORD
JUN 24 1935

Not Without Result.

A Mississippi mob seized a negro, charged with attempting an attack upon a 11-year-old white girl, kept him in the woods all night while officers were searching for him and then killed him Saturday.

Whether the man was guilty or not cannot be told; mob trials are haphazard affairs at best. But if he had been guilty there is little doubt that a Mississippi jury would have convicted him. The lynchers accomplished nothing therefore in the enforcement of law; laws are not to be enforced by murder.

But the lynching was not altogether futile. It will give new impetus to the movement for the enactment of the Costigan-Wagner anti-lynching bill.

NORFOLK, VA.
VIRGINIAN PILOT

JUL 17 1935

A Day in Mississippi

A year in which the first six months showed a smaller number of lynchings than any in recent times, now beholds the State of Mississippi reverting swiftly to that form which has helped earn it the American Mercury criticism of "the worst American State." A small mob of apparently about 35 men, held up a deputy sheriff transferring two Negro prisoners from one jail to another, abducted the prisoners, drove them to a Negro church eight miles distant, and murdered them by hanging. At approximately the same time another mob was pursuing to the State line a third Negro charged with the same offense, but failed to catch him. In still another part of the State, a white man and his wife—if the charges against them are true—were holding a Negro over a barrel with a knife at his throat and were beating him to death with a plank.

The reversion to form involved no violent dislocation. Mississippi has had in recent years the worst mob-murder record in the American Union. Its mob kill almost nonchalantly, and the killers are rarely—almost never—punished. Although only four lynchings are recorded for the first half of 1935, two of those four took place in Mississippi. The other two in Louisiana. Of six lynchings now on the record, two-thirds are Mississippi lynchings.

For the South as a whole, which has always been the traditional home of mob vengeance and the section where respect for the law is lowest, we have now the promise of improvement over the indefensible 15 lynchings in 1934 and the 28 in 1933. But not in Mississippi. Let those who deride the horror stories of a Faulkner look to the facts. Lynchings flourish where civilization is lowest, where the restraints which man has set up for himself are least, where regard for life, and especially Negro life, is slight, and where the animal in man is most alive. That is what is happening in Mississippi, and that is what will happen until the self-respecting and law-abiding elements of that State assert their power.

Lynchings-1935
& Side Lights.

Mississippi.

5249

KEMPER COUNTY OFFICIALS PRESIDE AT FLOGGING OF NEGRO WHO FOUGHT ATTACKING WHITE MAN

VICTIM BRUTALLY BEATEN, DRAGS BODY HOME, RECEIVES TREATMENT AND DISAPPEARS

Acted As Umpires For Mob, Writer Alleges

By DAVID JONES

DE KALB, Miss., May 2.—(ANP)—Many persons do not know that there are several counties in Mississippi which have their own unwritten code of laws by which they try and punish Negroes, and which give no attention to the acts passed by the State legislature.

Well, it is true and Bloody Kemper is one of such counties.

Early in the month of February last, Malvin Thompson and another friend, and their wives were walking along the big road near the town of Lauderdale Springs on their way to another place.

They were joyous and carefree, it being a day off from work, and were going along pleasantly joking one another—laughing at each other's jokes and pleasantries.

But while passing by the house of a white man named Chambers, they laughed a little too loudly over their conversation—which is just the thing that they should not have done in that county.

For that act was a violation of the unwritten laws of the county which forbid boisterous laughter in the presence of whites under the penalty of a severe flogging.

Chambers promptly stopped the quartet, and ordered the men to pass into his yard behind the barn and there strip themselves for him to whip them.

One of the men obeyed, and was whipped. But Thompson being a young man, and there in the presence of his wife, keenly felt the indignity and the worse ignominy of being whipped as a child in the presence of the woman whom he had sworn to p[illegible]d defend, refused to [illegible] tion.

Besides, [illegible] whippings [illegible] early boyh[illegible] and had resolved that he would never submit to such when he became a man.

At the time, he was carrying a shot gun, that no one save himself knew was unloaded, which he used to prevent Chambers from getting too close to him, before he could edge away—by just pointing the gun at Chambers.

Chambers finally succeeded in getting the gun away from Thompson and threatened to shoot him if he did not come back into the yard and submit to the thrashing.

He, knowing the gun was unloaded, went on his way, but Chambers declared his intention to whip Thompson on their next meeting.

A few days later, Thompson, having ocacsion to make his regular trips to the town of Lauderdale bringing a herd of cattle for the man for whom he works, had to pass by the same place, and the white man again made an attempt to whip him with a large club that he had been saving to beat Thompson with whenever the two should meet.

Thompson fenced off the white man as best he could, retreating all the while, and kept the white man from catching hold of him by thrusting out his hand in which he had an open penknife.

Not wishing any great trouble and knowing well that vengeance would be wreaked upon his old father and mother, as well as upon his wife and child, Malvin while backing off, slightly pricked the white man several times with the knife until opportunity came for him to escape.

He ran for safety to the plantation of his boss, a white man named Willard Brown, who advised him to remain on the place with the promise that he would save him from any attempts on the part of a mob to take Malvin away.

Another unwritten law in Bloody Kemper is that the presence of a Negro charged with a minor offense is never necessary to the legality of the trial and conviction.

And so, while Malvin was hiding at the place of his boss, he was tried and convicted by the justice of the peace in that township, and sentenced to a fine and imprisonment at hard labor, which, of course, meant working on the county road.

Now it is rumored that the justice of the peace, the constable and the mob, together with the white man Chambers, repaired to Thompson's place of concealment and informed his boss that the Negro must take his choice between being whipped by the white mob or serve at hard labor on the county road for the remainder of this year.

When this proposition was submitted to him, Malvin knew full well that servitude on the county road meant death for him, and realizing that if he did not submit to the whipping, his father and mother would be seriously maltreated and run away from their farm, and that his wife and child would suffer many indignities, resolved to submit to the lesser of the evils and agreed to be beaten by the mob.

It is said that the mob invited the judge and the constable to come along with them, conferring the title and office of umpires on these worthy dignitaries of the majesty of the law.

And they, too, were glad of the favorable occasion to sustain the majesty of the unwritten laws of the county by approving the punishment which was to be inflicted upon a Negro who had ruthlessly broken two of these unwritten laws, in that he refused to lie down humbly and submit to be lashed when ordered to do so by a white citizen of the county; and by what was worse, had drawn the blood of a white man, although it was just a pin scratch and that done in the protection of his own life and liberty.

You might keep in mind, dear reader, that these two denizens will be candidates for office this summer at the election primaries and that white men can vote in Bloody Kemper while Negroes cannot.

The program was carried out in the usual form and manner, and with the wanted enthusiasm, so that Thompson was terribly beaten with sticks, clubs and other weapons of injury, kicked in the face and head by those who had not had the time to procure weapons, and finally left lying in the woods severely wounded.

The umpires, it is alleged, pronounced the work well done according to traditions, and then, it is further said, made diligent inquiry as to who was going to pay the costs of the proceedings as far as they were concerned.

The wounded Negro after lying there fore some time, at length dragged his sore and injured body to his house, where he was treated and cared for by his wife, as well as she could, who was too frightened to utter a cry of sympathy or despair, since she herself was not safe from a visitation of the mob.

For if ever it came to the ears of any member of the mob, that the Negro's family were at all displeased at the action of the mob, or had expressed the thought that the treatment of the mob was unlawful, it would be just too bad for them—the women especially.

But some one of the family, or maybe it was a friend of his, must have been giving vent to his intense sympathy and kindly sorrow for the unhappy man and his family. For, after remaining a few days at his home, Malvin Thompson disappeared from human vision and has not been seen or heard of since.

Now they are looking fearfully for his dead body.

Negro Lynched; Call It Suicide

HATTIESBURG, Miss., May 10.—The Chinese Wall of silence which surrounded the mysterious "suicide" a month ago of R. J. Tyrone, local Negro farmer, was broken here today with the revelation that Tyrone was lynched by a gang of wealthy white landowners.

Tyrone had been the target of intimidation and persecution for many months at the hands of a group of rich white plantation owners, headed by William Evans, who were attempting to seize his farmlands.

Seized by Planters

On the night of March 22, Evans provoked Tyrone into a fight. In self-defense Tyrone shot Evans, slightly wounding him. Evans and other white planters then seized the Negro farmer.

Three days later, Tyrone's body was found riddled with bullets. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "suicide."

Family Terrorized

Tyrone's family has been driven into hiding by the threats of the lynchers. Neighbors have been forbidden to provide them with food or shelter.

Lawrence County, where the lynching took place, is known as the "Slaughter Pen," because of the numerous lynch murders of Negroes.

The lynching of Tyrone is the sixth reported for the present year.

Southern Clergyman's Weighted Body Found Floating Down River

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Shot through the heart, the body of Rev. T. A. Allan of Marks, Miss. was found floating in the shallow waters of Coldwater River near Hernando, last Thursday afternoon. Despite the fact that weighted chains had been attached to the corpse, the body was still floating.

In the pastor's pockets was found literature pertaining to the organization of share croppers, while a button bearing the words "Every Man a King" was attached to his coat lapel. The presence of literature pointed to the supposition that he might have been killed by planters.

Sheriff Sid Campbell of Hernando, who advanced the theory, is conducting an investigation to determine who killed Rev. Allan.

LYNCH-CRAZED MISSISSIPPI JURY TERMS TYRONE MOB-MURDER AS SUICIDE AT CORONER'S INQUEST

Black Dispatch

Blood-Thirsty Mobs Roam State in Search Of Prey

By DAVID JONES

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Apr. 25.—(ANP)—The lynching of Negroes in the state of Mississippi has become so commonplace and trite that it has been turned into just a laughing matter.

So savage and barbarous, so utterly devoid of the finer parts that are very evident in cultured and refined people and which go to make up the datum posts of civilization, are they that they are murdering Negroes now without the slightest twinge of conscience.

They are now calling to suicide by coroner's verdict when Negroes are lynched in this state.

The body of R. R. Tyrone, a prosperous Negro farmer of Lawrence county, was found shot to pieces in the woods by his house on the night of the 25th of March, where he had been lynched by a mob of whites about the 22nd of the same month—the body having lain there since that time.

There are quite a number of prosperous Negroes in that county who by stint and the practice of economy have placed themselves far above dependence upon the whites of that locality and are living above want and need.

Tyrone was among that number. And since the race is not expected to prosper and their prosperity not only excites the wonder of their white neighbors, but also their vicious envy, and arouses in them a desire for the exploitation on their part, he was marked for slaughter.

A prosperous Negro in the state is considered an evil example to be gotten rid of by fair or foul means and is just about as welcome as the proverbial bull in a china shop—and particularly if he refuses to stand still while he is being skinned.

William Evans, a white farmer near Tyrone's farm, it is said, has been trying several methods to separate Tyrone from the produce of the years of hard toil and deprivation which Tyrone has undergone in his effort to raise himself and his family above lack and indigence.

These several attempts to take away his life's earnings were hotly resented by Tyrone, and he had been brave enough to hold off the voracious whites by going armed whenever he had to leave his home. While walking along the county road on his way to Monticello, Tyrone was accosted by Evans, who was sitting on the gallery, concerning some matters that have not yet been divulged.

Evans is not talking for publication, not yet, as he is too busy chasing and beating Negroes—he has not caught his breath.

Tyrone has been lynched.

Still it could be seen from afar that Tyrone was resenting something that Evans was attempting to force on him and that for his audacity in refusing to obey and acquiesce, Evans determined to chastise him.

Tyrone resisted and having armed himself for just such occasions as this was compelled to shoot Evans, slightly wounding him, in order to save his own life.

Evans was carried to Jackson for attention to his slight wounds at the hospital there.

In the meanwhile the mob was formed, and the man hunt in general for Negroes began, during which hunt Tyrone was lynched by the mob and left in the woods where his body was found some days afterwards.

When the coroner's jury was summoned to hold the inquest over the dead body of Tyrone, they promptly returned a verdict of "suicide."

And this is a so-called civilized nation of people.

The remnant of Tyrone's family had not been found up to a few days past, though sympathetic Negroes are exercising their best endeavor to have them taken away to some place of safety before the mob makes another attempt to wreak vengeance upon them, and this at the peril of their own lives, for if the mob learns that any Negro gives them food, water or shelter, it will be woe to them.

The women of his family fled rather than face the ordeal of being stripped naked by a riotous mob of whites, knowing that after being exposed in such a state to the public view of hundreds of men, the external organs of their bodies would be crushed and beaten until they fainted from the agony.

The county around is in a seething turmoil, for Lawrence county is just adjoining the "Slaughter Pen"—that is Lincoln county—so named for the great number of Negroes that were slain during the white cap regime about forty years ago.

Negroes are afraid to come out in the open during the daytime and still more fearful to remain in their houses during the night time.

Women and girls are hiding in every place of concealment dreading the inhuman bestiality from which they will have to suffer if caught by the mob, and from which nothing save a miraculous power can ever save them.

POSSES SEEK SLAYER OF OXFORD PLANTER

Suspected Accomplice Is Held In Jail

OXFORD, Miss., May 22.—One negro, Dock Gray, is in jail here as posses of citizens and officers combed the county tonight for Caesar Higginbottom, another Negro, who shot and killed Glenn D. Roberts, 54, prominent planter, and brother of former Sheriff Ike Roberts, last night at 10 o'clock.

Gray is suspected of harboring Higginbottom in his home last night.

Roberts died immediately from a shotgun charge in the mouth, fired by the negro tenant at the height of an argument. A second charge missed. The cause of the argument could not be learned here today.

Roberts had lived in Fayette County all his life, and was widely known throughout North Mississippi as a fox hunter. He was a member of the "Roberts Brothers, Fiddlers," an orchestra that has played here several times.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Roberts; another brother, Fronis, and a sister, Mrs. Allison. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Cambridge Church with the Rev. F. M. Purser officiating.

LYNCHED IN MISSISSIPPI "SLAUGHTER PEN"

HATTIESBURG, Miss. - (CNA) - The Chinese Wall of silence which surrounded the mysterious "suicide" of R. R. Tyrone of a month ago was broken here. It was revealed that Tyrone had been lynched by a gang of wealthy white landowners.

Tyrone, a local farmer, had been the target of intimidation and persecution for many months. A group of rich white plantation owners headed by William Evans had been attempting to seize his prosperous farm lands.

On the night of March 22, Evans provoked Tyrone into a fight. In self-defense, Tyrone shot Evans, slightly wounding him. Evans then organized a lynch mob and seized the farmer.

Three days later, Tyrone's body was found riddled with bullets. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "suicide".

Tyrone's family has been driven into hiding by the threats of the lynchers. Friends have been forbidden to provide them with food or shelter.

Lawrence county, where the lynching took place, is known as the "Slaughter Pen", because of the numerous murders of Negroes. The death of Tyrone is the sixth reported lynching of the year.

Lynchings-1935
Side Lights.

Montana

5250

MONTANA POSSE CORNERS, KILLS MURDERER OF 4

Slayer Routed From Home of Ex-Employee by Tear Gas

WOMAN FLEES HOUSE AND GIVES ALARM

BUTTE, Mont., Dec. 28 (AP).—William Henry Knight, slayer of four men, was shot to death in a fog of tear gas by possemen last night, ending a one-man reign of terror in Southwestern Montana.

The thirty-nine-year-old ex-convict, object of a sensational three-day manhunt, died a few hours after he was cornered and shot at the home of a former employee, James Gilligan.

Gilligan, his wife, and two small children were held captive by the desperado until they persuaded him to permit them to remove the children, David, five, and Hazel, two, to their grandmother's home.

Knight consented and the terrified parents notified police, who made short work of the man who boasted of killing two peace officers.

Shot in Head

A posse surrounded the house and Jack Duggan, assistant police chief, fired a bullet into Knight's head as the fugitive ran from the house.

Mrs. Gilligan, held captive all day by the desperate fugitive, said he freely admitted he killed a Seattle officer, Deputy Thomas Meehan, November 13; Policeman Tom O'Neill and Frank Walsh in Butte Christmas Day; and Floyd Woods, ranch foreman in Southern Montana, whose body, a bullet wound in the head, was found in the swirling Madison River yesterday.

Jean Miller, former companion of Knight, was held for questioning concerning the Seattle slaying.

Asked for Haven

Mrs. Gilligan said Knight, for whom her husband once worked in a restaurant, came to her back door yesterday morning asking if he could stay there.

"I've got to have some place to stay," he said, menacing Mrs. Gilligan with a pistol.

"He wanted some eggs," she said, "so he gave me a dollar.

"I went to the store, but I didn't dare tell anybody, for fear of my children.

"After I got his breakfast, Knight sat on the bed while I washed the dishes. He told me about the men he killed and that he had been walking since Thursday afternoon from Anaconda.

Had the Jitters

"He was awfully nervous and jittery and kept talking. Speaking of one of the deaths, he told me:

"'I had a man help me out of a snowdrift one afternoon. He looked at me and I could see he knew me. I shot him right between the eyes. I took his car and threw his body into the river when I crossed a bridge.'" Woods's body was found near the Hutchens bridge over the Madison River.

Lynchings - 1935
Sidelights

New York

5252

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.
EVENING JOURNAL
JUL 29 1935

NEGRO CRIMINALS IN THE NORTH

Residents of southern cities wil read with some interest the repor from New York of the arrest o one Oscar Wilson, a big Negr who came north from Knoxville Tenn., and has been "floatin around the city" ever since an who the report says admits havin stabbed a white woman to death The woman was found dead on ledge in one of the city parks. He clothing had been torn off and th police say she had been criminall assaulted.

The Negro the report says con fesses killing the woman and hi excuse is that "she did me wrong. The "wrong" consisted in runnin around with other colored men.

Also the report the same day c a white woman riding with he husband who was stabbed by Negro because he was refuse money. The automobile was stanc ing at a traffic light. The Negr escaped.

These reports are quite simila to reports from southern citie where women are assaulted b Negroes, but the outcome is dif ferent. This man Wilson is at leas temporarily in luck that his crim was committed in New York cit instead of his native town or in deed any southern city or tow where under similar circumstance the city would be spared the ex pense of trying and the state the expense of executing or imprison ing him. The populace would at tend to his punishment. In New York it is just another homicide case and the law will be permitted to take its course. In that respect at least we are more civilized than our southern brethren.

However, assaults of this char acter will develop a racial feeling that has not heretofore existed in our northern cities, and it is to be deplored for a vast majority of the Negro race are law abiding and should not be made to suffer for the crimes of the lawless minor ity.

Lynchings - 1935
Sidelights

North Carolina

5251

ASHEVILLE, N. C.
CITIZEN
AUG 3 1935

Court Unable To Solve Lynching Of N. C. Negro

No Evidence Adduced To Connect Anyone With Franklin Mob

LOUISBURG, Aug. 1. (AP)—With "no evidence on which to hold anyone" having been brought out at a three-hour judicial inquiry into the lynching Tuesday of Roosevelt Ward, negro who earlier that day had chopped off the head of a prominent farmer, Judge W. C. Harris recessed the hearing indefinitely this afternoon.

Solicitor William Y. Bickett and Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell asked that the matter be kept open for further action upon the request of the solicitor.

"There was no evidence on which to hold anyone today," Judge Harris said. "A continuance until some future date is ordered."

"Real progress has been made in laying the foundation for a more thorough investigation," Attorney General Seawell said after the continuance was ordered.

"We will push our investigation based on information obtained at today's hearing and the matter will be reopened at the proper time," Solicitor Bickett said.

There was no evidence adduced at the hearing to link anyone with the lynching of Ward, first identified in official records as Govan Ward.

Ward early Tuesday assaulted Spurgeon Ayscue, a youth in the Hayesville section of Franklin county, and while Ayscue was securing a warrant for his arrest also assaulted his (Ward's) sister, Rowena Kearney, and killed Charles G. Stokes, prominent farmer.

Failed To Recognize Men

John P. Moore, who Monday was named sheriff of the county by the commissioners but has not qualified, and two deputies started to spirit Ward away to Nashville for safekeeping due to high feeling in the vicinity in which Stokes lived and an unmasked mob of some 25 men seized the negro, carried him back within two miles of where he committed the crime and lynched him.

"I did not recognize any of the men," Sheriff Moore testified this afternoon. "I never saw them before. I might be able to recognize them but I cannot say positive. They were dressed decent and I don't recall any had on overalls."

The sheriff and his deputies, Peter Dean and J. E. Hight, all said the mob was composed of white men. The deputies joined the sheriff in professing from the witness stand that they could not identify any members of the mob.

"I don't think there was a single man in the crowd from Franklin county," Deputy Dean testified. He said he had served as a deputy sheriff 20 years and thought he would know residents of this county by their faces.

Grilled By Seawell

Attorney General Seawell subjected Dean to close questioning as he tried to learn the identity of the man who took the negro from the car in which the officers had secreted him on the floor.

"The man who took the negro looked like he had just come out of a tobacco patch," Dean testified. "I think he wore a grey shirt. He was sun-burned and had sandy hair. I guess he'd weigh about 175 pounds."

"You got a good look at that man, didn't you?" Seawell queried.

"Yes," Dean replied, "but I didn't know him."

Most of the witnesses professed an inability to recall the persons they saw around the Stokes home after the murder of the farmer or around the spot near Weldon's mill where Ward was hanged.

Sheriff J. E. Hamlet of Vance county, who testified he was called to Epsom to arrest Ward when it was thought the killing of Stokes had occured in Vance county, told of driving by the scene of the lynching before it happened and not seeing anyone and driving back 20 minutes later to find the dead negro and "a hundred or two people there." The sheriff, however, could not recollect who he saw in the crowd. He said he stopped a threat to burn the body of Ward.

Negro's Rampages Aired

Much of the testimony dealt with the rampage on which Ward went Tuesday morning. Officers and special deputies testified as to struggles with Ward after he was arrested, while he was en route to Louisburg and in the office of Dr. H. G. Perry here. Doctor Perry testified he thought Ward was under the influence of a narcotic.

Sheriff Moore and Deputies Dean and Hight testified they several times eluded cars trying to stop them as they were seeking to carry Ward to Nashville but finally one of the cars blocked the road and forced them to stop.

"I got out and tried to reason with the men but they said 'dam that, we want the negro,' and they got him," Sheriff Moore said.

Moore testified he thought the car which blocked the road was a Plymouth or a Buick and expressed the opinion it had no license plates. He said the men who demanded the negro were armed with pistols and one had a rifle or shotgun.

Zeb Wheeler, near whose home the mob secured Ward, testified to seeing four cars chasing the machine in which the negro was riding. He said he did not recognize anybody in the cars and they drove back by his house and yelled "there's going to be a lynching down the road." "I got in my car and went down the road but couldn't find any lynching," he added.

H. C. Gupton, filling station operator in the vicinity where Ward was taken from the officers, testified that he saw the cars chasing the sheriff but none went back by his place. He said the sheriff drove by and asked if he had "seen a Buick car" go by.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS
AUG 1 1935

FRANKLIN OFFICERS AND MURDERS IN FRANKLIN.

Governor Ehringhaus at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon said that at that time, more than eight hours after a crazed negro had been hung to a scrub oak near Louisburg, his body riddled with bullets and his big toe cut off by a souvenir hunter, he had received no word from the officers in Franklin county about anything that had happened there.

If the officers get around to writing the Governor about this crime and tell him no more than they so far have told, then the lynching will be a long time officially unexplained.

Sheriff J. T. Moore and his two deputies were on their way to Nashville jail in—the Associated Press quotes them as saying—an attempt to protect their prisoner. They left the main highway between Louisville and Nashville to avoid the mob but as the report goes were overtaken nevertheless by a mob of unmasked men, armed with shotguns and pistols. Laying aside the fact that apparently the officers yielded their prisoner, the prisoner they were sworn to protect, to an irresponsible mob without any show of force, it is passing strange that not one of the three officers recognized a single member of the mob. Franklin county is not so densely populated; at least one of the officers ought to have been able to identify at least one of the mob. Judging from the fairly close proximity of the time of the lynching to its preceding crime, killing of C. G. Stokes by the negro, later lynched, the mob must have come from within Franklin county or fairly near it. And yet the officers could not recognize a single face.

Not only did the officers fail to recognize any of the lynching party but from the coroner's verdict, "came to death by violence from means of persons unknown to us", it would be gathered that there was no successful effort to identify the mass murderers.

There is another illuminating bit of conversation by a Franklin officer reported by the Associated Press:

A. A. Fuller, who was sworn in as a special deputy to assist in the arrest of the negro Ward after he had slain the farmer said:

"In Louisburg due to his wounds we took Ward to the office of Dr. H. G. Perry where he quietly let the physician start fixing his head. He suddenly again started fighting and I put my pistol against his head and pulled the trigger but the weapon only snapped and others present wouldn't let me kill him."

Fuller had just stated previously that the negro was in shackles. Here was a sworn officer attempting to kill a prisoner for apparently no other reason than that he was unruly. The fact that the negro had just committed a heinous offense by no stretch of any law, written or unwritten, could license him to do another killing.

It is to be hoped that Solicitor William Y. Bickett, in whose district the homicide and the lynching both took place, will get more information in Franklin county than has so far been elicited. Governor Ehringhaus may then be able to report to the people of North Carolina something, which if not satisfactory, will be at least nearer the facts.

Chester, S. C., Reporter
August 8, 1935

The agitation about that North Carolina lynching a few days ago seems to be getting nowhere. The Sheriff testified that the lynchers were unmasked, but notwithstanding the fact that he is in politics, and supposed to know practically everybody in his county the lynchers were all complete strangers, he states to interviewers, as much as to say that they were from the adjoining States of South Carolina and Virginia, or might have come from Mars. The Sheriff had deputies along, but they, too, pretended to be absolutely ignorant of the identity of the men who took the prisoner away from the officers. Until a different spirit can be developed among our law enforcement officers, lynchings will continue to occur. It's not likely that a Sheriff who is so weak on faces and names would be very strong about resisting lynchers.

GREENSBORO, N. C
RECORD
AUG 3 1935

Note On Civilization

In the News and Observer yesterday Charles J. Parker wrote in his story of the ugly lynching in Franklin: "Somebody placed an unlighted cigarette in the mouth of the corpse as it swung from the tree, and a souvenir hunter slashed off the little toe of the right foot. . . . . Young girls were present in numbers, some bringing knitting and proceeding with their stitches as they discussed the crime." On the same day a newsstory from Illinois reported that a crowd, composed largely of women anxious to hear the testimony in the sex murder trial of Gerald Thompson, tore down a door on the Peoria county courthouse.

Human history may be a progress but sometimes the skin on what we call civilization seems to be pretty thin.—Raleigh News and Observer.

NEGRO SLAYER SOUGHT BY POSSE IN CAROLINA

GASTONIA, N. C., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A posse today continued its hunt for Campbell Starnes, a negro who early yesterday shot and killed W. A. Dameron, a deputy sheriff, and fled into a nearby woods armed with a shotgun and a supply of ammunition.

Search was made for the negro all day yesterday without result and was resumed at dawn today. No trace of the fugitive was found. Officers and civilians combed the area. And it was thought the negro was hiding out in some gully or cave.

Lynchings - 1935
Side Lights.

North Carolina

5253

POSSE HUNTS NEGRO IN ASSAULT ON WOMAN

REIDSVILLE, N. C., Feb. 2.—(AP) A posse of officers and citizens today scoured Rockingham county in a hunt for a Negro accused of a criminal assault upon a middle-aged woman who lives alone on a small farm in the Shiloh section.

The woman staggered to the home of a brother late last night and reported the attack, naming a Negro sharecropper on a nearby farm as her assailant.

She said she was stripped of her clothing, tied hand and foot and left in a gully some distance from her home, but managed to free herself.

MAN IS FOUND NAILED TO CROSS; FORCED SON TO DO IT, HE SAYS

Religious Fanatic Explains He Hoped to Regain Estranged Wife's Affections By Pretending to be Victim of Mob of Persecutors

Morning Telegraph & News
6-2-33

HIGH POINT, N. C., June 1 (AP)—R. J. Riggs, 36, filling station operator, was found nailed to a cross near here early today and officers, terming him a "religious fanatic," quoted him as saying he had his young son "crucify" him in hope of regaining his estranged wife's affections.

Riggs was found nailed through the flesh between thumbs and index fingers of each hand and through the flesh of his heels to a crude wooden cross which lay by the roadside near his filling station. He was taken to a hospital where attaches said his injuries were painful but not serious.

He first told a story of three men having broken into his home with the cry, "You've been so good we're going to nail you to a cross," but Solicitor Gaston A. Johnson said that under questioning he confessed he had Donald Riggs, 15-year-old son by a former wife, spike him to the crossed boards with ten-penny nails.

Son Is Missing

"He admitted he made the cross himself, got the nails and everything," Johnson said, adding that finding a law "we can prosecute him under will be difficult but I think we'll charge him with mayhem."

The solicitor said the man once had gone to the home of his wife's parents, thrown himself on the floor and prayed for her to "see the light" and return to him.

The son will be turned over to juvenile authorities when he is apprehended, the solicitor said, although Riggs asked that the boy not be prosecuted. Johnson said Riggs admitted forcing his son to execute his wishes and told them the boy left for Jacksonville, N. C., hitchhiking his way.

Separation Suit Pending

P. A. Walls found Riggs during the morning's early hours and called for help. Officers hurried to the scene and removed the nails from Riggs' feet and hands and also a wire that had been fastened about his neck and tied to the upright of the cross. Riggs was clothed only in his underwear.

It was several hours, the solicitor said, before Riggs said the whole business was engineered by himself.

The filling station man and his wife were separated April 14 and later she brought suit for separate maintenance. Last week Riggs was arrested for contempt of court for allegedly taking his small daughter from his wife's home in defiance of a court order but he was released on bond.

Wife Is Questioned

Mrs. Riggs was taken in custody for questioning just before the solicitor announced the confession. No charges were brought against her.

Riggs estimated he lay on the cross, hands and feet spiked down, for two hours before Walls found him.

Solicitor Johnson said Riggs finally broke down under long questioning.

"I'm telling you this," the solicitor quoted Riggs as saying, "because I don't want you running around looking for somebody who is innocent. I'm the guilty party and I did it to win back my wife's love."

NEW YORK SUN

SEP 4 1935

POSSE HUNTS NEGRO

Lynching Believed Unlikely in North Carolina.

CREEDMOOR, N. C., Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Granville County officers and scores of citizens, aided by bloodhounds, scoured swamplands seven miles south of here early today in search of John Kinghan, elderly Negro charged with attacking a twelve-year-old girl.

Officers scouted reports of a possible lynching which caused Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus at Raleigh, twenty-four miles away, to order a company of State highway patrolmen to the scene.

Feeling was admittedly running high, but the police said that the number of deputies, soon to be augmented by the patrolmen, was more than sufficient to insure against any violence.

Louisburg, N. C. Times
August 23, 1935

Rumor of Lynching is Proven False

Officers Speed to Epsom on Advice But Find Everything Very Quiet

A rumor of a lynching about to take place at Epsom yesterday about noon sent Sheriff J. E. Hamlett and a crew of deputies speeding to the scene only to find that no such thing was taking place and the point of the supposed lynching was all quiet and no trouble whatsoever had developed.

The entire episode began when the office of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus received a telegram that a lynching was to take place at the farm of F. W. Smith near Epsom. It was signed by D. T. Dickie, according to the sheriff's office. Charles G. Powell, secretary to the governor, immediately called officers here urging them to go to the scene immediately. They did, finding Mr. Smith at his tobacco barns wholly unmindful of any such thing as a lynching. The officers called on Mr. Dickie, who denied any knowledge whatever of sending the telegram and he knew nothing whatever about it.

It was in this community that Govan "Sweat" Ward, 25-year-old negro, was lynched July 31 for the ax slaying of Charles G. Stokes, prominent farmer of the Epsom community.

Feeling has not been at a high pitch since the lynching, the farmers in that section going about their duties of housing tobacco from this rich tobacco section.

The alarm yesterday, was entirely false from every stand point but officers here were alert in preventing such a thing if it were contemplated.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

Mob Search Ends

YANCEYVILLE, N. C., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Believing a mixed suspicion on an attack on a Burling white woman was a prisoner in the Yanceyville jail, a mob estimated by Jailer Giles Mebane at 15 men awakened the jailer and demanded possession of the negro early today, but left quietly when convinced there was no suspect here.

WINSTON SALEM, N.C.
SENTINEL

JUL 31 1935

Bickett, Son of Anti-Mob Governor, Opens Investigation of Lynching

Louisburg (AP).—Franklin county officers, criticized by Governor Ehringhaus for failing to ask protection for their prisoner, were called upon today to seek out the lynchers of Govan (Sweat) Ward, 25-year-old Negro, who chopped off a white farmer's head.

Under the direction of Solicitor William Y. Bickett, son of a governor who made a name for himself as a foe of lynchers, arrangements were made for a judicial inquiry before a superior court judge to begin at 10 a.m. tomorrow in this little college town. Bickett said already 23 or more witnesses had been subpoenaed.

In Raleigh, Governor Ehringhaus announced that the state would offer the usual reward, $200 being the maximum allowed by statute, for apprehension of the lynchers, and added that he expected to designate a judge to take charge of the inquiry some time today.

Deploring both the axe-slaying of Charles G. Stokes, 60-year-old farmer, and the subsequent hanging and shooting of Ward, who was taken from Sheriff J. P. Moore and two deputies as they sought to escort him to safety in Rocky Mount, the Governor issued his statement late yesterday, at which time he said he had received no word from any officer of this county.

"Had we received an intimation that the transfer of the prisoner for safekeeping was contemplated and [illegible] danger of disorder, we could have rendered prompt and constructive assistance, but no such information or request was forthcoming."

Informed by The Associated Press that the Negro had been taken from the officers by a mob of about 25 men, the Governor immediately ordered state highway patrolmen and national guardsmen to attempt to prevent the lynching, but they arrived too late.

"I deplore, of course, the original crime, horrible in its details," the Chief Executive said, "but I deplore also, the second offense against the laws of North Carolina and public decency and feel keenly the shame and reflection which it has cast upon our good name and our reputation for orderly administration of justice."

After commending Bickett for his prompt action in beginning an investigation, Governor Ehringhaus declared that in the effort to bring the lynchers to justice "I can assure his office, and I wish the public to know that he will have the fullest possible co-operation and assistance from this office."

Assisting Bickett in his inquiry was Charles Green, Franklin county attorney.

The solicitor is a son of the late Governor T. W. Bickett, who once met a mob face to face and turned it back and who made a reputation for vigorous measures in dealing with lynchers.

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS

AUG 2 1935

GOVERNOR AND LYNCHINGS.

With no disposition to nag, but in a spirit as friendly as it will be frank, the Daily News wishes to talk to Governor Ehringhaus about the lynching of Sweat Ward over in Franklin county, an incident which the Governor refers to as a "horrible crime."

The demand for an investigation coupled with the offer of $400 reward, the state's limit, for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators is a good start, but is far from enough, Governor. You called for an investigation of the lynching of Dock Rogers at Burgaw, you will remember; that was about two years ago, and we don't believe you have even received a report from the then solicitor, Mr. Kellum. A few years since—in the administration of your immediate predecessor, we believe—there was a lynching in Edgecombe, and Solicitor Don Gilliam, a vigorous prosecutor, investigated for weeks and drew a waterhaul.

The solicitor of the Franklin-Wake district has within the brief space of two years demonstrated considerable industry and capacity. William Bickett is a native of Franklin, too, and popular in his own right as well by reason of his having been a son of the late Gov. Thomas Walter Bickett. If he means business, he can probably come as near finding out something as the next one.

But if he works single-handed, history is apt to repeat itself. Why not establish beyond peradventure your own official and personal interest in the matter, Governor Ehringhaus, by removing the sheriff of Franklin county from office? Any sheriff who flanked by a couple of deputies permits an unarmed mob to take a prisoner from his custody and then reports that he did not recognize any of his assailants is utterly unfit to hold office in this state or any other. Whether he shut his eyes or not, we do not know; but he ought to have them opened for him. His dishonorable discharge would, if set as a precedent, serve to open the eyes of other sheriffs, too; and that is what we are driving at.

No amount of deploring lynching in the press is going to put an end to the practice hereabouts. Everybody knows our governors do not believe in it. What we need is visible proof that a governor can and will do something about it.

SECOND THE MOTION.

A man who has hold of a hot poker and can't turn it loose deserves all the sympathy the world is a-mind to give him and maybe a little ointment too.

The story of C. M. Sturkey, vice president of the Henderson and Oxford Gas company, to R. O. Self, clerk to the utilities commission, in which Mr. Sturkey relates his inability to make ends meet in the household gas business, so much so that he is at a loss to find the state franchise taxes, would indeed be touching but for a remark which Mr. Self let drop.

The utilities commission secretary in reply to the prayer for mercy from the corporation vice president suggested "some sort of conference whereby the holding company can pay this tax." Up to then nothing had been said of the holding company and we were about to be in sympathy with a movement to have the state—whose franchise taxes, if the stories told before legislative committees last spring are true, are no light burden anyway—make some sort of compromise whereby the residents of Henderson and Oxford could still get their gas.

But the gas company representative points out a difficulty there. The Philadelphia Gas company, reported as the backer of this losing public service corporation, recognizes its subsidiaries only as individual units and makes each one stand on its own bottom, which in the case of the North Carolina one is unsubstantial. But what Mr. Self in his quest of public dues for North Carolina should ask Mr. Sturkey is: "In the fat years did the parent company also let the local concern stand by itself, keeping all the profits, if any, or were there any of those charges for service that are so much talked now in the congressional inquiry about utilities in Washington?

What we want to know is: What's a holding company for if it isn't to get the dividends in prosperous years and hold the bag in lean ones? Second Mr. Self's motion for conference with the holding company.

WILMINGTON, N. C.
STAR

JUL 31 1935

MOB LAW REARS ITS HEAD

North Carolina, one of the few southern states that has made an appreciable effort to stamp out lynching, had its record marred yesterday by the hanging and shooting of a negro in Franklin county.

Despite the fact that troops and state police were hurried to the scene after the negro had been removed from county officers, they were too late to prevent the tragedy.

The victim, said to be an imbecile, had beheaded a white man with an axe earlier in the day.

But twice since 1919, has the North Carolina record been stained by a lynching or suspected lynching. Five years ago one took place in Wilson, although the scene of the alleged offense that precipitated it was as we recall in Nash county.

Two years later, in Pender, a negro was killed in a gun battle with possemen and later mutilated by a mob, but it has never been determined whether he was dead or alive when the mob reached him.

The Star-News as an avowed foe of lynch law, deeply deplores the Franklin occurrence, and incidentally it was in Franklin where the last lynching occurred in the days before North Carolina with the aid of General Metts, an arch foe of the mob, made a systemized effort to stamp out the practice.

The crime which stirred the Franklin mob, we concede, was sufficient to excite the primitive passions of man, but notwithstanding the heinousness of this event, it would have been far better to have permitted the normal procedure of law to take its course.

Northern critics, of course, will make much of the incident, but it is an unalterable fact, proved by statistics that mob violence is not necessarily born of racial prejudices, and therein lies its greatest danger. The excitement of a people may be so aroused as to lead to the assassination of any citizen, white, black or yellow, once the spark is fired and the proper leaders are found to direct the work.

Lynchings-1935

Side Lights

Tennessee

5254

KNOXVILLE, TENN.
JOURNAL
Lynchings
Sidelights
JUL 6 1935

"Mob Disappears"

A surprising story from one of the Louisiana parishes tells of the absolute disappearance from sight, sound and knowledge of what had seemed, from the descriptions of its doings, a full fledged mob with the intended victim in its possession.

It must have been no usual crowd of men which could overpower the sheriff and guards at the jail, drag the Negro suspect from his cell and make off with him, and yet at the same time have been so inconspicuous that the entire mob disappeared leaving behind them no hint nor trace, even so much as of being in existence at all, except for the prisoner's clothes which were found not far away, next day.

It was a very mysterious happening, with no attempt made to explain it!

Lynchings-1935
Side Lights.

Texas-

5255

In Texas, a 27-year-old negro, William Peoples, who had given information concerning a moonshine still, was seized by two white men and whipped until he died.

If the other angels look over Gabriel's shoulder [illegible] writes, they might well say, "What terrible little world, what frightful descendants of Adam."

Texas Deputy Sheriffs 'Lynch' Innocent Man

(By Special Dispatch)

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 22—Shot down by Detective H. E. Cleveland, white, who claimed that he merely aimed at the legs of his victim, an unidentified worker, has been the latest kill of the police force here.

The "crime" was that he had two turkeys in his possession. Officers claim that he turned and ran when asked if he owned the turkeys.

The ease with which officers bring down their prey, and on any excuse, is seen in a letter which Chief of Police A. B. McKenzie of Mexia recently sent to the police chief of Oklahoma City in which he assured him of hearty cooperation in helping to hunt "suspects."

"We want to assure you we are doing all we can to get that nigger for you all. The sheriff's bunch killed a nigger here the other day, supposing it to be him, but it was the wrong nigger," McKenzie wrote. "[illegible] when they went up to the house and some of the boys stopped him and stopped him too much, so we want to assure you we are doing all we can to get him for you all."

Lynchings—1935
Side lights

Virginia

5256

LYNCHBURG, VA.
ADVANCE
AUG 1

WARNING OF LYNCHING PROVES FALSE ALARM

Charlottesville, Aug. 1 (AP)—Alarmed by a telephone call saying "forty Negroes" were attempting to lynch a white man at a mill near Gordonsville, a hastily-summoned party of ten Charlottesville and Albemarle police officers raced there to find the report without foundation. So, they went frog hunting instead but had no luck.

A tipsy employe had tried to force his way into the mill. Six Negroes had been sent to do some work at the plant. Somebody saw the sextet going there and jumped to wrong conclusions, the officers said.

RAILROAD MEN THREATENED BY VA. MOB OF 200

Journal and Guide
9-21-35

No Negro Residents of Buchanan County, It Is Claimed

GRUNDY, Va. — Because there are reported to be no Negro residents of Buchanan County, 25 laborers brought here by a contractor to begin construction on a Norfolk and Western Railway siding, faced a mob violence Tuesday.

Norfolk and Western Railroad officials at Bluefield said a mob of aprroximately 200 white men threatened to "blow up" several work cars unless the men were removed, but that the mob later dispersed without any attempt at violence. The work crew arrived here Monday.

The threats were said to be the outcome of a controversy which started several months ago when the railroad company announced it would bring in Negro crews to develop coal veins. At that time considerable resentment was expressed by local whites against the presence of Negroes. One railroad official said there were no Negro residents of Buchanan County.

Members of the mob were described as natives of Buchanan County. They gathered after dark and company officials sent several special officers to the scene, but refused to order the laborers out of the area. W. O. Tracy, superintendent of the Norfolk and Western Bluefield Division, said he did not anticipate any further trouble.

Shortly after midnight Tuesday it was estimated that only approximately 50 of the original mob remained in the vicinity where the laborers were housed.

POSSE AFTER ROBBER KILLS YOUNG STUDENT

Constitution
9-24-35

Cadet Steps Into Line of Fire; Slayer of Trooper Caught

Atlanta, Ga.

FORK UNION, Va., Sept. 23.—(AP) Frank Wicks, 18, of Wesley Hills, Mass., a third-year student at Fork Union Military Academy, was accidentally shot and killed late this afternoon near here by an unidentified member of a posse that surrounded and captured a man giving his name as J. H. Dougherty, of Charlottesville, who, state police said, confessed to killing State Trooper W. R. Thompson in a holdup of the Fork Union Bank shortly after noon.

The military academy student was shot in the back of the head and killed instantly as the posse, including a number of state policemen and local officers, surrounded a wooded section about two miles from here and closed in on Dougherty.

A fusillade of shots was fired by the band of armed men seeking the suspected bandit as they sighted Dougherty. Wicks, carrying a gun as a member of the pursuing group, was reported to have got into the line of fire and been struck by a bullet just as Captain H. B. Nicholas of the state police, sensing the youth's danger, ordered "cease firing."

Dougherty was taken to Henrico county jail at Richmond for safekeeping, while the posse continued to search for the other man suspected of participating in the bank holdup, in which Thompson was slain as he fought with one of the robbers.